SPECIAL MATINEE FOR "MY SOLDIER GIRL" GRIFFIN'S TOMORROW, 2.15.

Wedding Bells

YORK—MARTIN

A quiet wedding was solemnized at "Clearview", the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Martin of Corbyville, on September 16th, at two o'clock, when their daughter, Miss Ethel was united in marriage to Mr. Manson York of Camden, by Rev. J. C. McMullen of Consecon, assisted by Rev. E. A. Kemp of Foxboro. The bride, daintily attired in white silk with satin and lace trimmings, was given away by her father, standing before a background of flowers, while little Dorothy Wickson, niece of the bride, attired in white silk, acted as flower girl. Following congratulations and before the signing of the register a vocal duet was suitably rendered by Mrs. McMullen and Mr. Bruce Martin, after which the two little daughters, Dorothy Eleanor and Mable Blanche Elizabeth, of Mr. W. Wickson, brother-in-law of the bride, were presented for baptism. Rev. S. A. Kemp officiated, assisted by Rev. J. S. McMullen. Following the ceremonies the wedding party sat down to a delicious supper, after which the bride donned her travelling suit of black serge with hat to match, trimmed with white, and amid showers of rice and confetti, the bride and groom left by auto on their wedding trip. On their return the following Saturday evening, a miscellaneous shower was given them by the many friends of the bride, upwards of one hundred guests being present, and a very enjoyable time was spent.

TAYLOR—VESTERVELT

A pretty wedding took place on Thursday, Oct. 9th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Vesterfelt, near Bellleville, when their daughter, Rosie May, was united in marriage with William Thos. Taylor.

At three o'clock the bride leaning on the arm of her father, came into the parlor, taking her position beside Mr. Taylor, and the ceremony was performed by Rev. W. Elliott of the Tabernacle Church, Belleville.

The bride was handsomely dressed in pale blue silk, with an overdress of white tulle, and wearing a bridal wreath, and caried a beautiful bouquet of flowers, being attended by Miss E. Taylor.

About forty guests were present and sat down with the bride and groom and partook of a most delicious repast, after the usual congratulations had been offered.

Many costly and handsome gifts were presented, indicating the esteem in which the couple are held. The happy couple left by train for points west and north, folowed by the best wishes of numerous friends.

Nelson Day Drive For Navy League

Ships and men to man them are the big need of the Empire to-day. Canada is called upon to do her share in meeting the necessity. Shipyards are busy and new boats are being turned out as quickly as possible to fill the great gaps made in the Merchant Marine Service through the dastardly work of the Hun submarines during the bitter years of the war.

Ships and more ships mean much to Canada, for this nation must have a great export trade for its surplus products if prosperity is to become permanent. Qualified sailors in great numbers will be required to man these ships. Canada must provide as many of these men as possible, and must have them ready as the ships are ready. To this end the Navy League of Canada is doing wonderful work through the medium of its naval brigades. For the continuance and extension of this valuable mission and for the establishment and maintenance of Sailor's Homes in Canadian ports the League is now calling upon the citizens of the Dominion to subscribe half a million dollars. That is the object of the Nelson Day Campaign which is to be short and sharp. The actual drive will last for three days, October 21, 22, 23 and the duty devolves upon every Canadian to make it a success.

LIQUOR SEIZED AT KITCHENER

KITCHENER, Oct. 16.—Inspector Winterhalt seized 150 cases of liquor in a freight car at the C. P. R. station here, and between 40 and 50 cases of the same beverage at Petersburg, near here, on Saturday night. This is perhaps the largest haul ever made by the inspector here. He was aided by Government detectives. The boots will be shipped to the License Department.

WOMEN AND THE BALLOT

Paragraphs of Interest for Women Voters

"Reddy O'Flynn is a nice young fellow, but he is in very bad company, said a woman elector who proposes to vote for Hearst, Ireland and a continuation of good government.

There is a prospect of a great many spoiled ballots were made at a meeting of the women prohibitionists at Sault Ste Marie, and very few of those who tried marked their ballots correctly. Other tests were made at the Fall Fair and on the market at the same place, and in one case out of twelve ballots only three were correctly marked, these three being marked "Yes" to all four questions.

One of the acts of the Hearst Government on which popular judgment will be pronounced on Monday next is the pushing through of legislation granting the suffrage to the women of Ontario. The women themselves should feel bound to vindicate the Government's course in that connection. They will surely take this first opportunity to show their appreciation of the Government's confidence in them and justice to them by giving it their grateful support. In this case the prompting of gratitude and the dictates of civic spirit coincide. Ever if the women had obtained the suffrage through some other medium than the present Government, they would still, as good citizens be under a moral obligation to support the Government. We all believe that the giving of the vote to the women was not only a kindness to them, but also a good thing for the Province. It is for the woman to bear out that view. The record of the Hearst Government is a magnificent one. It offers no opening for adverse criticism. The highest praise is its due, and the people are not withholding the praise. More significant in the same sense is the fact that the Government's bitterest adversaries are not scoring a single point against it, and are not even preferring any charges against it. The verdict the women's vote should be thrown upon the Government side of the scales. The women may prove themselves Ontario's best electors. In some respects the feminine judgment is more trustworthy than the masculine judgment, and we are inclined to believe that in the marking of the ballot woman will show her peculiar good sense. Women, we believe, are more inclined to regard the suffrage as a trust than men are. They are more inclined than men to look upon public office rather as a responsibility than as a prize. Their vote is given less as a favor to the receiver than as a call to service. The woman voter puts the business up to the candidate and the man who is elected will in most cases be made to feel that his women supporters are keeping an eye on him.

Letters to the Editor

MR. IRELAND AND MR. GALLOWAY

To the editor of The Intelligencer.

Sir:—Having heard of statements made concerning the rejection of the nomination paper of Mr. Galloway, the Labor candidate at the nomination on the 13th inst., I consider it proper to give the facts.

Mr. Galloway's agent was told at once the nomination paper was placed before me of the irregularity therein, and had an hour before the time of closing the nominations to correct it, but nothing was done. I never accepted it or gave any certificate of regularity or statement to that effect.

Mr. Ireland, the Conservative candidate, had absolutely nothing to do with its reception or rejection, and was not present during this time. Mr. Ireland nor any one in his behalf made any objection to Mr. Galloway's nomination paper. My decision was founded upon my own judgment and I alone am responsible for its rejection. Hoping this will place this matter right before the public.

Yours truly,
W. H. MATTHEWS,
Returning Officer in W. Hastings.

WILL BURNED AT MARMORA

Wm. Bonter & Sons suffered a very heavy loss at Marmora Thursday night when their saw and grist mill were destroyed by fire during a heavy thunder storm. The building was struck by lightning and the fire spread so rapidly it was impossible to extinguish it. The loss will be about $10,000 with no insurance. The residence of both J. W. and R. H. Bonter were struck by lightning during the past summer, but fortunately did not take fire.

AUTO THIEVES AT KINGSTON

Thieves working with an automobile made a big haul of drygoods from the store of J. Giles, at Cataraqui, last night. They cut a plate glass window with a diamond and after rifling the safe and taking out the contents, filled their auto with goods and got away. A jewelry store at Gananoque was robbed last night and an attempt was made to rob the post office on the Bath road, but after the thieves broke a window they were frightened off.

Rails Across Africa.

Plans are under way in Africa for the construction of the railway and steamer connection across the continent from Cape Town to Cairo. Connection into the Atlantic to the former German capital at Dar-es-Salaam, "Harbor of Peace," on the Indian Ocean. The connection was completed just before the war, and the steamer terminal of the line was almost immediately destroyed. By this the town was shelled by British vessels. The German end of the line, now lost to Germany, ran for some 800 miles from Dar-es-Salaam to Lake Tanganyika, and a small steamer had been "made in Germany" and carried in sections over the new railway line to the lake, where it was to be put together and launched to carry passengers across to the beginning of the Belgian part of the system. The Belgian railway ran from Tanganyika to the upper Congo, making two unbelievable stretches of the upper river, and from this terminal the traveller continued by steamer to the Atlantic. Few ever made the journey, for the war began within a short time of the completion of the last link. But the next few months are likely to see the development of a steady traffic back and forth across what was once called the "dark continent."

Dust of Meteorites.

To an enormous extent the bed of the ocean is covered with java and pumice stone, says the Family Herald. Still more remarkable is it to find the floor of the ocean covered in many parts with the dust of meteorites. These bodies whirl about in the heavens like miniature comets, and are for the most part broken into microscopic fragments. We are all familiar with these heavenly visitants as shooting stars; but it has been only lately discovered that this cosmic dust forms layers at the bottom of the deepest seas. Around Honolulu and Tahiti, at a depth of 3,315 fathoms—over two miles and a half—a vast layer of this material exists. Falling upon land this impalpable dust is indistinguishable; but, accumulating for centuries in the sea bed, it forms a unique history of the continuous bombardment of this planet by comet-ary bodies.

Studio Days

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure News paper Syndicate.)

West put a few lingering touches on his canvas before the setting sun told him that he must wait until another day before finishing the delicate portrait's head. A riotous little jet of room time to time from his lips, but its absence becomes gradually combined with the soft veil of twilight captured the artist's soul and bade him express his joy in a more quiet manner.

An ermine smile lurked in West's eyes; the gold of his hair was dishevelled and his smock shockingly dirty, but little did he care since the studio rent was paid for the following month. Also the canvas on his easel would be finished in another six months' living.

And outside his door stood a girl whose eyes held all the wistfulness in the world and whose heart was abathing every pulse of that magic, happy lilt that fell from West's lips. Finally she knocked.

West was not prepared for a visitor, and such a one as he found on the landing was a challenge to the most sturdy of heartbeats.

"May I come in?"

"Almost waste of words," West said, and with the little courtly bow that was a part of the man he watched his visitor cross the threshold.

The wistfulness vanished swiftly and a tremendous gladness that took the form of glistening tears stood in the girl's eyes. She fled to the small window that held the glow of the setting sun and stood silently for a moment. Then West saw her head a hand across her eyes before she turned to him.

"You are not to think me mad," she said tremulously. "For three long years I have hungered to be in this studio again, and now—now my heart's thumping like a bird gone mad—just because I am here." She laughed softly with so much of glad emotion that West found the world an even more wonderful place to dwell in.

He started to prepare tea on the fire provided tea cast beside his easel, but the girl stopped quickly, over.

"I want to make the tea," she insisted. "See! I have brought some cinnamon cakes from the same old bakery shop that was there three years ago. I somehow felt I would be allowed to stay for tea—if I came in."

Her eyes were so adorable with their new-found happiness that West said frankly, "I would have dragged you in had I known you were out on that landing—so make yourself perfectly at home."

The girl threw her great motley cape on the dusty armchair just as carelessly as in the old days she had tossed off her threadbare tweed coat. Her gown was a dream and her small toque a brilliant-hued affair with an aloned something wabbling uncertainly over the edge. Although she was as chic as any wonderful poster, she pulled off the toque and with a swift gesture pumped the conventional, smooth coiffure into a bewildering head of burnished copper.

"You have utterly no regard for a poor bachelor's heart, have you?" West inquired. "There was warm, boyish admiration in his phrase. "But I will try to remember that you are just a little wraith that has blown into my wistaria for a cup of tea."

"The little wraith would very much like a smock—if you have a second one," she laughed back at him.

"It would take four of you to fill it up," he said after a successful rummage.

They both laughed like children at the result and for the first time in three years a happy lilt of song fell from Gretchen's lips.

"Oh, yes—my name is Gretchen Mc-Vicker," she told him by way of tardy introduction. "I saw yours on the door as I came up the creaky stairs. I used always to think those stairs would save in. They are just as dear as ever, but I loved every creak they gave out for me."

She was exploring all the while she talked and it was not long before a dainty tea was ready and they sat on opposite sides of the quaint cart West had fashioned. They were both hungry enough to enjoy the rare unconventionality of the moment without any strain.

"How long have you been in this studio?" Gretchen asked between bunches of cinnamon cake.

"I've managed to pay the rent here for three years," he told her.

"Oh! You came in just as I left, then. I was here for the two happiest years I have ever had," Gretchen said, and the wistfulness clouded her eyes. "I used to sing just as you were singing when I came up. Of course, I never expected to set the world on fire through my art, but somehow I shade a scant living—scant as to money, but overflowing with joy. I did not always have enough money to buy cinnamon cakes," she laughed, but her lips were tremulous.

"And then," urged West.

Then I married. After that it didn't seem as if life held a thing for her. There were no quaint Bohemians strolling in and out of my studio, no much-needed checks coming to me from inspired drawings and, worst of all, there was no freedom of thought or action. My husband gave me a gorgeous limousine for my last birthday, but it didn't take away one atom of the joy that my old-fashioned check gave me. I have everything on earth that money can buy."

"But why don't you keep on your art work—you Bohemian friends—wouldn't that have helped to make you happy?" West asked hungrily somehow, but there was beginning a great urge within him to try to keep this pure girl within his circle. Gretchen sheer and, unadulterated sadness to want for things, had married and married to a wealthy man and her fancy for Bohemian life and studio days had overleaped her passing whims. But there—she was answering his question.

"It was not worth while my working at art when I didn't have to. If I had possessed genius or even a great degree of talent I would have kept at it. But I only have talent enough to keep the wolf from the door. All for my Bohemian friends—well, I tried keeping them in my life, but my husband called them all 'cranks' and made me so unhappy about them that I gave them all up. So—I just can't tell you what it means to me to be actually back here with a smock on sitting in my own studio again."

"We won't quarrel, either about the studio or the smock," said West. "I have a right and that I offer to the tenant-here while you have chosen to play at studio days again."

So it was Gretchen Gretchen and gazed contentedly at the slim boyish man the while she realized that he possessed something more than his talent. He have found a crusty old maid who would let me in at all." How many thoughtful for so long a while that West looked apprehensively at her as he wondered if he had been using to displease her. But before he could form words to inquire, Gretchen asked hesitantly: "Are you going to want me to come again?"

West was just a bit puzzled. He also knew that he needed her, was very much indeed. It was difficult to frame just how to express his delight. He decided that his habitual frankness was the best course and after that she must take the situation in her own hands.

"You have asked me a straight question, little wraith," he said, and despite himself a great softness crept into his voice and his eyes, "so I must tell you that if I had my own way I would not let you go out of the studio again. You have come in of your own free will just to honor a whim which will perhaps pass as quickly as it came, but you have given something into my studio and into my soul that I desire greatly to keep."

His brilliant color flamed into Gretchen's cheeks and so tremendous a light into her eyes that West stopped speaking. He had annoyed her beyond forgiveness.

Gretchen trailed down and away from the window, leaving but the steady warm glow of twilight.

"I should not have asked you this," he continued finally; "you are the wife of another man—"

"I am not—now," Gretchen put in quickly, tremulously. "I would not have come back to studio days had he been living, now I'm all alone with so much money that it frightens me down and I have come back to Bohemia and paint dreadful pictures and get snippy little checks for them and—" It was the man who stopped, blinded by the happiness that West's eyes reflected.

"Then you are free—free to sit at my tea cart every day—free to let me keep that which has come into my studio and free to be happy all the days of old studio way?"

Gretchen nodded silently and because West wanted to take her in his arms but didn't think it quite the thing he walked over to the window and stood looking out at the twilight. Gretchen arose swiftly and stood beside him her hand upon his coat sleeve.

"Large makes the world a very wonderful place to live in, doesn't it?" she asked softly.

"That smock is so absurdly big it is difficult to find you in it," observed West.

"Still, I feel that you found me," laughed Gretchen as together they gazed happily out over the housetops from the studio window.

Ancient Timepieces.

During the reign of Edward I. the first genuine clock in England was placed in Westminster abbey. It must have been quite a novelty, and it remained alone in its glory for many years.

In the fourteenth century Peter Lightfoot, a monk of Glastonbury abbey, constructed a clock, which for long served in the British museum.

The veteran has been patched up a bit, but it is still in fair order and marks time as well as ever (better, probably, for a pendulum has been added, notwithstanding its patriarchal age of five centuries.

Perhaps it did not mark time very well before it got its pendulum. Old clocks until near the middle of the seventeenth century were by no means reliable as timepieces.

Changing Jobs.

The president of an Indianapolis bank, who is far from being a Beau Brummel in his dress, was standing on the sidewalk in East Washington street near a trey of shoestrings, and a stylishly dressed woman approached him.

"Here's a thing; let me have one of your longest pairs of black shoestrings."

The banker gave the woman his card and they laughed over the mistake.

A Bird That Rules the Darkness

Travels 25c Miles a Day.

For many years the annual migration of the birds, although a perfectly familiar fact, has abounded in mystery. Except in the case of a few birds like the robin, which winters not far south of its summer home, no one knew where the song birds or the shore birds went in the fall, nor when they began their northward flight in the spring.

But the subject has been carefully and patiently studied by many observers and naturalists that it is no longer impossible to answer these questions. The cliff swallows and blackpoll warblers spend their winter in tropical South America; the golden plover, which nests on the Arctic Sea, winters 9,000 miles away in the Argentine; the scarlet tanager is to be found in December and January in Ecuador and Peru, and the bobolink in Southern Brazil.

For a long time it was thought that the golden plover here off the palm for length of flight between summer and winter homes, but now that distinction is awarded to the Arctic tern. This bird breeds as far north as it can find anything stable on which to construct its nest; it has been found within seven and a half degrees of the pole. And that nest was found surrounded by a sort of Arctic snow which the mother bird had carefully scooped out from her self.

The tern arrives in the Far North about June 15, and leaves for the south toward the end of August, when the young are able to fly strongly. Two or three months after the birds are found skirting the edge of the Antarctic continent, 11,000 miles away. What their track is over that vast ocean is not known.

A few individuals are occasionally seen along the New England coast in the fall, but the flocks of thousands of which the crews of the whaling birds' which alternate from pole to pole with the never leave the sight of any trained observer competent to learn their preferred path and their time schedule. They must travel at least 150 miles a day—apart from their flights in search of pursuit of food—to carry them within ten or twelve weeks from one end of the world to the other.

The Arctic tern enjoys more hours of sunlight than any other creature on this globe. The sun never sets during its stay at the northern nesting grounds, and during the stay in the south it has two months of continuous sunlight and practical daylight for between six and eight months of the year.

The Valley of the Kootenay.

Forty or fifty odd miles south of the little lake, high in the Canadian Rockies, in which is the ultimate source of the Columbia river, almost under Deception Pass, Selkirk, Fort Steele. This British Columbian town, which is the capital of the Rossland-Selkirk Range, east of the Purcell Range, in the much-vaunted valley of the Kootenay between them and the much numberless ranges composing the main chain of Canadian Rockies, has a picturesque setting. The Kootenay and Elk beauty of the Kootenay river with its flanking prairies under mountain heights apart, the multiplicity of mountain lakes and streams and the fact that in this vicinity, determine distinctively the aspect of the country about Fort Steele.

First an Indian camping ground, the beginning of many points of settlement throughout the west, then a trading post with a ferry, lasting place and point of departure for those who travel on pioneer business in the spaces of the west, it finally became "local habitation and a name" from the establishment of a mounted police post there under the name of a hardy member of the famous force.

With the opening of the railroad through the Crows' Nest, the easy access to the silver, lead and copper mining districts that, even now scarcely more than prospected, are hidden in the convolutions of the mountain ranges whose multitudinous minor passes debouch into the great valley of the Kootenay amid whose meadows lies Fort Steele.

A Lover of Animals.

Miss Marshall Saunders' early home was Halifax, Nova Scotia. While she was assisting her father, the late Rev. Dr. Saunders, with some correspondence, Dr. Rand, then a professor in the University of Toronto, the late Principal Grant, Dr. Rand, "Why does not Marshall write stories?" The suggestion was repeated, and the result was a burgling story which brought a check for $40 from a New York magazine. The young writer's air castles were soon shattered by the steady return of subsequent manuscripts, but in 1892 she made her field in writing. Her "Beautiful Joe," the result of six months' careful work, won the $200 prize offered by the American Humane Society for the best story about animals. This book is still very popular. Miss Saunders lived for a number of years in the United States and has traveled widely in Europe and elsewhere. Her home is now in Toronto. She has written a large number of articles, stories and books about animal pets, as well as several novels.

A New Western Writer.

Robert Watson, who is on the staff of the Hudson Bay Co. at Arrow, B.C., is a Scot who came to Canada some years ago, and who, last year, captured the reading public with his "Sowerdale Mysteries" or of the Old Land and the New. "My Brave and Gallant Gentleman," He is continuing in the work of putting the Pacific province into literature, and this fall there appears his "Girl of O. K. Valley," a romance full of charm of atmosphere and vigor of action.

The world's most crooked river is the Jordan, which wanders nearly 220 miles to cover sixty.

A few individuals are occasionally seen along the New England coast in the fall, but the flocks of thousands of which the crews of the whaling birds' which alternate from pole to pole with the never leave the sight of any trained observer competent to learn their preferred path and their time schedule. They must travel at least 150 miles a day—apart from their flights in search or pursuit of food—to carry them within ten or twelve weeks from one end of the world to the other.

The Arctic tern enjoys more hours of sunlight than any other creature on this globe. The sun never sets during its stay at the northern nesting grounds, and during the stay in the south it has two months of continuous sunlight and practical daylight for between six and eight months of the year.

Do You Remember The Old Corn Doctor?

He stood on the street in the olden days and offered corn salve.

The same ingredients, harsh and medicinal, are sold in countless forms today.

But they did not cure corns, and they do not now. Nor does paring, nor does pasting—methods still.

The One Right Way

Modern scientists in the Bauer & Black laboratories have evolved a perfect method and embodied it in Blue-jay.

In 48 hours, while the corn is forgotten, Blue-jay completely ends it, and forever. Hardly one corn in ten needs a second application.

The way is sure. It is easy, pleasant, scientific. Quick, old-fashioned methods. Try Blue-jay on one corn—tonight.

To the Voter

¶ REMEMBER—Beer is the most nourishing beverage we possess. It contains such a very small amount of alcohol and such a relatively large amount of nutritive material that it would be difficult indeed to find a meal at once simpler and more nutritive than a bottle of beer, a piece of cheese and a crust of bread. One eminent physician proclaims Beer to be a liquid beefsteak.

¶ REMEMBER—The Beer of the Ballot must not be confused with the beers sold in Ontario before prohibition. The beers sold in this Province under the Old License System had an alcoholic content as high as 7% and over—the beer for which you are asked to vote on October 20th is but 2.51%.

¶ REMEMBER—The Beer of the Ballot is absolutely non-intoxicating—beer of even 2.4% stronger has been proven non-intoxicating by scientific experiments and thorough research by a board of fourteen qualified experts. The Beer of the Ballot is nothing but a mildly stimulating, healthful and refreshing non-intoxicating beverage—brewed from a high grade of malt and hops—containing only sufficient alcohol to make it digestible and nourishing.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, Oct. 14.—With more than 6000 cattle on sale at the Union Stock Yards yesterday, there was a fair steady demand for the good useful butcher class, with few or no real choice heavyweight cattle on sale.

Owing to the heavy receipts coupled with the holiday air everywhere apparent, together with the very large percentage of common cattle, prices for the latter were quotably from 25c to 40c lower than the close of last week's market. In some cases the decline was probably even more marked than these figures.

At the close of the market, at 4.30 o'clock, a good many cattle were left unsold, probably between 1,200 and 1,000 all told.

With a run of over 6,000 sheep and lambs, the market eased off fully from 50c to 75c.

With 1700 hogs on sale, and the market in its usual puzzling position as to prices, it is pretty hard to get down to definite figures, but we figure out the price at 17c f.o.b., 18c. fed and watered, and 18¼c weighed off cars, as likely to be the basis for the week.

Will Acquire G. T. R.

OTTAWA, Oct. 14.—Within a few months the Government of Canada will acquire the Grand Trunk Railway System and merge it with the Canadian National Railways, making the latter the largest public-owned railway system in the world, with a mileage of over 20,000 miles.

A resolution introduced in the House of Commons by Hon. Arthur Meighen provides for the acquisition by the Government of the entire capital stock of the Grand Trunk Railway, except the four per cent. guaranteed stock, amounting to 13,500,000 pounds sterling.

A board of three arbitrators will determine the value of the first, second and third preference stocks and the common or ordinary stock. One of the arbitrators is to be appointed by the railway company, the second by the Government, and the third by the other two, or, failing agreement, by judges.

Mistrust Roumania.

PARIS, Oct. 14.—Insistent rumors of a treaty which Roumania is entertaining to negotiate with Hungary continue to reach Peace Conference circles, and there is a general disposition to believe that certain Roumanian officials are striving to frame such a treaty regardless of the free consent which have been issued from Bucharest.

Roumania is alleged to be seeking to gain far more territory than granted to that country in the treaty the Peace Conference is framing with Hungary on behalf of the allied and associated powers.

Soloi.

To give an approximate idea of the scope of the industry, one need only compare the small output of pure toluol in 1912 and 1913, for which, each year, was approximately 500,000 gallons, with the estimated output for the year just past (1918); during which period it is hoped that the output will have exceeded 20,000,000 gallons. Practically all of this increase has been possible because of the recovery of toluol from coke oven gas and city supplies.

Most of the railroad workers in Japan are women who are doing everything except running and firing the engines.

Wives Will Vote "No!"

Mothers of Ontario's Children Will Not Compromise With "Booze"

		YES	NO
1	Are you in favour of the repeal of the Ontario Temperance Act?		X
2	Are you in favour of the sale of light-beer containing not more than two-and-fifty-one one-hundredths per cent. alcohol weight measure through Government agencies and amendments to The Ontario Temperance Act to permit such sale?		X
3	Are you in favour of the sale of light-beer containing not more than two-and-fifty-one one-hundredths per cent. alcohol weight measure in standard hotels in local municipalities, that by a majority vote favour such sale and amendments to The Ontario Temperance Act to permit such sale?		X
4	Are you in favour of the sale of spirituous and malt liquors through Government Agencies and amendments to The Ontario Temperance Act to permit such sale?		X

Do not spoil your ballot by marking it with anything but X—four times.

Simply put an X after each Question under the word "No"

BOOZE" is an ugly word in the ears of a woman. Millions of women have had all hope of happiness in this world blasted by "booze."

"Booze" has starved little children and clad them in rags.

"Booze" throughout history has made fiends out of men and rewarded the tender affection of women and children with curses and abuse.

Wife Murderers "Booze-Crazed"

"I have never known a single case of wife murder that was not committed under the influence of drink," said the late Dr. J. T. Gilmour, Chief Warden of the old Central Prison, Toronto, and subsequently Superintendent of the Provincial Prison Farm at Guelph, a man of life-long experience with criminals.

Seventy-five per cent of the suicides have been set down to drink.

"Booze" shortens lives. Insurance experts calculate an average increase of 35 per cent. in the death rate for even moderate drinkers.

"Booze" Brings Poverty and Sickness

"Booze" decreases the household income, lessens the husband's earning power and kills his ambition to succeed.

"Booze" and degenerative disease go hand in hand. Fifty-four per cent. of the divorces in Germany, the great beer-drinking country, and 50,000 deaths a year are directly traceable to "Booze." No less than 50,000 cases of alcoholic insanity are admitted to German Asylums yearly. And yet drinking in the homes or in cafes and beer gardens as practised in Europe is held up as ideal for Ontario!

"Booze" Dooms Children to Insanity

Children of both alcoholic fathers and mothers are doomed to be mentally backward, feeble-minded, morally degenerate, epileptic or insane.

Alcoholism affects the child unborn, and alcoholic degeneracy may descend to the children of the third and fourth generation.

Beer drinking in the home makes the home a school for future drunkards.

Domestic beer drinking has made German women coarse and vulgar, German children feeble, and German men bloated and brutal.

Ontario Women Have Power to Vote

Once women of this Province suffered "booze" to wreck and destroy in silent sorrow or bitter pride. To-day in Ontario they have a vote. On October 20 they can order that "the Menace of Booze shall be forever ended."

FORTY VEHICLES.

How to Make Unique Trip Round the World.

Now that the Atlantic has been crossed and there are plans afoot to fly over the Pacific, the day may not be far distant when some aerial Magellan will make an airplane tour around the world.

There are still many corners of the world where airplane, automobile and even the horse would be curiosities. And if a man set out to "do the globe and "do as the Romans do" in respect to adopting native conveyances he would have to—

Resort to a donkey in Spanish America and in the Holy Land;

Climb aboard a camel to traverse African deserts;

Cross some rivers of India on the backs of elephants, and Journey a part of Russia and Siberia by a bridge of one rawhide rope;

Submit to the seasoning motion of the elephant when he continued his journey on land;

Get into a man-borne palanquin at Calcutta;

Jolt over Far Eastern roads in a bamboo-and-sterling cart drawn by oxen.

And in China be prepared to climb into a jinrikisha, a sedan chair or a wheelbarrow.

A few of these curious means of travel are described in a communication by O. P. Austin as follows:—

"In all parts of that great line of deserts, stretching from North Africa, the camel is everywhere in evidence; the total number in the world being estimated at about three millions.

"Not only is the camel a valuable freight carrier, but he serves as the traveling car of the Rockefellers, the Carnegies, the Morgans, and the Harrimans of the desert. When he is chosen for this more pretentious service, a light frame work is placed upon his back and covered with cloths to screen the occupants from the sun and the observation of the peasers, and decorated with pompons of varied colors. In this gorgeous compartment, which may be not inaptly termed the 'Palace car of the desert,' the master of the camel train places his wife and children, his choicest merchandise, his cooking utensils, and daily requirements, and travels in state, the observed of all observers, the envy of the wandering native of the desert.

"On the Euphrates and the Tigris are still seen the curious rafts which transports of centuries ago — the raft of skins and the circular boats. These rafts are sustained by inflated skins, prepared for this especial purpose, and after the raft floats down the river to its destination the inflated skins are removed, the air permitted to escape, and the skins carefully folded and carried back to the upper waters, where they are again inflated and used as the support of another, and still another raft.

"Even more curious, to the eyes of the traveller from other parts of the world, are the circular boats, made of wickerwork and covered with skins, or made water-tight with pitch, which are still in daily use on the Tigris and Euphrates rivers.

"The three principal methods of transportation of people in China are sedan chair, the jinrikisha and the wheelbarrow.

"Probably more freight and more passengers are transported in China by the wheelbarrow than by any other land method. The wheelbarrow of the land differs from that used by us, in the fact that the wheel is set in the centre, and thus supports practically the entire load, while the handles are supported in part by a strap or rope over the shoulders of the man who operates it. As a result, the wheelbarrow coolie in China will transport nearly a half ton on his vehicle."

There are seventy-seven thousand German prisoners still in England awaiting transportation home.

How Harry Brown Won His V.C.

HARVEST time had come again to France and the fields once more hung low in the sky before the dawn of August 15, 1917. From the ruined town of Loos Canadian soldiers made their way to the front line trenches at the foot of Hill 70. After two years grim, bloody duty on the battle line, as it winds was to be made on the German entrenchments on the side and crest of the hill. The enemy had fortified its position very strongly because it overlooked the mining town of Lens. The whole district was dotted with little mining towns, of which nothing remained now but piles of brick and stone. The Germans had deepened the cellars and put concrete roofs overhead, often many feet thick. The streets of the villages were crossed and recrossed with wire of wire, and concrete gun emplacements sunk deep, but showing only a few feet above ground, were pitted all along the way.

Two years bombardment had left little standing on the chalky slope of Hill 70. Down in the valley where the town of Loos once stood, every building had been smashed to atoms. The Canadians moved up to the front in the dark, past trenches named for troops who had passed that way before in the attack made on the hill in 1915: Black Watch Alley, Canadian Alley and English Alley. The ground was slippery from the rains of the first two weeks of August. The weather was sultry and moist.

Suddenly from behind them arose the first rumble of the opening artillery attack, the hill was soon clouded with smoke lit by flashes of the bursting shells, and followed by a blaze of fame with the discharge of burning oil and liquid fire over the enemy trenches.

At 4.25 o'clock the infantry left their positions in the trenches and swarmed over No Man's Land into the German line. The first line was taken in six minutes. The German garrison of Hill 70 was composed of young, raw troops and put up a weak resistance to our troops. The first stream of the wave fighting to the east when our walking wounded started coming back to the dressing stations, all of them elated with the joy of victory. After two years weary waiting they were moving on, and their spirits were almost forgotten in the exhilaration of seeing the Hun in retreat.

But the attack was not done. Got It Bad.

The young man about town had just been accepted by the one girl in the world," who nevertheless, was a member of a forty-strong beauty chorus.

"So you think you have won the heart of his father.

"I know I love her!" swore the infatuated youth.

"Are you sure you love her as much as the dad loves the girl?"

"I'm sure of more than that. I love her as much as she thinks I do!"

A ROOSEVELT ANECDOTE

An Amusing Incident Created a "Kind of Ritual."

One day, writes Lawrence F. Abbott in World's Work, the mails were seated in Mr. Roosevelt's private office, when suddenly from the outer room, his secretary announced the late Senator Carter of Montana. The Senator was shown into the room. He was dressed, as I recall it, in a gray frock coat and his head was surmounted with red hair, shone with pleasure. The interview was unimportant. Mr. Roosevelt leaped out of his chair, seized the Senator by both hands and they began dancing back and forth across the room, chanting (in fancy we heard the refrain):

"Oh, the Irish and the Dutch
They don't amount to much,
But hurrah for the Scandinavian!"

After Senator Carter left, Mr. Roosevelt, amused at the look of surprised interrogation on my face, volunteered the following explanation: Mr. Carter is a good friend of mine, although we have often disagreed radically on political principles and issues. This is the way during a political campaign he and I were scheduled to speak on the same occasion in a town of the northwest. When we came out of the hall and were walking along the board-walk of the little village to our hotel, we met a huge Swede or Norwegian, who was somewhat exhilarated from pouring too many libations in honour of the Republican party. As he signalled me and knew the narrow sidewalk, we had to step aside to avoid a collision. He was staring at the top of his lungs that song about the Irish and the Dutch. Now, Senator Carter is Irish and I am Dutch and we thought it was a very good thing. We have, every time we have met since, unless there are too many people about, we are apt to greet each other as we did just now. It has become a kind of ritual."

Effect of Bolshevism.

What Bolshevism on the job, in full working array, will do is described in the current issue of Forbes Magazine by Jacob de Julin, president of the Commercial Mission of the Finnish Government. Early in January of last year, while on a business trip to Helsingfors, he was warned that the Reds had taken over the city. Within a week, he escaped a machine oiler to the post of manager, discharged most of the original working force, every one of which was a Red, and began to undermine it for the plant according to true Bolshevist rules. The result was that without technical direction and trained executive skill they managed to run the plant for about two weeks, and thereafter it operated no more. There were seven months' supply of food—which was short in Finland—at the plant. The Bolshevists took it over and divided it. By the time the White Guard, or anti-Bolshevist troops, arrived on March 14, this food was all gone, for the Reds had not only eaten double rations but had sold much of it.

Finally the White Guard forced the Reds to surrender — and Mr. Julin was again in charge of the plant. Out of 3,000 employees, only 150 were left, the rest having fled or been made prisoners. To sum up: The net result of Bolshevism in the plant was idleness for everybody and comfort for nobody for nearly all of the three months because of the lack of skilled men, waste of food and raw materials, with starvation in its wake, terrorism, disorder, looting and robbery. And after Mr. Julin resumed control of the plant it took him nine months to restore it to normal efficiency—nine months to repair the ravage of three.

The Best Health-Insurance Is a Clean Colon

THERE ARE TWO WAYS of insuring yourself against disease. One is to pay big premiums to an insurance company which will pay you so much a week when you get sick. And if you get sick, most of this money will have to go to the doctor who tries to make you well again.

THE BEST WAY is to keep the disease-resisting forces of the body so well organized and equipped as to guarantee health. That you can enjoy life right along, and make it pay you premiums instead of paying premiums on a policy.

This can be done only by keeping the colon clean and free from clogging. For many years medical authorities tell us that about 90% of the sickness we have is directly or indirectly due to constipation.

Nujol is the best health insurance "policy" in existence, because it keeps the colon clean and clean without forcing or weakening any of the other organs. It is the only foe of constipation which has no unpleasant or dangerous "come-back".

Nujol is not a drug. Every particle of it that goes into the body comes out of the body. But on its journey it softens any mass that may be impacted in the colon and lubricates the way so as to make it easy for nature to move the obstruction and properly get rid of it.

Nujol never interferes with digestion or any functions of any organ. It is not absorbed by those millions of little "mouths" in the intestine which suck in nourishment from the food passed along by the stomach. Its sole job is to keep things moving in an orderly, comfortable way. And it does this without any pain—does it equally well for babies, children, adults and aged folk.

Try Nujol. Get a bottle from your druggist today.

For valuable health booklet—"Thirty Feet of Danger" free, write Nujol Laboratories, Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey) 50 Broadway, New York.

EXPORTS— Canada Must Build Up Trade Overseas

CANADA is vitally interested in trade extension overseas, for this so closely affects our national wealth. We are daily losing export business in favor of foreign competitors, because we lack shipping facilities.

Our Dominion is undertaking a great shipbuilding program, recognizing that we must build a fleet to build our trade.

The Navy League of Canada is straining every effort to prepare Canadian boys to man Canada's ships which will carry Canada's goods to the waiting markets of the world.

This is the work of the Boys' Naval Brigades, and it is a matter of primary interest to every Canadian that this movement should not be handicapped by lack of funds.

Aims of the NAVY LEAGUE OF CANADA

To emphasize Canada's opportunities and responsibilities on the sea.

To raise funds for the relief of our merchant seamen, injured in the war, and for dependents of those who were killed.

To maintain sailors' homes in our ports.

To train boys and young men for our merchant ships by the organization of Boys' Naval Brigades.

Nelson Day Campaign for $500,000

OCTOBER 21st, 22nd, 23rd

"Canadians Must Sail the Seas"

Boys' Naval Brigades are already established and operating in Charlottetown, Halifax, Montreal, Toronto, Saskatoon, Calgary, Victoria and Nanaimo, and many other branches must be organized from East to West in order that the younger generation of Canadians may have the opportunity for free training in seamanship and so will be ready to meet Canada's great need.

You will help. You cannot afford to withhold interest in the outcome of this campaign; it is too vital to future issues. For the sake of our boys and of our export trade you will give, and give liberally to the cause. By helping the work you will be helping yourself.

WHEN I GET MARRIED.

Small Boys Give Their Ideas of Wedded Life.

Tit-Bits tells of a schoolmaster who told his class of boys, from eleven to fourteen years of age, to write a composition on the subject "When I Get Married." The results are amusing. One eleven-year-old lad wrote:

"I shall depend upon my wife to get the dinner and tea ready for me when I come home. If my wife has not the tea ready for me when I come home there'll be a barny. I wonder if my wife will be rich enough to let me be the master of the house and the children. I wonder if she will always be going to the pictures and leaving me to mind the children. If she is going to do that way, I shall take my ration book and have home."

One boy has very definite ideas as to the duties and pleasures of married life.

"When I get married," he says, which I shall not do until I can pay for a good home and the necessaries of life for my wife and myself, I should go and see that no water ran through the roof and dropped on the beds. I should not like the walls to be damp. When we had been married for a bit, with a kiddie or two toddling about the house, I should soon want them to grow older, so that I should not be awakened in the middle of the night by their screams. I should be a teetotaller, shave twice a week, and smoke two ounces of thick twist a week."

Another boy sees it very simply: "If I will be my own master in some things, but in other things I'll let my wife have her own way. My wife and I will have a night off every fortnight. Of course, we shall have some children."

One little fellow does not believe in heiresses. "I shan't get married to a rich lady," he says, "because she will be always wanting dresses that cost a lot of money, and if her wealth grows less and less till she is poor, then I shall have to work very hard to please her. I shall marry a lady that can do housework and requires no servants—a lady who will agree to everything I say."

The pain, however, goes to a twelve-year-old who promises to be a husband worth courting. He writes: "When I get married I shall, I hope, agree with my wife. I shall keep trying to get more knowledge of my work, then I should get better positions in my trade, and that means more money. I think that the more money you get the better it will be for the wife. If I had any children I should try to cultivate a hobby for them. I should give them a money-box each, and allow them something per week to put in their boxes. When they had got enough they could buy what they wanted, provided it was sensible, such as a camera, fretwork, or foreign stamps, or any other hobby. I should build a shed and put them a punch-ball and a few other things in, and make it like a little 'gym' for them. Then I would put a hammock in one end of it, for my wife to lie in and watch her little sonnies learn to 'play the game.'"

"If I had any girls I should bring them up with the boys. They could go with them on their madcap adventures, but still I should like them to cultivate that quiet dignity so characteristic of real ladies."

Foretelling the Weather.

As a weather prophet the crow has no equal. Should rain be imminent, these birds will rise from their nests in the fields, and, after about overhead for a time, and then, return to the places where they arose. Should their stay in the air be short, then the rain will not be long delayed. If they continue flying overhead for a considerable time, then the downpour will be of considerable length, but duration may be prolonged when it does appear. Should the latter, in addition to remaining long on the wing, indulge in a loud clamor, then the disturbance in the weather conditions is likely to be severe.

The peacock is credited with much discernment as regards the weather, His pridal, dilapidated strut vanishes, and he given vent to shrill, ear-splitting screams when rain is approaching.

Swallows are unerring in their instinct. If they are flying high, then a macintosh is not an immediate necessity. But if, when they are on the search of their food, they skim along at a low altitude, it is safe to predict a downfall at no great period. The long-distance flyers, such as gulls and rooks, are well worth attending. They are not only weather-wise, but wise in common sense. They never venture far from home when dirty weather is brewing.

In the English Chafinel, an east wind is certain to follow the appearance of the curlew on dark nights; while the appearance of the seamew presages rain and strong southwest winds. If you observe the sea gulls leaving the coast, making for inland, and settling on the fields, then you may safely bet on a storm from the southeast.—Tit-Bits.

Quick Work.

A man who was wanted by the police had been photographed in six different positions and the pictures sent to the chief of police of a provincial town, where it was thought likely the fugitive was in hiding. After the lapse of a few days the following reply reached headquarters: "Sir: Sixty dozen copies portraits of the six miscreants whose photos you sent arrived. I have received five of them, and the sixth is under observation and will be secured shortly."

Inspect the Cellars.

A resolution passed by the South Waterloo Trades and Labor Council is being forwarded to the Fuel Controller in Ottawa, Preston and Hespeler, asking that the cellars of all houses be inspected.

The German Polish industry, heretofore almost entirely, may be able to face a severe competition now that peace is over.

Garter Fancies.

Some garters of the present day are quite elaborate. They are made of all sorts of silks, ribbons, laces and even embroideries and are ornamented with bows. One pair is made of blue silk fringed at either end and embroidered in lavender and pink.

Back of Canada's Victory Bonds

WHEN you loan money you make sure the borrower is able to repay the loan and that he will pay you the interest regularly as it falls due.

When you loan money to Canada you know your money is absolutely safe.

Back of Canada's Victory Bonds is the entire wealth that Canada possesses—all her industries and all her resources in minerals, fisheries, forests and lands.

Canada has one-third of the area of the whole British Empire; she is larger than thirty United Kingdoms; twice the size of India; eighteen times as large as France. She is practically as large as all of the European countries put together.

Canada is larger than the United States including Alaska (Canada, 3,729,665 square miles; United States and Alaska, 3,617,673 square miles).

Canada has over 440,000,000 acres of farm lands—and only one-eighth of it is yet under cultivation.

Canada has the most extensive and best stocked fisheries in the world—232,000 square miles of fishing waters.

Canada has over 625,000,000 acres of commercial timber—she is the great forest resource of the Empire.

Canada's mineral deposits have scarcely been scratched—yet her mines yielded $210,204,970 last year.

Canada's field crops have doubled in five years—from $552,771,500 to $1,367,909,970.

Canada's people have increased their cash balances in Banks and Post Offices nearly seventy per cent. in five years—from $1,086,013,704 to $1,740,462,509.

Canada's trade has more than doubled in five years—from $1,085,175,572 to $2,564,462,215. Canada emerges from the war one of the world's greatest and strongest nations—her natural wealth equals $2,000 for each man, woman and child of her population.

Canada's Victory Bonds are the finest possible investment where safety is the chief consideration.

Moreover, when you loan your money to Canada you know that the interest will be paid every six months—all you have to do is to go to the nearest Bank and get it.

Canadians will soon be given another opportunity to buy Victory Bonds.

This will probably be the last time you will be able to purchase Canada's bonds on such favorable terms.

Prepare to buy—All Canada is Your Security.

Clearing Up After War.

On the banks of the Thames, less than twenty miles from London, there is an American town of its own, room kind such as you might find in a new California oil field. Its population consists of more than 200 white men and about 150 negroes. It covers twenty-five acres which nine months ago were fallow grass land. The business of the town is to receive, sort and store war material. There is a street of wooden huts, another of corrugated iron huts, huge store sheds a quarter of a mile long, office buildings, water supply and electric lights, the whole surrounded by a hedge, a few armed sentries and much mud. All day long the khaki-clad negroes push and haul railway trucks full of war material.

War material coming back from Egypt is being stored at this camp, also the fittings of the dismantled hospitals which the American army established in England.

Kangaroo Scores Knockout.

"Ned Kelly, the old buck kangaroo, has been having a fight with the boss stag of the axis deer herd," said Secretary McGee of the San Francisco park police, "and it is the first time I ever heard of two herbivorous animals so widely different in species finding common ground for a quarrel.

"As a matter of fact, it was the axis deer that started the trouble. He was trying to show off before the does and started hitting at poor old Ned Kelly, who was peacefully lolloping along with no thought for trouble. The first butt of the deer set Ned thinking the second set him mad, the third—well, Ned Kelly just turned about and gave the axis deer one swallop under the stomach with his left hind foot, and after the smack five blocks away. Had it simply knocked the deer flat, it dropped as if it had been shot, while Ned Kelly just hopped away as happy as a bird."

Ancient Sweetmeats.

Who invented sweetmeats and confectionery?

Diving deep into the story of the ancients the writer has come to the conclusion that some, if not all, the credit must go to old friend Noah.

He it was who first hit upon the idea of boiling down the starch of the wheat and the juice of the grape. The result was a paste, said to be the original of our present-day "Turkish delight."

The ancient Egyptians knew all about making "toothsome trifles," although sugar was unknown.

Whole fruits, particularly figs and dates, were used for flavoring purposes, the latter especially for preserves and cakes. Old tombs-date sweetmeats have been found, also records of honey-jellies.

The making of confectionery, in fact, goes back 3,400 years, proof of which is to be found on the walls of tombs there.

United States Honey Crop.

The honey crop of the United States for 1918 having been placed by the department of agriculture at about 250,000,000 pounds, American Botanist estimates that as the nectar of flowers does not become honey until worked over and partly evaporated the bees must move as much as 150,000 tons of material to produce this crop, exclusive of the honey eaten by themselves. Of the produce about one-half is from the nectar of white clover, with two other leguminous plants—alfalfa and sweet clover—as the next important sources. A honey that can be recognized is produced by 4 few plants, including cotton, basswood, tulip tree, buckwheat, goldenrod and mountain sumac.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1919.

Vote for W. H. IRELAND and SANDY GRANT and Retain GOOD GOVERNMENT

Clean, Strong, Progressive And Patriotic Government

PROMISED FOR ONTARIO BY SIR WILLIAM HEARST IN ADDRESS TO ELECTORS — WOMEN VOTERS URGED BY PREMIER TO TAKE FULL ADVANTAGE OF THEIR FRANCHISE.

TORONTO, Oct. 17.—A statement issued by Sir William Hearst today earnestly commends to the electors of Ontario the duty of going to the polls on Monday and choosing by their votes the government to administer the affairs of this province during the next four years.

"An unusual number of candidates have presented themselves, but the electors who wish the government to be sustained will have no difficulty in making their choice. They have only to remember that every vote cast against a recognized supporter of the government is a vote against the government and its policies. I would like to emphasize the fact that a government can be sustained only by the election of men who have confidence in it, and that to be strong and efficient a government must be assured a substantial majority in the legislature. I ask the electors to bear this in mind when they mark their ballots. This will be the first opportunity for the women of Ontario to vote in a general election for members of the Legislative Assembly and I urge them to take full advantage of it.

"MY PLEDGE TO THE ELECTORS IS THAT WE WILL, IF SUSTAINED, GIVE CLEAN, STRONG, PROGRESSIVE AND PATRIOTIC GOVERNMENT TO ONTARIO IN THE INTEREST OF THE WHOLE PEOPLE."

W. H. HEARST.

Sir William Hearst

Sir William Hearst has been busy for five years giving this province wise, honest, and progressive government. The present is the first opportunity he has had of placing the record of that government before the people. It is a record that no province can approach. It is a record that has made the people of Ontario, irrespective of their party attachments, more satisfied with their government than any community in Canada. Sir William Hearst may well content himself, as he does, in leaving it before them in his plain, unvarnished style of oratory and trusting that they will appreciate it.

It is impossible to avoid comparing this man and his record, his ability, his definite policies, his deep concern for the welfare of the province, with the man who asks to be made Prime Minister in his place, Mr. Hartley Dewart. We imagine the people of Ontario must be making the comparison individually. The latter doesn't even attract the admiration one gives to an accomplished demagogue. He has the insincerity of a demagogue without his plausibility. His petty methods and motives, the hollowness of his claim to public attention, are too visible.

Dewart's Nickel "Dud"

Mr. Dewart's attempt to make the export of nickel during the war a live Ontario political issue is doomed to failure. The purport of his allegations is too far removed from common-sense to deceive every blood who have no knowledge of the issue. When he lays at the door of the Hearst Government responsibility for Ontario nickel finding its way aboard the Deutschland and thence into Germany, he is on the wrong tack. It is perfectly true that Ontario nickel should have been refined in Canada before the war, but his own political friends in office in Ottawa and Toronto prevented that, and their reciprocity campaign was for the free movement of our raw materials to the United States for the benefit of industry there. With the war upon us it was impossible for the Canadian Government to compel such a change in time to enable refining in Canada of sufficiently large quantities of nickel matte. At one time Britain was depending entirely on Charles M. Schwab and the Bethlehem Steel Company for vitally necessary munitions. The nickel produced from the New Jersey refineries of the Nickel Company was indispensable for munitions made in the United States for the Allies. The best the British and Canadian Governments could do was to keep a sharp surveillance on the disposal of every piece of nickel turned out by the company, to prevent resale of it to German interests. The British navy guarded shipments of it. The Ontario Government could have no control over the exportation of nickel matte. That is a Dominion matter, and the Dominion Government was in close consultation with the British Government, and acted on advices from London. As an election weapon against the Hearst Government, the nickel bomb is a "dud."

Three Injured In G.T.R. Wreck

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press Limited

MONTREAL, Oct. 17.—A G. T. R. work train at Lyn, Ont., ran into the rear of an another train this morning. Three people were hurt and were taken to Brockville Hospital.

Conductor William Reynolds of Brockville, is in St. Vincent Hospital suffering from bruises and possibly internal injuries, while Brakeman Vincent Kennedy of Belleville, and L. E. Savage of Brockville have left that institution after being treated for minor injuries. The two work trains left Brockville shortly after six o'clock enroute to the scene of track operations. When near Yonge Mills the second train on rounding a curve pitched into the first. Belleville wrecking crew is now clearing the line.

Last of The Barnacles Dewart is Jew Baiting

W. C. MIKEL, K.C., SAYS IF ALL THE PEOPLE OF ONTARIO HAD BEEN AS TEMPERATE AS THE JEWS THERE WOULD HAVE BEEN LITTLE NEED FOR PROHIBITION.

Last night at a meeting at Turner's extended for religious purposes it is School House in Sidney, W. C. Mikel, K.C., said Hartley Dewart, as a last resort has been driven to the age-old devices of "Jew-baiting." He endeavored to leave the impression that Jews are being debauched. Mr. Mikel said he ascertained on careful enquiry that practically no orthodox Jew has ever been before the courts for drunkenness and that they are very temperate, though they use liquor at all their feasts and religious ceremonies. There would be little need of prohibition if all classes were like that. Even if a few Jews have violated the privilege unfair to blame the whole race. When Dewart's friends were in power, dealers could sell liquor to Christians and Jews on Good Friday and on Christmas, till the Conservative Government put a stop to it. The fact that in forty-one constituencies there is not a Liberal candidate shows that Liberals are not in accord with Dewart. It is too bad that Mr. O'Flynn was willing to allow Himself to stand as a Dewart follower. If Mr. O'Flynn is so anxious to do something for the Farmer and the Labor, why did he not withdraw and help put a Labor-Farmer candidate in?

Dewart's No, No, Yes, Yes, View

Jewish Speaker at Toronto Scores Dewart's Wine Scandal.

TORONTO, Oct. 17.—At the meeting of the Ward Four Conservative Association at Brondesy Hall, Ex-Alderman Louis Singer claimed that the Jewish population of Toronto were going to knock the Jew out of Dewart.

"I am a Jew," said Mr. Singer, "and in common with other Jews, I resent the malicious statements made by Mr. Dewart. There were no such suggestions when the Jews of Toronto obtained liquor for their religious observances last Easter, and it is possible that the Ontario Government arranged that the Passover come before their election! In all Ontario there is only one Jewish community, and that community forms only ten per cent. of the voters of the riding in which it is situated. Can you imagine any Government risking its good name for the sake of obtaining by questionable means the vote of this minority?"

Cannot Be Influence Jews

Mr. Singer said it was ridiculous to claim that Jews might be influenced politically by liquor bribery for Jews were seldom found intoxicated and as for the man who would send another to obtain six bottles instead of one, he was not a man, for a leader.

Mr. Singer further said that Mr. Dewart was careful to observe that he was not charging the Jews.

The speaker further observed that there were four views upon the referendum, the Four No View, acknowledged by Sir William Hearst, the Four Yes View championed by the Liberty League, and the "No, No, Yes, Yes, View" taken by Mr. Dewart who the speaker hoped would next Monday be put where he could no longer make similar charges.

Open Letter To Candidate O'Flynn From English Wife of Soldier

58 Hillcrest Ave.,
Belleville, Oct. 17th, 1919.

Mr. E. D. O'Flynn,—

Having read your speech in last night's Intelligencer putting forth a proposition to keep all English women out of Canada for one year, I wish to comment on it. You have no right at all to make such a proposition, and I thank the meeting for giving it the scorching reception it deserved. It is both an insult and a slur to all English women, and you being a soldier, should be the last to make such a proposition. There were thousands of hospitals in England, all with English nurses. Where would the wounded Canadians have been in England if they had barred all Canadian soldiers from English hospitals? You ought to thank the English women for the kindness they extended to the Canadians and not try and bar them from the country as though they were unclean enemies. Had you brought back an English wife you would not have made such a proposition. I am an English woman and proud of it, and I consider it my duty to uphold my rights as an English woman.

In conclusion I consider you very insulting and certainly not a gentleman, and you owe an apology to all English women.

AN ENGLISH WIFE.
(Coriace Luscombe).

Flying Parson Forced To Land

Need Not Restore Local Express

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press, Limited

OTTAWA, Oct. 17.—The Board of Railway Commissioners in a judgment handed out today refuse the application of the city of Kingston and towns of Gananoque and Brockville for an order directing the Grand Trunk Railway to restore the train service between Belleville and Brockville which was discontinued at the end of September.

Mrs. Emma L. Hollywood is a candidate for city treasurer in Brooklyn.

Explanation For Women Voters

Some women are confused about their voting privileges for election day, October 20th. A few facts stated may make it clearer in their minds.

Women now have votes on exactly the same basis as men, and it is not only their right, but their duty to cast those votes on election day.

Women now have votes on exactly the same basis as men, riding, and they have another entirely separate vote on the referendum. Some think they have a vote on the latter, but not on the former. This is, of course, a mistake. You have a vote on each.

Each woman will have two ballots to cast. These are two separate slips of paper, and one has no effect on the other.

On the election ballot, will be the names of the candidates of that riding, arranged in alphabetical order. There will be nothing on the ballot to indicate which is the Conservative candidate. Thus it is absolutely essential to know his name before going to the polling booth.

To the right of the name of the Conservative candidate place an "X." That is the only mark to be made on this ballot paper. If you put anything but the one "X" it will destroy your vote.

The other ballot paper is for the vote on the referendum. On this the voter will find the four questions dealing with prohibition. To the right of the questions are two narrow columns, one headed "Yes", and the other "No." Each of the four questions has to be answered separately. If the answer is yes to a question, put an "X" in the "Yes" column to the right of the question. If the answer is no, put a cross—"X"—in the "No" column after that particular question. All four questions on the referendum ballot must be answered with an "X" in either one or other column opposite the question, or the ballot will be spoiled. It is not enough to answer only one or two of the questions.

This referendum ballot has nothing to do with the Provincial elections, either one side or the other.

Three Hanged At Prince Albert

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press Limited

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., Sept. 17—For the murder of James McKay, sheriffs officers in Noremeby last, Three Sleep Creek bandits, Victor Carmel, Jean Baptiste St. German and Joseph Garrain, were hanged in the jail yard here this morning, under supervision of Arthur Ellis. They gave no trouble and death was instantaneous, all being hanged with a single fall of the trap. The murder occurred when McKay went to recover a pair of horses. McKay was shot to death in a brutal manner. The murderers took refuge in a dugout on the banks of the Saskatchewan and it took a seige by the police and part of an overseas battalion to capture them, one man being shot in the attempt.

A Blighting Leadership

This is a hard luck campaign for the Opposition. It is handicapped by a leader who is without a policy, without constructive ability, without the backing of the chief Liberal newspapers, without Liberal Unionist sanction, without the support of either of his two living predecessors in the leadership, without candidates in thirty-seven of the ridings, and with only such candidates as he could scare up in other ridings. The two chief Liberal newspapers in Toronto have bidden Liberal prohibitionists to vote for Hearst Government candidates. Mr. Dewart's two predecessors in the leadership are opposed to him. Mr. Rowell has said that Mr. Dewart is regarded as the rising hope of the liquor interests, and Mr. Proudfoot is running as an independent candidate. It cannot be wondered at that Liberals were not forthcoming to carry the Dewart colors in one-third of the ridings and that the Liberals who are standing in the other constituencies are in so few cases men of weight.

In this election a thoroughly united Liberal party, with its best men in the field, led by an able and popular chief, would have had no chance to win, for the splendid work done by the Hearst Government makes its position in the public favor impregnable. When the election is over we hope that Mr. Dewart will not carry his bad sportsmanship to the point of laying the blame for his defeat upon the weakness of his candidates. If his candidates are not the men of influence he desired, it is because he himself did not stand well enough with the leading Liberals in the various ridings to induce them to accept nomination under him.

DEWART--"As a young man was a strong advocate of Canadian independence and still is pronouncedly in favor of it."

POLITICAL INFORMATION

INTERESTING NEWS OF THE CAMPAIGN IN HASTINGS, PRINCE EDWARD AND ELSEWHERE, CONDENSED FOR BUSY READERS.

Genial leader of the Grit Opposition has one more day to fight. Then oblivion.

Globe says that, at a certain meeting Mr. Dewart's war record seemed to worry the audience.

During the great war, though, it did not seem to worry the unspeakable Huns very much.

With 42 ridings with no Liberal candidates it looks as though some of the Demetries are ready for a separate peace.

In East Hamilton, Sam Landers, Labor-soldier candidate, will ably wear the mantle of the late Allan Studholme. He's sure to land on top.

Storm signals were flying at most of the nomination meetings in Toronto and outlying constituencies. Guns were out in force.

At the Southwest Toronto nomination meeting one of the Tory candidates did not get all the time he wanted to tell what he thought of Mr. Dewart.

However, Ontario citizens in general will help him out on election day. They'll tell what they think of Hartley, and with no uncertain sound.

In Weston, some people alleged that James Simpson was in New Zealand at the time conscription was in the air. Nearly everybody has gone down on that he was under the barn at home.

Sam Ryding, Independent candidate for West York, says he wants to do as he pleases. West York voters will see that he has plenty of time to do it in after next Monday.

With tears in his eyes, a U.F.O. orator in Dutton said the farmers were tax-bearers. What kind of wild animals would they be if they had to pay taxes like dwellers in cities?

Looks as though Hartley Dewart's shining armor is due to get many a dent in it before the sun goes down on election day. This looks like a real old lively election.

Should James Simpson be elected as a farmer, he might tell the Legislature what he knows about farming. It would not take him long. He might also tell them what he knows about patriotism. It would not take him any longer.

In London, all sorts and conditions of men are supporting Sir Adam Beck leader of the Hydro. It is human nature for men to differ politically, but the vast majority of Ontario people realize that the Hydro, under Beck, is the greatest asset this province ever had. And the fact cannot be gainsaid that it was the Conservative Government which gave Sir Adam this great opportunity.

SIR SAM IN FIGHTING FORM

General Sir Sam Hughes is at Lindsay and is taking part in the Ontario campaign. He announced before leaving Ottawa that he was opposed to the amendments to the Canada Temperance Act proposed by the Federal Government. On the Ontario referendum proposals Hughes said he could not favor them all and would vote for some of them and against others.

JEWISH VOTERS RESENT DEWART'S CHARGES

Hartley Dewart's attack upon the Government and the Ontario License Board in connection with the authority given Jewish residents to buy whiskey for the Feast of the Tabernacles is beginning to recoil upon him. The prompt and positive declaration of the License Board that the members of the Government had not been consulted and had no kowledge of the matter and that the Board had relied upon the honor of the chief Jewish rabbi from whom the request had come, took all the sting out of Mr. Dewart's dart. The fact, however, that the Liberal leader in charging wrongdoing was to all intents and purposes reflecting upon the rabbins, with whose approval each Jewish resident secured an order is causing resentment in the riding that augurs ill for Mr. Dewart's reelection. In the by-election in which he secured his place in the Legislature, Mr. Dewart polled a particularly big vote in the Jewish sections.

GOT AFTER DEWART

Toronto Star—Major W. C. McBrien, who received a great ovation when he arose stated that he was with the returned soldier and his rights. He wanted the same allowances for soldiers to build homes in the city as was given to settlers on the farms. He wanted better and equal pensions and further gratuity to officers and men alike. He advocated public ownership as a returned soldier I have a right to demand of Hartley Dewart, "What did you do in the great war?" (Applause) "I have searched diligently for that question and all that I can find in answer to that question is the re-echo of those brilliant speeches on his trip West, in aid of the slacker. This is the man that calls himself the white hope of the Liberal party, who claims to be the only big man on the political horizon, who is to follow in the footsteps of Sir James Whitney. Why didn't he speak to the electors of Ontario when he was not supporting the boys at the front? He knew the Military Service Act was unpopular in the great West, owing to the large settlements of Germans and Austrians. Mr. Hartley Dewart cannot cover up his black record with the white record of Jack Ramsden," he declared.

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS MAY BE OVERCOME

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or head and ear noises or are growing hard of hearing go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint, (double strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take ±1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises, clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

Excuses For Their Nakedness

Toronto Mail and Empire.

The Hearst Government is being blamed by its opponents for what? For doing things which ought to be done and which its opponents left undone. Mr. Dewart and the few men who can be induced to come out on his platform complain to the public that the Hearst Government has stolen the Liberal clothes. No clothes that ever belonged to Liberals of the Dewart stamp and connection were ever appropriated by the Hearst Government. The plaintive excuse for having no policy will not go down with the electors who know the party record of Mr. Dewart and the small estimation in which he is held by the most respected Liberals in Ontario. His lack of a policy is not thus to be explained. There can be no plank in a platform that is non-existent. It takes some audacity for Mr. Dewart, whom Mr. Rowell and the Christian Guardian identify with the liquor interests, to accuse the Hearst Government of stealing the Liberal policy in regard to temperance. Three times in the last twenty-five years were the people humbugged by political professors of temperance who had the warm support of Mr. Dewart. Three times the voters of this Province voted for prohibition without getting it. Mr. Dewart's political friends in office played false with the temperance people and stood by the liquor interests. The one Liberal leader in Ontario who was steadfast for prohibition is scornfully referred to by Mr. Dewart and his circle as an "uplifter." For the abolition of the liquor traffic the Province is indebted to the honest Government of Sir William Hearst.

The Workmen's Compensation Act is another article the Conservative Government is accused of lifting from the wardrobe of the Liberals. That Act is on the statute book because Sir James Whitney was determined it should be put there as a measure of justice and humanity to the workers of Ontario. Labor candidates in the field today cannot wish to deprive the Whitney Government of the honor that is due it for enacting that law or to deprive the Hearst Government of its full credit for the thorough administration of it. Woman Suffrage is another thing the opponents of the Hearst Government are now crying about. In effect they ask, What business had the Hearst Government to become serious over a matter which they themselves had trifled with? It seems impossible for politicians who clung to the Ross Government to credit the directors of public policy with honest intentions or righteous dealing. They are slow to realize that of the political shadiness of the days when their friends were in office there is not a trace in the present administration.

NOT EVEN A SCAR

is left where my little son cut his forehead so badly by running against a cupboard door," writes Mrs. T. G. Miller of Winona, Ont.

"I had never used Zam-Buk, but had heard how good it is for injuries, so I got some, and applied a dressing at once. It was quite wonderful the way it soothed the pain. I renewed the dressing twice a day for three days, by which time the cut was so much better the child was able to go without the bandage. From then I had no more trouble with the wound. It healed up very quickly, and not even a scar is left. Needless to say, I shall never be without Zam-Buk again."

Mothers should always keep Zam-Buk in the house, as nothing can take its place for cuts, scratches, bruises, burns and scalds. For rashes, eczema and all sores, blood-poisonings, ulcers, abscesses, boils, pimples, scaly sores, salt rheum and piles Zam-Buk is equally good. All dealers 50c. box.

Kronstadt Report Is Doubted

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—Confirmation of reports that British naval forces have taken the fortress of Kronstadt, in the Gulf of Finland, west of Petrograd, has not be received at the admiralty offices here. Despatches telling of the capitulation of Kronstadt are not believed, it being said the British have only light cruisers in the vicinity which are incapable of successfully challenging the fortress. NO DEWART FOR RETURNED SOLDIERS.

By no stretch of imagination can a returned soldier or relative of a returned soldier consistently vote for a Dewart candidate, even though that candidate may be a returned soldier. If a returned soldier chooses to serve under a leader who has never been a friend of the soldier his comrades are in duty bound to express their disapproval of that leader at the polls and their objections to the comrade keeping bad company. Dewart's crusade against the Military Service Act, his refusal of Premier Hearst's invitation to serve on the Resolutions Committee, and his acknowledged preference for a Canada independent of the British Empire, should be rebuked at the polls by all loyal British citizens, but particularly by the returned soldier.

NEGATIVE CANDIDATES.

The Toronto Globe, leader of the Liberal press, made a statement this week in prominent type on the front page that candidates were finding that it paid to make public announcement that they would vote FOUR NOES on the Referendum Ballot, that it was winning them votes. The only interpretation that can be taken from the Globe's reference to this phase of the contest is that Dewart candidates are promising to vote FOUR NOES just to GET VOTES. There is, unfortunately much insincerity in the public life of today, but if it is true, as the Globe seems to infer, that Dewart candidates are willing even to masquerade under a mantle of hypocrisy upon this important question, politics has reached a low level in Ontario. If a candidate is sincere, and has proved himself so by his past and present record, he is worthy of commendation, but eleventh-hour conversion on the eve of election day, to say the least, is suspicious. Everyone has a right to their convictions and the expression of them, but all the world hates a hypocrite as the meanest of God's creatures.

TEMPERANCE AND ITS FRIENDS.

The Hearst Government closed the open bars for good and all and no one wants them back with their train of evils, unless it be the man who has been described as "the rising hope of the liquor interests." The old-time open bar has been abolished for all time in the province of Ontario, and for progressive temperance legislation according to the will of the people as expressed at the polls the electors can place their trust in all confidence with the Hearst Government. There can be no question as to the approval of the people of the attitude of the Hearst Government in staking their existence upon advanced and effective temperance legislation. There is no question at issue as to the wisdom of sustaining the Government at the polls. The only real difference of opinion will be expressed on the referendum ballot as to whether the Ontario Temperance Act will be continued or amended in the best interests of temperance. No true citizen but desires to curb and abolish as far as possible the evils of intemperance, and the Hearst Government has provided the means for a full and free expression of individual opinion. Candidates for election to the Legislature may publicly express their opinion one way or another on the referendum ballot, whether sincere or in an effort to win votes, but the great fact remains that Sir William Hearst, the leader who leads, has blazed the way for temperance reform in a practical manner in marked contrast to continual political shuffling on the question in the past, and a vote for Hearst candidates carries an assurance of good faith with the electorate. A vote for a Dewart candidate is nothing less than a leap in the dark.

The record of Dewart's predecessors is not encouraging.

In 1898 Sir Oliver Mowat submitted the temperance question to the electors of Ontario and there was a majority recorded for prohibition of 81,769.

What was the result in legislation?

Nothing but a continued lax enforcement of existing liquor license laws.

In 1896 Sir Wilfrid Laurier submitted a Dominion plebiscite on prohibition with the result that Ontario recorded a majority in favor of 39,214.

No change in conditions followed and no legislation was enacted.

In 1902 Sir George Ross submitted a provincial referendum and a majority of 96,201 was recorded for prohibition, but no legislation followed and lax enforcement of the liquor license laws became worse than ever, with selling after hours and other gross violations under a partizan administration of the license laws.

Under Premier James P. Whitney the curb was applied to the liquor traffic and conditions steadily improved under the Whitney and Hearst Governments, culminating in Sir William Hearst giving practical prohibition as a war-time measure and affording a real test of temperance legislation of the most advanced type.

We will admit that Hartley Dewart and his predecessors were strong on promises, but the record shows that they were lamentable failures and tricky shufflers in fulfilling their promises.

Ontario's future is now squarely up to the electors.

If they desire a continuation of clean, honest government, and the keeping of faith with the people instead of the political shuffling of Dewartism, their ballots will say so.

The referendum at the same time will give them an opportunity of furnishing the Government with a mandate as to their desires in the line of temperance legislation.

That the will of the people as expressed by the referendum ballots will be carried out to the letter by the Hearst Government the record of the leader, Sir William Hearst, and his able Government, is sufficient guarantee.

A vote for W. H. Ireland, one of the finest and most progressive citizens in the public and business life of West Hastings, will be a vote for Sir William Hearst, and an endorsement of honesty and straightforwardness in public life.

CRISP COMMENT

Vote early, but don't vote often.

Vote early and avoid the rush.

Late voters may find the polls congested and be deprived of their franchise.

Every returned soldier should have a vote, and Premier Hearst has made it possible for him to have one by opening special sittings of the courts of Registration.

As the Dewart candidate in West Hastings is so much in favor of the Hearst Government he should be consistent and vote for W. H. Ireland, the Hearst candidate.

Pay no attention to last minute rumors and poorbacks, as the political tricksters will not overlook any possible eleventh-hour propaganda. Demand satisfactory proof of any statement made intended to influence the way you mark your ballot, and get both sides of the question.

Candidate O'Flynn has no hope of winning the election, and never had, but it is good advertising for a rising young barrister and naturally he wishes to make a good showing as possible. Those who waste their votes upon him will rather regret that their ballots were only useful for advertising purposes.

Will the Dewart candidate in West Hastings please explain why he declared to place an embargo on English and all other women coming to Canada for one year, all other women presumably including Scotch, Irish and Welsh. His proposition was about as popular at the G.W.V.A. provincial convention as a jazz band would be at a funeral.

First Vice-President O'Flynn offered a resolution that English women be kept out of Canada for one year, as well as all others, because so many Canadian women who had worked in munitions could not get work. Old country delegates and many Canadians took it as a slur, and gave the resolution a scorching reception. It was thrown out by the meeting."—Press report of G. W. V. A. provincial convention.

The local Dewart candidate carefully refrains from any public mention of his leader, Hartley Dewart. If he is ashamed of his leader he should withdraw from the contest and support a leader like Sir William Hearst whom everybody delights to honor.

What did Dewart do to win the war? Joined the Light Brigade which tried to delay reinforcements being sent to the hard-pressed Canadian soldiers overseas. A vote for W. H. Ireland is a vote against Hartley Dewart.

Tricky election tactics are cropping up, including an attempt to blame Candidate Ireland with having something to do with the rejection of Mr. Galloway's nomination paper. Of course Mr. Ireland had nothing to do with it, and in fact knew nothing about it until the time for receiving nominations had expired. Ample time was given by the Returning Officer to have the papers properly made out, but this was not taken advantage of.

Dewart is very mum about his sentiments in favor of Canadian independence so it must be presumed that he still favors separation of Canada from the British Empire. Returned soldiers, and all real red-blooded Canadians will vote against an aspirant to the Premiership of Ontario who favors separation from the British Empire. A vote for W. H. Ireland is a vote against Hartley Dewart and a vote for a Greater Canada.

Victory Sure For Good Government

In the next House the strength of the Government should be not less than it was in the last House. If the voters do justice to the Government its strength will be greater than it was before. No Ontario Government ever so well earned the support of the people as the Hearst Government. No other Government was called upon to stand such a test as the Hearst Government passed through in its term of office. It came with flying colors out of its long and trying part of the world ordeal. In the war time it administered the Province's affairs with great business ability. It brought to its task qualities of head and heart and character that are beyond price in the work of government. There are many candidates in the field against it, but not a single constructive or analytical critic appears to challenge the wisdom or the honesty of its handling of the Province's business. It is a government against which the breath of scandal has never been turned except in the irresponsible and utterly exploded venture of the present leader of the Opposition. Because his attempt to blacken the reputation of the Government was discredited by the investigation and report of the Royal Commissioner to which it was referred, Mr. Dewart turned his tongue on that high-minded jurist.

In most cases the opposition to Government candidates is little more than nominal, and we believe it will be so treated by the voters. The people, we are sure, welcome the opportunity to express their approbation of the Government's splendid work, and the way to do that is to single out the Government candidate in every case and mark the ballot in his favor. Every Minister has done yeoman's service in this war time, and now the voters are expected to do their duty at the polls in the same worthy fashion.

Candidate O'Flynn Wanted Embargo Placed on English Women

At the Provincial Convention of the Great War Veterans Association First Vice-President E. D. O'Flynn, of Belleville, introduced a resolution advocating that all English women be kept out of Canada for one year. This resolution awakened a storm of opposition and was very short-lived as the Comrades would have none of it, regarding it as a slur. It was thrown out of the meeting. Many Canadian soldiers married overseas, many left sweethearts in Merrie England, and many soldiers, British born, had wives, mothers and sisters in the Old Land whom they did not wish debarred from this country like alien enemies or unclean or undesirable immigrants. In a report of the convention proceedings by the Toronto Mail and Empire at the time the following reference was made to the O'Flynn embargo on Old Country women

REFUSED TO BAR ENGLISH WOMEN.

Some debate attended a resolution calling for a minimum pension scale of $1,000, and that officers and men receive the same amount, also one by First Vice-President O'Flynn that English women be kept out of Canada for one year, as well as all others, because so many Canadian women who had worked in munitions could not get work. Old country delegates and many Canadians took it as a slur, and gave the resolution a scorching reception. It was thrown out by the meeting.

Lost His Life In Great Tornado

The Fort Lauderdale Sentinel (Florida) Oct. 2, says:

According to the best information available, Cyril E. Mitchell, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Mitchell, formerly of this city, but now of Miami, Florida, probably lost his life in the tornado that swept the Florida Straits September 8th to 10th. Cyril was a radio operator in the U. S. Navy during the war and was stationed at Miami Beach. He received his discharge early in August and August 13th left here for Baltimore where he entered the employment of the Marconi Company. A little later he was made wireless operator on 'The Larimer' a large oil tanker of the Gulf Refining Co.'s tank line. From Baltimore they shopped to Port Arthur, Texas, and from there to Tampico, Mexico, where they took on a cargo of oil and started back to Baltimore. Monday, Sept. 8th the tanker reported by wireless at Sand Key, 8 miles south of Key West and from there headed east. She was apparently in the direct path of the tornado and since leaving Sand Key not a word has been heard from the ship. The head office of the Gulf Refining Company at Port Arthur notified Mr. Mitchell about a week ago that they had been unable to get any word of "The Larimer" and if they should get any word or reports from the ship they would wire him immediately. Up to the time of going to press no word was received. It is now more than three weeks since the last word has been received, and it is quite probable that "The Larimer" went down with all on board.

Cyril E. Mitchell was a grandson of Mrs. J. C. Brintnell of this city, and a cousin of Mr. J. B. Brintnell.

The Trail of the Ontario Temperance Act

WOULD is not be more in the interests of this Province to permit of the sale of light non-intoxicating beer in well regulated hotels than to continue the promotion of "swamp whiskey" made in illicit stills, and drugs smuggled into the country and disposed of in low dives.

The following tables which have appeared in the columns of the daily press show that there are now fewer than one hundred and twenty illicit stills in this Province and that the drug traffic has increased at an alarming rate since the Ontario Temperance Act came into effect.

Illicit Still Statistics Disclose Great Increase Since April 1st.

Outside the rain was still falling as they left the Restaurant Suisse, and tramped to a music-hall. Here their entrance was unfortunately timed. Some capital turns appeared earlier in the programme, some excellent ones figured lower down; but during the half-hour that they remained the monotony of the material which the average music-hall 'comedian' regards as humorous struck Kent more forcibly than ever. Wives eloped with the lodgers, or husbands beat their wives and got drunk with 'the boys.' There seemed nothing else—nothing but conjugal infelicity; it was rasp-tang-tang on the one vulgar, discordant note.

"I've had enough of this," he said; "let's go. What time is it?"

Time f. a quiet pipe at home, and then to turn in early. Let's cab it."

They were glad to get off their wet boots and to find themselves once more in their own shabby chairs. But Cornelius had let the fire out, and the dismantled room was chilly; Turquand produced the whiskey and the glasses and, blowing a cloud, they drew up to the cold hearth, remarking that they had been a change in the weather, and a fire would have been out of place on such a night.

"It looks bare without my things, doesn't it?" observed Kent. "One wouldn't have believed they made so much difference."

"Yes," assented Turquand.

"You'll have to get some books for that shelf there, you know; it's horrid empty."

Turquand shivered, and said he should.

"You aren't cold?"

"Cold? Not a bit—no. You were saying——"

"I don't know; I wasn't saying anything particular. I'll write you from Mentone, old fellow—not at first but you shall have a line."

"Thanks," said Turquand; "be glad to hear from you."

"Not that there'll be anything to say."

"No, of course not. Still, you may just as well twaddle a bit, if you will."

There was a pause, while the pair smoked lowly each busy with his thoughts, and considering if something of what he felt could be said without its sounding sentimental. Both were remembering that they would never be sitting at home together in the room again and though it had many faults it assumed to the one who was leaving it a 'tender grace' now. He had written his novel at that table; his first review had come to him here. Associations crept out and trailed across the floor; he felt that this room must always contain an integral portion of his life. And Turquand would miss him.

"Be dull for you to-morrow evening, rather, I'm afraid, won t it?" he said in a burst.

"Oh, I was alone while you were in Dieppe, you know. I shall jog along all right, and I've got Humphrey a desk for yourself, haven't you?"

"Yes. Swagger, eh?"

"I don't know where per'ers,' ... What's that—you feel a draught?"

"No—I—well, perhaps there is a draught now you mention it. Yes, I shall work instyle when we come back. Strange feeling, going to be married, Turk."

"Is it?" said Turquand. "Haven't had the experience. Hope Mrs. Kent will like me—they never do in fiction. Yes, you might tell her I'm not a bad sort of a married fool, will you? And—er—I want to say, don't have the funks' about asking me to your house soon. I'm not shy, old chap, when I shan't be a nuisance; take my oath I'll never shock your wife, Humphrey is not fond of my own. . . . Be as careful as—as you can, I give you my word."

His teeth closed round his pipe tightly. Neither man looked at the other; Humphrey put out his hand without speaking, and Turquand gripped it. There was a silence again. Both stared at the dead ashes. The clock of St. Giles-in-the-Fields tolled twelve, and neither commented on it, though they simultaneously reflected that it was now the marriage morning.

"Strikes me we were nearly making bally asses of ourselves," said Turquand in a shaky voice. "Finish your whisky and let's go to bed."

Tells Dyspeptics What To Eat

Avoid Indigestion, Sour Acid Stomach, Heartburn, Gas on Stomach, Etc. Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble, say medical authorities are due nine times out of ten to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. Chronic "acid stomach" is exceedingly dangerous and sufferers should do either one of two things.

Either they can go on a limited and often disagreeable diet avoiding foods that disagree with them that irritate the stomach and lead to excess acid secretion or they can eat as they please in reason and make it a practice to counteract the effect of the harmful acid and prevent the formation of gas, sourness or premature fermentation by the use of a little Bisurated Magnesia at their meals.

There is probably no better, safer or more reliable stomach antiacid than Bisurated Magnesia and it is widely used for this purpose. It has no direct action on the stomach and is not a glycerin. But a teaspoonful of the powder or a couple of five grain tablets taken in a little water with the food will neutralize the excess acidity which may be present and prevent its further formation. This removes the whole cause of the trouble and the meal digests naturally and healthfully without need of pepsin pills or artificial digestents.

Get a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia from any reliable druggist. Ask for either powder or tablets. It never comes as a liquid, milk or citrate and in the bisurated form is not a laxative. Try this plan and eat what you want at your next meal and see if this isn't the best advice you ever had on "what to eat."

PRUNES IN B. C.

Valuable Industry Developed in Grand Fork Valley.

That the dry districts of British Columbia are very suitable for the production of prune plums has long been recognized, yet experience, fruit-growers of this province have found that fruit of that kind cannot be grown to advantage unless a large supply of water is available. It has been found that with the help of artificial irrigation the prune crop of the Similkameen Ranch, one of the fine orchards in the Grand Forks Valley is such as to indicate an era of prosperity for the district as soon as irrigation is introduced on the many thousands of acres available for prune growing under conditions of unlimited water supply.

Mr. John Simpson, now of Rivers Man., whose experience with fruit growing at Grand Forks, B.C., satisfied him of the possibilities existing for the successful production of prunes under irrigation at that point, led him to call attention to the fact some three years ago. He produced an article on the subject of prune growing in British Columbia, in which he at that time refused to encourage many who were sufficiently interested to propose investing or taking an active part in the industry, because he knew that at that time a large supply of water could not be obtained at Grand Forks.

Since three years ago, the prospect of a sufficient water supply for fruit land irrigation in the Grand Forks Valley has improved very much, and the possibility of producing a heavy crop by such means have been amply demonstrated, as in the case of the Similkameen Ranch, where, in 1918, over 10,000 boxes of prunes were picked from 350 acres of orchard —these prunes selling at $1.10 a box at prairie points. In some figures, $11,000 was the value of the crop harvested from the nine acres. "Now is the time a record production for the prune orchard," says the Grand Forks Gazette. Fourteen thousand boxes were harvested in a form er season.

Recognizing the possibilities of the Grand Forks district, the British Columbia Provincial Government is to put in an irrigation system at once, which will place one-third of the water of the Kettle river on nearly 6,000 acres of land. The district gets about 14 inches of water from natural causes every year, and the irrigation system will give 20 inches more, making 34 inches altogether. The Government engineer, Mr. Bicker, made all the measurements. He is a great enthusiast on the matter, and says he is positively certain that the quantity of water supplied by the irrigation system will be at least thirty inches.

As indicating the importance of the Grand Forks Valley as a source of prune and other fruit supply, the following from an item in the Grand Forks Gazette of September 19 is interesting:

"Forty-three carloads of fruit have been shipped from Grand Forks this season to date, exclusive of express shipments, which would amount to several additional cars. Up till last night shipping order No. 43 had included 21 cars of prunes, nine cars of apples, one car of pears, and two cars of mixed fruit. Two cars of prunes and one of apples have gone over the same line since then, and additional cars were shipped via the Great Northern."

So far as can be learned, it has not yet been found profitable to manufacture prunes in British Columbia. The price of labor and fuel are said to be too high, and there is a larger percentage of moisture in the plums than in those grown in California or Oregon. In California the large amount of fruit available is made by drying them in the sun. Nowhere else, with the prospect of a large supply of the fruit available at one point, and the moisture content possible of control by reason of the artificial irrigation, the possibility of manufacturing the surplus over the demand for the fresh fruit is probably worth considering.

Winnipeg's New Aqueduct.

The new aqueduct of Winnipeg passes under the Red river in a tunnel 1,200 feet long. The tunnel is driven by ten foot bore cut through solid limestone and within this is the 60-inch cast-iron pipe of the aqueduct. The tunnel is concrete lined and has many pockets. The contract called for completely filling in the space around the pipe with concrete and further stipulated that compressed air must be used in placing the concrete. Accordingly the following method was used: Prior to placing the pipe a concrete floor was laid, carefully graded for the pipe to rest upon. After the pipe had been laid, bulkheads were erected, dividing the tunnel into sections. These were successively filled to within two feet of the roof. Then concrete dams were built to the roof, sealing off the sections, and through holes previously bored from the surface through the roof, the cavities in the compartments were completely filled. The compartments directly over the river were filled through pipes extending up to a temporary trestle.

PIPES AND PIPERS

To the Editor of The Intelligencer:

Sir—Many times have I looked with inquiring mind at the bunches of big whistles placed in perpendicular position facing the congregation in many of our churches. When these tuneless of big whistles are considered in the aggregate, they are called an organ. As some bunches contain more whistles and some whistles are larger in diameter and stand higher than others, my mind has wandered away to seek the whistle master to have questions answered. Sometimes I have mentally computed the quantity of tin required to make them by taking into consideration the length and diameter of each whistle and the number thereof, and have tried to commit to memory the number, their diameters, heights, and total weight and at the same time wondering if they were tin, iron or brass; and later thinking of that monsterious seamy, 'Tom, Tom, the Piper's son, and other foolish things. Sometimes I have been tortured by horrible thoughts of what might happen should those pipes or whistles fall over on the top of the choir and crush its members to death under their ponderous weight while mocking winds are piping loud and in anguish of soul, I have lectimes found it difficult to suppress an ejaculatory, almost audible shriek, moan or groan. There is nothing artistic or beautiful about those bunches of pipes or whistles. The lady of the house usually does her best to hide such junk from view by having it placed in a corner behind a door, or by placing a high screen before it. Would it not be better to place those bunches of pipes or whistles in a horizontal position under the floor—I presume they would sound as well there, and being invisible, a sinner would be apt to exclaim when listening to the sweet, soothing strains, "What heavenly sounds are those I hear; What spirit comes the throng to cheer?" and his mind would be occupied with thoughts of things divine.

Place a low base on the chimney and flute;

Unhinging careless gates and swing ing signes,

And with his lips upon a thousand tubes

At once blow a loud universal blast, gas can and must be made at a cost I dropped my pen; and listened to the wind

That sung of trees upturn and, reseed, lost.

ROBERT BOYLE

RE GAS MANAGER.

To the editor of The Intelligencer.

Sir:—I see by the Belleville papers that the forsmuth at the gas plant has been appointed to manage the works and that Mr. Gardner, the gas manager, has resigned. Mr. Gardner has spent nearly a whole life time at this kind of work. This is by mind is a big mistake and an insult to the ratepayers of Belleville, who have to pay for the plant whether it is properly managed or not The balance of the $90,000 debenture has to be paid no matter if the gas is made at a loss or a profit. If the foreman can make good gas now, why could he not have done so before. So far as I know he has the same kind of material, the same men and the same plant. I know Mr. Gardner's chief concern was to give the consumer good gas.

Now Feels 20 Years Younger

"Tanlac Is Since Thing I Ever Heard Of," Says William Thompson.

After many years of suffering, Tanlac has put me on my feet and made me feel twenty years younger," said William Thompson, a well known mechanic employed by the City of Berkeley, Cal., and who lives at 1118 Glen Ave., the other day.

"Acute indigestion bothered me so bad," he continued, "that I would have violent pains in my left side, and I was afraid to eat anything because it always caused me awful suffering. I have been on my stomach and I would feel as tight as a drum, and I would get so short of breath I thought every minute would be my last one. I was so constipated that I had to take a laxative every night, and at times I would get so dizzy I couldn't walk and would have to lean up against a building until this feeling passed over and I came to myself. I never slept good at night and my kidneys were out of order and many a night I would have to get up four or five times and I had awful pains in my back that were caused by my kidneys.

"This was my condition and I might have still been in this shape now, if it hadn't been for a friend who recommended Tanlac to me so highly that I decided to try it at once. It seems too good to be true that after all these years I finally found a medicine that can do what Tanlac has done for me. Why I never have the sign of a pain now and no matter what I eat I digest it perfectly and don't suffer from gas or from pains in my stomach. Those dizzy spells never come on me and I'm not constipated and sleep like a log every night and get up feeling like a young man. Tanlac is the finest medicine I ever heard of and it was a lucky day for me when my friend told me about it, and you can count on me to pass the good word along whenever I get the chance."

Tanlac is sold in Belleville by Ostrom's Drug Store, in Trenton by J. H. Dickey, in Deseronto by W. J. Malley, in Stirling by J. S. Morton, in Madoc by J. W. Vince, in Marysville by T. J. McAlpine, in Ormsby by Jas. Campbell and in Thomasburg by J. H. Bialkie.

First Nights At "The Movies"

Popular Charles Ray Great in "Bill Henry"—Clara Kimball Young Welcomed at Paicce.

"BILL HENRY"

Charles Ray will appeal to the sympathies of everyone who has ever tried to sell anything, from a clothespin, to a farm, in his latest picture, "Bill Henry," which was presented with great success at Griffin's last night. In this picture the popular star makes his debute as a country canvasser for a new life vibrator. As a salesman, he is somewhat of a failure, despite the goodly advice in "Hints to Salesmen" but he surely put some new life into the little town of Jimson. There his uncle, who owns the hotel, gives Bill Henry a job as clerk, while his old employer takes on a month's vacation. About this time Lola Mason arrives to take possession of a farm she has inherited. She has come to Alabama all the way from Newfoundland and as her finances are low, expects to move upon her new possession at once. She is greatly perplexed to find the farm is under water and the real estate agent tells her it is worthless. The hotel clerk hears of her dilemma and sends his aunt to comfort her. Bill Henry has saved thirty-five dollars with which he intended to buy himself a "diamond" ring. He determines to sacrifice this for the interest of the girl who had impressed him. He tries to sell it under her door, but is caught by the girl and she refuses to accept it. The events that follow will be found most interesting and at times thrilling. Two funny comedies, Universal News, Universal Screen Magazine, and a beautiful travelogue complete a splendid varied list of photoplays. The vaudeville portion of the program is in the capable hands of Zellnar and Holloway, in their impersonations of present great commanders and statesmen; Dick Hamlin in a snappy patter and hard shoe dancing offering, and Peter Smith in a good songologue specialty. Owing to 'The Soldier Girl' holding the boards at Griffin's to-day the above program complete is being shown at the Palace to-night and Griffin's to-morrow, matinee and night.

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG

Clara Kimball Young, adds another to her long list of noteworthy artistic characterizations by her portrayal of Yvonne Marinoff, the heroine of "The Reason Why," Elinor Glyn's famous work, in which this famous star appeared at the Palace yesterday. "The Reason Why," is the story of a Russian refugee who masquerades as Zara niece of Francis Markruis, comes to his home and marries Lord Tancred, a scion of the English nobility, with all his highest ideals. After a long series of misadventures she finally makes full confession of her supposed uncle and her husband regarding her origin and her young son by her former marriage to a Russian prefect of police, whom he had also dancing offering and his cruelty. These other plays are also being screened on the same program. The above program will not be shown at the Palace to-night, but will be repeated at the Palace to-morrow, matinee and night.

WOMEN AND THE BALLOT

Paragraphs of Interest for Women Voters

"Who knows but that God has given you the ballot for such a time as this to save your country," said a speaker referring to women's vote.

Every woman who votes at the coming elections does so because the Ontario Government made it possible for her to do so. It was the Hearst Government that brought in the Women's Franchise Bill, and it is the Hearst Government that deserves the women's gratitude. It is all very well for the Opposition to try to claim the credit, but why was it that when they were in power, they would have had nothing to do with women suffrage.

"It is joy to come home and find the people here standing for right" said a returned man, speaking in reference to the Ontario Temperance Act which was introduced by the Ontario Government.

There is a time to talk and a time to be silent, and this is the time to talk about the achievements of the Hearst Government.

Every woman knows that the Ontario Government stood by the soldier overseas, and looked after the soldiers' dependants at home. That is the kind of Government she wants to see handling the affairs of the Province during reconstruction.

Women have the vote, not as a favor, but as a right. If the party which has taken as a leader Hartley Dewart) a man who turned his back on the soldiers, should be put into power, and that man become premier, it would be the fault of the women who failed to get out and vote.

"I've got enough to do, looking after my work," some women may say, "it have no time to go about voting." Bless you, I put my potatoes on to boil for dinner before I went out to vote for Union Government," said another woman, "and I was back in time."

Women as a whole favor prohibition. They know what a difference it has made to their happiness or to the happiness of some woman, having the bars closed. They are not likely to forget that the Hearst Government stood to bring in prohibition at a time when it was vital to the war service of the Province. Nor will they forget that Sir William Hearst has kept his pledge, that when the war was over, the whole question of the liquor traffic would be submitted to the people. It is the people, not a party who have the right to decide on a matter which so vitally affects them.

The Government which is not only pledged to Mothers' Pensions, but has all its plans made, and details being worked out for putting Mothers' Pensions into effect is the Government which women will want to see continue in power.

Women are honest in their desire to use their vote wisely and justly. They are going to judge by deeds, by things for the good of the community which have been accomplished in the past. In this connection it is worth noting that Premier Hearst in bringing in the referendum, is the first political leader in the province to keep his word on the liquor question.

Can women ever forget that Hartley Dewart, leader of the Liberal party, in Ontario, was opposed to backing up the fighting men overseas? When the cry went "Over there" men were praying for reinforcements, and dying in France, Hartley Dewart did all in his power to prevent help going to them.

Through the wisdom of the Ontario Government, parents in Ontario are paying less for their children's school books, than are parents in any other province in Canada.

The Government Housing plan, which include the construction of thousands of houses in the coming spring, will meet with the warm approval of woman who, even more than man, have suffered through the difficulty of securing suitable and comfortable housing.

Woman's Hair Reaches To Knees

A Year Ago Was Threatened With Baldness. Tells How She Made Her Hair Grow

Mrs. Esther Emery, now visiting friends in the city, is the fortunate possessor of marvelously beautiful hair, which when loosened from its coil, falls to her knees. Moreover it is of soft, silky and fluffy texture, and in color a glorious, glossy gold. Yet just one year ago she was threatened with baldness. Urged to tell how she obtained this wonderful growth in so short a time, she said:

"Twelve months ago my hair, which then reached nearly to my shoulders, was falling out at an alarming rate and growing very thin, actually showing the bald spots in several spots. It was dull and lifeless in color, turning grey in patches, and very dry and brittle My hair was covered with dandruff and itched like mad all the time. I tried fully a dozen different hairtonics, but they never did me a bit of good. One day I chanced to read in my home paper of a simple home prescription to make the baldness. I knew that was recommended by a well known physician. It said to get at the drug store 4 ounces of Lavona de Compdoee and mixing with Bay Rum and Menthol Crystals, and started to use it. My, how quickly my hair did grow. First the hair stopped falling, the itching ceased and the dandruff disappeared. Then tiny little hairs appeared all over my scalp. These grew and grew as though nothing could ever stop them. They kept growing yet and, while, of course, I have used the treatment steadily and shall continue it, at least until my hair reaches the floor. I might have stopped and been perfectly satisfied at the end of three months, but I think that any woman can get long, thick, beautiful hair by using this prescription as I have recommended it to several friends and all are delighted with the result. The prescription is very inexpensive and any druggist can fill it.

Those who use it should be careful not to get it on the face or where the hair is not desired.

Return of Ostrich Feathers.

We do not know what authority the paper has for making the statement, and for all we know it may be working in the interest of the producers, but the fact is daily newspaper is responsible for the statement that ostrich plumes are coming back! That is, the paper says dealers are buying them in large quantities, and that Dame Fashion has decreed that we shall soon see more of the fluffy adornment of the great birds. But we've been in evidence these last few years. About the time that ostrich plumes became really popular—when it began to be evident that one would not be in style day or night unless decked with the fuzzy plumes—the war came along and put an end to the fashion.

But, in all seriousness, we are glad to learn that ostrich plumes are coming back—that they are again to become "the thing." They are by all odds the most graceful and charming decorations milady has ever adopted for her ornamentation. They can be used in more ways, with greater effect, than anything else we recall in the way of decoration or garnishment. "Summer furs," as they are called, have never been fashioned into such beautiful apparel—if it is apparel—as the ostrich plumes can be fashioned into. So we rejoice that this billowy stuff which does so really serve the ostrich any great purpose, is again to come into use for female ornamentation.

"Housewives' Shoulder.

Doctors have been puzzled by numerous cases with symptoms resembling "housewives' shoulder" patients dwelt at some distance, with an uphill climb from the shops. He questioned his patients and elicited that they have to make several trudges home weekly with baskets of household provender that the tradesmen cannot deliver.

"You have not got rheumatism," he told them; "you have strained the shoulder muscles through carrying awkward weights. Your trouble is housewife's shoulder." Make your husband take b'e turn."

Studio Days

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

(Copyright, 1919, by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

West put a few lingering touches on his canvas before the setting sun told him that he must wait until another day before finishing the delicate portrait's head. A riotous little air fell from time to time from his lips, but by measure became gradually subdued while the soft veil of twilight captured the artist's soul and bade him express his joy in a more quiet manner.

A sudsy smile lurked in West's eyes; the gold of his hair was rumpled and his smock shockingly dirty, but little did he care since the studio rent was paid for the following month. Also the canvas on his easel would easily insure another six months' living.

And outside his door stood a girl whose eyes held all the wistfulness in the world and whose heart was absorbing every note of that magic, happy lilt that fell from West's lips. Finally she knocked.

West was not prepared for a visitor, and such a one as he found on the landing was a challenge to the most sturdy of heartbeats.

"May I come in?"

"Absurd waste of words," West said, and with the little courtly bow that was a part of the man he watched his visitor cross the threshold.

The wistfulness vanished swiftly and a tremendous gladness that took the form of glistening tears stood in the girl's eyes. She fled to the small window that held the glow of the setting sun and stood silently for a moment. Then West saw her brush a hand across her eyes before she turned again to him.

"You are not to think me mad," she said tremulously. "For three long years I have hungered to be in this studio again, and now—now my heart's thumping like a bird gone mad—just because I am here." She laughed softly with so much of glad emotion that West found the world an even more wonderful place to dwell in.

He started to prepare tea on the improvised gas stove beside his easel, but the girl slipped quickly ever.

"I want to make the tea," she insisted. "See! I have brought some cinnamon cakes from the same old corner bakery that was there three years ago. I somehow felt I would be allowed to stay for tea—it I came in."

Her eyes were so adorable with their new-found happiness that West said frankly, "I would have dragged you in had I known you were out on that landing—so make yourself perfectly at home."

The girl threw her great moleskin cape on the dusty armchair just as unceremoniously as in the old days she had tossed off her threadbare tweed coat. Her gown was a dream and her small toque a brilliant-hued affair with a absurd something wabbling uncertainly over the edge. Although she was as chic as any wonderful poster, she pulled off the toque and with a swift gesture rumpled the contentious, smooth coiffure into a bewildering head of burnished copper.

"You have utterly no regard for a poor bachelor's heart, have you?" West inquired. There was harm, boyish admiration in his glance. "But I will try to remember that you are just a little Bohemian that has blown into the Bohemia for a cup of tea."

"The little wraith would very much like a smoke—if you have a second one," she laughed back at him.

"It would take four of you to fill it up," he said after a successful rummage.

They both laughed like children at the result and for the first time in three years a happy lilt of song fell from Gretchen's lips.

"Oh, yes—my name is Gretchen Zic-Vickey," she told him by way of early introduction. "I saw yours on the door as I came up the creaky stairs. I used always to think those stairs would cave in. They are just as frail as ever, but I loved every creak they gave me."

She was exploring all the while she chatted and it was not long before her dainty tea was ready and they sank on opposite sides of the quaint cart West had fashioned. They were both Bohemian enough to enjoy the rare unconventionality of the moment without any words.

"How long have you been in this studio?" Gretchen asked between mouthfuls of cinnamon cake.

"I've managed to pay the rent here for three years," he told her.

"Oh! You came in just as I left, then. I was here for the two happiest years I have ever had," Gretchen said, and the wistfulness clouded her eyes. "I used to sing just as you were singing when I came up. Of course, I never expected to set the world on fire through my art, but somehow I made a scant living—scant as to money, but overflowing with joy. I did feel that I have enough money to buy cinnamon cakes," she laughed, but her lips were tremulous.

"And then," urged West.

"Then I married. After that it didn't seem as if life held a thing for me. There were no quaint Bohemians straggling in and out of my studio, no much-needed checks coming to me from inspired drawings and, worst of all, there was no freedom of thought or action. My husband gave me a separate, luxurious flat, my last birthday, but he couldn't realize that even more of the joy that my first hard-earned check gave me. I have everything on earth that money can buy."

"But why didn't you keep up your art work—your Bohemian friends—wouldn't that have helped to make you happy?" West was kindly sympathetic, but there was beginning a great urge within him to try to keep this rare girl within his circle. It seemed such a sad, unadulterated sadness to want to keep her, since she was married to a wealthy man and her fancy for Bohemian life and studio days were perhaps but passing desires, but there—she was answering his question.

"It was not worth while my working at art when I didn't have to. If I had possessed genius or even a great degree of talent I would have kept at it. But I only have talent enough to keep the wolf from the door. As for my Bohemian friends—well, I tried keeping them in my life, but my husband called them all 'nuts' and made me so unhappy about them that I gave them all up. Oh—I just can't tell you what it means to me to be actually back here with a smock on sitting in my very own studio."

"We won't quarrel either about the studio or the smock," said West. "I am only glad that I happen to be the tenant here while you have chosen to play at studio days again."

"So am I," greeted Gretchen and gazed contentedly at the slim boyish figure while she realized that he possessed tremendous charm. "I might have found a county club man who wouldn't let me in at all." She was thoughtful for so long a while that West looked apprehensively at her and wondered if he had done anything to displease her. But before he could form words to inquire, Gretchen asked cunningly: "Are you going to want me to come again?"

West was just a bit puzzled. He also knew that he wanted her very, very much indeed. It was difficult to know how best to express his thoughts. He decided that his habitual frankness was the best course and after that she must take the situation in her own hands.

"You have asked me a straight question, little wraith," he said and despite himself a great sadness crept into his voice and eyes, "so I must tell you that if I had my own way I would want you to go out the studio again. You have come in of your own free will just to humor a whim which will perhaps pass as quickly as it came, but you have thrust something into my studio and into my soul that I desire greatly to keep."

So brilliant a color flamed into Gretchen's cheeks and so tremulous a light into her eyes that West stopped speaking. He had annoyed beyond forgiveness.

The sun trailed down and away from the window, leaving but the steady warm glow of twilight.

"I should not have told you this," he continued finally; "you are the wife of another man."

"But I'm not—now," Gretchen put in quickly, tremulously. "I would not have come back to studio days had he been still living. And now I'm all there is left in his home—that is weighs me down and I just want to come back to Bohemia and paint dreadful pictures and get saucy little checks for them and—" It was she now who stopped, blinded by happiness that West's eyes reflected.

"Then you are free—free to sig at my tea cart every day—free to let me keep that which has come into my heart and free to be happy in the dear studio way?"

Gretchen nodded silently and because West wanted to take her in his arms but think that was the last thing he walked over to the window and stood looking down at the street. Gretchen rose swiftly and stood beside him her slim hand touching his sleeve.

"Love makes the world a very wonderful place to live in, doesn't it?" she asked softly.

"That smock is so absurdly big it is difficult to find you in it," observed West.

"Still, I feel that you found me," laughed Gretchen as together they gazed happily out over the housetops from the studio window.

Ancient Timepieces.

During the reign of Edward I. the first clock was made in England and placed in Westminster abbey. It must have been quite a wonder, and it remained alone in its glory for many years.

In the fourteenth century Peter Lightfoot, a monk of Glastonbury abbey, made a clock, which is now preserved in the British museum.

The veteran has been patched up a little, but it is still in fair order and marks time as well as ever (better, probably, for a pendulum has been added), notwithstanding its patriarchal age of five centuries.

Perhaps it did not mark time very well before it got its pendulum, for most ancient clocks of the early fourteenth century were by no means reliable as timekeepers.

Changing Jobs.

The president of an Indianapolis bank, who is a director in the Big Brummel in his dress, was standing on the sidewalk in front of Washington street near a tray of shoestrings, when a stylishly dressed woman approached him:

"Here's a dime; let me have one of your longest pairs of black shoestrings."

The banker gave the woman his card and then hurried over the telephone.

THE ARCTIC TERN.

A Bird That Hates the Darkness—Travels 150 Miles a Day.

For many years the annual migration of the birds, although a perfectly familiar fact, was shrouded in mystery. Except in the case of a few birds like the robin, which winters not far south of its summer home, no one knew where the song birds or the shore birds went in the fall, or when they began their southward flight in the spring.

But the subject has been carefully and patiently studied by so many observers and naturalists that it is no longer impossible to answer these questions. The cliff swallows and blackpoll warblers spend their winter in tropical South America; the golden plover, which nests in the Arctic Sea, winters 8,000 miles away in the Argentine; the scarlet tanager is to be found in December and January in Ecuador and Peru, and the bobolink in Southern Brazil.

For a long time it was thought that the golden plover bore off the palm for length of flight between summer and winter home, but now that distinction is awarded to the Arctic tern. This bird breeds as far north as it can find anything stable on which to construct its nest; it has been found within seven and a half degrees of the pole. And that nest was found surrounded by a wall of newly-fallen snow which the mother bird had carefully scooped out from around her chick.

The tern arrives in the Far North about June 15, and leaves again for the south toward the end of August, when the young are able to fly strongly. Two or three months later the birds are found skirting the edge of the Antarctic continent, 11,000 miles away. What their track is over that vast space no one yet knows.

A few individuals are occasionally seen along the New England coast in August, but flocks of thousands and thousands of these gregarious birds which alternate from pole to pole have never been met by any trained observer competent to learn their preferred path and their time schedule. They must travel at least 150 miles a day—apart from their flights in search or pursuit of food—to carry them within ten or twelve days from one end of the world to the other.

The Arctic tern enjoys more hours of sunlight than any other creature on the globe. The sun never sets during its stay at the northern nesting grounds, and during the stay in the south it has two months of continuous sunlight and practical daylight for between six and eight months of the year.

The Valley of the Kootenay.

Forty or fifty odd miles south of the Big Bend river, high in the Canadian Rockies, in which is the ultimate source of the Columbia river, almost under Deception Mountain, lies Fort Steele, in British Columbia town, southeast of the tourist-famed Selkirk Range, east of the Purcell Range, in the meadow-like broad valley of the Kootenay between them and the numberless minor ranges composing the main chain of the Canadian Rockies, has a picturesque setting. The utter and peculiar beauty of the Kootenay river with its flanking precipitous mountains, sheer apart, the multiplicity of mountain lakes and streams tributary to it in this vicinity, determine distinctively the aspect of the country about Fort Steele.

First an Indian camping ground, the beginning of many points of settlement throughout the west, then a trading post with a ferry, tarrying place and point of departure for those who travel on pioneer business in the spaces of the west, it finally took Fort's habitation and a name with the establishment of a mounted police barracks under the name of a hardy inspector of the famous force.

With the opening of the railroad through the Crow's Nest Pass came access to the silver, lead and copper mining districts that, even now scarcely more than prospected, are hidden in the convolutions of the mountain ranges whose multitudinous minor passes debouch into the great valley of the Kootenay and whose meadows lies Fort Steele.

A Lover of Animals.

Miss Marshall Saunders' early home was Halifax, Nova Scotia. While she was assisting her father, the late Rev. Dr. Saunders, with some correspondence with Dr. Rand, then a professor in the University of Toronto, the suggestion was repeated, and the result was a burglar story, "Beautiful Joe," which is now in Toronto. She has written a large number of articles, stories, and books about animal pets, as well as several novels.

A New Western Writer.

Robert Watson, who is on the staff of the Bredon Bay Co. at Vernon, B.C., in South West who came to Canada some years ago, and who, last year, captured the reading public with his breezy, wholesome novel of the Out-Land and the New, "My Brave and Gallant Gentleman." He is continuing in the work of putting the Pacific province into literature, and that is if there appears his "Girl of O. K. Valley," a romance full of charm of atmosphere and vigor of action.

The world's most crooked river is the Jordan, which wanders nearly 220 miles to cover sixty.

Outlawing the Submarine

IN the deliberations at Paris and elsewhere since the armistice was signed there have been specific propositions toward a general limitation of armaments, new those propositions lean rather strongly toward outlawing the use and possession of submarines.

The danger of a repetition of the German submarine inhuman warfare is commonly by some nations used the basis for a demand for similar irresponsibility and ruthlessness. This is the strongest argument in the abolitionist and so-called "freedom of the seas" movement sponsored by everyone. Two points, while condemning the inhumanity of the German submarine warfare to the utmost, do not think that those past horrors should be a determining factor. They also point out the enormous effort on the part occasioned by the German submarine campaign, as compared with the actual cost of life. It is generally admitted that the Germans failed in their plan to win the war by submarines only because they could not bring them into service in sufficient numbers; at their best, the average number of Germans actually fighting at sea in submarines was about 1,000 officers and men, and there were literally hundreds of thousands opposed to them; the number of men in Allied vessels engaged continuously and exclusively in strictly anti-submarine work outnumbered the German submarine personnel many-fold. Exact statistics are not yet available, but estimates of the actual cost in lives of the German "unrestricted" warfare are between 10,000 and 15,000—the best figures are about 12,000. Many single days' operations on land cost more lives than that, and with infinitely more results compared with the effect of the submarines.

Those not in concurrence with the abolitionists think that the factor of possible interchangeable of submarine warfare should not be separated from bombing from the air and mines. As for the latter, the parallel seems closed. Only the absolutely ruthless submarine compares with the automatic mine which knows no difference between the bottoms of battleships, hospital ships and passenger ships filled with women and children. That due attention must be given this point is shown by actual losses and returns; the losses of British merchant ships during the war was by submarines ..... 6,778,000 tons
Mines ..... 4,377,000 tons

A second argument given especially in favor of abolition is that submarines when restricted to their legitimate use of torpedoing the naval war of their enemy are not effective—short, in the small number of Allied-enemy warships caused by them in the last war. Those favoring retention point out the fact—as shown by captured instructions that the objective given German submarine commanders there was a definite force of them—"no merchant tonnage, because they estimated the results to be that a stalled world could not win the war for them." It is pointed out that, with the exception of the abortive attempt of last November for which their submarines only went to sea, the Germans never planned to have a fleet action and that during the encounters that did occur only casual German submarines and destroyer-submarine advanced; therefore argue that the war furnished no data in the way of results on which conclusions should be based. However, it appears that of the 134 submarines which the German high seas lost during the war by enemy action 42 were sunk by torpedoes from German submarines.

The argument is made that despite all hydroplane and kindred inventions of a long period during which the best inventive talent of several nations worked under high pressure, the submarine is still the only warships vessel which, singly and unsupported, can go well nigh anywhere and that, entirely discounting its main purposes of torpedoing enemy warships, as a matter of coast defence, in fleet action or otherwise, its unique defensive quality makes it a naval weapon of utmost effectiveness. At the worst, it is never a liability that has to be supported and protected. That the big ship still rules the ocean seems to be generally accepted. How long it will endure is the question. The war has brought no basic advancement to big ships, only a continuance of increase in size, speed and also expense, which for safe units has become unwieldous. No one can begin to guess what advance the next decade or two will see in other weapons, now properly classed as auxiliary. But this much seems clear: If there can be evolved no limitation in character or size of naval armament, any nation which holds blindly to one line and fails to note development along others will be in ultimate danger from some other nation which does.

At first the advisability of abolishing submarines seemed high, for the reason that it is purely a war machine only, has no place in commerce or sport and would be difficult to conceal if possessed in readiness for war. To all of this, however, more doubts as to this practicability on the part of those who are against to outlaw them and evidence of fear of failure to enforce the prohibition, and consequent comparative detriment of our national defence. While the leaders of those nations having the strongest navies have shown a disposition to agree to gradual reduction of submarines, and destruction of those built, it has gone no further than that; other nations state that, having weaker navies, the submarine is more important to them, support the arguments for retention and even flatly state that they cannot consent.

SIMPLE AND CHARMING DRESS

This is a dress of yellow voile banded in blue and white, with a cash of blue; an exquisite creation of summery and beautiful.

FAD FOR STRIPED CRETONNES

Pleasing Effects Are Considered Smarter for Hall, Living Room and the Porch.

There is a fad for striped upholstering this year and just now these striped effects are considered smarter, for hall, living room and porch, than the flowered patterns that are reserved for sleeping rooms. Some of the broadly-striped designs have great dignity and character and they do give a room a certain distinction probably because of their newness—that is fancied at the moment more than the gayety of flowered chints.

A specially smart pattern has a tan-colored ground with very wide stripes of deep blue, and down the center of each blue stripe runs a narrow, definite stripe of black. A living room living room is going to have curtains and chair covers of this blue, black and tan-striped cretonne, used with a deep blue rug, some pieces of old, beautifully polished mahogany and lamp shades of deep blue printed silk.

The shades are merely squares of silk, bordered with narrow black braid, and a black silk tassel swings from each corner of the square, when it is thrown over the foundation shade which is of orange-colored chiffon. The orange does not show by day, but gives a soft glow through the thin blue silk cover when the lamp is lighted.

OVERBLOUSE HERE TO STAY

Fashion Forecasts Show the Garment is to Be One of the Popular Fall Adjuncts.

One type of garment that it seems perfectly safe to advise the average woman to purchase now with the comfortable assurance that it may be worn when fall comes around is the long or over-the-skirt blouse. These blouses unfortunately are rather expensive just now, and Mrs. Average Woman will hesitate a little before purchasing a garment about which there has been so much discussion and which has so long struggled for general recognition.

Blouse makers have announced that they have confidence in the continued vogue of this type of blouse, now that American women have finally agreed to give it a real tryout, and because of this confidence they are bringing out, or planning to bring out in the fall lines, long blouses that will be sold at reasonable figures.

Therefore the woman who does not care to wait until fall for her over-the-skirt blouse may watch for sales and bargain sales and lay in as many as she likes without fear that the fall will find the garment laid on the shelf by Dame Fashion. This inclination of housemakers to stabilize what they see to the present season been a decided novelty seems to indicate clearly that the long blouse has arrived and that it is here to stay.

For the Young Girl.

For the young girl there is a blouse of cross-barred dimity that takes its inspiration from a child's romper. The childish round neck has the little romper collar and cuffs finished with hand drawnwork ruffles.

Further Proof that 2.51% Beer is Non-Intoxicating

Conclusive Findings of Interest to Ontario Voters

IN a news despatch to the Toronto World last Saturday, announcement was made for the first time of the result of exhaustive tests made by Professors H. L. Hollingworth and R. S. Woodworth of Columbia University, New York, into the effects of 2.75% Beer on the human system.

The tests were made upon six students of the law school over a period of twelve days. A corps of assistants, men and women, collaborated with the two professors of psychology in conducting the elaborate experiments that had been devised.

"The effect of the beer on the students was said to have been almost negligible," says the despatch.

Word has just come from Wisconsin that as the result of a test case, the courts of that State have declared beer of 2.75% alcoholic content by weight measure to be non-intoxicating. As a result of this decision 2.75% beer is now on general sale throughout Wisconsin.

The 2.75 per cent. beer proven non-intoxicating by the professors of Columbia University, and declared non-intoxicating by the Wisconsin Courts, is .24 per cent. stronger than the Beer of the Ballot—the 2.51 per cent. beer for which you are asked to vote October 20th. These findings must be conclusive to every man and woman who has an open mind—who is willing to vote on the truth as proven.

How absurd it is then for the Referendum Committee to continue to declare that this mild and light beverage is intoxicating.

DRINK 2.75 BEER AND REMAIN SOBER

Tests to Determine Intoxicating Qualities Made on Columbia Students.

Toronto World, October 11th, 1919.

This is the non-intoxicating beer that Labor in particular is demanding. Is there any fair or just reason why you should stand in the way of the working men obtaining their favorite beverage? Just because the beverage is labelled "Beer", is no reason for you voting against it. This is not a time for prejudice but a give-and-take spirit that sees the "other fellow's" viewpoint. Give the working men the more palatable and nourishing, yet non-intoxicating beer they are asking for.

PEARL INVESTS

Quick Fortunes Made and Spent by South Sea Islanders.

The Paumotu islands—sometimes called "gold islands" in the early Pacific—present a weird and picturesque scene during the season for pearl fishing. Here are to be found the native Tuan (the surrounding islands to divers' pearls in the quiet waters of the lagoon thrown open for the purpose within the year's area of sand which surrounds the sandy ground are hundreds of $500 to $600 pearl oysters, shelltoned in color, and each containing the rich prize.

There the Paumotu divers, bronzed as the gods—who, with their accessories have been for ages masters of the deep and conquerors of the shark in its own native element. The diver is the centre of solicitude for the dealers and traders. He is the indispensable object of the moving picture that who has busily built his theatre of corrugated iron where he dispenses amusement at metropolitan prices. It is the diver who spends his earnings riding in the wheezy automobile which the owner days since along a half-mile of sandy beach. It is his earnings which attract a host of others.

In his habits of spending his earnings the Paumotu diver is much like the Canadian prospector and miner in the days of gold strikes and booming camps. In the days of his prosperity he is free to good for little. He buys the choicest of food and tinned goods. He is proud of the appearance of his women folk and lavishes on them silk, satins, laces, glorious sheath, high-heeled shoes, picture hats and corsets, the last a recent discovery. All of these things the trader has thoughtfully provided.

Sunday is an Easter parade, and a perfect day. The picture theatre is like an evening at the opera. In no other "house show" in the world are more observant or critical eyes, and woe betide the Paumotu belle who fancies she can attend two of the functions clad in the same costume without being subject to scornful comment.

A good diver during the season will bring up several tons of shells which encompass him well. The diver takes no thought for the morrow. He and his wife bask in affluence and enjoyment. He spends as fast as he earns. When December comes and the fishing season is over they return to their little atoll and the simple life with nothing remaining for his months of toil but some soiled finery, the memory of a good time and the anticipation of their pleasure the next year.

The Cat's Whiskers.

Why is there a black sheep in every flock? Because sheep, in their early domesticated condition, were brown or dirty black, and because nature occasionally "barks back" or reverts to early type in nearly all species.

Why are cockroaches particularly common in seaports? Because they first settled there, coming to us from India, by way of the Levant.

Why does a red flag infuriate a bull? Because, according to one theory, the animal "sees red." The condition circumstances (as on the battlefield), in man, rendering him indifferent to danger, is produced artificially in the bull, with like results.

Why does a dog turn round and round before lying down? Because the animal's ancestor, the wild dog, made its bed thus by forming a hollow in the leaves and branches.

Why has a camel got a hump? Because in its natural state it needs an "emergency ration." It deprived of food for several days, it falls back on the fat of its hump, which then gradually disappears before the tissues are perceptibly reduced. That it carries a reserve of water in its stomach is well known.

Why is the undersport of a rabbit's tail white? Because the appendage has on occasion to serve as a danger signal. Violently agitated as it is on the approach of danger, it can be seen by other rabbits even at dusk, whereas it might be wholly invisible if the color of the tail was uniform with that of the body.

Why has a cat got whiskers? Because otherwise—and this applies to the whole of the feline family, including lions and tigers — its eyes would lose sight of prey, such as mice, when the latter's fellow animals ing from concentration. Experiments have proved cats deprived of their whiskers catch few mice, or none at all.—Tit-Bits.

Scandinavian Humor.

The humor of the Scandinavian countries is unfamiliar to most Canadians. Here are some examples of it that are taken from recent issues of Scandinavian papers: Lars Ohrsson and Elias Vasbom were caught on a flord by a storm. It grew dark and the boat was dangerously tossed about by the elements. Finally Lars said: "Good on the other side, Elias." Elias complied, but had hardly crossed than halfway through when Lars cried out, "Stop! Stop! That's enough! We don't need any more!" I can see land!"

Corporal (to dull-witted recruit): "Have you a brother?" Recruit: "Yes." Corporal: "Is he as silly as you?" Recruit: "Yes." Corporal: "What is he?" Recruit: "A corporal."

It was in the Spanish fin period and old Oppigar lay at death's door. The minister came and told him he must forgive his enemies. Oppigar promised to do so with the single exception of Peter Brinzo, against whom he had a very special grudge. But the minister insisted that even Peter must also be forgiven. "All right, then," said Oppigar, "I will forgive Peter also—but if I get well I'll have it out with the old scoundrel!"

Had Heard It.

"Is your daughter taking singing lessons?" "That's what you heard, all right! I hope you didn't think for a minute that I had started beating my wife!"

Gabriele d'Annunzio Is Most Romantic Figure Living in Modern Europe

WHAT a curious, mediaeval figure there is to Gabriele d'Annunzio, poet, dramatist, egotist was the placing of himself at the head of an army of equally hot-headed Italian soldiers, with which he seized Fiume. In all the war there is no more romantic figure than that of this Italian playwright and novelist. His facile imagination never invented a more fascinating tale than might be written from the narrative of his own life.

Gabriele d'Annunzio had lived life rapidly and knew most of its phases before the war broke, in 1914. All the world knew his books, his poems and his plays and the stories of his affairs of the heart. Air accidents had passed over his head, and a dreadful ennui seized upon him. He wished life and its fruits, he said, then he would end his life in some manner that would absolutely destroy all trace of his body; he would annihilate himself.

Before that year expired the storm of war burst, and d'Annunzio was reborn. From the first he was the leader of the fight to bring Italy into the war against Germany and Austria.

GABRIELE D'ANNUNZIO.

tria, his nation's ancient enemy. His peculiar, wild voice led every enthusiastic campaign.

The theory that goes by is lost to our eternal glory," was the message that he preached from countless platforms. Italy's war aim was liberation. And he is credited with having been the first single force that created that hesitation into a declaration of war against Austria.

D'Annunzio was among the first in the field. A man past fifty, he chose for his part an aviator, that service that commands only youth's hardiest and bravest. The recital of his exploits in the air reads like a chapter from the memoirs of a modern Knight of the Table Round." Time and again he led his air squadron in daring raids over the Austrian base at Pola and other Austrian cities. Once, when his machine was dropped heavily upon Trient, he flew low in defiance of the anti-aircraft guns and dropped a poem! Once during a terrible hand-to-hand struggle with the Austrians on the Carso he rushed among the combatants, leaping, with fiery words. Citations and rewards were showered upon him. When Italy's armies broke through the Austrian drive his voice was raised, crying:

"All the light of a thousand victories does not equal the light of this day of resistance. That which we have lost for days shall be regained by victories."

He was wounded several times and once was reported dead. The Austrians were said to have issued a large reward for his capture or death.

When the dispute over Fiume arose there could be only one stand for d'Annunzio. The city must belong to Italy. Then he began his memorable mises to the contrary notwithstanding that Italian statesmen's "disposition" was due in no small part to the sensational "propaganda" of d'Annunzio's speeches and writings. Then suddenly came the word that d'Annunzio also, at the head of an army, had marched upon and seized Fiume for Italy, thus violating the armistice terms. The Italian 6th Army Corps, under Premier Nitti's direction, accept and disarm d'Annunzio's force, refused. D'Annunzio's reply, in which his fiery patriotism led him, is a serious one. A lesser figure might well consider the matter a joke, but not he. The world will be inclined to think the latter, that in the book of genius will be meted out to the culprit.

The Food of the World.

While one-third people are living in the world to-day dependent upon rice for their food, it is the general belief a greater number of the human family live upon millet than any other cereal food, while it is the principal food among the higher civilized people, writes Earl W. Gage, in the Christian Herald. The more progressive people in the world have ever been wheat eaters. Grains of wheat have been recovered from the ruins of the tombs of first dynasty, dating back 4,000 B.C., while bread of wheat has been excavated from the ruins of the prehistoric lake dwellers of Wagner and Robenhausen in Switzerland.

LOST WITHOUT A TRACE.

Mystery Ship Went Down in Lake Erie.

The grave of the freighters which have lined the shores of the Great Lakes are not always undisturbed, and the sandy bottoms of Erie and Ontario do not always preserve the last resting place of the ill-fated vessels which they hold in the past. Even when boats are lost without a trace for many years they sank it is not infrequently that they are discovered by chance and raised to further service. Hence the application of science to the part of engineers and energy on the part of the great wrecking companies of the lakes. Such is likely to be the case with the steel barge Marquette and Bessemer II, which, after (40 years on the bottom of Lake Erie is now believed to have been located.

The steel barge the Bessemer disappeared in the storm of 1869 there has been a continuous search for her. The ferry is a steel built vessel several hundred feet in length, and of modern construction. It salvaged to fairly good condition with her cargo of many cars of coal she would be a prize well worth the effort of a long search, and consequently an effort has been made to locate her.

At various times searchers have been given credence to the effect that the last resting place of the vessel can be definitely determined, but every time this was proved to be wrong. On the night that the Bessemer disappeared she was seen off the harbor of Port Stanley, trying repeatedly to gain entrance. Each time, however, she was carried to the south by the lake current. Her steering gear ing the distress signal of the disappeared in the storm.

Fishermen and villagers gathered at the pierhead to watch the repeated efforts of the coal boat to get through the harbor mouth. Late that night she disappeared to the southwest for the last time, and soon afterwards her signals of distress were heard no longer. In the morning she was gone from the lake, and not a piece or rope ever gave evidence of where she sank. Not a single survivor or wreckage was a body ever recovered. The mystery of the vessel's disappearance was related to the many other similar mysteries of the Great Lakes, and after a time it ceased to be a matter of wonder.

Then came be efforts to locate the hulk. From Port Stanley dredging boats and search parties went out in every direction to try to find where the wreck lay. The bottom for miles around the port was literally combed without result. Farther out the vessels went and continued their cruisings for years. A few months ago a plan was proposed by which a diver man should fly over the lake and make observations where he could see bottom, and in the way try to find the Bessemer. The plan was given up after the first two hours' flight and the searchers went back to their tugs and grappels.

A few days ago while cruising between Port Stanley and Rondeau, Capt. Bowman, on one of the tugs of the Midland Steamship Company, noticed on a bit of wreckage from a considerable depth of water, which he believed to form the hull of a boat. Investigation indicated that a vessel of some kind lay below, but further efforts failed to bring up any evidence of the name of the lost ship. A spar and gear that finally came to view seemed to suggest that the hulk was not that of the Bessemer, and it was agreed by many that it would be either the Mowat or the Colgate, sister ships lost on Lake Erie in the September storm of 1917. However, such was the distance from shore and where bits of wreckage appeared, that it was considered that a bigger craft than either the Mereda or the Colgate lay below. Nothing was left to believe, then, but that the Bessemer was found, and accordingly Capt. Stevens called in the other tugs and left for Toronto.

To-day the next step will be the bringing of diving apparatus to the scene, which has been carefully watched. It is probable that after a couple of days in the water, the divers will be able to state definitely what vessel it is that the searchers have located.

The salvaging of the hull of the Bessemer is probably found after her long unsolved disappearance. Miss Jones has roused the greatest interest in lake navy circles, and the story of the big car-ferry had been a tradition with the mariners, and word of her discovery was the topic of the saltsmen from Port Colborne to the Soo.

There are other wrecks of the lakes that have defied discovery, and nearly every port has a story of some wreckage which remained out of sight part of the coast with all hands. There was the Chas. S. Price, too, the mystery ship of Lake Ontario, which after being under the surface for years, finally became aged and sank for good just when the divers were beginning to get in their nerve on her. There was the Wexford, a victim of Black Friday, like the Price, which went down somewhere off Goderich and never sent a silver ashore to indicate her whereabouts.

Canadian Resourcefulness.

The recent British railway strike brought out a smart piece of Canadian resource and organization. At Buxton depot. On Saturday, October 4, 600 men of the Canadian Scots at Liverpool and a special train had been ordered for their entrainment, but on Friday evening it was cancelled. Col. Chance, commander, and his staff, got to the station, however, began to organize a road transport. Lieut. Wilkinson, a motorist, was detailed requisitioning lorries were all on hand. Saturday evening brought news that the last man was aboard the Baltic, at a point far beyond ceremony at Buxton, Col. Hanson planted a maple tree commemorating the Canadians' long and intimate association with the town.

A HAPPY HUNTING GROUND

The summer sun beat down on the heaving cradle of the deep, and little Bill lay dozing on the long, lazy swells. Forty miles away the dim outlines of the mountains of Vancouver Island drew a faint fretwork against the horizon. Closer the bold point of Point Grey loomed high, and closer still the rugged entrance to Howe Sound met in endless battle with the charging rollers from the Gulf of Georgia. Little Bill's mother was somewhere in the depths looking for anything in the line of fish, but preferably salmon.

A smudgy smear appeared on the skyline. It drew rapidly nearer, Little Bill saw it not. Pushing herself, along at the rate of eighteen knots the fast C. P. R. steamer Princess Patricia raced for harbor, keeping a railroad schedule, and piling a huge wave from each side of her sharp bows. She came close to Bill, who had not yet been christened, the roar of machinery, the rumbling rush of the wash startled him, and as he looked he was turned over and over in the big wave from the steamship. Little Bill forgot home and mother and all things but escape. Making his little flippers fly he drove himself toward the safety of a cove on Bowen Island, where, in the placid reaches, he rested again, feeling much more comfortable.

This is a true story. Bill is a young hair-seal. There are many thousands of his kind in the coast waters of British Columbia. They do no harm, excepting perhaps that of eating a few million salmon each season and destroying a few thousand yards of salmon nets that entangle them. The only other possible annoyance they might prove to create is that of following trolling fishermen and taking the fish off the hooks when the fisherman thinks he has caught one sure. Otherwise they are fat, lazy, comfortable, intelligent and kindly. They respond quickly to human attention. And the strange thing is that the human appeal is not made through the stomach. Young seals will make friends with men who never feed them a thing to entice them to closer relationship.

For instance there is the illustration of Bill. He rested in the warm cove at Bowen Island. He heard a seductive whistling sound, and he raised his head to look. There, not a hundred yards away, he saw some two-legged creatures playing about in the water, and one who was sitting on a floating log was making the attractive noises with his lips. Bill slipped beneath the surface.

Picture the astonishment of the boys on the raft. Suddenly in their midst there came a little spotted seal that swam gently through them and drew up against the raft, asking as clearly as anything could, to be invited into the revels. One boy reached down, placed his hands behind the way flippers and lifted Bill out. They petted him and scratched him, dove and swam about with him. He seemed to enjoy himself fully as much as they. The day drew to a close and the lads went homeward, leaving their deep-sea playfellow alone. Next morning when they came to swim they whistled again. Close beside the raft a sleek little head like that of a wet spaniel raised itself, and small flippers wriggled joyously. The daily play was on again. It was then he was christened Bill, and learned to know the name. This happened weeks ago and still Bill plays tirelessly and in utter confidence. He rustles his own food, he asks nothing but friendship and companionship. Somewhere on the sandbars of the Fraser river his mother sleeps of nights, gorged with pink salmon, and perhaps dreaming of her wandering lad. But Bill, apparently, dreams of nothing but the coming day, and his friends in woollen tights.—L. V. K.

LET THERE BE HARMONY IN THINGS ESSENTIAL—LIBERTY IN THINGS NOT ESSENTIAL—CHARITY IN ALL.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1919.

Vote for W. H. IRELAND and SANDY GRANT and Retain GOOD GOVERNMENT

DEWART vs. HEARST

(Christian Guardian)

The present political struggle in Ontario has been a brief one, but at the same time a sharp and momentous one. It has resolved itself largely into a struggle between two leaders. There are local difficulties which sorely puzzle the temperance man who would gladly vote in such a way as to do most good to the temperance cause; and in such cases he must be guided by his own best judgment.

But in the broader view it has come to a struggle, not between the Liberal party and the Conservative party, but between the two leaders and their policies. The Toronto Star, which is fighting a magnificent battle for prohibition, says:

"While the theory is that we are ruled by a Legislature, the fact is that it is the Government which rules, and, practically speaking, as our Parliamentary system works out, the Prime Minister dominates. He IS the Government.

"It was not the elected candidates who sat in the Legislature—the great majority of whom had been elected to support avowed opponents of the abolition of the bar; it was not the Cabinet, most of the members of which had stumped the country against the abolition of the bar; it was one man, Sir William Hearst, who, because of his strong personal convictions, and using the influence and authority his position gave him, put the Ontario Temperance Act into effect in the province, and created the situation that now enables the people to make prohibition permanent."

So far as we understand the situation we think the Star—which, by the way, has never been accused of being Tory—has given the correct interpretation of the case. It is no secret that Sir William Hearst had to fight a hard battle within his own party in order to pass the Ontario Temperance Act; and it is no secret that now there are strong elements in the Conservative party north who are using tooth and nail to destroy him. Sir William Hearst today is recognized by temperance and liquor men alike as the real leader of the prohibitionists in Ontario, and his defeat would be hailed with delight by every liquor supporter in the province, whether Grit or Tory, or just pure Whiskey. Every underground and backstairs influence that liquordom can call into action is being used to defeat the man who was responsible for writing the Ontario Temperance Act upon the statute book of the province.

On the other hand, it is usually understood that Sir William Hearst's nominal opponent, Mr. Hartley Dewart, was elected in South-West Toronto largely by the liquor men as their protest against the passing of the Ontario Temperance Act. Mr. Dewart's father was a former editor of this paper, a prominent supporter of prohibition; and Mr. Dewart himself naturally ought to be a Methodist and a prohibitionist; but if he is a prohibitionist he has kept the fact so carefully concealed that the liquor forces in Toronto were willing to support his candidature. We know that he has promised to abide by the decision of the people in the referendum, but the day has gone by when Ontario is prepared to trust the administration of a prohibition law to a political leader who is opposed to that law, or who, if not opposed, is at least afraid to admit that he favors it.

This, it seems to us, is the choice today in this province—the choice between a leader who risked his political existence in order to give Ontario prohibition, and a leader who, elected first by liquor votes, has never yet dared to declare for prohibition. It is true that Mr. Dewart asserts that no matter what happens the bar will never come back, but so far as we know, and we have tried to follow his declarations closely, he has never yet said that he would vote against its return. Mr. Dewart does not openly oppose prohibition, but his attitude of apparent neutrality, whether real or not, is one such as the temperance electors of Ontario have a right to expect from the leader of a political party, the majority of whose members are staunch prohibitionists. Sir William Hearst has alienated the liquor vote from himself, and Mr. Dewart doubtless hopes to corral that vote; but if by any mischance he should owe his election to that vote it would surely be an evil day for the prohibitionists of Ontario. As temperance men we owe more to Sir William Hearst than to any other temperance statesman in recent years, with the possible exception of Mr. Rowell. Shall we acknowledge that debt on the twentieth of October? To us it seems as though the future attitude of our statesmen towards prohibitionists will be largely determined by our support or neglect of Sir William Hearst.

Election Lie Nailed

President of Trenton Labor Council Publicly Refutes Falsehood Circulated on Behalf of Dewart Candidate—

A mean, underhand, and altogether contemptible trick has been attempted by agents of the Dewart candidate, Mr. O'Flynn, in an attempt to alienate votes of workingmen from Mr. Ireland, consisting of a statement industriously circulated that Mr. Ireland had something to do with the rejection of Mr. Galloway's nomination paper. Returning Officer Matthews, through the press, has publicly refuted this election falsehood and proved that Mr. Ireland had nothing to do with the rejection of Mr. Galloway's nomination paper, and, in fact, was not aware that the paper did not comply with the law. As further proof that this election falsehood has no foundation in fact, whatever, the following declaration by Mr. J. J. Jones, President of the Labor Council at Trenton, should effectually nail the lie for what it is, absolutely foundationless:

Trenton, Oct. 17, 1919.

MR. W. H. IRELAND,
TRENTON, ONT.

Dear Sir,—I beg to state that I do not blame you for the rejection of the Labor Candidate's nomination papers in connection with the West Hastings Election for the Ontario Legislature. I write this with the approval of Mr. J. W. Galloway.

Yours truly,
J. H. JONES.
Pres. Labor Council.

Three Injured In Rear-End Pitch-In

Conductor Reynolds and Trainmen Savage and Kennedy Removed to Hospital.

BROCKVILLE, Oct. 18.—As a result of a rear-end collision between two work trains on the Grand Trunk Railway, near Yonge Mills at 6.50 o'clock yesterday morning, three trainmen who were in the caboose of the first train, when the second crashed into it without warning were removed to St. Vincent de Paul Hospital, where one of them still remains.

The injured are:

William P. Reynolds, conductor, In St. Vincent de Paul Hospital.

Jack about the body, injured about the back and side and suffering from shock In St. Vincent de Paul Hospital.

L. E. Savage, Devonshire Apartments Brockville, trainman, cut about the head, wrist and hand.

Vincent Kennedy, Belleville, trainman, bruised about the shoulder and cut about the face.

Conductor Reynolds is the most seriously injured of the three and an examination will be made later in the day to determine if he has received possible internal injuries. Dr. T. F. Robertson attended the injured men.

According to a statement issued by the Grand Trunk Railway, extra work train engine No. 324, Engineer H. H Redfern, Belleville, pitched into the rear end of extra work train engine No. 323, Engineer W. R. Swain, Brockville at Yonge Mills, injuring Conductor Reynolds, Brakemen Savage and Kennedy, a sixth district crew. The Belleville auxiliary was sent to clear the westbound main line which is blocked. The eastbound main line remained clear.

The second train was in charge of Conductor H. P. Washburn, Brockville, with P. G. Hammett, Belleville, as trainmen. Firemen Crothers, Belleville, was on the engine of the second train, and Firemen J. E. Monohan, Brockville on the foot-plate of engine 323.

COLLISION NEAR YONGE MILLS

There are at the present time a large number of men working on track repairs west of here and the two work trains are employed in connection with this. Each evening they return to the Brockville yard. When near Yonge Mills, nine miles west of here, when both trains, it is alleged, were in motion, the second train, on rounding a curve, pitched into the rear of the first. The injured men were in the caboose at the first train, which consisted of locomotive and van, and were caught in the wreckage when the caboose buckled under the impact and was demolished. None of the members of the engine crew were injured and the locomotives were not derailed. So badly smashed was the caboose, however, that the track was blocked and a call forwarded for the Belleville auxiliary. The injured men were rushed back to Brockville and conveyed to St. Vincent de Paul Hospital, where they received treatment. Savage and Kennedy were able to leave for their homes after having their wounds dressed. Savage's injuries were caused by being sent through a window by the collision.

Dewart Organ "Explains" For Dewart Candidate

The local Dewart organ supporting the Dewart candidate, E. D. O'Flynn, essayed the most difficult task of its career in yesterday's issue in trying to explain away the resolution introduced by candidate O'Flynn at the last Provincial convention of the G. W. V. A. It will be noted that the "explanation" is not over the signature of Candidate O'Flynn, but appears in small type on the back page as a general paragraph under the heading, "Election Notes." Candidate O'Flynn does not deny that he introduced the resolution "THAT ENGLISH WOMEN BE KEPT OUT OF CANADA FOR ONE YEAR, AS WELL AS ALL OTHERS," as reported in the public press at the time. Being a lawyer, and consequently accustomed to turning sharp corners, he has a better method, and the result is that his journalistic apologist offers the following weak, watery and unconvincing explanation:

Our local contemporary last night featured one of these tremendous sensations on its front page. It represented Col. O'Flynn as the man who had proposed a resolution at the last provincial convention of the G. W. V. A. to keep all English women out of Canada. The fact is that Col. O'Flynn had no more to do with the framing of that resolution than had W. H. Ireland. The resolution proposed to prevent the immigration of unmarried women from Europe into Canada for a period of twelve months following the war, so that our own Canadian women who had been engaged in munition-making and other war-time duties, would first have an opportunity to get back into civilian life. There was absolutely no mention of married women or soldiers' wives in the resolution, as our contemporary seeks to insinuate. The resolution was handed in to the Resolutions Committee, of which Col. O'Flynn was a member. In the absence of the comrade who framed it, Col. O'Flynn passed it on to the meeting, as a matter of form. The convention regarded the resolution as somewhat of a joke.

Note the camouflage—"Col. O'Flynn passed it on to the meeting as a matter of form."

The least that can be said is that it was very bad form.

Note also that the press apologist for the local Dewart candidate says: "The resolution proposed to prevent the immigration of unmarried women from Europe into Canada for a period of twelve months."

Here is the press report published at the time, referring to the resolution:

Refused to Bar English Women.

Some debate attended a resolution calling for a minimum pension scale of $1,000, and that officers and men receive the same amount, also one by First Vice-President O'Flynn that English women be kept out of Canada for one year, as well as all others, because so many Canadian women who had worked in munitions could not get work. Old country delegates and many Canadians took it as a slur, and gave the resolution a scorching reception. It was thrown out by the meeting.

Note that there is no reference to "unmarried women from Europe," but the resolution distinctly specifies "English women," and the text says "English women, as well as all others—nothing whatever about "unmarried women from Europe."

The local Dewart candidate is at least unfortunate in his apologist, and the "explanation" fails to explain.

Local Dewart Organ—"The convention regarded the resolution as somewhat of a joke."

Toronto Press Report—"Old Country delegates and many Canadians took it as a slur, and gave the resolution a scorching reception. It was thrown out by the meeting.

The Dewart candidate fails to make an "explanation" over his own signature, which is very significant, as it is generally believed that lawyers are particularly adept at making explanations.

No doubt an eleventh-hour supplemental "explanation" will be given to the public, too late for any reply in the public press. However, the public have the facts as presented, and ample time has been given for any "explanation" possible. The public can size up the "explanation" offered and judge accordingly.

O'Flynn wants "West Hastings". Ireland wants "Home Rule" and Galloway seems to have quil enough for all hands.—Daily Ontario Oct. 16, 1919.

AN INDIGNANT BRIDE

An Old Country bride of a Canadian soldier expressed herself on the election in this manner: "If I thought my husband would vote for a man who tried to keep Old Country women out of Canada, I'd take the next boat back to the dear old Homeland."

FRANK CONFESSION

If any further proof was needed to substantiate the charge that Candidate O'Flynn's election organization had done all in their power to bring out a third candidate in an effort to take votes from Candidate Ireland, the following frank admission by the local Dewart newspaper would furnish it beyond question: "Col. O'Flynn was strongly desirous that Mr. Galloway should remain in the field. The Labor candidate's home was in Trenton and he was also a Conservative. It was therefore certain that the candidature of the Labor man would divide the Trenton vote that would naturally go to Mr. Ireland."

IRELAND, THE WINNER

A prominent Belleville business man offers to wager $500 even that W. H Ireland will have 700 majority or better, which is an indication of how the situation is generally sized up in this constituency by close observers.

COBOURG MEETING

Hon. Dr. Cody, Minister of Education and W. C. Mikel, K.C., will address a meeting at Cobourg on behalf of Col. Boggs, the Conservative candidate to-night.

LIBERALS COMING OVER

W. C. Mikel, K.C., addressed a meeting at Colbourne last night, on behalf of the Conservative Candidate and Frank L. Webb, a Provincial Liberal spoke in favor of the Hearst Government.

No Trickery Allowed

Deputy Returning Officers have full control of the polling booth and a constable to obey their commands. There is a grave prospect of congestion of the polls. Any wilful attempt to retard voting by voters occupying the compartments longer than necessary can be put a stop to by the Returning Officer and Poll Constable.

Turley Speaks

W. E. Turley, secretary of the Ontario provincial command of the G. W. V. A., stated to The World yesterday that it had been conceded as quite impossible to reopen the appeal courts in order to allow the men who served overseas an opportunity to get their names on the voters' lists.—Toronto World.

Candidate Ireland's Ovation At Trenton Meeting

MAGNIFICENT MEETING ENTHUSIASTICALLY CHEERS GOOD GOVERNMENT CANDIDATE—BIG MAJORITY ASSURED—STIRRING SPEECHES EMPHASIZE SWING OF VICTORY.

TRENTON, Oct. 18.—Last night, the Opera House at Trenton was literally packed with ladies and gentlemen in, attendance at the meeting of citizens called by Mr. Ireland, the Liberal-Conservative candidate for West Hastings. The Opera House was not only filled to overflowing but many were unable to gain admission. The meeting was addressed by the candidate, Mr. Ireland, also Messrs. P. J. O'Rourke, J. McGregor Young, K.C., of Toronto, and Mr. E. Guss Porter, K.C., M.P.

The reception accorded Mr. Ireland by his fellow townsmen and women was most cordial and evinced a determination to have him for their representative in the next Ontario Legislature. His stand upon the prohibition question and the labor unrest was warmly applauded by the supporters of those two interests when his straightforward course was contrasted with the camouflaged action by his opponent and conflicting promises according to the person canvassed, solely for the purpose of securing votes. The people are not to be bamboozled by the political trickery being used so freely on behalf of the Dewart candidate, Eddie O'Flynn, and will duly rebuke such deception when they mark their ballots on Monday next.

The other speakers were given careful attention and sympathy with their expressions was manifested by loud and prolonged cheering in which the ladies took the leading part.

This was by far the largest and most enthusiastic meeting in the whole campaign and many are predicting a majority in Trenton for Mr. Ireland of from 600 to 800.

Miss Orser, Miss Jones and Mr. Kenny rendered musical selections in a very capable manner which were much enjoyed.

The meeting broke up at 11 o'clock with the singing of "God Save the King," and cheers for the candidate. As a whole the meeting was in striking contrast to the political gloom-meeting held by Mr. O'Flynn at the same place the evening previous, where not a cheer was raised nor any enthusiasm displayed as the corpse to the rampart they hurried."

G.W.V.A. First Kinship Night

The local Great War Veteran Association held their first "Kinship Night" in the Armouries last evening. The door was open to all returned men, their dependents and friends and a large number, both young and old, took advantage of the privilege.

Progressive euchre was played upstairs while the young people tripped the light fantastic on the spacious dancing floor. Music was supplied by the Sprague orchestra and was all that could be desired, and besides the sixteen dances which were lifted on the programme the orchestra rendered a number of encores. At the midnight hour all present sat down and the stewards and stewardesses served light refreshments.

The ladies' prize for the progressive euchre was carried away by Mrs. Archie Goyer, and the gentleman's, by Comrade James Varley.

By special request the actresses of the show "My Soldier Girl," which played in Griffin's Theatre, were the guests of the evening.

Much credit is due to the committee who worked hard and diligently to make the event a success.

Dewart's Nickel "Dud"

Mr. Dewart's attempt to make the export of nickel during the war a live Ontario political issue is doomed to failure. The purport of his allegations is too far removed from common-sense to deceive even those who have no knowledge of the issue. When he lays at the door of the Hearst Government responsibility for Ontario nickel finding its way aboard the Deutschland and thence into Germany, he is on the wrong tack. It is perfectly true that Ontario nickel should have been refined in Canada before the war, but his own political friends in office in Ottawa and Toronto prevented that, and their reciprocity campaign was for the free movement of our raw materials to the United States for the benefit of industry there. With the war upon us it was impossible for the Canadian Government to compel such a change in time to enable refining in Canada of sufficiently large quantities of nickel matte. At one time Britain was depending entirely on Charles M. Schwab and the Bethlehem Steel Company for vitally necessary munitions. The nickel produced from the New Jersey refineries of the Nickel Company was indispensable for munitions made in the United States for the Allies. The best the British and Canadian Governments could do was to keep a sharp surveillance on the disposal of every piece of nickel turned out by the company, to prevent resale of it to German interests. The British navy guarded shipments of it. The Ontario Government could have no control over the exportation of nickel matte. That is a Dominion matter, and the Dominion Government was in close consultation with the British Government, and acted on advices from London. As an election weapon against the Hearst Government, the nickel bomb is a "dud."

Needs of Labrador Vividly Depicted By Famous Medical Missionary

WONDERFUL WORK OF HEROIC SACRIFICE CARRIED OUT AMONG THE FISHERMEN OF LABRADOR—A WILD AND RUGGED COUNTRY WHERE BRAVE HEARTS ARE CONQUERING INCREDIBLE CONDITIONS.

Labrador, with its magnificent fiords beautiful scenery, that which there are none better, its splendid fisheries and magnificent possibilities will some day count for its own and for Canada well then be sorry that it did not see the needs of that country long before it did, was a prophecy made in the Y. M. C. A. Hall last night by Dr. W. T. Grenfell in the course of a lecture on his life's hobby, the Labrador Medical Mission. The lecture was given under the auspices of the Women's Canadian Club. Dr. Grenfell's ideal is to introduce into the country that which is a wilderness of snow practically nine months of the year, the civilization which obtains in Canadian cities.

In one sentence Dr. Grenfell stated his position when he expressed his regret that he should have to spend half his time in lecturing in order to get instruments, drugs, etc., to keep the Labrador Medical Mission going, but lack of public knowledge in sympathy with the work along that expansive coast made it necessary that he should do so. That the work is handicapped as it is, is making progress, Dr. Grenfell gave assurance in his statement that it had advanced more in the last two years than ever before. In recounting the ramifications of the mission, Dr. Grenfell stated that in addition to having to struggle with the large problem of providing hospital and nursing units, problems more complex had to be faced, such as how to prevent disease and they had also to bring about an alteration in the economic conditions. Many things had yet to be accomplished and one was the provision of scientific direction for fishermen as to the whereabouts of the "schools" of fish.

Is a Big Problem

If the Labrador problem could have been put down in the shape of so many hospitals and so many nursing units over 300 miles it would have been settled long ago, said Dr. Grenfell, but they could not do that. With a volunteer here and there and the staff provided by the mission, they did the best that could be done, and were making progress when the war came, and now they had to build up again. Incidentally, Dr. Grenfell believed women could carry on much of the work equally as well as men. He instanced the case of three lady doctors, who traveled on dog-hauled sledges in the winter and in launches in the summer, and made good.

In parts of Labrador with its large lake high up on huge tableland, Dr. Grenfell saw plenty of water for power-developing plants for many industries which might readily be introduced into the country with profit. A winter port for Atlantic traffic, Dr. Grenfell stated, might be found on the coast where the Polo current met the current from Belle Isle Straits and created a swirl which prevented solid ice formation.

Dr. Grenfell's experiment of introducing 250 deer into the country as a source of food supply had been claimed by some to have proved a failure. This the doctor denied, and stated that the 250 deer had now multiplied into 1,250 head, and this without any help from the Government, and he was certain that that country could provide a large source of food supply for Lower Canada and all at no expense to the Government except the cost of fences to keep the deer from straying into the hinterland and getting lost.

Dr. Grenfell, after outlining with the aid of postcographs thrown on the screen the work of the hospitals and nursing units in Labrador, gave an insight into the fishing industry of the country, which had improved financially as the result of the war. One man he knew in three months caught and dried 200 quintals of fish, which he sold at $16 per quintal, in addition to getting big value for a gallon of oil. The co-operative movement had sprung up, and one concern with the village pastor as chairman of directors had sold $258,000 worth of fish in one season. This co-operative concern Dr. Grenfell was pleased to make known, had agreed to build a hospital house and provide $1,500 yearly for a nurse.

Dr. Grenfell's vision of the near future was a nursing unit every fifty miles and facilities for treating apart and close cases of tuberculosis. At present both forms had to be housed together.

Dr. Grenfell asked for a fair amount of practical sympathy for the work of Labrador Medical Mission.

Interesting tales of life in isolated Labrador, graphically illustrated by lantern slides, were related by Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell, head of the Labrador Medical Mission, who gave his audience an insight into the heroic efforts of his associates on those bleak shores to give medical and hospital service to the injured and the sick.

For a quarter of a century Dr. Grenfell's medical missions have struggled to maintain the necessary existence, and to his audience last night the doctor declared that more progress had been made in the last two years than ever before. As an instance of the abandoned courage and patience of those superintending the work the doctor threw on the screen a picture of the new dock opposite his coast hospital station on the Labrador coast for which he said they had been saving for twenty years.

Fishermen on the bleak coast, he said, practically have to gamble for existence in their search for King Cod. The war, however, had brought prosperity to the colony and a mass of fish which formerly sold for only $5 to-day was sold in the markets of New York and Boston for $15. It was a precarious livelihood, he explained, because no scientific method had as yet been produced to show the fishermen where and at what seasons the run of fish might be expected.

His audience was impressed by the information that no Government subsidy is forthcoming for this humanitarian work. With a little assistance, the lecturer explained, really efficient medical service could be maintained up and down the coast. Undoubtedly such accommodation was necessary as illustrated in his tales of tuberculosis ravages. His workers found homes where the parents having died of influenza the children had starved to death before faraway neighbors had learned of the tragedy. In Sandwich Bay, where a certain Rev. Henry Gordon had done heroic work in combating the ravages of the disease, influenza had carried off one-fifth of the population.

Liberal Chairman At Henry Meeting

BIRCHCLIFF, Oct. 17.—Ever since the Provincial campaign began it has been apparent that many well-known Liberals were not giving their support to Hartley Dewart, K.C. For the most part these Liberals have been content to stand back and express their disapproval by silence. H. E. Redman, of Scarboro, however, is not one who believes in half measures.

He took the post of chairman at Tues. G. S. Henry's meting here tonight and he had no apologies to offer for it.

"I have always been a Liberal and I still consider myself one," he said, "but I do not see how a father of sons who were soldiers could be a follower of Hartley Dewart."

A similar conviction was expressed by Sgt. Moncur, a veteran, who said that as a returned man he would like to support Capt. Little, the U.G.O. nominee. He could not, however, stand behind a man who was the candidate of the element that had opposed the Military Service Act. He thought Capt. Little owed an explanation to his comrades.

Hon. Mr. Henry, who addressed the meeting, was given a good reception. Addresses were also made by J. G. Cornell and Mrs. James Lougheed.

In Memoriam

Though her loving voice is silent,
And her true heart ceased to beat,
Yes, we miss her well known footsteps
In that fair face, we used to greet.

Fondly remembered by her playmates, Queen Victoria School.

She was a loving sister,
A sister kind and true:
A better friend never lived,
And her equals are but few.

Sadly missed by sister, Johanna.

In loving memory of our darling little daughter, Sarah, who departed this life, October 18, 1918, aged 8 yrs. God has taken home our darling Placed our lord among his flowers.
Taken home the one he gave us
To a Better World than ours.
There's a short on earth was the story,
Still, I will not repine
Since Jesus in His bosom wears,
The flower that once was mine.
Sadly missed by father and mother.

One year has passed dear Sarah
And still we miss thy face,
And thy name we oft recall,
But there is nothing left to answer
Only to look at your picture on the wall.

Dear is the grave where our Sarah is laid,
Sweet is the memory that never will fade;
Flowers may wither and fade and die
Others forget but never will we.
Fondly remembered by Auntie Sarah and Uncle Harry, Novar, Roshire, Scotland.

Wick, Scotland, papers please copy.
Fondly remembered by her cousins and relatives, Wick, Edinburgh, Perth Scotland.

Oh, for the touch of a vanished hand,
And the sound of a voice which is still.

Not now but in the coming years
It may be in the Better Land;
We'll read the meaning of our tears,
And then, yes then, we'll understand.
Fondly remembered by the Salvation Army Sunday School.

In loving memory of our dear sister, Mrs. Amos Slack, (nee Miss Florence Woodstock) who died of influenza, at Brockville, Oct. 19th, 1918, age 25 years.

One year has passed since that sad day,
God called the one we loved away,
Forget her, no, we never will,
As years roll on we love her still.

Toronto Jewish Rabbis Reply To Hartley Dewart

PERMISSION TO USE WINE DURING FESTIVALS ALWAYS GIVEN—ASSUME ALL RESPONSIBILITY—DEPLORE MALICIOUS CONSTRUCTION OF LICENSE BOARD'S ACTION.

TORONTO, Oct. 18.—Hartley Dewart's attempt to convict the Government of a deliberate plan to bribe the Jewish electors of South-West Toronto by promiscuous issuing of orders for "rishnicks" was stripped of its camouflage of righteous indignation yesterday. The full and final answer to the rishnick campaign was given by four leading rabbis of Toronto, who, in a signed statement to Sir William Hearst, accepted full responsibility for the application to the License Board for the wine. How little ground there was for Mr. Dewart's claim that the permission was given because an election campaign was on is indicated by the statement of the Jewish Church heads that similar applications for permission to use wine at Jewish festivals had been made to the Board from time to time and had always been granted.

The statement was prepared two days ago, and was given to the Prime Minister on his return from his Ontario tour yesterday. It reads as follows:

The Statement

We herewith solemnly declare:

1—We have repeatedly asked the License Board through Rabbi Jacobs for permission to use wine for religious purposes, during festivals.

2—This permission was always granted, the only stipulation being that each family should only receive sufficient for religious purposes.

3—The suggestion that privilege was granted us for the Feast of the Tabernacles with a view of securing votes or for any other political purpose is untrue.

4—We took what we believed were proper precautions to carry out the instructions given us by the License Board, and if any individual succeeded in obtaining more than he was entitled to, it was through his own deception and trickery, for which we are not responsible.

5—We sincerely regret that a malicious construction has been placed on the action of the License Board, as we assume all responsibility and acted throughout in perfect good faith.

6—We know as a fact that in the United States since prohibition came into effect Commissioner Roper, of the United States Internal Revenue Department, has issued regulations for similar sacramental purposes under the War Time Prohibition Law of the United States.

7—According to our Jewish ritual the Kiddush is looked upon as obligatory in the home, and therefore an act of Divine worship.

Open Letter To Candidate O'Flynn From English Wife of Soldier

58 Hillcrest Ave.,
Belleville, Oct. 17th, 1919.

Mr. F. D. O'Flynn.—

Having read your speech in last night's Intelligencer putting forth a proposition to keep all English women out of Canada for one year, I wish to comment on it. You have no right at all to make such a proposition, and I think the meeting for giving it the scorching reception it deserved. It is both an insult and a slur to all English women, and you being a soldier, should be the last to make such a proposition. There were thousands of hospitals in England, all with English nurses. Where would the wounded Canadians have been in England if they had barred all Canadian soldiers from English hospitals? You ought to thank the English women for the kindness they extended to the Canadians and not try and bar them from the country as though they were unclean enemies. Had you brought back an English wife you would not have made such a proposition. I am an English woman and proud of it, and I consider it my duty to uphold my rights as an English woman.

In conclusion I consider you very insulting and certainly not a gentleman, and you owe an apology to all English women.

AN ENGLISH WIFE.

Clean, Strong, Progressive And Patriotic Government

PROMISED FOR ONTARIO BY SIR WILLIAM HEARST IN ADDRESS TO ELECTORS — WOMEN VOTERS URGED BY PREMIER TO TAKE FULL ADVANTAGE OF THEIR FRANCHISE.

TORONTO, Oct. 17.—A statement issued by Sir William Hearst today earnestly commends to the electors of Ontario the duty of going to the polls on Monday and choosing by their votes the government to administer the affairs of this province during the next four years.

"An unusual number of candidates have presented themselves, but the electors who wish the government to be sustained will have no difficulty in making their choice. They have only to remember that every vote cast against a recognized supporter of the government is a vote against the government and its policies. I would like to emphasize the fact that a government can be sustained only by the election of men who have confidence in it, and that to be strong and efficient a government must be assured a substantial majority in the legislature. I ask the electors to bear this in mind when they mark their ballots. This will be the first opportunity for the women of Ontario to vote in a general election for members of the Legislative Assembly and I urge them to take full advantage of it.

"MY PLEDGE TO THE ELECTORS IS THAT WE WILL, IF SUSTAINED, GIVE CLEAN, STRONG, PROGRESSIVE AND PATRIOTIC GOVERNMENT TO ONTARIO IN THE INTEREST OF THE WHOLE PEOPLE."

CHAPTER VII

As the wheels began to revolve, he looked at the girl with thanksgiving Perhaps the top thought in the tangle of his consciousness was that he was relieved. The worry and publicity of the day were over. They were married. For good or for ill—for always—whether things went well or went bad—by with him, she was his wife now! He realized the fact much more clearly here while the train rushed forward, than he had done when making his responses at the altar; indeed, at the altar he had realized little but the awkwardness of his attitude and that Cynthia was very nervous. And he was glad; but knowing that he was glad, he wondered vaguely why he did not feel more exhilaration.

They were alone in the compartment and he took her hand and spoke to her She answered by an obvious effort, and both sat gazing from the window over the flying fields. She thought of her home, and that 'everything was very strange' and that she would liked to cry 'properly,' without having Humphrey's eyes upon her. He speculated whether she would like to cry while he affected to be unaware of it behind a paper, or if she would imagine he wanted to read and consider him unfeeling. He thought that a wedding day was a very exhausting experience for a girl and that her evident desire to avoid conversation was fortunate, to save his soul, he could not think of anything to say that was not stupid. He thought, also though his palate, did not crave tobacco, that a cigar would have assisted him tremendously and that it was really extraordinary, to reflect that 'Cynthia Walford' and he were man and wife.

Next, he questioned inwardly what she was thinking and attempted in a mental metamorphosis, to put himself in her place. It made him feel horribly sorry for her. He pitied her hotly, though he could not say so; and by a sudden impulse he squeezed her gloved fingers again, with remorseful compassion. At the moment that he was moved to the demonstration, however, she was really wishing that the dressmaker had cut the corsage of her blue theatre frock square instead of in a "V." The engine screamed. Both spoke perfunctorily. He congratulated himself on his character, boasting a feminine side, which had made such insight into her mind possible. Some men would have failed to comprehend. She felt that the tears with which she was fighting had made her nose red and longed for an opportunity to use her powder-puff. The train sped on.

As he sat by her side betore the sunsprapt sea, he looked, not at the girl, but within him. He thought of the habit that had formed in his head and perhaps his paramount feeling was impatience, and the desire to find the first chapter already shaping into words. They were married. The unconscious pretences of the betrothal period were over in both. To him as well as to her, the magic, the subtle enchantment of the past. She was still Cynthia—more than ever Cynthia, he understood; but there had been a fascination when 'Cynthia' was a goddess to him, which an acquaintance with strings and buttons had destroyed. The Corypsis stood in a squat little bottle with a silver lid among brushes and hairpins on a toilet-table and his senses swam no more when he detected its faintness on her gown.

Companionship, and not worship, was required now and neither found the other as companionable as expected This the girl in her heart excused less readily than the man. Primarily, indeed the latter refused to acknowledge it. It was preposterous to suppose, if they did not possess much in common that he would not have perceived the disparity during the engagement. Then he reminded himself that his life might have rendered him a shade intolerant; he must remember that the subject of literary work, all engrossing to his own mind, made on hers unaccustomed demands. To try to phrase a sensation, his attempt to seize a fleeting impression so delicately that it would survive the process, and not expire at the pen's point, were instinctive habits with himself; to her they appeared motiveless sand weary waste.

He had endeavored in the novels they read together during the honeymoon, to cultivate her appreciation of what was fine. He had told him some of her favorite authoresses, and he had shuddered. She had obtained from him for herself one day and offered it to him. He thanked her, but said he was sure by the title that he should not care for it. She answered that it was very silly and millinery—she had acquired the word—to judge a book to what it was called. She was surprised by his view that she had done such a thing he would have ridiculed. And, apart from that, she did not see that 'Winsome Winnie' was a bad title. What was the matter with it?

Liberals Ashamed of Leader Dewart

Electors Not Deceived by Campaign of Slander and Vilification.

TORONTO, October 17.—Messrs. O'Neill and Carey, the Liberal candidates in South-East Toronto, are evidently ashamed of their leader, for they make no mention of him in their addresses, said Lieut. James Wallace, speaking at a Conservative meeting in Oddfellows' Hall, Broadview Avenue. One cannot wonder at their reluctance to say anything about such a leader, considering that he has no policy, and no legitimate criticism to offer of the actions of the Hearst Administration, he continued. Slander, vilification and vituperation appears to be his only stock-in-trade, but the electors are not likely to be deceived by that form or campaigning. Lieut. Wallace, then proceeded to review the record of the Hearst Government, and contended it had done more for the betterment of the conditions of all classes of the community during the past five years than the Liberals had done in two decades, Hartley Dewart was no patriot during the Great War, and could not be trusted to look after the interests of the people in the critical period of reconstruction. His record during the critical days of the struggle in France and Flanders, when he was stumping the country, denouncing the Military Service Act, was in marked contrast to the actions of patriotic Liberals of the type of Mr. Wm. Proudfoot, who put country above political and partisan considerations. Lieut. Wallace said, if elected, he would heartily support the policy of the Conservative party as outlined in the manifesto of the Premier. He appealed to the electors to see that the Government candidates in the South-East were returned by overwhelming majorities on Oct. 20.

DAYLIGHT SAVING ENDING

MONTREAL, Oct. 16.—Daylight saving time which has been in effect on all railways during the summer will change at 2 a.m. Sunday, October 26.

A Blighting Leadership

This is a hard luck campaign for the Opposition. It, handicapped by a leader who is without a policy, without constructive ability, without the backing of the chief Liberal newspapers, without Liberal Unionist sanction, without the support of either of his two living predecessors in the leadership, without candidates in thirty-seven of the ridings, and with only such candidates as he could scare up in other ridings. The two chief Liberal newspapers in Toronto have bidden Liberal prohibitionists to vote for Hearst Government candidates. Mr. Dewart's two predecessors in the leadership are opposed to him. Mr. Rowell has said that Mr. Dewart is regarded as the rising hope of the liquor interests, and Mr. Proudfoot is running as an independent candidate. It cannot be wondered at that Liberals were not forthcoming to carry the Dewart-colors in one-third of the ridings and that the Liberals who are standing in the other constituencies are in so few cases men of weight.

In this election a thoroughly united Liberal party, with its best men in the field, led by an able and popular chief, would have had no chance to win, for the splendid work done by the Hearst Government makes its position in the public favor impregnable. When the election is over we hope that Mr. Dewart will not carry his bad sportsmanship to the point of laying the blame for his defeat upon the weakness of his candidates. If his candidates are not the men of influence he desired, it is because he himself did not stand well enough with the leading Liberals in the various ridings to induce them to accept nomination under him.

"TRUE HEART SUSIE"

Into the rural village for the settling and into a woman's soul for the theme D. W. Griffith famed creator of "Hearts of the World" and "Birth of a Nation," has gone for the material of his new picture, "True Heart Susie" which will be shown at Griffin's this Monday and Tuesday. He has chosen three characters, typical and definite in the domestic life of America, familiar to the residents in every small place and most large cities. One is that of a lovable, loyal girl, who never has a chance to marry but one man, and when that man passed her by, ages her soul with tears, and wearies her days with willing. Another is a young man who goes to college, returns with comical conceit, the premier of swains as serious to himself as the measles. And the third is a girl who considers marriage never a union of hearts but a necessary patronage, a wife of subsidy rather than of love. With these persons, Mr. Griffith has arranged a story of wonderful charm, piquant in the delightful subtleties of character delineation, a warm wholesome story of love won and denied. He devotes his deep perception of the infinite varieties of each heart, to these three young persons, each whetted by nature to realize the fulness of life's experiences, yet each held from doing just what he or she should. Lillian Gish appears as the girl who waits, a repressed role which absorbs the full power of her acting. Robert Herron as the boy who becomes a mill liner, will remind you of some one you perhaps know, and you give it a chuckle never forgotten. Clarine Seymour is introduced as a merry young milliner from Chicago. A funny 2-act Mack Sennet comedy, British News and three other selected plays will also be presented on the same program.

RAY WINS WITH CARDS AND FISTS

Even though he is only a country hotel clerk in his latest picture, "Bill Henry," which is the attraction at Griffin's to-night, Charles Ray is a pretty smart young fellow. Not only does he trim the city drummers at poker, when they took him for an easy mark, but he has heard of the oil boom that is sweeping the country. That's why he held so tightly on to the land which the smart real estate agent sold him as worthless and fights a terrific battle to prevent it from being taken away from the girl he loves. You'll agree that there is just as much excitement after seeing this picture in the rural district, as there is on Broadway. A Lyons-Moran comedy, Gaumont News, a Christie comedy, and Outing Chester, a beautiful travelogue are also being exhibited on the same program. Three vaudeville specialties are also being exhibited on the same program consisting of Peter Smith in an entertaining songologue, Zellnar and Holloway in impersonation of present great commanders and statesmen and Dick Hamlin introducing some snappy patter and clever hard shoe dancing.

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG AT PALACE

"The Reason Why," one of Elinor Glyn's most successful works, is the new Select picture in which talented and beautiful Clara Kimball Young is being featured, which is on exhibition at the Palace to-night. Yvonna Vischnoff (Miss Young) is widowed by the sudden death of her husband, the perfect of police, at the hands of an infuriated mob. She escapes with her seven-year-old son Mimo, in whom she is utterly wrapped up. That night the fleeing Yvonna comes upon a dead woman who is her exact prototype; on the dead body she finds a letter addressed to Zara, from her uncle, Francis Markvale, a London financier, asking her to come and live with him although he has never seen her, which she does. The events that follow are of engrossing interest. Three other plays are also being shown on the same program.

THE DUMBELLS IN "BING, BING BANG," COMING TO GRIFFIN'S

Direct from France, where they played over five hundred performances immediately behind the lines, for our Canadian boys; the crack bunch of entertainers, known to the entire C.E.F. and B.E.F. as "The Dumbells," are now on a limited tour of the larger cities of Canada, and will appear at Griffin's Opera House, next Wednesday night for one night only.

This brilliant organization of fighting funsters is still under the personal supervision of Capt. M. W. Plunkett, to whom great credit is due for making them into the favourite of all soldier audiences. For this home coming series of performances they are offering the best of their original overseas musical comedy revues, "Bic Bing, Bang." It will be played here exactly as it was presented to the soldiers in France, the only difference probably being in the manner of staging and the comfort with which the audiences can sit and view the performance. There is really a lot of difference between a real stage and comfortable opera chairs and a make-shift stage built out of packing cases and lighted by candles. However, special care has been taken to maintain the atmosphere of the trenches, and while there will be no air raids nor bursting German shells to upset the performance, the audience are promised some real thrills in the way of scenery and costumes, song, and dances and some of all the "girls," for 'Marjorie' and 'Marie' are still with the original cast, as well as the famous "beauty brigade"—each member of which has had at least nineteen months actual experience with a line regiment before dropping back a few miles to entertain his comrades. It is the greatest all-man "girl show" in the world. They have been gowned and corseted by Lucille and other famous modistes of London and Paris.

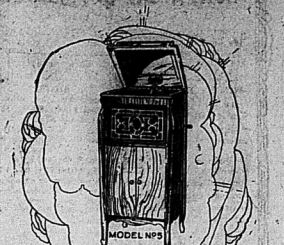
"It Has Sung Its Way Into the Heart of the Nation"

THREE weeks ago, when we announced the Curtiss Aeronola, we felt that we had produced a perfect instrument—"The Last Word in Talking Machines."

But—it was for the public to say. They—you—had to be pleased; and you know that if you had been in our position you would have felt the tension—as we did. Judge of our pleasure and pride then at the reception which buyers have given us.

Music dealers who put in a few models reported sales within a few hours. Some were so enthusiastic they wired for more machines the same night. The Curtiss Aeronola is a success.

Curtiss Aeronola



It is a success because, first of all, it is a magnificent production from a musical point of view. Second, it is a handsome piece of cabinet making, made with all the skill and precision with which our craftsmen built Aeroplanes for the Allied Governments.

It will play every record and play them a little better than you have ever heard them played before.

If you really want to be charmed by a talking machine go and see and hear the Curtiss Aeronola. Dealers will gladly demonstrate it to you.

Explanation For Women Voters

Some women are confused about their voting privileges for election day, October 20th. A few facts stated may make it clearer in their minds.

Women now have votes on exactly the same basis as men, and it is not only their right, but their duty to cast those votes on election day.

Women now have votes on exactly the same basis as men, riding, and they have another entirely separate vote on the referendum. Some think they have a vote on the latter, but not on the former. This is, of course, a mistake. You have a vote on each.

Each woman will have two ballots to cast. These are two separate slips of paper, and one has no effect on the other.

On the election ballot, will be the names of the candidates of that riding, arranged in alphabetical order. There will be nothing on the ballot to indicate which is the Conservative candidate. Thus it is absolutely essential to know his name before going to the polling booth.

To the right of the name of the Conservative candidate place an "X." That is the only mark to be made on this ballot paper. If you put anything but the one "X" it will destroy your vote.

The other ballot paper is for the vote on the referendum. On this the voter will find the four questions dealing with prohibition. To the right of the questions are two narrow columns, one headed "Yes" and the other "No." Each of the four questions has to be answered separately. If the answer is yes to a question, put an "X" in the "Yes" column to the right of the question. If the answer is no, put a cross—"X"—in the "No" column after that particular question. All four questions on the referendum ballot must be answered with an "X" in either one or other column opposite the question, or the ballot will be spoiled. It is not enough to answer only one or two of the questions.

This referendum ballot has nothing to do with the Provincial elections, either one side or the other.

You must get service, freedom from trouble, beauty of design and finish, comfort, power, speed—balanced against the price.

Tells How to Regain Perfect Health and Keep It by Bathing Internally

Are you aware that nearly one million bright, intelligent people throughout Canada and the United States alone bathe internally instead of loading their systems with drugs? Why? Because it keeps them in better health in every way.

Internal bathing is the only sure means of keeping the intestines clean and free from accumulated waste matter, which is sure to slowly poison the system and become food for the millions of bacteria which infest the system, thereby causing rheumatism, impure blood, indigestion, headaches, and hundreds of other ailments which are directly the result of constipation.

If you want to be healthy all the time, we would strongly advise you to get a J. B. L. Cascade, which is the only perfected appliance ever devised for effectively cleansing the colon and lower intestines. It is the invention of Dr. Chas. A. Tyrell of New York, who is a specialist on Internal Bathing. The J.B.L. Cascade shown and explained at J. S. REVENGE IS HOLY.

How German Churches View the Peace Treaty.

The Glasgow Herald prints from a special correspondent some interesting information regarding the views of the German churches on the peace treaty.

What, asks the writer, is the guidance offered by the leaders of the churches to the people in the affairs of the nation? We are in no doubt as to its character. In the Kreuz Zeitung recently Dr. Conrad, one of the ex-kaiser's chaplains, wrote a homily on the attitude which religious men should adopt toward the peace which is being "dictated in Versailles." He wrote: Possess your souls and do not despair. God in His good time will turn our sorrows into joy. Is there a German man with the fear of God in his heart who does not realize that this humiliation is but for a time and that before long the drama of the new fashioning of the earth will begin again? And that time comes Germany will rise supreme from the fire of her trials. It was in 1870-71 that began it; that was the prelude; we are now at the close of the second act. The coming third act will give us our final place, and God will be with us. All I can counsel at this: Be patient. Our hour is coming. Courageously wait for it, and this will give us the breathing time we require, and also time for reflection."

In the Kirchen-Anzeiger for Berlin a sermon by Studi-Pfarrer Brockhaus, headed "What Is Now Our Duty?" lays stress upon "the mighty and incredible terms" of the treaty, goes on: "There is a promise which is holy and enables all of those who nourish it in their hearts, not to be cast down under the awful humiliation. But we must wait God's time. We must wait for Him to dictate our course. He who led the German people from weakness to strength. He who once blessed our efforts, our very mistakes, in punishing us now for our sins; but He has great work for us yet, and He will see that we yet stand on the necks of our adversaries." All through these sermons dealing with the peace and the present situation there is the German clergy continuously exhort their flocks to be patient, to be steadfast during the days of tribulation. In a parliamentary sort of way they acknowledge that tribulation has come upon the people because of their sins and shortcomings, but the sins and shortcomings have nothing to do with guilt of causing the war or with the inhuman crimes committed by Germany in the four years of its duration.

"My Soldier Girl" Made a Hit

Pleasing Musical Comedy at Griffin's Theatre—Capacity Audience.

If "My Soldier Girl," the musical comedy which delighted an audience which filled Griffin's Theatre to the doors last evening, comedy follows music, and beauty, comedy with such sterling suddenness that there is scarcely time for the audience to catch its breath, but, as in nature, there is no discord. The various features, all of which sparkle with wit, wisdom or women, are splendidly staged, and on the whole the show, presented as it is by a cast which includes some well known talent, should please the most exacting theatrical critic.

Augustine as Dixie Harris, the irresistible protege of a rich guardian, Miss Dorothy Garrigue made a distinctly fine showing. Supported by an able cast of pretty chorus girls, her singing and appearance on the illuminated runway was delightful and she only surpassed in the whole show by her artistic dancing with Leslie Jones playing in the role of Ted Carter, having returned from the front. Miss Garrigue has to her credit a charming smile and a graceful appearance which wins the sympathy of the audience more quickly than would more pretentious qualities.

The all refrain of "Annie Laurie," gives opportunity for the range and strength of Miss Maud Baxter's voice. She later appears to exceptional advantage with Allan Lester in the duet, "Just For You." Executed under an artistic arrangement of subdued lights, the latter is one of the most effective selections on the extensive musical program.

Assayer, the colonel's black valet, brightens the most serious moments with a fund of original humor that is irresistible. His antipathy towards Ricketts, a half-witted dandy, played by Billy Murphy, provides occasions for fun which last night's audience appreciated to the full. In the role of Jasper Billy Moore assuredly scores as a purveyor of clean, wholesome, laugh-provoking humor.

The stage settings of the entire performance add considerably in the general effect, and in the second act the street scene, where the skyscrapers stand out with the noise in every window, forms an admirable background. While there is no attempt at brilliance in the costumes there is generally a pleasing effect and, coupled with a cast which has few weaknesses.

Belleville's New Industry

—THE ONTARIO OAKOAL CO., LIMITED, have secured a franchise from the City of Belleville in return for an agreement to erect and equip a plant to convert Belleville's garbage and waste material into a highly efficient fuel, made under sanitary and scientific principles that insure the City being a cleaner and more healthful city, eliminating the dangers of infection and contagious diseases and creating employment for a number of citizens.

The Company's Managing Director will address a public meeting, to be held in the City Hall Auditorium, on THURSDAY EVENING NEXT. THE 23rd, INST., AT 8 P.M., to present to the citizens of Belleville a very interesting proposition.

The Company is not waiting to sell stock to the citizens, as it has the necessary capital to build and equip—we are waiting for the City to procure the site of land best suited to our needs. Meantime, local interest has been aroused, since an OAKOAL plant will bring to Belleville an additional $250,000 per annum institution, and it has been suggested that the proposition suggested to the management be presented to the citizens, who may share in the benefits that a few men would prefer to receive.

The story of Conservation, Sanitation, Economics and Local Fuel Supply which you will hear will repay you well for your presence.

EVERYBODY INVITED—THURSDAY EVENING, 8 P.M.

MAYOR W. A. WOODLEY, Chairman.

Called By Death

Mrs. Perry Palmer, aged 65 years, died this morning. Deceased resided in the 5th Concession of Sidney Township, and was a lady much respected by all who knew her. She was a member of the Anglican Church. No family survive.

FOUND GUILTY OF NEGLECT

THREE YEARS' PUNISHMENT FOR MAN WHO ALLOWED A SERIOUS SITUATION TO DEVELOP.

Failure to take proper precautions has been responsible for many deaths and is the cause of much suffering and hardship to-day.

Take the case of Wm. Dunn, 313 Gerrard St. East, Toronto, Ont. Mr. Dunn was a chronic rheumatic sufferer for ten years. Three years of that ten he spent in bed suffering indescribable torture. Picture the joy of this man on finding that Templeton's Rheumatic Capsules were restoring him to normal health again. Here are a few extracts from his letter to us: "During the past ten years I have been laid up with Rheumatism. One attack confined me to my bed for a year, and a second attack left me helpless for over two years. After I had tried almost everything, a friend got me a box of T.R.C.'s, and a few doses convinced me that I had at last found the proper remedy for my trouble. T.R.C.'s improved my condition rapidly, and I feel that had it not been for T.R.C.'s, I should have been laid up for years."

T.R.C.'s are certainly wonder workers. Try them.

Ask your druggist or write us for our new booklet telling and costs you nothing (Templeton, 142 King St. West, Toronto). Mail 50c. and we will send you a box.

WOMEN AND THE BALLOT

Paragraphs of Interest for Women Voter

OPINION OF WOMEN

Miss Boulton, (Tyconte)—Judge of the two parties from their record in the past. Look at it from the financial point of view. The Ontario Government spent in the prosecution of the war and war project, ten million dollars. If the Hearst Government had come to, you see nothing but its war record upon its ground alone it would have been worthy of your support. Yet while holding high the banner of Ontario, its progressive programme in social service, in agriculture, in education, in wise labor laws, did not cease. Surely it is our duty to support the Government of Sir William Hearst which has shown by its past record, that it is worthy of our trust."

Mrs. VanKoughnet, (Toronto)—At the beginning of the war, we women pledged ourselves for patriotic work, as long as the need should last. Isn't it following the pledge when we return to power the Government that never deserted our men, that brought in prohibition, and that put other magnificent measures on the statute books of this province. Their promises are weak ones. The Hearst Government gave us the franchise. Whether we wanted it or not, surely it is our duty now that we have it, to use it for the cleanest best government Ontario has ever had."

Election day is on Monday, October 20th.

For the majority of the women of Ontario this will be their first appearance at the polls as voters.

Do not let anything prevent you from casting your vote on both the provincial elections and on the referendum.

If you are a mother and a housekeeper, remember, that though duties at home seem pressing, the half hour devoted to voting for the Hearst candidate in your Riding, is of far more importance to you and your children than that half hour would be if spent in washing, ironing, dusting, cooking or any other household work. In fact the adventure of voting, will add spice to your whole day's work.

Do your voting early and it will take less time as the polling booth is less likely to be crowded.

HOW TO VOTE

If this is your first time to vote, you may be interested to know the procedure.

Polling booths are open on Monday, October 20th, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., standard time, not railway time.

At the polling booth you will find the Deputy Returning Officer, a poll clerk and two or three agents of the candidates. Some of the agents will be women. The Returning Officer is in charge of the ballots and ballot boxes. Tell him that you want to vote. He will look up your name on the voters' list and if it is there, will give you two slips of paper. These are the two ballot papers, one for the provincial election and one for the referendum.

On the first, you will find the names of the candidates. The ballot does not specify which is Conservative, Liberal, or any other party. Thus, it is absolutely necessary that you should know before going to the polls, who is the Conservative candidate endorsed by Sir William Hearst.

The only mark to be put on this ballot is a plain X in the white space to the right of the name of the candidate for whom you are voting. Make no other mark or it will destroy the effectiveness of your ballot.

If a voter inadvertently spoils a ballot paper so that she cannot use it as she desires, she may return it to the Deputy Returning Officer, who will give her another.

The other ballot is for your vote on the Referendum. On this place a X in the "yes" or the "no" column after each question according to the dictates of your conscience. All four questions on the Referendum must be answered with X, otherwise that ballot will be spoiled.

Having marked your ballots, fold each so that the Returning Officer's initials are visible on the outside, and hand it back to the Returning Officer and see that he drops it into the ballot box.

WERNER HORNE PLACED ON TRIAL

FREDERICTON, N.B., Oct. 18.—Werner Horn, an officer of the German army, charged with blowing up the International Bridge over the St. Croix River on the main line of the C. P. R. between McAdam, N.B., and Vanceboro, Maine, has after four and a half years arrived here to face his trial for the crime which he is alleged to have committed on the morning of February 2, 1915.

Sergeant Cyrus Ramsey, of the Dominion Police Secret Service, brought Horn here from the Hudson county jail at Jersey City, N.J., being accompanied as far as the international border at Vanceboro, Maine, by Deputy Marshal Feehan, of New Jersey.

Horn appeared before E. Allison McKay, Deputy Police Magistrate. The proceedings were of a formal nature and occupied only a few minutes.

The charge was read over to the prisoner and he was remanded to the York County Jail until Friday, Oct. 24, for a preliminary examination.

Helen's Gift

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Helen realized when it was far too late that she had been entirely to blame in her quarrel with Hilliary. She had been small and selfish and altogether unworthy the great love she had deliberately thrown away.

When Hilliary had first signified his intentions of joining up with the British forces before his own country had gone in to fight, Helen had not even taken him seriously. Sitting back surrounded by every luxury and comfort that a human being could want, it was difficult for Helen to appreciate the fact that thousands of men were giving their lives that women such as she might live. It was all so far away and would soon be over. There was no reason on earth why her Hilary should go over and fling his life away for some other country when he was engaged to her and she loved him.

But Hilliary was not the kind of man who could sit back while brother men were bleeding and dying and suffering for civilization and not offer to help them. Neither was he the kind of man to be guided by the whims of any woman, even though he loved her with all his great big heart.

And the Helen whom she had seemed to be was well worth any man's love. She was beautiful from her exquisitely poised head to the artistry of her dainty feet. Her shoulders and neck were famous for the exquisite texture of the skin, and her arms were just the fairest example of the Great Sculptor. Helen in evening dress was the envy of all women and the unbounded admiration of all men. Hilliary often told Helen that he fell in love with her arms before he even looked at her face.

And now that big love affair of the social year had been smashed into the dust. Hilliary had sailed off to join the British flying corps, a free man to the world, but knowing that so long as he lived he would always love Helen—always want her.

All that had been two long years ago. Much happened to the world and a great deal to one human atom that was Helen Travis.

She had been stunned at first by the loss of Hilliary, but had bravely faced the situation and in a way from the very starts blamed herself, although feeling that she had been very much abused.

She had told Hilliary that there were plenty of men to fight before he need go and that life would mean nothing to her when he was so far away. But Hilliary wanted to be among the first and so he had gone with no word behind him. The engagement was broken and Helen had said finally that she never wanted to see him again. The subject hurt—hurt terribly.

When the war came closer and clawed at America's gates, eating deeper and deeper into the heart of the country and taking away the finest of the lads, and the finest of the sons in were working with teeth set, Helen began to see things in another light. In her heart she knew she could not have loved Hilliary had he not gone, even though he had joined before America entered. She knew now that all meg should have gone and that the war would have been over the sooner had less homes would have been robbed of their dearest treasures had not such men made of the fine metal that molded Hilliary.

Helen had quietly prepared herself for help among the wounded. She wished with all her heart she had taken a full course in nursing. She had spent an idle, useless life and now she could only sit by and watch other women don uniforms and sail away to fight beside the brave men.

However, Helen drove her own car in aid of the hospitals and found means to employ her ready hands. Fine and strong she was and capable of enduring long hours that did not bring her the least atom of forgetfulness. There were not many men who compared with Hilliary and Helen found out that in her own heart there remained a love far deeper than she ever dreamed herself capable of.

But Hilliary might have "gone west" with other brave men. She had heard no word from him since the day they parted. How often, how very, very often. Helen blushed with shame at the small part she had played and how she longed to make reparation, only she herself knew.

She hoped if he had not made the great sacrifice that he had forgiven her and that he had not suffered. To think of Hilliary suffering, wracked by pain and tortured by a crushed or mutilated body, made life unbearable.

She tried for every moment at her disposal to find out something about him. It was difficult, since she knew little or nothing about the royal flying corps and had no idea even as to which squadron he was attached.

It was the saddest and perhaps one of the happiest days of her life when Helen, through a newspaper item, discovered that Capt. Hilliary James was in a hospital in Canada and that only a miracle in the way of surgery had saved his life.

He had crashed down in his machine while in combat with a bothe plane. He was badly burned about the face and both skin grafting was necessary.

Helen Travis left no stone unturned, lost no time in making her way direct to Montreal and to the hospital where Hilliary lay with bandages over his dear eyes—eyes that might and might not see again.

She had had only one brief moment of terrible anguish when she had seen the man she loved lying so still, but she rallied and pleaded to be allowed to give as many inches of skin as were needed for Hilliary's recovery.

That which Helen did she did in secret. In her heart she knew that Hilliary would not consent to her sacrifice. If he so much as knew of her presence his protests would no doubt bring on a fatal fever.

When her skin was tested and found to be perfect Helen's joy was unbounded. She wanted to suffer; she wanted to feel just one-hundredth part of the same pain as that which Hilliary was feeling.

Never had Helen loved him so much as when under the excruciating pain of having those inches of skin removed from the wonderfully smooth, white arms. She smiled, knowing that she was perhaps to save Hilliary's life.

"He must never know it," she kept repeating to herself as she had repeated time and again to the surgeons and nurses in charge of the case.

And Helen's will had prided. There was not a moment's hesitation during the process of skin grafting when Hilliary had even suspected that it was a woman who had gloried in her sacrifice and given to him the skin from her lovely arms. She smiled, knowing that the large, ugly scars on his face and neck were healing wonderfully, and there was more than a chance that his eye sight was returning.

As he began week by week to take a more definite interest in life and his recovery Hilliary questioned his nurses and doctors, but could get no satisfaction.

"It was a young lady who wanted to be glad also that she was in the great war," they told her; "she had led a selfish useless life, and she pleaded so desperately to be allowed to do one good turn in her life that we let her make the sacrifice. She called it a great privilege."

And that was all Hilliary could learn even to the day when, weak and thin, like the big Hilliary of prewar days, he traveled from the hospital to pick up the threads of New York life again.

It was with no mild surprise that society watched the return of Helen Travis into evening clothes. At all the great functions given for heroes and to celebrate peace, Helen appeared invariably in gowns that even a prude might term overmodest. Those glorious arms that the feminine world envied and masculine adored were concealed beyond the hopes of men.

Helen's secret was known and was revelling in creations that the breaking of a beach strap might bring disaster upon. Helen graced the ballrooms in her nunlike garb, distinctive in its rarity, and Hilliary, when you entered you" and "When do you get your servein veil?" were some of the "questions flung at her, and Helen obeyed her secret close to her heart and laughed with them. The scars beneath her gowns were far more precious than all the lovely gowns in the world.

Then came the night when the chaos of her life Hilliary came back to a full realization of his love for Helen. An inward something told him that at last was his—that nothing could rob him of a love such as riefers had once been. He had not realized his man's duty at the time he left leaving her. He would seek her and she her again.

Hilliary had brought down five boche planes on the battlefield. He had attacked always single flank, then, after all, the worst would be physical death. But now, if he failed with Helen, it would be to the soul—to the heart—and that is the way Hilliary felt about it.

But when Helen looked up and saw Hilliary standing before her, she only crumpled into his arms and cried—cried so that he "got the wind up." Hilliary knew what her frenzy. He had no words and he was none too steady as he steadied her.

In a gesture quite beyond her control Helen's hand went up and soft as rose petals her fingers caressed the cheeks and neck of the man she loved.

Something in the way her fingers lingered on the faint scars—or perhaps it was the tremendous inner radiance of love—told him. Hilliary knew; knew that Helen had found herself to him by her greater than any he had forged. He knew, too, the agony she must have endured while the skin was being removed from her wonderful arms.

"I couldn't let anyone else be so dear a part of you," is what Helen later tried to find words to express his feelings she spoke through the glow of happiness that suffused them both, "now, could I?"

Chinese Caligraphy.

The Chinese, according to a Canton paper, recognize the extreme complexity of their written language, and about twenty years ago, in the days of the Empress Dowager, a scholar named Tsiang Chad, who held the highest obtainable literary degree, conceived the idea of a simplified form of Chinese writing. He invented a number of simple signs or symbols, which was promptly branded as revolutionary and suppressed. While in the country he was, however, upheld. Lately, however, the idea has been revived and the Canton Government has tried a system of the same kind, but more complicated, without much success. Two missionaries at Tsangchow have fared better in an effort to revive Wang Chau's phonetic script, which is based on the fact that, although the number of characters is vast, there are only three hundred and eighteen "word-sounds" in the Chinese language.—Family Herald.

Letters full of Praise—
A Wonderful Record of Healing

GIN PILLS FOR THE KIDNEYS

Gin Pills, the greatest help in overcoming Kidney Troubles, have relieved so many thousands of people throughout Canada, that the verbal praise, from mouth to mouth, is not enough to satisfy those who have suffered and been made well by Gin Pills. They write continually to us, and here are some extracts from the letters which have reached us recently:—

Sid Castleman, a prospector in the Larder Lake District, wrote thus:—
"I am writing to thank you and to tell you the good your Gin Pills did for me. I had been suffering for some time with my kidneys and urine. I was constantly passing water, which was very smelly, some days as many as thirty times, and each time the pain was something awful, and no rest at night. I began to feel quite worn out. I sent my chum out to get Gin Pills (about 60 miles) for me, and in less than six hours I felt relief. In two days the pain had left me altogether. I took about half a box, and to-day feel as well as ever I did, and my kidneys are acting quite naturally."

Mrs. R. Dean, Whitney, Ind., had this to say: "When I sent for the last box of Gin Pills, I was all crippled up with rheumatism and my face was so badly swollen that I could hardly see out of my eyes. After taking six of the pills, I felt better. After a few days I had no more pain."

"I beg you to publish my letter," writes Isidore Thomas, of Tilley's Road, N.B., "so that people may know what Gin Pills did for me. Every remedy failed, death. I tried Gin Pills and in a short time was well again, and soon had gained 20 pounds."

GIN PILLS FOR THE KIDNEYS

Mrs. R. Walters, Sevona, B.C., says: "I have been troubled for years with weak kidneys. One box of Gin Pills cured me. I recommend them as an absolute and reliable cure."

"I suffered untold misery," writes Louis MacPherson, from Halifax, N.S. "My trouble was inflammation of the bladder. I finally determined to go to the hospital for treatment. Two days before my intended departure, a neighbor called—and happened to have some Gin Pills with him and induced me to try taking them. Six boxes after-wards made me a well man. I recommend Gin Pills to everyone suffering from Kidney trouble."

If you have pains in the back or sides, constant headaches, stiff and swollen joints, rheumatics, scrofula, dizziness, constipation or stone in the bladder, take no chances. Get Gin Pills at once. They may save you from a critical operation.

Lord Charles Beresford

Was an Energetic Fighter For His Naval Proposals

BARON BERESFORD, better known as Lord Charles Beresford, was a doughty fighter in the navy and a doughty fighter for the navy. In command of the Condor he showed himself ready to take risks, and in command of the Channel Squadron, the Channel Fleet and the Mediterranean Squadron he was an untiring worker for naval efficiency. In the House of Commons, as well as later in the House of Lords, he gladly contended on all occasions that presented themselves for what he deemed the welfare of the navy. And with his pen he was as ready as with his tongue to promote that cause. In 1913 he published his "Great Betrayal," which was a plain-spoken work, but less sensational in its contents than in its title, the most explosive matter in it having previously appeared as a letter to the London Times. Its influence was less than might have been expected from a man of his reputation as a naval authority.

Before this book appeared Lord Fisher, the First Sea Lord, had retired. Of his policy Lord Charles Beresford was an unsparing critic. Lord Charles was opposed to the keeping of the navy concentrated in the North Sea, leaving the stations in other parts of the Empire abandoned and open to attack by any power that should suddenly become an enemy. The event has proved that Lord Fisher was right. Had not the greater part of Britain's naval strength been collected in the North Sea and had not that navy been mobilized ready for action when war was declared, the German navy might have done some damage at the outset. Fortunately Prince Louis of Battenberg, who was then First Sea Lord, wisely refrained from dispersing the navy to its several bases after the naval manoeuvres for which the ships had been assembled. Lord Charles Beresford had also his own ideas about the dreadnoughts. His view was that mobility counted for more than fortress-like strength afloat. He maintained that the great essential was the keeping of the sea round open by means of fast cruisers armed with long-range guns.

Another British admiral who had sharply criticized an order of Beresford's in the manoeuvres, so much so indeed as to lead to talk of a breach of friendly relations between the two men, was Sir Percy Scott. Sir Percy was also a doubter as to the value of the dreadnoughts. A few months before the war he wrote a letter to the London Times in which he said in effect that the dreadnoughts were rendered obsolete by the development of the submarine. When the war began, Lord Fisher was recalled to office as First Sea Lord. As the man who had carried out the scheme for concentrating the navy where the danger seemed greatest, and as the strong advocate of great battleships, his selection by Mr. Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, seemed to be natural. Admiral Fisher was largely the author and designer of the policies of the Government then in office.

In office Lord Fisher was not given to polemics, though he himself was the target for unsparing attacks, especially on the part of Lord Charles Beresford in the Commons, where Mr. Churchill's official colleagues winced under the genial-mannered but none the less blistering criticism from the same quarter. But just when Lord Beresford's earthly career closes Lord Fisher begins to fling about him as a critic of the navy, half of which he believes to be now ripe for scrapping. Ships quickly become old in these times of rapid advance in scientific construction and armament. Readers of Lord Fisher's remarks on the subject and of his survey of his own career as a seaman cannot be struck with his leaning to a Billy Sunday way of expressing himself. He seems to have as much delight in iconoclastic criticism as had Lord Beresford himself. Personal prowess is a quality for which not only Lord Beresford himself but his family as a whole is distinguished. But bravery in the British navy is common to all. Lord Charles had the bent for dash and heroic action. He was considerate of the men under him. Though a thorough disciplinarian he was not so much of a martinet as some other famous seamen.

Labor Reaffirms its Demands for a Better Beer

OVER 900 delegates of Organized Labor, representing every section of industrial Canada, reaffirmed at the big convention in Hamilton three weeks ago, their demand for a better, more palatable, non-intoxicating Beer.

President Tom Moore reviewed in a most comprehensive manner the resolution for better Beer adopted at the previous Congress and the representations made to the Dominion and Provincial Governments for the non-intoxicating 2.50 per cent. (alcohol by weight) Beer of the Ballot. He said in part:—"On the 3rd of March, this year, at the request of representatives of a number of affiliated organizations I arranged an interview with the Dominion Cabinet, and attended with them to present the resolution passed at our last Convention, relating to the increase in the alcoholic strength of beer. This resolution had been endorsed by many hundreds of affiliated bodies throughout the Dominion, and these endorsations were presented to the Government."

The following statements by leaders of Organized Labor in Ontario, are at once a categorical refutation of false interviews credited to them and published in certain newspapers, and an indication of the practically unanimous stand of workmen in this Province:—

TOM MOORE,
President, Trades and Labor Congress of Canada.

"Nearly 1500 of the organizations affiliated with the Trades and Labor Congress have passed resolutions in favor of the Ballot for light wines and beer. On this evidence and from my own personal observations I believe that the best aid would be given to true temperance by the granting of the above moderate request."

J. MUNROE,
President Ontario Provincial Council of Machinists, and President Toronto District Labor Council.

"I would not favor return to conditions we had before the Ontario Temperance Act came into effect, but am with the fifteen hundred Labor organizations in Canada who favor the manufacture and sale of light Beer and Wine (The Beer of the Ballot) and believe best aid would be given true temperance by voting for legislation to this effect."

JOHN DOGGETT,
Secretary, Toronto Building Trades League.

"The present Prohibition Law on the statute books of Ontario is, in my opinion, class legislation. A law that is applied to operate against the workers and not against the wealthy is an unfair law and should be repealed by the votes of the people. I believe the workers who desire to have a glass of beer should have the opportunity of obtaining same."

JOHN NOBLE,
International Organizer, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

"In reference to statements appearing in many Toronto papers, I desire to emphatically deny having given such statements, or even having been interviewed in the matter. I voted for a Resolution in the American Federation of Labor Convention, held in Atlantic City in June last, for the right of the workers to have light beer, if they desired it. I contend that the workers should have this right."

HERBERT WRIGHT,
Business Agent, International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, Iron Shipbuilders, and Helpers of America, Local 128.

"In traveling around Ontario since the Ontario Temperance Act came into force, I am firmly convinced that the workers are only asking their rights when asking for a better beer. I personally believe that if the people could obtain a better beer there would be less dope in use in Ontario."

W. F. BUSH,
Organizer, United Garment Workers of America.

"The Labor movement has gone on record repeatedly in favor of a stronger beer and protesting against that right being taken away. Last Spring no less than 1500 Labor organizations, out of a total of 1600 organizations in Canada, voted in favor of a stronger beer. I think that in this question, as in the great majority of questions they have been called upon to decide, that they have been proven to be absolutely in the right. As the prohibitionists have not seen fit to compromise on a stronger beer, the way that the workers can teach THEM a lesson is to defeat them absolutely by voting 'Yes' four times."

JOHN SUTHERLAND,
Ex-President, Bricklayers' International Union No. 2.

"I have always been opposed to prohibition. After seeing three years of the Ontario Temperance Act in operation I am more than ever convinced that it is a direct attempt to take away the comfort and pleasure of the worker more than of the leisured or privileged class—and I will vote four times 'Yes.'"

JOHN T. VICK,
President of Industrial Reserve.

"I am in favor of a better beer for the workers, with proper facilities for handing same. Knowing the workers as I do, there are times when a glass of beer would be beneficial."

JAS. T. GUNN,
Electrical Workers' Union.

"I am opposed to prohibition because I believe that the individual does not derive his rights from the State, but that the State is created to preserve the individual's right.

"Prohibition is affirmed in general by those who have reasons to continue the exploitation of the masses. No thought is given to the matter as to the right or wrong of it, but it is urged—and it is urged in general—because of economic efficiency. In other words, because if enacted it will bring greater profits to the manufacturer, the financier, and the capitalist generally. Prohibitor legislation as to what one eats or drinks is the exemark of a servile State are, therefore in antagonism to working-class interest."

J. A. YOUNG,
Secretary, Provincial Council of Machinists

"I have no desire to see a return to the conditions that obtained previous to September 1916. At the same time I can far from satisfied with the measure of temperance now in effect in this Province.

"I would favor a measure whereby it would be possible for a workmen to obtain a light, refreshing and palatable beer as well as wholesome, pure liquor for medicinal purposes and for use in his own home. I am therefore in favor of substantial amendments to the present Ontario Temperance Act."

JAMES J. RALPH,
Chairman, Ontario Executive, Trades and Labor Congress of Canada.

"I desire to say that as Chairman of the Ontario Executive of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada I am following out the declared policy of the Trades Congress and the A. F. of L. in protesting against prohibitory legislation."

WILLIAM FORDHAM,
Asst. Labor Temple

"I is to certify that I will personally vote four 'Yes's,' regardless of what any paper says, in the coming Referendum."

The workmen of Ontario do not ask for intoxicating or harmful liquors—they only want a more wholesome, nourishing and palatable beverage that has been incontestably proven absolutely non-intoxicating.

Is there any fair or just reason why you should not grant this fair request of Labor? Even though YOU do not care for beer as a beverage, is this a time for selfish insistence that OTHERS SHALL NOT have it?

Look at this matter in a broad light—intolerance will breed widespread discontent and resentment among workingmen. Ontario cannot afford to have her workmen dissatisfied. Support Labor in its just and reasonable request.

Citizens' Liberty League

THE RESOLUTION

"Resolution No. 21.—By John Young, Lodge No. 235, International Association of Machinists, Toronto: Whereas, the Ontario Executive of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada did on the 29th day of January last, wait upon the Premier of the Province of Ontario, the Hon. Sir William Hearst, and the members of his Government, and asked that a proper definition of an intoxicating liquor be made.

"And, whereas, the said Committee were able to show that a beverage containing up to 2.50 per cent. of alcohol by weight was a non-intoxicant, and were therefore justified in asking that beverages containing up to 2.50 per cent. of alcohol be allowed to be sold under the Ontario Temperance Act.

"And, whereas, at a convention of upwards of ten thousand labor men from all parts of the Province of Ontario, held in Toronto on Saturday, March 2nd, for the purpose of considering the question of Provincial and Dominion temperance legislation, a resolution was unanimously passed appointing a committee to go to Ottawa to wait on Sir Robert Borden and the members of his Government, and ask that a proper definition of an intoxicating liquor be made for the whole Dominion, and that 2.50 per cent. of alcohol by weight be fixed as such standard, and that it may be legal to manufacture and sell anywhere in Canada any beverage not exceeding 2.50 per cent. of alcohol by weight.

"And, whereas, at the annual conference of the representatives of the different International Trade Union Organizations held in Ottawa on the 18th of April last, for the purpose of considering legislative matters, the resolution above referred to passed by the labor men at the Convention in Toronto on the 2nd day of March last, was endorsed by the Conference, and a copy of the resolution handed by the Conference to the War Committee of the Government; and whereas, the working men of Canada have been asked by the Government to co-operate with them in increasing production, and the working men have expressed a willingness to do so, even to the extent of working longer hours.

"Now, therefore, be it resolved, that this Convention of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada endorses the action of its Ontario Executive and other resolutions as above referred to, and requests the Dominion and Provincial Governments to enact legislation whereby it may be legal to manufacture and sell anywhere in Canada any beverage not exceeding 2.50 per cent. of alcohol by weight."

OF THE LENGTH OF LIFE, ETC.

Dr. Alexander Graham Bell Sets Forth His Theory.

"Most people die before reaching middle life, and comparatively few live to be old.

"Examine the history of the people you know and you will find that very few of them had parents who died before 70, while a considerable proportion had parents who lived to be 80 or even much older.

"Why?"

Dr. Alexander Graham Bell propounds these questions, and in answering them he set forth this theory:

"The weak and delicate are not capable of bearing large families. It is the strong and vigorous who live to extreme old age and leave many descendants behind them.

"The children of long-lived parents are, on the average stronger, more vigorous and longer-lived than the children of others; and there are many more of them per family.

"Here, then, we have evidence of the existence of a natural process at work among human being tending to improve the vigor and vitality of succeeding generations."

Dr. Bell quotes genealogy records to show that "a very large proportion of each generation has sprung from a very small proportion of the preceding generation, namely, from the people who lived to be old."

"Another inference," he continues, "is that the long-lived people left more descendants behind them in proportion to their numbers than the others, and therefore, on the average, had larger families.

"Of course many widowers may have married again when they were well advanced in years and have had families by each marriage, but this explanation does not apply to women.

"We cannot, for example, suppose that mothers who died at 50 would have had more children had they lived to be 60, or 80, or a hundred; and yet investigation shows that the mothers who lived to extreme old age actually had, on the average, larger families than those who died early in life.

"The few who live to extreme old age are people who have proved themselves to be immune, or at least resistant, to the disease that have carried off the vast majority of their fellows. They have been exposed to all the diseases and accidents of life and have not succumbed. They had proved themselves to be resistant, not to a single disease alone, but to all diseases; and the fact that they transmit to their offspring a tendency to live long shows that the disease-resistant quality is handed down to their descendants.

"Of course, longevity itself is not a thing that is capable of direct inheritance; but the fact that longevity seems to run in families shows that a tendency to long life can be inherited.

"What is really inherited is probably a tough, wiry constitution which enables the fortunate possessor to survive the multitudinous ills that flesh is heir to and live on to the extreme limit of human life. From this point of view, the attainment of old age is extremely significant.

"The people who live to be old represent the disease-resistant strain of their generation; and, on account of their superior fecundity, this disease-resistant quality is distributed very largely through the population."

A Tall Chimney.

A big reinforced concrete chimney in Japan, 550 feet high and tapering from 42 feet 8 inches to 27 feet 5 inches, is the second tallest in the world. Measurements have shown that a wind of twelve miles an hour vibrates the top less than one-twenty-fifth of an inch. A wind of 54 miles increases the vibration about an inch, and with hurricane force it reached 7.7 inches, the oscillation lasting about 2.51 seconds.

Scriptural Names.

Practically all the inhabitants of Little Hancock Island, Lunenburg county, Nova Scotia, are named Levy. In the majority of cases the given or Christian name is taken from the Old Testament. The Levys claim to be direct descendants of the men who followed the fisherman's calling on the shores of Galilee in the time of Christ.

Whale With Hind Legs.

A female hump-back whale, having two hind legs, fifty inches in length, has been caught at the Kyuot Whaling Station in British Columbia. Manager Ruck, of the Consolidated Whaling Company, says that in his twenty years of whaling experience he has never heard of whales having legs on the exterior.

One Thing More.

A pretty girl fluttered over to a neighbor's house Sunday last to borrow some writing paper. She had an important letter to write and mail, and she was out of stationery. About half an hour later she returned for an envelope and a little later she came back for a stamp. "Well, I hope that's all she wants to borrow today," said the disgruntled neighbor woman as she slammed the door after the pretty girl. "She needs a little help to make the stamp adhere," said the neighbor woman's husband "and she'll be over after it in a minute."

Arkansas Thomas Cat (Hot Springs, Ark.).

Insurance Against Tuberculosis.

Dr. P. J. Menard outlines in the Presse Medicale a plan for universal compulsory insurance against tuberculosis, the fund from which would serve for the fight against tuberculosis. His scheme is something like compulsory social insurance against sickness, but the tax or insurance dues imposed would include all classes of society, not merely the wage earners. He protests that the fight against tuberculosis does not be left to charity or private initiative.

Unduly Apprehensive.

"I hope they'll make some exceptions in taxing luxuries," remarked the plain person.

"Are you expecting to be hit?"

"I might be. One of the greatest luxuries I know of is sitting around the house in my shirt sleeves and reading the paper."

One of the Last of Old-time "Reds."

Tom-o-Wah-Teet? who remembered the first coming of the white man to the Klickitat valley, Washington state, has gone to the happy hunting grounds at the age of at least one hundred and ten. He was known and liked by everyone in the region, and would tell vividly of the events of days when white people invaded the territory of the Yakimas and Klickitats. He was present at the council of Walla Walla in 1855, and was a warrior under Kamiakin in the Yakima Indian war that followed. He took part in the block house battle and massacre of white settlers at the Cascades, where Lieut. Philip H. Sheridan was in command of the troops sent from Fort Vancouver to defend the garrison. After the revolt was crushed Tom-o-Wah-Teet was always friendly to the whites, and his many services have been repaid, for since he became nearly blind about five years ago and could no longer support himself and his aged squaw by working on farms, those he once aided have looked after his wants.

Oleomargarine to Stay.

Representatives of agricultural constituencies were again to the front when the Government's proposal to permit manufacture and importation of oleomargarine until August 31, 1920, and its sale until March 1, 1921, was before the Commons. Manufacture, importation, and sale of margarine has been permitted under an order-in-Council passed under the authority of the War Measures Act. Now that the war is over, it has been proposed to continue the permission by statute for a definite period. Members for rural ridings, including Donald Sutherland, of South Oxford; S. Frank Glass, of Middlesex, and A. B. McCoig, of Kent, objected to the continuation of the right to manufacture, import and sell the butter substitute. They took the ground that to allow production and sale of margarine would be a serious blow to the dairy industry. Dr. C. A. Sheard, of South Toronto, on the other hand, urged the Government to further and foster the development of oleomargarine in Canada under proper supervision for the very purpose of keeping down the price of butter. A vote was necessary before the resolution was adopted, and the bill founded upon it was introduced.

COMBINE COLLAR AND GIRDLE

Attractive Feature of a Frock That Meets With Favor Among Many Women.

Navy blue and white organdie combined with bright-toned blue and red embroidery fashions an unusual little frock. Its very attractive feature is a high surplice collar, which is prolonged into a girdle and fluffy sash bow of navy blue organdie. This comes also in combinations of brown or rose with white organdie.

Finer than calico but invested with all the quaintness and charm of that material are the new English prints of the type which one frock represents. Almost any of our grandmothers might have worn just such a dress with its square neck and elbow sleeves, but the modern young woman who wears this frock does not look in the least like anybody's grandmother. Bands of plain white braid emphasize the simplicity of the design and the material, and a band and bow of contrasting ribbon velvet is tied over the print sash. The flower design comes [illegible]

Tom Thumb.

Tom Thumb, whose real name was Charles Sherwood Stratton, died in Middleboro, Mass., July 15, 1883. He was born at Bridgeport, Conn., in January, 1838, and was 1 year and 9 when first engaged by P. T. Barnum, the showman, who dubbed him Gen. Tom Thumb. At that time Stratton was less than two feet high and weighed 16 pounds. In 1863 Lavinia Warren (also a dwarf, was married to Stratton. Mrs. Tom Thumb is still alive; she is known in private life as the Countess Magri. Having been married three years after the death of Stratton to Count Magri, an Italian by birth and also a midget.

Ancient Botany.

The oldest botanical work in the world is sculptured on the walls of a room in the great temple of Karnak at Thebes, in Egypt. It represents foreign plants brought home by an Egyptian sovereign, Thothmes III on his return from a campaign in Arabia. The sculptures show not only the plant or tree, but the leaves, fruit and seed pods separately, after the fashion of modern botanical treatises.

Hard to Distinguish.

"In Shakespeare's day the liver was thought to be the seat of love."

"Maybe the Elizabethans were not so far wrong, after all. The symptoms of love and an acute bilious attack are very similar."

Fewer Accidents Now, and Why.

War conditions, by bringing large numbers of new and unskilled workers into industry, had in general the effect of increasing considerably the number of industrial accidents, both actually and relatively to the number of persons engaged in certain industries. Information recently received by the inspection and investigation service, department of labor, indicates, however, that in general the number of such accidents has now returned to approximately normal figures. In a comparatively short time before the entrance of America into the war, the effect of workmen's compensation laws and safety work has reduced the number of industrial accidents almost 50 per cent. The temporary increase due to the influx of war workers has now [illegible] in the American.

Adam's Apple.

Adam's apple, that projection in the fore-part of the neck which has been so called, from the notion that it was caused by a bit of the forbidden fruit which stuck in Adam's throat.

Scientists have many theories on the subject, and have told a long story of the evolution of the apple—how man came by long descent from ill-formed apineless things that came into life by chemical action. Then came fish, which, as soon as they got backbones, began to develop something like Adam's apples. From the primitive forms of the ancient seas are believed to have come the mammals from which sprang the human race.

It is a long story, but the fact remains that as the human race developed and became more civilized the Adam's apple in men became more prominent. The ancient Greeks depicted their strong heroes and highest types of beauty with prominent "apples," although modern artists and sculptors rather ignore it in their works. As a matter of fact, the wearing of high stocks and collars would seem to point to the fact that man is not altogether proud of displaying his badge of beauty and brains [illegible] his Adam's apple, that projection in the fore-part of the neck which has been so called, from the notion that it was caused by a bit of the forbidden fruit which stuck in Adam's throat.

LIGHT WRAP FOR THE SUMMER

A light wrap for this season is of a fancy wool weave jersey finish, with collar and pockets of tan angora. The little taupe is trimmed with oiled feathers.

HOP, SKIP AND JUMP HOBBLE

Manners Reflected in Style of Clothes —Recall Egyptian and Japanese Way of Dressing.

The styles of our clothes have been responsible for some very interesting ways of walking. In fact, styles of walking are easily to be traced to the sort of skirts we wear. Or is it the other way around? Do we submit to extreme in skirts according as we are willing to give up the privilege of taking comfortable, normal steps?

This is not the first time we have hobbled. But the hobble of 1919 is just a little different from the hobble of 1913. For one thing, writes a fashion correspondent, we are not so docile about it. We cannot accustom ourselves to it, for we have gone unchecked and unbaltered for so many seasons.

So this season's hobble is characterized by something that resembles a hop, skip and jump. We make a valiant effort as if we hoped any minute to be able to step forward unchecked, and finally abandon our efforts to progress entirely. Then we either give up walking entirely or abandon our tight skirt in favor of one that is wider though not so fashionable.

At the resorts, where women have in other seasons promenaded to show their own and to see other women's new apparel, and where only those who were too weary or too weak to walk resorted to the wheel chairs, it has been noticed that there were decidedly fewer promenaders among the women and an unusually large demand for the wheel chairs. The answer is not far to seek. No matter how willing, nay, eager, you may be to walk, if your ankles are shackled, you can't do it. Hence you must either stand or consent to be wheeled.

But there is nothing new at all about the hobble step. In fact, the skirt so tight as to force women to take mincing steps seems to have been invented since the dawn of history. Surely, the Egyptian women must have hobbled as much as the young woman of 1919, and the Japanese girl in her narrow hemmed kimono certainly never knew the freedom that comes with the skirt that is wide and short.

HATS FOR SHORT AND TALL

Headgear Most Becoming to Woman Below Average Height Compared With Others.

Rather large hats are leaders in summer millinery, and sentiment is nearly equally divided between the poke-shaped affair with narrow back and the hat with wide brim of even width all around.

A study of types will usually prove to the woman below the average height that if she wants a broad-brimmed hat the one that fares over the face only and is cut narrower at the back is the most becoming. A hat that has a wide brim all the way around is the best selection for the tall beauty. The small hat may be worn by the woman of practically any height. The broad hat, however, is more trying—to the average face than one with a brim to shade the face and soften any lines.

Dainty Trifles for Girls' Use.

Pretty lingerie clasps are made of crochet and the snap fasteners with which they fasten are covered with tiny crocheted roses. Other clasps are made of linen tape trimmed with a tatted edge. Both are practical because washable. Ribbon clasps are finished with tiny pink rosebuds. Any bits of crepe de chine or ribbon will make a cluster of the popular little buds that girls will delightedly find a place for on her lingerie, her best hat or bag, or her dancing frock.

For the Young Girl.

For the young girl there is a blouse of cross-barred dimity that takes its inspiration from a child's romper. The childish round neck has the little romper collar and cuffs finished with hand drawnwork ruffles.

Fame of the Racehorses, Like That of Mankind, Often Ends in Tragedy

THE news that Wool-Winder, who won the St. Leger a dozen years ago, is to-day pulling a barge on a Bordeaux canal, recalls the fate of many another famous racehorse whose career has ended in tragedy or eclipse, says Answers.

St. Claude, winner of the Grand Steeplechase at Auteuil in 1890, ended his days at the Pasteur stables, where he was used for the production of serum; and George Frederick, after winning the Derby, proved a hopeless failure at the stud, lost his sight, and spent his closing years on a Canadian farm.

Silvio, winner of the "Blue Riband" in 1877, had the misfortune to break a leg in his sixteenth year, and a merciful bullet put him out of his misery; and Hartikoff, for whom Lord Vincent paid £5,000, in the conviction that he would win the Derby, was returning to his training quarters at Malton when a spark from the engine set fire to his box, and he was hurled to death.

Hiero Gower, hero of the 1868 Derby, after changing hands for £6,000, was sold for £4,000 to an American owner, and was started on his voyage across the Atlantic. But he never reached the other side, for he died in mid-ocean—a fate which also overtook Kingcraft, winner of the Derby two years later.

Pitsroy, for a half-share in whom Sir Frederick Johnstone paid £4,000, broke down so badly in a race at Newmarket that he had to be destroyed; and the great Doncaster, after winning the enormous sum of £55,-153 in stakes for the Duke of Portland, injured himself so seriously by dashing into a tree while running loose in his paddock that Mr. H. Mostre ordered his destruction.

Ambush II., who won the Grand National for the Prince of Wales in 1900, dropped dead after jumping exercise in the Curragh; and Victor Wild, after a career of unexampled popularity, was attacked by paralysis, which compelled his owner to put an end to his sufferings.

But while some race horses thus reach the pinnacle of equine fame, only to end in tragedy and disgrace, there are many others who rise from obscurity to brilliant careers, and close their days with an honored and honored old age.

Godolphin, ancestor of the famous Eclipse, "spent his early years between the shafts of a Paris watercart; and Flying Childers, the finest horse of his century in the opinion of many, was rescued to fame from the shafts of a country mail-cart, in which he had been doing useful, if obscure, work for years.

Chandler, hero of the Grand National of 1845, was bought from the stable of a small farmer, who was glad to get rid of the "ugly brute" for a few pounds. Alexander, winner in 1846, was discovered "in a wretched condition in an Irish hovel."

Daedlock, dam of the famous Ingiana, was taken by Capt. Machell from the shafts of a farmer's gig, "in exchange for a cart-colt; and Throstle, who defeated Ladas so sensationally in the Stewards' Cup, was born with a thick film over his eyes; and, after being reduced as a foal by a friend of his owner, Lord Arlington, was ordered to be shot, a sentence which happily was not carried out.

Teddington, who was destined to win the Derby, was picked up as a three months' foal in a village blacksmith's stable; and Queen of the Roses, before coming into the hands of the Duke of Beaufort, was exchanged in her early years—one foot of corn, and again for a rick of hay.

Salamander, who put £30,000 in Mr. Sutch's pocket by winning the Grand National, was hawked about the country-side, and was finally sold, until at last a purchaser was willing to offer £25 as him; and Mrs. Widow, who romped away with the Cambridgeshire, was won for £40,000 in bets for her owner, Mr. Leigh, was so little thought of by her first owner that he made a present of her to his bailiff, who was delighted when he succeeded in exchanging her for a £10-note.

He Obeyed His Wife.

An amusing story is told by a woman who was at Bournemouth on the occasion of the recent visit of the King and Queen, says the Toronto Mail and Empire. It happened that Cadbury was showing them round his splendid villa. Mr. Cadbury is not young, and the day was not a very warm one. "Now, you take care, Mr. Cadbury," said the queen, considerately as usual. "I will not, if you please command Mr. Cadbury to put on his hat!" replied the king at once directed Mr. Cadbury to be covered, adding: "It is a royal command." But the hat was not put on his hat. With true feminine instinct the queen then tackled Mrs. Cadbury. "Your husband will not obey a royal command to put on his hat," she said. "Will you tell him to?" "Put your hat on, George," Mrs. Cadbury, and on the hat went.

A Gentleman's Game.

Two golf fiends—an Englishman and a Scot—were playing a round together. After the first hole the Englishman said: "How many did you take?" "Eight," replied the Scot. "Oh! I only took seven so it's my hole!" exclaimed the Englishman triumphantly. After the second hole the Englishman put the same question again. But the Scot smiled knowingly: "No, no, ma man," said he, "it's na turn tae ask first."

Look to the Future

Begin with the Boys

THE glorious victories of Drake and Nelson were destined to be the foundation of our Empire and the guarantee of the freedom of the seas, which makes possible the vast international trade of Britain and her Dominions.

And yet when Drake and Nelson chose the sea as their life-work, who was there to know what would be the overwhelming consequences of their decision?

Today, if you have any question in your mind as to whether you should support the work of the Boys' Naval Brigades, study the matter with an eye to the future. Get clearly in mind the tremendous importance of Canadian products reaching foreign markets, which can only be assured by the building of a great Canadian Mercantile Fleet, manned with Canadian Seamen!

We may build ships by the thousand, but if we cannot man them ourselves our position is still economically unsound. If we do not train Canadian lads to man our merchant fleet, we shall be left behind in the race for export markets —we shall have missed the greatest opportunity for trade expansion in all history!

What will YOU do to help some Canadian boy who is anxious to learn seamanship, and so be of the greatest service to his country?

Let your contribution to the fund be a worthy answer. Help them by giving!

Aims of the NAVY LEAGUE OF CANADA

To emphasize Canada's opportunities and responsibilities on the sea.

To raise funds for the relief of our merchant seamen, injured in the war, and for dependents of those who were killed.

To maintain sailors' homes in our ports.

To train boys and young men for our merchant ships by the organization of Boys' Naval Brigades.

EDISON'S VOICE IN RECORDS

Inventor of Phonograph, for the First Time, Makes Short Speech Which Will Be Preserved.

Thomas A. Edison, who invented the phonograph 42 years ago, has for the first time consented to have his own voice recorded on a phonograph record. The reproduction, which is on the back of a record containing the national anthems of our allies, was heard recently for the first time in the Edison laboratory at Orange, N. J.

Mr. Edison celebrated his 72nd birthday on February 11. The talk, which is Mr. Edison's first comment about the war since America entered the fight, follows:

"Our boys made good in France. The word 'American' has a new meaning in Europe. Our soldiers have made it mean courage, generosity, self-restraint and modesty. We are proud of the North Americans who risked their lives for the liberty of the world, but we must not forget, and we must not permit demagogues to belittle the part played by our gallant allies. Their casualty lists tell the story.

"However proud we may be of our own achievements, let us remember always that the war could not have been won if the Belgians, British, French and Italians had not fought like bulldogs in the face of overwhelming odds. The great war will live vividly in the minds of Americans for the next 100 years. I hope that when we do reverence to the memory of our brave boys who fell in France we shall not forget their brothers in arms who were the misfortune of our allies.

"I believe that the national airs of France, Great Britain, Italy and Belgium should for all time to come be as familiar to us as our own 'Star-Spangled Banner.'"

BRIDAL FLOWERS HERE AGAIN

That Orange Blossoms Are in the Market Is a Sure Harbinger of World Peace.

One interesting sign of the coming of peace has been the reappearance of real orange blossoms at Covent Garden. During the war they were difficult to obtain, owing to the fact that they come as a rule from France. Nearly all the orange flowers which are used at smart marriages in London and Paris are grown in the sheltered valleys of the Alpe Maritimes behind the Riviera.

Here there are orchards of orange trees scattered on the sunny slopes, and the local peasantry devote most of their time to growing the beautiful flowers. No attempt is made to get the fruit, seeing that the orange trees are solely cultivated for the sake of the glistening blooms.

A large part of the floral crop finds its way to the perfume factories of Grasse, but the choicest sprays are picked for the London and Paris markets. Orange flowers keep fresh for a considerable time, and they stand the journey to England very well, arriving in perfect condition.—London News.

Fire In Airships.

Although Gen. Seely, the Under-Secretary of the Air Ministry, assures us that it is now safer to travel in the air than by sea, the average person regards the danger of fire as one of the greatest drawbacks to travel by airship.

Not only is the hydrogen gas with which airship envelopes are filled extremely inflammable, but it forms a highly explosive substance when mixed with even a large proportion of air.

It is proposed, however, to use a substitute for hydrogen—known as helium — which will make airships fireproof and reduce dangers of explosion to an absolute minimum.

Helium is not a new discovery; Sir Norman Lockyer told us all about it 50 years ago; but hitherto it has been far too costly to use for airships. Until recently it could only be produced at a cost of £300 to £1,000 per cubic foot, and as hundreds of thousands of cubic feet are required for a large airship it will be readily understood that an army of millionaires would have been required to defray the cost of a squadron of helium gas-bags.

Certain discoveries have now been made, however, in connection with the natural gases of Kansas and Texas which have been utilized with such success that it is hoped, within a very short time, to produce helium at a cost of about ten cents a foot.

We may, therefore, anticipate in the near future fireproof airships, which will change the whole aspect of aerial traffic.—Tit-Bits.

The Cost of Clothes.

The high cost of clothing is not confined to Canada. Recently a soldier appeared before an English judge against a firm of dyers who had lost a suit of clothes belonging to the plaintiff. The suit cost about $17.50 in 1915, and had been worn only a few times. When the soldier returned from the war his wife sent his garments to the dyers to be cleaned and the suit was lost. The firm offered to pay the original price, but the judge called in a tailor, who testified that the present value of the suit would be at least $45. Therefore the judge struck a balance and gave judgment for $35 and costs to the soldier.

Fire-Retarding Paints.

From tests made at the federal bureau of standards it appears that, while practically all paint coatings have some fire-retarding action, none of those so far tested afford very great protection. All the samples in question were materially changed by application of flame for a few seconds. Both sodium silicate and whitewash rank comparatively high. These have the advantage of cheapness and can both be used on the same surface. However, according to a recent bulletin of the bureau, no treatment of wood after erection can be expected to serve as an effective fire protection, and the use of such materials should not be made an excuse for omitting any of the usual precautions against fire.

No Worry—No Trouble—No Waste

When pressed for time—when you must wait for your oven—when you cannot get the right temperature—these are the causes of your troubles on bake days when you use the wrong kind of baking powder.

To have enjoyable results of a day's baking, to have no worry or wasted cakes and pastry despite adverse conditions, you must first be careful about the baking powder you select.

Use

EGG-O Baking Powder

It does its work absolutely. Its double action makes it a never failing leavener, notwithstanding having to wait on your oven.

Always follow the directions—one level teaspoonful to one level cup of well sifted flour. By doing so, you use a quarter to a half less EGG-O, and get better results.

A Labor Saving Combination

IT is the last straw that breaks the camel's back." So runs the old proverb. And it is the little extra efforts which tire you out on washday.

Eddy's
Indurated Fibreware
Washtubs and Washboards

form a combination which save you much extra labor. Indurated Fiberware tubs are much easier to lift and to move about. They keep the water hot for a much longer space of time, because they do not conduct heat as metal does. They are easier to keep clean, because they are made in one piece without joint or seam, and the hard, glazed surface is impervious to liquids or odors. And they cost no more. Last longer, too.

Eddy's Twin Beaver Washboard has a double rubbing surface of Indurated Fibreware which loosens the dirt quickly and saves many tiresome motions.

These new Double Wear Cuffs are a convenience men have longed for. Now that they have been invented, men are taking to them enthusiastically.

WHEN BEATTY PUT TO SEA

Like Drake of Old, Commander of British Fleet Left the Tennis Court for Battle.

Scarcely had I arrived at Aberdour when I learned that some unusual report had come in from the sea, Lieutenant Hunter writes in the World's Work. The admiral had arrived before me and continued to talk on his open wire for some moments. The fleet at once dropped from four to two and one-half hours' notice for steam and shortly afterward was making preparation for departure at a moment's notice. When Sir David came out to the tennis court he suggested that I need not answer the recall signal from my ship as expected, but return with him. "I don't believe they intend to shove off without me," he added. We started our game, but over the wire the admiral had thrown the scent into the kennels and already the leaders of that great pack, so apparently listless a short hour before, were bristling and snarling on the new-found trail. With a pleasant smile Admiral Beatty jerked his racket toward the Firth. From the court which overlooks the entrance could be seen the first of the screening groups as they slipped quietly to sea. Division followed division, as destroyers, light cruisers and scouts passed on to their appointed tasks. The grand fleet was in motion. In motion at the direction of its great commander in chief, who, while actually commanding his fleet by wire, was also my partner in a game of tennis. Messages came to him too often for his liking, as far as the game was concerned. Several he dispatched in reply, but soon became too hot, forcing departure for a stronger game.

Some War Economies.

There is probably nothing that seems so useless in the eyes of the average person as an Irish potato which has begun to rot, but the department of agriculture in its war-time experiments has discovered that starch can be made from a decayed potato just as well, if not better, than from a good one, and so the surplus stock of fish farmer or dealer need no longer be thrown away or wasted.

In like fashion chemists seeking methods to avoid world-wide food shortages have found that sugar can not only be made from beets, but from sweet potatoes as well, and the farmer himself can make good syrup from his sweet potatoes by boiling them until they can be mashed in the water to thick, mushy liquid. To this ground malt is added and the result, after properly cooking for about an hour, is a thick syrup, which is strained through a cloth and used for any sort of sweetening.

Modest Hero.

My heroic action was this: We were lying close up to their defenses, and for four days had not been able to climb out; we lay like reptiles. There was not a dry spot; one could not get accustomed to it. And H—, the ensign, had been caught on the wire when we had started to attack. At first he asked for help, called on the men by name; but one could not show one's nose without being shot. Then he only groaned and breathed heavily. That went on for four days, and he still lived. It is a sin to grumble at God, but here one says: "Why be careful of one's soul?" I couldn't endure it and took him off the wire; but I got wounded. Then there was an attack, and our men captured the post.—London Times.

3	Are you in favour of the sale of light beer containing not more than two and fifty-one-hundredths per cent. alcohol weight measure in standard hotels in local municipalities that by a majority vote favour such sale and amendments to The Ontario Temperance Act to permit such sale?		X
4	Are you in favour of the sale of spirituous and malt liquors through Government agencies and amendments to The Ontario Temperance Act to permit such sale?	YES	NO X

Above is an exact reproduction of the Referendum ballot, showing the correct way to Vote in order to sustain the Ontario Temperance Act as it stands.

Everybody should study the four questions and realize exactly what they mean. Do not be misled by the insidious demand for "light" beer.

The beer of the ballot is 118% stronger than the Ontario Temperance Act now allows, and over five times as strong as the limit allowed for beer defined as non-intoxicating in Great Britain and the United States.

Must Answer Each Question

1. Unless you vote on every question your ballot is spoiled.
2. You must mark your answer to each question with an "X" only. Anything else would spoil your ballot.
3. Unless a majority vote "No" on question 1 the bars will be restored and the sale of all kinds of intoxicants permitted.
4. Unless a majority vote "No" on questions 2, 3 and 4 the Ontario Temperance Act will become almost worthless.
5. The only SAFE course is to mark your ballot as shown above.

"No!"—Four Times—"No!"

No repeal; No government beer shops; No beer saloons; No government whiskey shops.—Four X's, each under the word "No."

Tricks of Tropic Plants.

That plants eat and drink is their own way through the soil is a well-known fact. But in South America is a species of orchid which takes a drink whenever it feels thirsty simply by letting down a tube into the water. When not in use, the tube is coiled up on the top of the plant.

In Mexico there is a plant that likes to change its attire three times a day. Just like any fastidious person—it is white in the morning, red at noon, and blue in the evening. At times it gives out a very strong perfume, and at other times it is absolutely odorless. There is another odd Mexican plant, the odor of which causes people to lose their way and makes their sense of direction all but unfit the smell ceases.

Central India owns a tree whose leaves are heavily charged with electricity and merely to touch them gives a person a distinct shock. In Brazil similar electric power is put to lighting purposes. Within the immediate vicinity of such a plant a person can see well enough to read the finest print and another is so luminous that it can be plainly distinguished in the darkest nights for a distance of more than a mile.

But the most wonderfully constituted plant of Brazil is the ball-throwing one. It is a small fungus about the size of a pea which projects a ball to a distance of several inches with a distinctly audible report.

Record Novels.

Nowadays life shorter novel is in vogue as well as the short story. Occasionally a novel runs to 100,000 words, and sometimes a little over, but 80,000 is about the limit as a rule.

Martin Chuzzlewit and Dombey and Son probably run to 400,000 words.

The longest novel in the English language is Richardson's "Clarissa Harlow," published in 1749. It was originally issued in eight volumes. It runs to over 880,000 words!

But even this is far surpassed by Mlle. de Scudery's famous novel of the seventeenth century, "La Grand Cyrus." This ran to ten volumes, and was translated into English and appeared in five folios of 500 pages each. Yet it was read widely.

Then there was La Caprenede, who wrote Cleopatra. This novel, which found hosts of readers, actually ran into twenty-three volumes.

Censor Has Telephone Talks.

At first, all use of telephones was forbidden to the inhabitants of occupied towns (of Germany), but this rule has been relaxed also. In the French zone the natives are allowed telephone calls within their own city; while in Cologne the American police also permit the use of five trunk lines from the occupied territory into Germany proper. Thus a German in Coblenz may talk directly to a German in Berlin.

Except in cases of extreme personal necessity, all such calls are supposed to be confined to the transaction of important business, and of course American army censors "listen in" on every call. This privilege was given to the Germans of Coblenz because it was found that the sudden and complete interruption of connect between the two banks of the Rhine caused a great deal of inconvenience and suffering.—Gregory Mason in Outlook.

Last of Kin of Great Novelist Dies.

William Dickens, the last kin of the great novelist, Charles Dickens, died recently at his home in Hamilton, Ont. Mr. Dickens was born in Braunstone, England, where his father, George Adams Dickens, kept the Admiral Nelson, an old public house. William Dickens came to this country about ten years ago, accompanied by his wife, Emily Seamer, and his youngest daughter, Mr. Dickens was seventy-five years of age, and possessed a most interesting character, resembling in some ways his great cousin. When Charles Dickens was passing through the little town of Braunstone he stopped at his cousin's inn, and, noticing the little bright-eyed boy, patted him on the back and quaintly told him to grow up to be a better man than his father. Mr. Dickens treasured that incident among the fondest memories of his life.

Air Speeds.

Every airplane has a minimum air speed at which it must be thrust through the air if it is to be maintained aloft, and a maximum air speed in excess of which it cannot safely be none-dived, for the various components will not stand the strain beyond a certain given point.

A Mathematical Freak.

Farmer Knows Multiplication Tables Up to a Million.

Have you ever heard of any person who is able to say his multiplication tables up to 1,000,000?

William Strong, a farmer of Washington, Ill., claims the distinction of being the only person in the world who can solve, mentally without pen, pencil or paper any problem given to him in addition, subtraction, multiplication, division, fraction, cube and square root.

Bankers, auditors and public accountants who are familiar with handling figures which run into the millions have for the past five years tried in vain to originate some problem which will stump the Illinois farmer.

Not long ago a half dozen bankers, auditors and expert accountants got together and decided to stump Strong with mathematical problems if such a thing was possible.

These experts carefully compiled and computed the answers to 100 problems, including problems in addition, fractions and cube and square root. When the work was complete Strong was asked to appear.

The experts had prepared for a long session. They had taken most of one day to originate and compute the answers to the problems.

The first question was something like this. Add the following:

216,325
587,892

Scarcely had the expert accountant finished 1/2 of the last number when Strong gave him the answer. Strong's answer tallied with the experts.

The next question was something like this: Subtract $1,435,967,322 from $9,458,217,893. Strong flashed the answer immediately, and again it was correct.

The next question was in multiplication. The experts asked him to multiply 456,993 by 893,893. Without any apparent effort the answer came instantly, and it was correct.

The accountants then shot one at Strong, confidently expecting him to fail, admitting that the problem was a difficult one to figure, even with paper and pencil.

"Strong," the accountant said, "tell us how much 1,245,477,893 5-5 times 939,988,766⅞ is." Strong didn't even hesitate and gave them the answer almost instantly. Again it was correct.

It took less than ten minutes for Strong to solve the hundred problems and every answer given by him was found to be correct. He asked neither pencil nor paper, the calculating all being done mentally.

"How about higher mathematics?" Strong was asked. "Nothing doing in my line above cube root," Strong replied.

Holland's Oyster Industry.

In the industry represented by oyster cultivation, Holland is the most systematic in its operations and employs more elaborate methods than any other country in the world. The numerous sounds that indent the coast of Holland, particularly in the region of the River Scheldt, afford excellent facilities for the propagation of the oyster, and enable the country to conduct the most successful oyster industry in Europe. Public dredging is not permitted, as the result of that system was the threatened exhaustion of the fisheries, and the beds have been carefully surveyed, and specific tracts are leased to individuals and companies who are thus enabled to conduct the propagation of the oyster in a systematic manner that ensures the best results from the territory available. Many growers lease several tracts in different localities, and added to the different purposes, which facilitates the various operations, as the oysters can be shifted from one place to another, according to the season and the stage of development. A few of the oystermen plant shells on the beds, as is done in many places in this country, but the largest and most successful propagators are equipped with their own tanks and ponds, located in convenient shallow bays, in which they carry on the culture.—Family Herald.

Some Desert Reptiles.

Quaint and curious are the ways of some reptiles of the desert, as revealed by the famous naturalist, Mr. C. L. Camp, who has been studying them in the Colorado Desert.

He tells of some reptiles—the burrowing snake sonora, the gridironed lizard, the occulated sand-lizard, and the desert "horned toad" which actually swim into the loose sand by the strong lateral movements of their heads. The gridiron-tailed lizard is very swift and agile, and when chased will race over the sand for fifteen miles an hour.

Most of the desert reptiles of the Colorado Desert are colored like their surroundings and are difficult to detect. Others can change their colors to suit their surroundings, while not a few of the desert lizards are able to pass with their tails when they when they are seized.

There is humor in the ways of desert tortoises. When one meets another—or, unless both are males, when a fight inevitably takes place each nods its head rapidly up and down through its agitation, and sometimes noses are touched as they pass. —Tit-Bits.

Controlling Airships.

For some time experiments have been carried out in various countries with the object of controlling aircraft from the ground, and a flying machine succeeded recently — on a prescribed course with certain specified detours—in covering a distance of 180 kilometers (about 110 miles) and in landing, when required, at a certain aerodrome. A similar machine has been developed in the United States which, according to a recent statement of Secretary of War Baker, can travel without a pilot some 100 miles and land close to a designated post.

Garter Fancies.

Some garters of the present day are quite elaborate. They are made of all sorts of silks, ribbons, laces and embroideries and are ornamented with bows. One pair is made of blue silk fringed at either side and embroidered in lavender and silk

THAT'S the result of the shave you get with an AutoStrop Razor. Its clean, sure stroke, adjustable for light or close shaving, removes the beard quickly and thoroughly, leaving the face soft and smooth.

Such comfort is possible only with an AutoStrop Razor. Why the AutoStrop Razor in particular? Because with its stropping feature there's always a sharp blade ready for use. A few turns on the strop re-aligns the saw-like edge that results from shaving; it keeps the blade free from rust; and gives you for each day's shave a keen-edged blade. You do not need to take the blade out to sharpen it, nor do you have to take the AutoStrop Razor apart to clean it.

Self-stropping, shaving and cleaning are all done without removing the blade from the razor.

Everywhere—razor, strop and 12 blades, complete for $5.00.

Suggest Britain Share Gibraltar

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—The statement made by Henry Morgenthau on his return to the United States suggesting that Great Britain share the control of Gibraltar with the United States was not generally reported here. The Morning Post alone carried something like a full report under the headline, "Gibraltar, a Naive Suggestion," but does not comment on Mr. Morgenthau's words. A brief agency account is printed by the Graphic which, reports somewhat vaguely to the Gibraltar proposal. The paper comments in general terms urging the United States to accept a mandate for Constantinople, Armenia and Anatolia, but passes by the Gibraltar recommendation as a little obscure. Other papers do not mention Mr. Morgenthau's statement.

$24,000 Judgment Is Sustained

Interesting Appeal Case at Osgoode Hall Disposed of—Counter-claim Dismissed.

The Ontario Court of Appeal at Osgode Hall, Toronto, dismissed the Appeal of Quinlan & Robertson Limited, of Montreal, formerly of Belleville, to set aside the judgment of Charles Dawson, of Campbellford, against the Company for $24,000 and interest and costs, and dismissing the counter-claims of Quinlan & Robertson Limited against Mr. Dawson for $85,000.00. This action was brought by Gordon & O'Brien on behalf of Mr. Charles Dawson, against Quinlan & Robertson Limited, in January, 1918, for $24,000 due Mr. Dawson as manager of the Union Bridge Works, of Campbellford, and the action was tried before the Honorable Mr. Justice Latchford, at Cobourg, at the November assizes, 1918, when the trial lasted four days, and judgment was given in favor of Charles Dawson for the amount of his claim and costs and the counterclaim of Quinlan & Robertson Limited for $85,000.00 against Charles Dawson, was dismissed with costs.

Quinlan & Robertson appealed to an Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of Ontario, and the appeal was heard on the 22nd, 22rd, and 24th days of September before the second Appellate Division and Judgment was reserved.

The Appellate Division has now handed out Judgment sustaining Mr. Dawson's claim for $24,000 and interest since the date of trial, his costs of trial, and costs of appeal and dismissing the counterclaim of $85,000 brought by the company against Mr. Dawson.

Prohibit Drugs Unless Licensed

Hon. N. W. Rowell Introduces Federal Resolution to This Effect.

OTTAWA, Oct. 20.—Hon. N. W. Rowell, president of the Privy Council introduced a resolution whose purpose it is to embody in legislation the wartime order-in-Council of May last by which the importation into Canada or the exportation out of Canada of morphine, cocaine or opium is prohibited excepting under license.

Mr. Rowell declared that the order-in-Council had been passed by reason of the increased importation of such drugs. The United States had very stringent regulations against the importation of such narcotics.

The president of the Privy Council declared that while there had been a tremendously increased importation of these drugs into Canada during the past few years, the increase did not represent increased consumption in Dominion. From information received it would appear that a great part of the importation had been for the purpose of smuggling into the United States.

In any case, the order requiring a license to import passed last May has had the effect of very materially curtailing imports. For instance, during the fiscal year ending March 31, 1919, there had been imported 12,233 ounces while for the three months July, August and September only 1,544 ounces had been imported. For the fiscal year 30,057 ounces of morpine had been imported while for the three months only 2,935 ounces had been brought in. Of crude opium 34,252 pounds had been brought in during the year, as against only 1,310 pounds for the three months.

"Is it true," asked Mr. Sinclair, of Guysboro, "that there has been a tremendous increase in the imports of these drugs in Ontario during the past year or so?"

"We have no information to that effect," said Mr. Rowell. "And there is no ground for the belief that there has been any increase due to any law passed in Ontario during the past year or so."

Mr. Rowell said that personally he would favor Government control of such drugs.

Field Marshal Haig Freeman of Borough

Comments on Ludendorff's Memoirs —Struck by Hopelessness That Overcame Foe.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—Field Marshal Haig was made a freeman of Wolverhampton. In acknowledging the honor, he said that he had been reading Ludendorff's memoirs and one of the things that struck him was the mental distress and hopelessness that that had overcome the German command when he realized that the great German army had been broken to pieces. That was af experience which he (Haig) never had to contemplate, even though the men he had commanded had been almost hopelessly outnumbered, their numbers reduced and their strength tried by the strain of a great unequal battle.

Of those who had remained with him, each man had fought a man's battle and had fought the more desperately the more desperate conditions became. The gallant story of the British campaign offered a moral which should be applied to every corner of the Empire at the present day: "Preserve your confidence, not merely in yourselves, but in each other, and organize for such to the last detail."

Alluding to the recent railway strike, Field Marshal Haig said that he was glad that soldiers had not been called upon, foeghat was not their job. They existed to fight external, not internal foes.

Heavy Vote Being Polled All Over The Province

BEAUTIFUL WEATHER MAKES FOR IDEAL VOTING CONDITIONS AND ELECTORS TURN OUT IN LARGE NUMBERS—GENERAL OPINION FAVORS RETURN OF GOVERNMENT WITH POSSIBLE REDUCED MAJORITY.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer —Canadian Press, Limited

TORONTO, Oct. 20.—Reports from all corners of the Province of Ontario as received this morning indicate a bumper crop of votes in the elections today for fifteenth Ontario Legislature and balloting on the referendum for repeal of Ontario Temperance Act and its three kindred questions.

Generally fair and cool weather throughout the Province with the balloting completed and reads in a good shape in the country districts are contributing in some measure to a big vote being brought out today. The principal incentives, however, are the additional interest of the referendum and the general extension of the franchise to women.

The polls opened in Toronto and neighboring ridings at 9 a.m. and at 9 a.m. standard time in all other parts of the Province. This means 7 a.m. in Toronto where daylight saving time is still being used. At that hour there was at a large percentage of polling booths in Toronto quite a lineup of men and women awaiting the D. R. O. and his staff to record their votes. Indeed the women were nearly as prominent as the men in the early hours at the polling booths. They were acting as scrutineers as well as voters and it was no ballot box secret that they were more posted and more interested in the referendum than in the general elections, and as far as many of them were concerned, four noes had it. Independent opinion here and the betting of which there seems to be little, this morning was that the Conservative Government of Sir Wm. Hearst will be returned with a largely decreased majority due mostly to incursions of the United Farmers of Ontario. As to the referendum the opinion is considerably mixed. It is believed that the voting all over the Province will be generally four yes or four noes, and that the split ballot votes have been in most cases won over to one side or the other as the result of the campaign of the last week or two. Both sides of the prohibition express the greatest confidence this morning and the leaders of all parties in the general elections are likewise in high hopes of success. The polls close all over the province at 5 p.m. standard time.

C.P.R. And G.T.R. Found Negligent

TORONTO, Oct. 20.—Strong criticism of the C.P.R. in having a defective diamond at the Don Station, where Fred A. Morris met his death on October 1, and of the G.T.R. for operating a defective freight car, was the rider added to the verdict of the jury at the conclusion of the inquest into the death of Morris at the Morgue. Death was given as due to a broken back.

Several witnesses who were examined at the last hearing swore that the "diamond" and "frog" at the spot where the accident which caused Morris' death occurred were in a soft condition. One witness, the divisional engineer of the company, admitted, however, that the "frog" might have been a trifle worn and that faulty equipment on the car might have contributed to the tragedy.

The coroner in his summing up, pointed out that at a previous hearing it had been admitted by witnesses that the derailed car which led to Morris' death had a sharp flange, also that the car was marked "shop for repairs."

The history of the case is to the effect that on the aforementioned date, Morris, who was employed on the G.T.R. was thrown from the top of a car, then crushed when it jumped the track.

He regretted he could not visit Buffalo at this time.

Large Advertisers Appreciate The Intelligencer

Battle Creek, Mich., October 14, 1919.

Mr. C. J. Bowell, Advertising Manager,
The Intelligencer, Belleville.

Dear Sir,—We are pleased with the way you are treating us. You are giving our advertising good position, and I believe your organization is alive to the advantage of seeing to it that our advertisements, as well as others in your paper, are well printed.

We have always been advertisers. We believe in advertising because we know it pays. We select what we believe to be the best medium and endeavor to arrange our advertising so that the medium has every chance to produce the best results. In our advertising we follow the same principles as in the manufacture of Kellogg's Toasted Corn Flakes, Kellogg's Dominion Corn Flakes, Kellogg's Shredded Krumbles, Kellogg's Krumbled Bran, Kellogg's Brinkets, and all other products of ours. We use the best raw materials under the best conditions, and follow methods which our experience proves to be the best and most satisfactory.

Right now one of the biggest needs of this country is more advertising. Advertising makes more business for manufacturer and retailer. More business means more labor utilized, and that in turn means more money put into circulation. Every time a package of Kellogg's products, in the WAXTITE wrapper, is sold, it means a betterment of general business conditions.

You will be interested to know that although our factory in Toronto has been running continuously at full capacity, we are right now thousands of cases behind our orders.

Our advertising in your paper has helped bring about this healthy business condition. We pay you your full price for space, but just the same I do not feel that you are completely paid unless I write you this expression of our appreciation. I am sure that every advertiser who can possibly use space with you will find you anxious to co-operate with him as you do with us, and thereby increase the earning power of his advertising.

Yours very truly,
KELLOGG TOASTED CORN FLAKE CO.,
JOHN L. KELLOGG,
Secretary.

Finishes Air Race Across Continent

Lieut. Belvin W. Maynard Lands Back at Mineola.

MINEOLA, N.Y., Oct. 20.—Lieut. Belvin Maynard, victor in the army's air race across the continent and return, landed here at 1.50 p.m., Lieut. Maynard made the last stage in the great flight from ocean to ocean and return at a speed of almost two miles a minute. Several minutes before he landed his plane was visible flashing across the cloudless sky in the bright sunshine of perfect day.

The first persons to greet him as he stepped from his machine were his wife and two little girls.

The spectre of death winged its tragic flight with the transcontinental air derby. Ten lives had been the toll to the time Lieut. Maynard crossed the finish line. Seven had died in the contest and three in connection with it. From New York to San Francisco the route of the flight was dotted with disabled planes, which were forced to land and quit the race, or crashed to destruction from the air. Many fliers were injured, and the twenty control stations between terminal points saw heat-aid work from day to day as the derby progressed. Sixty-two contestants started in the big race. Forty-seven took the air from Mineola and fifteen from San Francisco on Wednesday, October 8, for the $200-mile round trip.

LABOR HECKLER OF LUCAS HAD HAT KNOCKED OFF.

St. Catharines, Oct. 20.—J. A. McAninch, president of the Lincoln county Independent Labor party, after heckling Hon. I. B. Lucas at a meeting held in the interests of Fred Parnell, put on his hat during the singing of "God Save the King." An elderly man standing near him demanded that he take his hat off. McAninch refused. It was knocked off. After he went outside the hall he took off his coat and offered to fight the man who had given him the rough instruction in loyalty. When a mutter-ing crowd of patriots gathered around him he would not fight.

Winnipeg Man Found Shot Dead

W. J. Deforge, Late of Intelligence Staff, Believed Murdered.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 20.—W. J. Deforge, who was attached to the military intelligence department during the war, was found at 1.30 o'clock Saturday morning, shot through the heart, and it is believed that he was the victim of murder. He was about 25 years of age and since severing his connection with the militia, had conducted a small confectionery store, in front of which his body was found.

Robbery apparently was not the motive for the crime, as $200 was on his person.

Deforge left his store at 1 a.m. and walked toward home, accompanied by H. Scott, who stopped at his apartment. Before proceeding on his way home, Mr. Scott states that he heard a shot just as he reached his room and hurried to the street, where he found Deforge lying on his face with a bullet wound through his heart.

The neighbors were alarmed by the shot and hurried to the scene, but no one seems to have seen the murderer, who had every chance to escape, numerous lanes and alleys between the apartment blocks affording ample means of concealment. Deforge leaves a widow and young son.

Joseph F. Dederich, internal revenue inspector, who raided Lowry's home, seized morphine and opium valued at $49,000.

BEAUTY SECRETS!

Whenever she gets her good looks, her healthy skin, her pink cheeks, is known to every one, because it is apparent that it is not due to cosmetics, paint and powder. But the true womanly beauty comes from good health, and this good health is a woman's secret.

A body free from pains and aches comes with a tonic known for over fifty years as the best "temporance" tonic and nervine for woman—namely, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It can be obtained in any drug store in liquid or tablet form, or send 10c to Dr. Pierce Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y.

Cleansing of the intestinal tract is important. Take castor oil or select a vegetable pill. Such a one is composed of May-apple, leaves of aloe, root of jalap, and mads into tiny sugar-coated pellets, to be had at every drug store as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

Tobacco Habit Dangerous
says Doctor Conner, formerly of Johns Hopkins Hospital, "thousands of men suffering from tobacco heart would be in their graves to-day if they had used Nerviline freely. Nerviline stops the habit now before it's too late. It's a simple preparation of peppermint, wintergreen and menthol in any form. Just go to any up-to-date druggist and get a bottle of Nerviline—there's no disappointment in store for you—the pernicious habit quickly vanishes. Druggists refund the money if they don't. Be sure to read large and interesting section in each bottle of Nerviline. Nerviline is the same high quality in bottles of the dollar size of nicotine poisoning. Nerviline is a dollar size. It is the meanest habit tasteless; you will be surprised at the result. (9)

ELECTION RETURNS announced at Griffin's and Palace TO-NIGHT

SUMMARY OF G. T. R. ARBITRATION AGREEMENT

Acquisition of the system does not involve any immediate financial outlay.

Government simply acquires at price to be fixed by arbitration first, second and third preference stock to the amount of £37,000,000 (approximately $185,000,000).

This stock will be paid for by the issue of new stock to the amount fixed by the arbitrators. It will be at a rate of four per cent and after 30 years the Government may redeem it at par.

The Government guarantees interest on £12,500,000 of guaranteed bonds. This interest will amount to about $2,000,000 annually. These bonds do not figure in the arbitration. The Government will simply continue to pay their holders a guaranteed interest of four per cent, but the bonds may be redeemed after 30 years.

There is a mortgage of £31,000,000 of debentures, which will be a first charge against the gross earnings of the road.

The amount which the Government may have to pay for the stock to be arbitrated is estimated at between $75,000,000 and $80,000,000.

Pending award the system will be run by a committee of management.

"THE DUMBELLS

was the title given to the most famous aggregation of soldier entertainers in France, bestowed upon them in infancy, because they had their inception with the 3rd Division, and although they soon broke out of all divisional bords and became the favorites of the entire C.E.F. and B.E.F., even going so far as a month's tour of England, the name, which was derived from the field marking of their division, stuck. One outstanding feature which has been a big factor of their success is that they are fighters first, the members of the company having served an average of sixteen months in the trenches. With them acting is, or was, their side line, but they do it so well that their triumphant tour of Canada promises to break all theatrical records.

Idiot, Genius and Murderer

ROBERT F. STROUD, said to be the most remarkable criminal of whom American penology has any record, is about to appeal to the United States Supreme Court for a new trial. He is now in the Leavenworth penitentiary serving a life sentence for murder, and one can hardly read his record without coming to the conclusion that Stroud is extremely lucky to be alive. He has killed two men, and has made efforts to kill others. One would say that a tiger loose on a city street could be hardly a greater menace to society than Stroud. Looking on the other side of this remarkable murderer one would be equally inclined to believe that, properly developed, he might have proved a mathematical or musical genius, with a brain good enough to make him an outstanding figure in the life of his country. For the man is a sort of Jekyll and Hyde. Of course, he is not sane, and might be cited in favor of Lombroso's theory that a genius is never sane, but of his brilliancy there is no question. No doubt if he were permitted to appear in person before the Supreme Court he would favor that body with an opinion of his case that would excite as profound admiration as that with which Capt. Cuttle was wont to receive the opinions of Jack Dunday.

Of Stroud's parents, it is briefly announced that they were good people, which cursory reveals no taint that might partly account for this amazing criminal. He was born in Seattle, and went to school where nothing remarkable was observed of him. His first known venture in crime was when he stole some opera glasses, and was arrested. His youth pleaded for him and he was released with a warning. Shortly afterwards he went to Juneau, Alaska, and at the age of seventeen took a job as dishwasher in a restaurant. Two days later the cook quit, and Stroud having mastered the art of cooking in the preceding forty-eight hours, took the job, and performed to the entire satisfaction of the customers. Shortly afterward there was a food famine in Juneau, and Stroud got possession of the restaurant. He was able to sell food when it was almost unobtainable elsewhere, and did a tremendous business, until the police, investigating his source of supply, discovered that he was getting his provisions from a gang of thieves. Then followed a jail sentence.

On his release he fell in love with a dance hall girl, and when he found that she had another lover he went to the man's cottage and killed him. He declared that the killing was the result of a fight and escaped with a twelve-year sentence. In the course of his trial the fact was revealed that Stroud had no sense of right and wrong, so far as he himself was concerned, and rather than the prison sentence he appeared to deplore that he was placed in a false position in the eyes of the public. His first day in jail he mastered the rules and the next day amazed his hearers by delivering an address upon them, pointing out their defects and excellencies. Shortly afterward he was discovered with a letter concealed in his shoe, into the penitentiary and selling it for a good profit. The offence was detected through a blunder on the part of his companion, and for this wrongdoer Stroud determined that the man should die. Accordingly, he attacked him with a knife, but failed to complete his murder. Thenceforth, having lost what mitigation of his sentence continued good conduct would have won, he broke all prison rules, and eventually was transferred to Leavenworth.

Arrived there one of his first acts was to make a saw out of a case knife, which he used to dig his way in the direction of a main sewer and liberty. After this a close watch was kept upon him, but this did not prevent him securing a spoon, which he fashioned into a dagger. With this weapon he sprung upon and attempted to death Andrew P. Hodges, a prison guard, at the noon-day meal, and in the presence of 1,500 convicts. Stroud said that Turner had called him a vile name. This is the crime for which Stroud was given a life sentence, against which he is appealing, and it was while the trial was in progress that criminologists everywhere were interested in the problem presented by Stroud.

In Leavenworth Stroud has continued to baffle his warders and the prison chaplains have come to examine him. Knowing no music, but getting hold of a violin and ag utar, he became an expert performer in three weeks. Through a correspondence course he earned a degree from the Kansas State Agricultural College, manifesting a profound knowledge of mathematics, the other of engineering. Yet nobody saw him reading except at odd moments. As a mathematician he is said to be remarkable as a lightning calculator, and in solving problems in mental mathematics. Stroud's own explanation is that these gifts of mathematics and music just "come to him in waves." He has studied theosophy, and claims to be able to release his astral body at will. That is one side of him. The other, the idiot side, is he in his discussion of what is due to others. When a little kindness is shown, he is in doubt whether to say thanks or to prostrate himself before his benefactor and burst into tears. For any slight or injury, on the other hand, he immediately begins to plan murder, even a tiny blood, in his opinion, being necessary to wipe out the memory of the insult or injury. As a final illustration of his gifts, may be mentioned the fact that through correspondence, limited as it is to two letters a week, strictly censored, he has been able to interest outsiders who have furnished the several thousand dollars necessary to have his case brought before the Supreme Court.

Ottawa Waits For Ontario

Commons Will Go Ahead With Temperance Legislation After Vote.

OTTAWA, Oct. 20.—When Ontario has said its say on prohibition today the Dominion parliament will take up the tale. The talk last week was that the Grand Trunk debate could end by Thursday, but it may be sooner, as the Opposition is opposing the acquisition of the Grand Trunk System on other grounds than opposition to the principle of Government ownership.

Those who do speak against Government ownership state explicitly that they do not speak for the party but for themselves. There is a great probability that on Tuesday or Wednesday the Government will renew its efforts to put its temperance legislation through the House.

Petrograd Closely Invested, But Trotsky Still Defiant

BOLSHEVIK WAR MINISTER DECLARES THE "PACK OF BOURGEOISE CURS WHO ARE WORRYING THE BODY OF SOVIET RUSSIA" WILL NOT CAPTURE THE CITY.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—Petrograd Saturday night was so closely invested by the anti-Bolshevik forces, according to the official advices, that military experts expressed the belief that little short of a miracle could save the hard-pressed Bolshevik. Indeed one newspaper despatch reported General Yudenitch's cavalry in the capital but there is no confirmation of this.

Neither had British official confirmation been received of the reported surrender of Kronstadt, although the War Office states that the Esthonian forces on Friday, operating in conjunction with Yudenitch, got within four miles of the Krasnaia Gorka, facing Kronstadt. Thus, Kronstadt would be in a dangerous position, as, with the capture of Petrograd, it would be cut off.

Coincident with these reports comes a vitriolic announcement by Leon Trotsky, the Bolshevik War Minister referring to the anti-Bolshevik forces as "a pack of bourgeois curs worrying the body of Soviet Russia," and declaring that Petrograd will not fall.

In the meantime, in the south, Gen. Denikine has been pursuing his successful course. But he is meeting with strenuous resistance in the Orel region where the fiercest fighting is going on.

AN ISLAND OF TRAGEDY.

Java Is Constantly Rocked by Earthquakes.

Official advices received report that the recent eruption of the Klot (or Kalut)—Volcano in Java cost 40,000 native lives, destroyed 20,000 acres of crops, principally rice, by its flow of hot mud, and did millions of dollars' damage in the fertile districts or regions outside of the devasted districts.

Volcano made in the first place, and constantly being worked over by earthquakes more volcanoes than any area of its size in the world. Estimates of the active and extinct craters range from 100 to 150. Everywhere in Java, in the huge crater lakes, in fissures that now are river beds, even in ancient temples, half-finished when interrupted by some fiery convulsion, are evidences of catastrophic forces—such turbulent forces as now are in continuous hysteria in the Valley of the Ten Thousand Smokes in Alaska and break their crusted surface cage intermittently in Java.

The "treacherous Klot," as the natives call it, all but wiped out the town of Britar, but even its devastation, as reported, was mild compared to the violent upheaval of Krakatoa in 1883. Then Mother Nature turned anarchist and planted a Gargantuan infernal machine on the doorstep of Java. Krakatoa is a little island in the Sunda Strait, between Sumatra and Java. Actually, as far from the explosion as New York is from El Paso, heard the terrific detonation, more than half the island was blotted out, parts of it were flung aloft four times as high as the world's highest mountain, and no touch button below the water's surface, where most of the islands had been, foreboded required a plumb line twice as long as the height of the Washington Monument. Skyscraper waves flooded adjacent islands and rolled half way around the earth. Every human war drum heard, though it may not have registered, the air waves as they vibrated three or four times around the earth.

Krakatoa leveled a smaller toll in bigness life than Klot because of its isolation, and many of the 35,000 deaths from Krakatoa's eruption were at far distant points by drowning.

An eruption anywhere on the island means disaster. For Java, about equal in area to New York state, supports a population greater than the combined populations of the empire state and the four other most populous states in the union — Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio and Texas.

Naturally the native religion is fatalistic. A free translation of an inscription on an old tomb runs:

"What is the use of living, of kissing lovely flowers,
If, though they are beautiful, they must soon fade into nothing!"

In the native folklore are innumerable stories of the earth opening up to swallow a dancing girl. Such tales betoken another physical feature of the island fraught with human tragedy. Not only has its steaming vents, spout-geysers, sulphur lakes, but great caverns, even cities, and they have been known to swallow villages.

Thimble Lore.

Though the thimble is claimed to be a Dutch invention, somebody who knows says that they had them all the way back in the days when Hercules naeum was. Sailors formerly wore a like device on their thumbs, and they called them thumb-bells or ally thimbles. Hence the origin of the present word.

You'd never think, would you, that it takes twenty men plus a great deal of expensive machinery to make one little thimble, would you? When John Softing introduced them from Holland into England in 1695, he virtually introduced a new industry be—

"THE DUMBELLS" IN BIFF, BING BANG AT GRIFFIN'S WEDNESDAY

"The Dumbells" are comin' hoorsy, hoorsy, all the way from France where they played to over five hundred audiences of Canadian and English soldiers, via Belgium, where they played a season of light opera and musical comedy revue, under the patronage of King Albert, and after stopping for a month in London where they played to over 183,000 people and hung out a record at the Coliseum, that most theatres of all soldier-entertainers company, "The Dumbells," have arrived in Canada.

They are playing a limited home coming tour now of the larger Canadian cities, presenting their original overseas revue, "Biff, Bing, Bang," under the personal direction of Capt. M.-W. Plunkett. Their initial appearance here will be at Griffin's Opera House on Wednesday night.

"TRUE HEART SUSIE"

Persons who have ever had to smile while their hearts were breaking, will never forget the performance of Lillian Gish in "True Heart Susie," the latest D. W. Griffith picture which will be displayed at Griffin's to-night and Tuesday night. Since her appearances in "Broken Blossoms," Mr. Griffith's tremendous artistic success, she has been the sensation of New York, Miss Gish is conceded by all the Metropolitan critics to be one of the foremost actresses on the screen, but many believe she has surpassed all previous work in her characterization of the heart-broken little girl who hoped to marry her girlhood sweetheart and found him, instead, with his arms around another young woman whom he had asked to marry him. With her aunt, she is invited to the minister's home, and to hear him play the little church organ, quite a social event in the community. Just for a little surprise she joyfully runs ahead of her aunt, tiptoes through the parlor door and sees——. The tumult of her heart seems to surge in her face. The man for whom she has cooked has secretly helped and selected for her mate, turns with a casual smile to her with an old friend, and greets her with a smile gracious with courtesy and well wishing, but pabied with the horror of surprise. Women should love that smile, for it is a triumph of the sex. It is one of the soul-searching touches which Mr. Griffith has put into "True Heart Susie," and which makes it a human document as well as a delightful diversion. Besides the above offering a 5-act Christie comedy and three other plays will also be presented on the same program. The election returns will be announced from the stage every fifteen minutes at Griffin's to-night.

VIRGINIA PEARSON AT PALACE

At the Palace to-night and Tuesday matinee and night will be shown the famous William Fox star, Virginia Pearson, in a play of many unusual twists and features. "Buchanan's Wife" is a new and tells of a young girl who marries the man she dislikes while under his control by infernos Later the man disappears and the woman he has abandoned seeks happiness by marrying her girlhood lover. Then her first husband turns up, shattered in mind and body and the wife has to make a difficult choice between her compassion and her happiness. At this point the problem takes an unexpected turn and the conclusion is said to be most sensational. Many interesting phases of hypnotism are shown, illustrating the above offering, a funny Luke comedy and the latest chapter of Vitagraph's 4 jw stacked thrill packed serial, "Perils of Thunder Mountain" will also be exhibited on the same program. Election returns from all over Ontario will be announced every fifteen minutes at the Palace to-night.

THE BATTLE OF THE BALLOTS.

After a short, sharp and more or less strenuous campaign the future administration of Ontario is being decided today by the ballots of the electors. At the same time the will of the people is being ascertained upon the question of prohibition legislation, extreme or modified.

The Government of Sir William Hearst offers its past record in office as a claim for the endorsation of the electors at the polls, and under ordinary circumstances with such a splendid record of achievement in the interests of the whole people there would be no question of the Government being returned with an overwhelming majority. The election, however, is complicated with the presence in the field of many candidates of the United Farmers organization and the uncertainty of their course of action in the event of election to the Legislature. Labor and independent candidates are also in the running. These, perhaps, are powerful influences at work in an effort to retire Sir William Hearst from public life. The Premier's open advocacy of advanced temperance legislation and his influence which resulted in the O. T. A. measure, has alienated many friends and strengthened his enemies, it is thought. Some observers say that no public man who ever identified himself actively with the prohibition forces received long as a political leader, and point to N. W. Rowell, W. J. Bryan and others. However, the result of this election will show whether Sir William Hearst's many courage, boldness and straightforwardness, has strengthened his hold upon the confidence and esteem of the electors or weakened it.

In any event the strain of uncertainty will soon be over and the personnel of the new Legislature will soon be known which will give a more or less accurate idea of the quality of administration which may be expected.

Whatever the verdict at the polls it behooves the citizens of this great province to "carry on" unitedly upon lines of progress and wipe out as far as possible any strife or confusion of ideas tending to divide the people into classes. Our aims and objects should be practically identical, the greatest good for the greatest number, give a little, take a little, and in seeking the advancement of our own interests give due and fair consideration to the other fellow. Let us march on unitedly for a Greater and Better Ontario.

DR. GRENFELL AND HIS WORK.

Labrador—the word alone suggests rugged, rocky barrens, with a treacherous and menacing coast line of jagged rocks and frowning cliffs against which beat in fury waves mountains high, seemingly irresistible in their strength and power of sweep on that far-flung strip of Canada facing the frequent storms of the North Atlantic. The word Labrador also suggests icebergs, floating ice floes, carrying, only too often, marooned fishermen out to sea with the inevitable death from cold, hunger or starvation, unless the unfrequent miracle happens and a rescue is made.

The Lure of the Labrador.

The lure of the Labrador is in its kaleidoscopic mystery picture of Eskimos, Indians and hardy British-born or British-descent fishermen who sustain life in a supposedly barren, uninviting land, fit only, in the opinion of many, for the habitat of the polar bear and as the rendezvous for fishing companies.

Labrador would be little more than a geographical occurrence were it not for the great heart of a truly great man, one of the outstanding heroes in the long list of those who since time began have devoted their lives to the great cause of humanity, unselfishly giving their time and talents in the service of the sick, the poor and the unfortunate. Dr. Wilfrid T. Grenfell is the man whose lifetime of medical missionary service on the rugged coast of Labrador has led to the association of his name inseparably with any mention of Labrador until it would almost appear that Labrador is Grenfell or Grenfell is Labrador. Certain it is that life is worth living on the Labrador largely because of Dr. Wilfrid T. Grenfell, where formerly it was a desperate struggle against hunger, disease, and the elements, its inhabitants forgotten, apparently, by the great warm and comfortable world outside.

Dr. Grenfell in Belleville.

A deep debt of gratitude is due to the Women's Canadian Club, of Belleville, from the citizens privileged to meet and converse with Dr. Grenfell since his lecture upon the Labrador Medical Mission. Dr. Grenfell is not a martyr, for he enjoys his service, and is amply repaid by the love and devotion of those he ministers to and his colleagues in the work.

The great fisheries of Labrador have for years contributed an important quota to the world's food supply, and with the assistance of scientific information as to weather, probable whereabouts of schools of fish, etc., which Dr. Grenfell is working for, will largely increase the output.

When War Came to Labrador.

When the war came to Labrador in common with all other parts of the British Empire an important change occurred. These hardy fishermen, deep sea sailors every one, forgot everything else in their desire to serve the Empire and defeat the Hun. Entire villages were denuded of male inhabitants and the women carried on. The crews of the Grand Fleet protecting the honor of the British Empire and the freedom of the world were strengthened by the best sailors in the world.

The Great White Healer.

In addition to ministering to the physical and spiritual needs of the fishermen of the Labrador coast Dr. Grenfell is known far and wide in a territory comprising two thousand miles as little less than a god, the great White Healer, who drives out the devils of disease and hunger and wickedness—the Eskimos revere him and the Indians exalt him as the great est of all Medicine Men who with pill and potion or magician's knife make all things well.

A Wonderful Work.

The Labrador Medical Mission, with its hospitals, maternity work, schools, nursing stations, mission ship Strathcona, and Seamen's Institute, is doing a wonderful work and is worthy of very much more financial support than it has received in the past. It should not be necessary for Dr. Grenfell to leave his work and travel from city to city explaining the necessity for funds for the carrying on efficiently and extending the work of the Labrador Medical Mission.

Cast Bodies Into the Sea.

One instance alone of the necessity of the extension of the work was shown by the ravages of the Spanish Influenza in isolated parts of Labrador. One Eskimo village contained 300 people. Only 103 from the disease and the bodies were cast into the sea from the high cliffs. The Indians, Micmacs or Nascopee, as they are called, also suffered severely.

If the work of the Labrador Medical Mission is to be continued efficiently and extended as it should be there is great need for governmental and individual financial support. A new orphanage is needed, and although $30,000 has been contributed toward it, $10,000 is necessary before a start can be made. The mission ship Strathcona, contributed largely through the generosity of the late Lord Strathcona, has been in constant use for twenty years in all kinds of weather and is in need of extensive repairs or replacement.

There is a large staff to maintain, particularly in the summer, with a dozen doctors, twenty nurses and teachers, and a general staff of between sixty and seventy. There are five hospitals, two nursing stations, orphanages and schools, besides the splendid Seamen's Institute at St. St. John's, Newfoundland, maintained by the Labrador Medical Mission for the deep sea fishermen while in port. This is equipped with living apartments, bowling alleys, baths, reading rooms and dry canteens, and is made as cheery and ship-shape as possible to keep the fishermen from the low dives which infest a deep-sea port under prohibition conditions.

Toronto Will Help.

As the result of Dr. Grenfell's visit to Toronto he hopes that well-wishers of the work in that city will be successful in arranging for an endowment fund of $75,000 to care for one medical station and nursing unit.

Labrador's valuable fisheries and undeveloped resources of forest, mine and waterpowers merits, outside of every other consideration, financial support for the extension of Dr. Grenfell's work, and there are many citizens in Belleville and the county of Hastings who will find in this a worthy outlet for their philanthropy.

Hunter's Bag Is Limited This Year

Deer Season Opens Nov. 5, Closes Nov. 20 — No Partridge Shooting this Year.

Despite the fact that Mr. H. C. O'Ling is still with us, the Ontario Government has decided that this year the deer hunters will have to go back to the old style of one hunter, one deer, each year, as a "war measure" and to ensure the public a little meat in Ontario, the law was changed to allow one deer per hunter.

There have been reports of a large slaughter of deer last year, but many of the hunters will tell you that last year was the first of many that he didn't get his count, and many didn't get even one deer. This was accounted for because the wolves were late in the northern hunting grounds of Ontario, and the deer were chased down to southern portions of the hunters' paradise. Those who hunted there got their count as a rule.

Date is Changed.

Another change that has been made this year is that deer hunting does not start until November 5th, instead of November 1st. Many hunters are rather opposed to this, but the majority are satisfied. They can have their fifteen days' shooting just the same as the season does not close till November 20th.

The season for moose, reindeer and caribou, south of the C.P.R., is set for the same dates—November 5th to 20th; but north of the C.P.R. line shooting has already begun, for the first day was October 1st and the last day is November 30th. Again only one of those can be taken, but no cow moose, young moose, reindeer or caribou under one year of age may be shot.

No Partridge This Year.

Partridge hunters must wait another year before they can shoot this pest, as there is no open season this year, but ducks, squirrels, rabbits and hares are ready for the hunter's trusty shotgun.

Wild turkeys may be shot; that is to say, if any can be found in Ontario. It may be well to state that the Government has set aside land for shooting game, and the hunters are forbidden to use their rifles between fenced areas.

Every hunter, whether a resident in Ontario or not, must take out a license before he can go after deer. Non-resident licenses for deer and moose are $25, but resident licenses are $3 for deer and $5 for moose.

Don't Waste Meat.

There was a time when dealers could sell wild duck and wild fowl, but new regulations have been made during the past two years which forbid this sale. The bag allowed for a duck hunter is 20 for the season, but hunters must remember that before they take this amount there is a game law which says: "No person who has taken or killed any bird or animal suitable for food shall allow the flesh thereof to be destroyed or spoiled."

Bolsheviki Shot 26,632 In Riga

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 20.—Professor Guido Schneider, of Riga, in a lecture here stated that the Bolsheviki shot 26,632 men, women and children in Riga. The executioners, intoxicated and unable to aim straight, wounded their victims time and time again, laughing at their agonies which sometimes lasted a whole day and night, he said. Young girls elegantly dressed, volunteered as executioners, and, promenading up and down with rifles, fired at the prisoners.

ELECTION RETURNS announced at Griffin's and Palace TO-NIGHT

MADE GOOD IN THE WAR

MEN WHOSE CHANCE CAME IN KHAKI.

Had Humble Employment In Civil Life But Seized Opportunity In the Army, and They Are Also Cases That Have a Distinctly Humorous Aspect.

While the war has badly handicapped many soldiers by decreasing their efficiency for civil life, it has also been the means of promoting ex-soldiers upward many rungs in the ladder of business success.

Tens of thousands of men have "found themselves" while in khaki.

Men who went away timid, quiet fellows, content to take what was apportioned them, have returned to civil life confident, sure of themselves, and feeling able to take what they want out of life.

And here and there among them are instances of men who, by gifts of the soldiering genius, or by dint of hard, strenuous work, have raised themselves high in army rank; which rank has been recognized on their return to civil life, and positions made in the normal sphere of life.

John P. Girvan, a sorter in the Toronto General Post Office, enlisted as a private in the 15th Battalion, Highlanders, in August, 1914. Major (Acting Lieut.-Col.) John P. Girvan, D.S.O., M.C., Croix de Guerre; led the Highlanders in the smashing advances of August, September and October, 1918, to the victorious end of the war.

Doffing his bonnet and kilt on returning to Toronto, Major Girvan reported to his post office for duty. Would he step back into his old position? Would his five years of very distinguished service count for nothing? Would his very strikingly demonstrated ability to organize and command go unrecognized by the Government he served?

Major Girvan was promoted to command of the city mail staff as the Central Post Office, assistant to the superintendent; a post that is ordinarily reached only after long and devoted labor in the civil service.

Second-class Police Constable Geo. H. Basher enlisted in Toronto as a private in the 3rd Battalion, August, 1914. He had years and years of humble service to put in as a constable before promotion in the Toronto force would come.

But in the battle-line his experience as a policeman came in handy and he was promoted to be a regimental sergeant, that is, police sergeant of his battalion. He then obtained a commission with the Imperials, served with distinction in France, Egypt and Mesopotamia, and won the rank of major. Again, his police experience predicted him, and he was given command of a detention barracks in England, and, later, of a military prison in France.

On his return to Toronto, Major Basher interviewed the Police authorities.

Would he return to the "beat"? No. Major Basher was appointed Governor of Toronto Jail.

The Toronto police force has several examples of accelerated civic promotion, due to distinguished military service. Detective Bill Miller enlisted as a private in the 15th Battalion. Major Miller, on being demobilized, was promoted to the rank of police inspector, a post that ordinarily requires a whole lifetime of service in the force.

Some very comical reversals have occurred. The colonel of a Toronto battalion returned to civil life and couldn't get a job for love or money. Finally he applied to the Government Employment Bureau in Toronto, and on entering the office of the secretary of this bureau, found the colonel seated to each with his former orderly-room lance corporal. Now, for three years, this colonel had led the lance corporal a merry dance, bawling him out on many an occasion for little cause. As the jobless ex-colonel stood before the supplanting lance corporal, he was at a loss for words.

A former major got a job solicitating advertising. He had formerly been the owner of a very smart and up-to-date cigar store, he found himself face to face with a former buck private, with whom he had had many unpleasant collisions. The ex-major meekly purchased a package of cigarettes and executed a hasty retirement.

England has greater variety, however, than Canada. In his despatch, Sir Douglas Haig says:

"Many instances could be quoted of men who from civil or company-lively humble occupations have risen to important commands."

"A schoolmaster, a lawyer, a taxicab driver and an ex-sergeant-major have commanded brigades.

"One editor has commanded a division, and another has been selected for the position of senior staff officer to a regular division."

The leader cook of a Cambridge college, a clerk to the Metropolitan Water Board, an insurance clerk, an architect's assistant and a police inspector became distinguished general staff officers.

"A mess sergeant, a railway salesman, a coal miner, a market gardener, an assistant secretary of a shipbuilding company, a quarry-master sergeant and many private soldiers have risen to command battalions.

"Clerks have commanded battalions. "A schoolmaster, a collier, the son of a blacksmith, an iron moulder, an instructor in tailoring, an assistant gas engineer, a grocer's assistant, as well as policemen, clerks and civil servants, have commanded companies in the field or artillery."

Misery dumps a lot of stones on the road to success.

Sir Edward Holden a Famous Banker

SIR EDWARD HOLDEN, chairman of the London City and Midland Bank, who died a few days ago, was one of the leading figures in the banking world, and it was largely on his advice that the general moratorium was declared on the outbreak of the war and that currency notes were issued by the Treasury. He was a strong advocate of the policy creating gold reserves by joint stock banks instead of leaving that function to the Bank of England, and when the war came his bank held several millions in gold, which he placed at the disposal of the Treasury. Sir Edward was born May 11, 1848, at Tottington, near Manchester, England, the son of the late Henry Holden, of Tottington, Lancashire. He received his education at Owens College, Manchester, and at Trinity College, Cambridge. In his younger days Sir Edward found time to read law at the Inner Temple, and was called to the Bar, not with the idea of practicing, but because he was of the opinion that it is necessary for every banker to have the commercial law of the country at his fingers' ends, so as to be able to decide for himself in moments of emergency instead of relying entirely upon professional advice.

Beginning life as an ordinary bank clerk, Sir Edward was in every sense of the word a self-made man. Close application to his duties and study gave him a knowledge of banking in every conceivable detail, and in its widest sense. Banking was his hobby, and finance and the theory of economics afforded him his greatest enjoyment. He represented the Heywood Division of Lancashire as a Liberal in the House of Commons from 1906 to 1910, and was created a baron in 1909. Sir Edward is especially well remembered as one of the leading members of the financial mission which went to the United States in 1915 in behalf of the $500,000,000 Anglo-French loan. On the commission with him were Baron Reading, Sir Edward Babington Smith, president of the National Bank of Turkey; Basil P. Blackett, an expert from the British Treasury; Ernest Mallett, regent of the Bank of France, and Octave Homberg, representing the French Foreign Office. Daily conferences were held at the Biltmore Hotel with leading financiers from all over the country. Owing to the fact that up to this time foreign loans of importance were almost unknown, the commission had a difficult task. Such men as James J. Hill, J. P. Morgan, George F. Baker, Frank A. Vanderlip, Henry P. Davison, Thomas W. Lamont and John J. Mitchell joined heartily in the plan and toured the country with the visitors, educating the public and pointing the necessity of establishing American credits upon which the Allies could draw for war supplies.

Recently Sir Edward had been engaged with other leading bankers of the United States and other countries with the object of making peace time loans to foreign countries. He considered this a proper way to raise funds for war-ridden Europe was to float bonds such as the Anglo-French 5s. of 1915. Reviewing the financial conditions of the world, early in this month, Sir Edward, back in the city, as quoted in the New York Times: "America has great exportable surplus in her foreign trade, and until in position to devote surplus production to development of her own resources it is better to exchange her products with Europe for bonds to pay, even if a percentage of them is unlikely to be redeemed, than to take away from a large section of her population means of livelihood."

A writer in an English newspaper, under the head of "Sir Edward Holden's Daring As An Unconventional Banker," in 1914, said of him, among other things: "Never has a banker shown so definitely that he has the courage of his opinions. It is not too much to say that bankers, who are a restrained, dignified, conservative class of men, have been scandalized. Sir Edward Holden has what some might call mania. The first bomb-shell which he exploded, earlier in the year, was his outspoken letter in reply to his fellow-bankers on the subject of their gold reserves."

Sir Edward was noted for his banking ability. Lloyd's Weekly says the growth of Lloyd's seemed to increase rather than discourage the determination of Sir Edward and the London City and Midland Bank. "During the last twenty-five years," continued the English writer, "it has absorbed twenty-four banks with deposits amounting to practically fifty millions sterling. The war of the banks in the field of absorption was quietly but grimly waged, and in their last battle stocks, shares and deposits with Lloyd's were shown to amount to ninety-two millions sterling, those with the London City and Midland amounted to ninety-four millions sterling. The extent to which a bank holds the deposits of the people, is, perhaps, a measure of its greatness, and in this respect Sir Edward Holden's bank was soon to have gained the premier position." Not only was he familiar with the banking conditions in his own country, where he held a prominent place, but he was thoroughly familiar with banking conditions of the world, especially of Europe. He was also for his annual address to the stockholders of his bank last year to be praised the American banking system as a model for Great Britain.

Sir Edward had a beautiful place in Surrey, near Chertsey, known as the Grange, and married Miss Mary Cassie, a daughter of William Cassie of Aberdeen.

City and Farm Equally Benefit

The man in the city and the man on the farm is each concerned with the other's prosperity, and each has equally strong personal reasons for supporting the Victory Loan 1919.

Last year Canada shipped to Great Britain and our European Allies $496,932,191 worth of the products of our farms.

The future of Canadian Agriculture depends upon holding and extending its export trade in farm products, and the future of city and town prosperity is interwoven with agricultural prosperity.

Great Britain and our European Allies provide a ready market. But as a result of the strain of war, they are short of cash. They must buy on credit for a time.

The British market particularly, we must not,—dare not—lose, because we have spent many long years in cultivating it, and establishing a prestige there for Canadian products.

Great Britain asks for a credit to buy our surplus food stuffs, and Britain always pays her debts. Our ability to extend this credit depends upon the success of the Victory Loan 1919.

Just think what it means to all of us to keep Canadian agriculture prosperous.

Canadian farmers form a large proportion of the buyers of Canada's manufactured products, resulting in trade for the manufacturer and retailer, and employment for the man in city and town.

With the money from the sale of his products the farmer buys agricultural implements, gasoline engines, tractors, wagons, seed, wire fences, fertilizers, milk cans, building material, roofing, furniture, carpets, furnishings, stoves, clothing, boots and shoes, groceries, drugs, pianos, talking machines, automobiles, papers, and scores of other things.

The city and town man makes these goods, and his wages are spent in his local stores, so that starting with the farmer the chain of trade travels through every class of the community.

The city again furnishes a home market for the farmers. Our cities have been built by our farmers—by those farm boys who have developed genius in organization, business and finance, and who do not have to leave Canada to find a field for their activities. The farm and city are interdependent the one upon the other. Canada requires both, and both prosperous.

Then upon both the man in the city and the man on the farm there rests a direct responsibility. Both must shoulder it and unite in making an overwhelming success of the

DAUGHTER OF THE PHILISTINES

By LEONARD MERRICK

He made his endeavor very tenderly To be looked upon as the schoolmaster abroad was a constant dread with him whenever he was in the company of his own kind; and he knew that, as the world went, he would have to advance or be most grossly left behind.

The fortnight was near its conclusion, and both looked forward to the return to England with eagerness. He would plunge into his work; she would be near The Hawthorns, and have friends to come to see her. Neither of the pair regretted the step they had taken; each loved the other; but a honeymoon was a trying institution.

Presently, where they sat, she hurried and put some questions to him about his projected book. Her intentions were praiseworthy; she was a good girl, and having married an author, she understood that it was incumbent on her to take an interest in his vocation, though perhaps, she had fancied once or twice, it might really have been nicer if he had been a stockjobber, and not cared to discuss his business at home. Papa was a dear, she knew. Discussing an author's work did not seem so simple as she had assumed it would be. There seemed so many tedious details that did not matter to the story.

"When do you think it will be finished, Humphrey?" she asked.

"In nine months, I hope, if I stick to it."

"So long as nine months?" she proclaimed with surprise. "Why I've read—let me see—two, three new of Mrs. St. Julian's this year! Will it really take so long as that?"

"Quite, sweetheart; perhaps longer. I don't write quickly, I'm sorry to say. Still, it won't be bad if Cousins pay me the two hundred and fifty that I expect. I think they ought to, after the way the last has been received."

"Some people get much more, don't they?"

"Just a trifle," he said. "Yes; but I'm not a popular writer, you see. Wait a bit, though: we'll astonish your mother with our grandeurs yet. You shall have a victoria, and two men on the box with powdered hair, and drive out on a wet day; that's splash mud at your enemies."

"I don't think I have enemies," she laughed.

"You will when you have the victoria and pair, he easy. Some poor beggar of an author who's hoping to get two hundred and fifty pounds for six months' toil will look at you from a bus and curse you."

"Suppose you can't get two hundred and fifty?" she inquired. "You can't be sure."

Oh, well, if it were only a couple of hundred we shouldn't have to go to the workhouse, you know. If it comes to that, a hundred, the same as I got for the other, would see us through, though of course I wouldn't accept such a price. Don't begin to worry your little head about ways and means on your honeymoon, darling; there's time enough for arithmetic. And it's going to be good work. I've been practical too. I can end it happily and retain a conscience. It's almost a different plot from that it was when I commenced to think, and it's better. It ends well, and it's better. The—the—Koh-i-noor."

"Tell me all about it," she suggested.

PLAY FAIR.

DON'T JUMP TO CONCLUSIONS.

What is the difference between remedy and cure? Any disease which is liable to recur cannot be indefinitely "cured." You may dispel the germs from the system—but that is simply remedying it.

A man suffers for years with Rheumatism. After trying numerous treatments without success, he takes Templeton's Rheumatic Capsules, and is restored to perfect health again.

A year or so later Rheumatic symptoms appear again. What does he immediately conclude? That it is his old trouble returned; that the medicine he took had only a temporary effect; that he will never again be well. This impression is the one we wish to eradicate—because it is entirely false. Whenever Templeton's Rheumatic Capsules are given a fair trial they remedy Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Neuralgia, or any of their kindred diseases.

T.R.U.'s won't make you immune from the above diseases. They will remedy them and drive them from your system, but whenever you feel an attack coming on, start doing T.R.U.'s again.

WHY DO WE SLEEP?

There Is Much Yet to Be Known About It.

Some of the most usual things are also the most wonderful, but just because they are familiar it never occurs to us how wonderful they really are.

In all the complex arrangements and inter-workings that go to make up human life, there is, perhaps, none more remarkable than that by which at regular intervals our consciousness is blotted out, the activities of our bodies and minds cease, and sleep overcomes us. Yet since this miracle happens in the ordinary every day of his life, the wonder of it never strikes us. We do not stop to wonder on it and to ask what it is that happens when life is thus almost completely interrupted.

Why do we sleep, and more, why do we wake again?

Like most natural phenomena that appear so simple the explanation is hidden from us. The physiologist tells us that sleep is a "synaptic dissociation of neurons." It may be, but we are not much the wiser for that, even if we know both what is a neuron and what happens to it when it is synaptically dissociated. No, we do not know what sleep is nor why it happens.

It may be thought that sleep happened because the circulation of blood through the brain grew so feeble that while, the sent of consciousness, and with it, the longing for sleep took the place. Many years ago, indeed, a surgeon studying the subject had taken the circulation of the brain through a hole in the skull of a sleeping animal. Yet this is only effect, not cause. The brain has less blood because it sleeps; it does not sleep because it has less blood.

More recently it has been thought that during the active day we make, by the activity of our muscles, a poison which has the peculiar action of deadening mental action. This poison is accumulated in us till by the time that sleep is due at night, the brain is overpowered. This argument is supported by the familiar fact that the many [illegible] drugs of the "dope" class, for example, which are certainly capable of producing sleep.

Sleep is a necessity of life no less than is food. No man has ever succeeded in ever keeping awake for more than a few days continuously. If he is forced to do so, as in ancient Chinese tortures, where constant tickling of the feet made sleep impossible, he falls at last into a comatose state from which he never awakens.

There is no greater misery than an unwilling wakefulness, and no sweeter boon than the untroubled sleep that nightly brings us fresh and invigorated to the next day's task.

SCIENTIST TELLS OF TRIUMPH

Professor Claims to Have Perfected System for Underground and Submarine Messages.

Speaking recently of his work for the navy, Prof. James R. Rogers, the inventor of a wireless system for underground and submarine transmission, stated: "Six or seven years ago, I began experiments with the transmission of electric impulses by the ground. They were renewed during the war with the sudden birth, which proved the receiving apparatus more sensitive. I first established contact with near-by points and before long received with perfect distinctness impulses sent from Europe. I placed my antennas in trenches radiating from a center and pointing by the compass toward the distant station from which I wished to receive. I demonstrated to the navy department that sight operators may receive at once from eight separate wires. My system was installed at New Orleans, the Great Lakes station, and Belmar, N. Y., and is now used at the principal wireless stations in the United States. I have found the best results with my wires buried six feet below the surface in damp ground. Some of my experiments were conducted in water 25 to 50 feet deep."—Scientific American.

ALWAYS HAS HOPE

Prospector for Gold One of Fortunate Men.

With Belief in Coy's Luck to Be "Just Ahead" the Buffets of Fate Are Things at Which to Laugh.

The typical prospector for gold, still met with in the far hills and deserts, may well be taken by all men as an example and an inspiration as far as the blessings of staying hopes are concerned, says the Los Angeles Times.

"Hope deferred maketh the heart sick," says the proverb. But it is not a good proverb. No matter how long deferred a hope may be it should never be abandoned. It should never be anything but an inspiration and an incitement.

Take this nomadic tribe of prospectors, for instance. The typical prospector is a man who has spent perhaps the most of his life pursuing a hope that has never been realized. Yet we never find them discouraged. We never know them to end their days in despair. No matter how many their years of failure may be they will tell you that just beyond the next chain of hills or in the heart of a still unexplored desert the treasures they seek are surely awaiting them.

A most sincere and persistent man is the prospector. He believes in his quest and respects it. The little or the much that he wins by spasmodic toil he invests in his dreams. He braves the solitudes and the lonely wastes of the world to reach the goal for which he strives. Hunger, thirst and other hardships and sufferings he endures with a willing heart.

And he never despairs. That's the glory of the prospector—he never despairs.

The average man, hedged in by the traditions of towns and cities or settled in the humdrum of the country, looks upon the prospector as a queer and somewhat demented individual. We laugh at this strange fellow who is pictured to us as plodding along in the wilderness and the sandy desolations with his pack and his burro, following the will-o'-the-wisps of fortune.

But the prospector is only doing in his way what we are doing in ours. We are following each our own dream as the prospector is following his.

The only difference is that we proceed in safety and without adventure. Otherwise we are the same as the wanderer of the desert and the hills. And also we are soon discouraged and we are easy prey to defeat, while it is death alone that can defeat the prospector.

It seems to us that of all the misfortunes there are in life—and heaven knows there are many—the misfortune of hopelessness is the worst. "Only for hope the heart would die," said a poet. It was a true thing to say.

And about this wonderful thing of hope there is another way to look at it and that is that we should always harbor least one hope ahead. That is to say, we should always have something that we look forward to. Then, if what we have in hand fails us, the other thing that we look forward to will stay us.

Hope is something to be busy with. It is something of which we should accumulate a store. Always have plenty of hopes and have them so that they will reach out and last away into the years of the future.

There is really something mysterious about a hope. If you will cherish it faithfully and keep it warm in your heart you will be almost sure to sometime realize it. It is said that we are what we believe ourselves to be. But perhaps we might better say that we are what our hopes are.

Since then a long-cherished hope is most likely to be realized, surely it were foolish of us to harbor hopes that will not bring us comfort and joy. Hope for the best there is—not great riches, but any material possession, but peace for the heart and a serene path for the white years of old age.

Cotton Growing in China.

Now that China has decided what kind of cotton seed does best in that country, and is distributing it by the ton to farmers, cotton growing starts on a new geographical development. The time may yet come when the Chinese laundryman, far from home, will croon over his collars that he is "still longing for the old plantation." Work done during several years in four experiment stations indicates that out of forty varieties of seed the kind known as "Trice" is best suited for Chinese cultivation. It appears that "Trice" yields 141 cattie to the mow, which is the Chinese way of saying something more than 241 pounds per one-sixth of an acre, for the catty weighs about one-third more than the English pound. The Chinese pound, for that matter is called "kin," but for some reason foreigners prefer to call it a "catty."

67,948 Animals Sent Overseas.

In a statement made by the war department it appears that since the United States entered the war and to January 11, 1919, this government shipped overseas from this country 67,948 animals, which included 5,620 cavalry horses, 4,296 draft horses, 36,088 draft mules, and 975 pack-mules. The total number of animals lost en route overseas so far reported is 600 horses and mules, or less than 1 per cent of the total number of animals shipped.

Nelson Day
Its Message to Canadians

ONE hundred and fifteen years ago tomorrow Nelson achieved his great Victory at Trafalgar and decided Britain's supremacy on the seas.

Today we eagerly strive for the commercial supremacy of the seas, and to that end we MUST train our Canadian boys to man Canadian ships to carry Canada's exports.

Canada Expects that Every Man will do his Duty

Tomorrow and the two following days you will be given an opportunity to insure the success of the Boys' Naval Brigades, on which rests the continuance of the type of trained seamen Canada must have.

The Navy League Campaign for $500,000 must be an unqualified success so that the great work undertaken may be carried forward during the coming year.

Every dollar subscribed will be used in Canada to aid Canadians—to provide relief for Canadian seamen injured in the war and their dependents—to conduct comfortable homes on shore for our seamen in ports—to organize Boys' Naval Brigades and give our boys the necessary training so that if they decide their livelihood is on the sea they will be ready for Merchant Service.

Tomorrow the campaign starts. For three days, many of our best citizens will give all their time and attention to the raising of the fund. Help them. Respond liberally. There is a great issue at stake. Do your part to the utmost of your ability.

"NELSON DAY" DRIVE HAS GREAT OBJECT

Appeal of the Navy League is Directed to all Classes of Citizens

Canadians all over the Dominion will remember how in September of last year the Navy League of Canada made an appeal for one million dollars for the relief of the dependents of dead and injured seamen of the merchant marine who were the victims of the German submarine campaign.

It will be remembered how, under the name of "Sailors' Week"—thanks to the thorough-going co-operation of the public with the workers—the campaign was a complete success and the objective was reached and passed.

The Navy League of Canada again appeals to all citizens for funds urgently required to carry on its works. The "Nelson Day"! Campaign has been launched and on October 21, 22, 23 the sum of $500,000 will be raised by voluntary contribution.

The money will be devoted to the payment of the debt of gratitude to the Canadian seamen lost in the war; to provide protection and home comfort for seamen who come to Canadian ports; to educate the people to the need of a strong navy and Canadian merchant ships. All the money accruing from the "Nelson Day" campaign will be spent in Canada.

IF every mother could only realize the danger which lurks in the neglect of chafing and skin irritations she would not take chances on being without Dr. Chase's Ointment to apply after baby's bath.

It arrests the development of eczema and makes the skin soft, smooth and velvety.

LEEDS MERCHANT DIES

J. A. Steacy, Seeley's Bay, reeve of the Township of Rear of Leeds and Lansdowne, hardware merchants in Seeley's Bay and very well known resident of the County of Leeds, died suddenly at his home. He had been ill only for a week.

FARMER LOSES SEASON'S CROP

Frank Johnston lost his season's crop and outbuildings by fire at his farm near South Lake, Leeds County. He was assisting a neighbor in filling a silo, when he looked up and saw his barn in flames.

FIRE AT ELZEVIR

Last week Mr. C. McNulty, the postmaster at Elzevir, suffered a severe loss by fire. One of his barns, in which was a horse and 30 tons of hay was totally destroyed. An electric storm was raging, and it is thought the barn was struck by lightning. The loss will be about $1000, of which $400 is covered by insurance.

EXTENSION OF LINE

Report has it that the C. N. R. authorities have in mind the construction of the long talked of line from Bancroft and Combermere to connect with the C. P. R. line at Calabogie distance of only about forty miles. This would give the Ottawa Valley a new short line through Central Ontario to Toronto, and would be of decided advantage to the people of the country through which the line would pass.—Bancroft Times.

CAUGHT LIQUOR IN TRANSIT

On two of the early express trains of the G. T. R. from Montreal, inspectors Taber and Sykes, of Brockville, confiscated $150 worth of liquors, made up of twelve gallons of brandy and seven bottles of imperial whiskey and twenty gallons of high wines. Most of the new goods was in the possession of one foreigner, who was arrested and fined $200 and costs in the local Police Court.

A TERRIBLE AFFLICTION

Mr. Wm. Breen, our South Victoria Street blacksmith, retired to bed Monday evening in his usual health. On Tuesday morning he arose as usual, but finding it dark yet he lighted a match, and apparently it went out, he lighted another with same result and yet another, but he was surprised to find that one burnt his finger. He concluded that there was something wrong with his good eye, for by accident some years ago, he had lost sight of the other eye. He found to his dismay that he was totally blind. Dr. Volume was called and found that a blood vessel in the retina of the eye had burst. Mr. Breen left for Kingston to consult a specialist.—Tweed News.

UNCOVER FOUR SKELETONS

While excavating for a roadway through an embankment near the shore inside Tete de Pont Barracks, at Kingston, workmen uncovered four human skeletons under only two feet of earth They are supposed to have been the bodies of French or English soldiers who were killed or died more than one hundred years ago. They had been buried in coffins made of cedar, for bits of the wood were found with the skeletons The mound extended for some distance along the shore and is supposed to have been the burying ground used by the ancient garrisons It was outside of the fort in those days. Some years ago, while excavating for the foundation for the stable, a number of skeletons were unearthed Sergt. Barmah was in charge of the workmen and he states that the skeletons he just as they had apparently been buried lengthwise and facing the lake. Thin stones flags had been placed over the graves, and the flags covered with two feet of earth. When disturbed, the bones came apart at the joints and they were found upon examination to be crumbling. The skulls were unconsumed first and were broken by the shovel. The bones were gathered up and taken to the surgery and placed in the custody of Captain H. Angrove. Sergt. Fowler has two British half penny tokens that were found in the graves. One bears the head of the late Duke of Wellington and the date 1814. The other is apparently a similar coin of an earlier date.

ELECTION BULLETINS

Election returns will be bulletined by The Intelligencer tonight, local and provincial.

SERGT. FLYNN HERE

Sergt. T. Flynn, leader of the Returned Soldier Movement in favor of an increased gratuity up to $2,000, is in the city.

COLLECTED DOUBLE PAY

A lady residing on Emily street, reports to the police that on Saturday she purchased some produce on the market and paid for same. When the party from whom she made the purchase called at her home he again collected pay. An effort will be made to ascertain who disposed of the produce.

PLAYING BALL ON SUNDAY

Sunday afternoon the police answered a call to the play grounds in connection with the High School premises where some boys were playing ball to the annoyance of some citizens. The names of seven boys who were engaged in the game were secured.

AN IDEAL ELECTION DAY

The weather today was ideal for the getting out of the vote and in consequence a record vote was recorded in the city. The ladies were out in large numbers and evidenced much interest in the proceedings. At the various polls, voters were in readiness to deposit their ballots at the opening and throughout the day there was a steady stream of voters. Whilst the result of the election of the candidate for Provincial honors will be known in the early part of the evening, the referendum vote will not be known until quite a late hour.

TRENTON'S NEW INDUSTRY

The papers that had been sent to Toronto to the Provincial Secretary Corporation, Limited, having been returned to Mayor Ireland, duly signed by the President and Secretary of the Company, a special meeting of the Council was called Tuesday evening when a By-law and Agreement between the Town and Company received its first reading and will be submitted to a vote of the people on Monday, November 10th. The Chemical Products Corporation, Limited, has been incorporated with a capital stock of $2,000,000.00. They have acquired all the land of the British Chemical Company Plant and purpose to spend one million dollars on construction of their plant.—Trenton Courier.

THRIFT STAMP CHAMPIONS

Congratulations are due the pupils and the teachers of Carlaw Street School upon their recent success in winning another magnificent picture offered for competition among the various schools of our city in the Thrift Stamp Campaign. Carlaw Street Public School is the smallest of our city schools, but in May last they were awarded a beautiful picture "The Fleet Leaving Quebec" for having won the Campaign at that time. A few days ago, Mr. D. V. Sinclair, accompanied by Mr. W. R. McCreary, the School Chairman, presented to the school a very fine panoramic view "The Montreal Harbour" for being the highest competitors in the recent Thrift Stamp Campaign. These beautiful pictures, besides having an educational value, will be much appreciated additions to the pictures owned by the school and are worthy of a prominent place on the walls of the progressive new school to be opened. Chairman Ward next year. Since last March two of the teachers have sold over one thousand dollars' worth of these stamps which is an average over five dollars per pupil. Much pleasure is experienced by the pupils in owning War Savings Stamps, and the motto "A penny saved is a penny won," is being realized by these youthful citizens, who are proud to claim that Grier Street also owns a Victory Bond and a small bank account.

Entire Family is Grateful For It

Friends Say They Never Saw Such a Change in Anyone as Tanlac Made in Mrs. Spruitt.

"My friends all declare they never saw such a wonderful change in anybody as they have in me since I began taking Tanlac," said Mrs. Martha Spruitt, of 296 Runnyside Road, West Toronto, Ontario.

"Two years ago," she continued, "I suffered such a serious breakdown that I had to be taken to the hospital. I was there several weeks under treatment but got no better. They took me home again and I was almost as helpless as a child. I had no appetite and my nerves were in such a wretched state that I couldn't stand any kind of noise. My friends said they never expected to see me recover and they even prepared my daughter to look for the worst at any time.

"Nothing I took did me any good, and after hearing so much about Tanlac I decided to try it and it wasn't long before people began talking about my big improvement. I eat most anything now, and my food is doing me good. My nerves have become quiet and I sleep all night like a child. I am getting stronger and better every day and all my family feel so grateful for what Tanlac has done for me that we are praising it all the time."

Tanlac is sold in Belleville by Ostrom's Drug Store, in Trenton by J. H. Dicker, in Deseronto by W. J. Malloy, in Stirling by J. S. Morton, in Madoc by J. W. Vince in Marysville by T. J. McAlpine, in Ormsby by Jas. Campbell and in Thomasburg by J. H. Blakley.

WHO OWNS THE MONEY?

The police have in their possession a small sum of money for some tomatoes which were purchased on the market on Saturday and the residence of the purchaser could not be located.

AUTOS COLLIDE

A collision between two autos occurred this afternoon at the corner of Front street and Victoria Avenue. While no person was injured both cars suffered damages.

CHARGED WITH THEFT

Some days ago a fur lined coat, the property of Mr. James Mains was stolen from a car. The coat was recovered a second hand store, where it had been sold for a paltry sum. Saturday evening, Henry James Evans was placed under arrest, charged with the theft of same. He was remanded to jail for a few days.

ALLEGED THEFT OF BIKE

A bicycle, the property of Mr. Blake Waterhouse was on Friday evening taken from a garage on Front street. It was recovered by the police on Saturday evening and a young man, named George A. Sather was arrested charged with stealing it. The case was this morning by Magistrate Mason, enlarged for a few days.

LAST SHOT FIRED

The Ch., Hall on Saturday evening was filled to the doors with lady and gentlemen supporters of Mr. Ireland in this city, who gathered to hear the leaders of the Provincial campaign discussed. It was an enthusiastic gathering and Mr. Ireland was given a most hearty reception when he arose to speak. Mr. H. M. Ackerman presided. Addresses were given by Messrs. E. G. Porter, K.C., M.P., Mr. J. J. O'Rourke of Trenton and Mr. F. A. Abbot of this city. Mayor G. Spafford made an earnest appeal on behalf of the coming Victory Loan campaign.

Y. M. C. A. CONFERENCE

On Friday a district Conference of Physical Directors was held at the local Y. M. C. A. Major Fred J. Smith, National Supervisor of Physical Work, presided. Representatives were present from Oshawa, Peterboro, Kingston and Belleville. Plans were outlined for a full program of activities to be carried on during the national basis. There will be inter association group competition in various lines of indoor work, such as basket ball, volley ball, swimming, etc.

German Souvenirs of Defeat.

A traveler in the Rhine country has written of his astonishment at the German pictorial postcards on sale on the market. He found himself in Cologne, and "the first shop I entered," he says, "I was offered one half a mark many pictures which, had I been a German, I would rather have cut off my right hand than sell to a representative of the conquerors." The German shopkeeper, typical of many others, apparently had no such feeling, for he was handing over the counter pictures illustrating German scenes and people in the hour of defeat. One could buy and send home a picture postcard of a rabble of German soldiers entering the city on their retreat and the natural wonder of the traveler was how any German photographer could have had the heart to sell it as a souvenir of the city. One could buy for half a mark photographs of the British cavalry and infantry entering Cologne, or of the great cathedral serving as a background for the conquering troops. This is another of the many stories that have come out of Germany of the commercial spirit taking advantage of defeat to turn a

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1919

Victory For Ireland In West Hastings

CONSERVATIVE CANDIDATE ELECTED BY SUBSTANTIAL MAJORITY IN WEST HASTINGS—TRENTON AND SIDNEY GIVE IRELAND LARGE MAJORITIES—BELLEVILLE GAVE MAJORITY FOR LIBERAL CANDIDATE.

Yesterday was an ideal day for the getting out of voters and this opportunity was seized upon by not only the friends of the political parties engaged in the struggle, but also by those interested in the referendum. In this city by far the largest vote ever cast was recorded, and in this respect the lady voters were in the majority. At the various polls in the city voters were in readiness to cast their ballots at 9 o'clock in the morning, and from that hour until 5 o'clock in the afternoon there were but few idle moments for returning officers and the officials associated with them. Some 8300 votes were cast and upwards of 10,000 throughout the riding. The result of the contest between Mayor Ireland of Trenton, Conservative, and E. D. O'Flynn, Liberal, was as anticipated, namely, the return of the former by a substantial majority. Col. O'Flynn's majority in the city was 463, while Trenton and Sidney unofficially gave Ireland 901 majority, making his majority in the riding 438.

The vote was as follows:

W. H. IRELAND
Mayor of Trenton, Elected to Represent West Hastings in The Legislative.

U. F. O. CANDIDATES LEAD IN THE LEGISLATURE

STRANGE ELECTION MIX-UP

FARMER CANDIDATES HAVE LARGEST GROUP IN LEGISLATURE BUT NOT ENOUGH TO FORM GOVERNMENT ALONE —SIR WILLIAM HEARST, SIR ADAM BECK AND SEVERAL CABINET MINISTERS DEFEATED AT THE POLLS—A PECULIAR SITUATION RESULTS FROM ELECTION.

RESULT OF THE ELECTION.

U. F. O.	40
LIBERALS	31
CONSERVATIVES	28
LABOR	11

In one of the most remarkable elections Ontario has ever experienced the Hearst Government went down to defeat yesterday. Sir William Hearst and all but two members of those of his Cabinet who were not elected by acclamation went under in the landslide and of the strong following of 70 members who sat behind the Prime Minister in the last Legislature only some 26 members remain. The defeat of the Conservatives was due almost entirely to the tremendous vote rolled up by the United Farmers' candidates and by the Labor men. The Liberals, despite their win of five seats in Toronto, stand in the new Legislature practically as they were at the last House. In fact when all the returns are in Hartley Dewart, K.C., the Liberal leader, will probably have a smaller following than did Wm. Proudfoot, the former leader.

The largest single party in the new House will be that of the farmers, who, by an alliance with either of the older parties and the Labor members can command a large working majority. Just what will be the ultimate course of Ontario it is impossible to foresee at the present time. Even Sir William Hearst, in his statement to the press at St. Marie last night, was evidently unable to figure out the situation. It is doubtful if that point will be settled until the new Legislature meets, but the matter stands the Government of Sir William Hearst will remain in power until the House meets.

If in the intervening time the Prime Minister has not succeeded in reaching a working agreement with any other party in the House, he will, as is customary, tender his resignation to the Lieutenant-Governor, who will then have to turn to either Hartley Dewart or to the United Farmer representation. But neither the Liberals nor the Farmers can form a Government, standing alone, and whichever is called upon to lead must form a union cabinet or give up the task. In the event of the farmers declining to join forces with either party, a new election would almost certainly be necessary to clear the situation.

It is possible of course, that the Prime Minister might choose to tender his resignation before the House is called together, but it is quite probable that he will carry on until the House can pass upon the question of leadership.

Whatever may be the outcome, it is almost certain that Ontario's next Government will be a fusion of some sort, either one of Conservatives, farmers and Labor, or Liberals, farmers and Labor.

The tremendous sweep of the farming and Labor men astonished everyone, the showing of the Independent Labor party being perhaps the most spectacular. It was conceded that the farmers would gain twenty-five seats but the most that close observers of the campaign were willing to grant the Labor forces was two or three seats. As it turned out the Labor men won practically every seat in which they had a good candidate and anything like an organization.

The defeat of Sir William Hearst in Sault Ste Marie was an outstanding instance of the manner in which the workingmen of the province have become aroused. Cunningham, the Soo Labor candidate, was not regarded as a serious contender, and the only question in the election was thought to be the size of Sir William's vote. Yet Cunningham rolled up a majority of over 1,200.

Even more inexplicable was the defeat of Sir Adam Beck in London. The Prime Minister's failure to hold his seat can be explained by the general sentiment running against the Government but Sir Adam had apparently of himself from the Government, and was running as a independent. It is possible that he lost the votes of many former Conservative supporters who did not like his action in breaking away from the Conservative Government, but that would not explain the tremendous shift that brought him defeat.

Sir Adam will feel his reverse keenly, and if he carries out the threat made during the campaign, that defeat would be interpreted as a repudiation of his work for the Hydro he would retire from the Hydro-Electric Commission. It is possible, however, that whatever Government is formed will endeavor to retain the Hydro chairman at his post.

The election had some strange twists Hon. George S. Henry, Minister of Agriculture, was thought to have the hardest fight of any Minister, put he came through with a good majority, while those whose defeat was never considered as a possibility went down. Hon. Pinkey Macdiarmid was badly beaten in West Elgin by his U. F. O. opponent.

BROCKVILLE GOES LIBERAL

For the first time in 12 years the riding of Brockville with its large rural vote has gone Liberal. The home of Sir James Whitney's colleague Dr. D. McAlpin, who defeated the Government candidate, A. E. Donovan, in a straight party fight. Dr. McAlpin showed much unexpected strength in the town of Brockville, which he carried in an overwhelming manner. He also came from the country with a lead so that when all returns are in it is expected that his majority will be between 500 and 600.

Fifth Week Of U.S. Steel Strike

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—With the beginning of the fifth week of the steel strike in the Chicago district prevailing practically all the mills were operating with about 75 per cent of their normal labor force. Quiet prevailed throughout the district.

At Indiana Harbor, Ind., the Standard Forging Co., with 500 men, resumed operations which had been halted since September 22. Squads of Indiana militiamen patrolled every block of the city.

To Take Back Only 500.

Mill officials at Gary, Ind., reported that not more than 2,000 strikers remained out, and that not more than 500 of these will be taken back. The strikers, it is said, are being taken back as new employes. The mills, it is said, will continue to operate with a limited production pending the completion of their reorganization plans.

Must Return by Wednesday.

A Chicago police captain expressed the opinion that fully 75 per cent. of the strikers in the south Chicago district have returned to work. The Wisconsin Steel Co. announced that 1,800 of its 2,200 men had returned.

The Illinois Steel Co. issued a notice today that men who failed to return Monday Wednesday will not be taken back. Two hundred negroes did not report to work at the Illinois Steel Co. today following the action of the company in segregating the negro and white employees in certain departments. Labor chiefs continued to deny the claims of the mills officials.

Olympic Captain Lauds Nelson Day

Sir Bertram Hayes Places Seal of His Approval on the Objects of the Campaign.

Sir Bertram Hayes, K.B.E. D. S. O., R. N. R., captain of the "Olympic" was much interested in his recent visit to Toronto, when informed of the Nelson Day Campaign to raise $500,000. The distinguished visitor expressed his warm approval of the objects of the drive and sent the following letter to Commodore Aemilius Jarvis, President of the Navy League of Canada:—

"I heard today while speaking at the Canadian Club of the appeal that the Navy League in Canada is again making its interests and actions, and I take this occasion to say how grateful we are at what Canada has done in the past in this direction, and I am sincerely hoping that this year your appeal will not be upon deaf ears.

Now that the war is over, we are realizing to the full measure the destruction submarine warfare has wrought in the lives of our merchant seamen and the number of dependents that have been left behind. While the former in today receiving a greater wage than he ever did before, still this has not been for a sufficient time to allow him to accumulate anything and the dependents of those who have gone have not participated.

If Canada is awake to her own interests, she will back the Navy League's efforts to realize what sea power means to a country. It means prosperity, it means defence, and we want more seamen so that British ships will be all manned by British subjects."

Premier Blames Temperance Act For His Defeat

"I DID WHAT I THOUGHT WAS RIGHT AND WOULD DO THE SAME THING AGAIN," SAID SIR WILLIAM HEARST.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Oct. 20.—Premier Sir William Hearst, in a short address at Columbia Hall, thanked his supporters, conceding Cunningham's election at the Soo. The Premier would not make any prophecy as to the complexion of the next Legislature, saying the attitude of the farmers was uncertain. He said he had expected the Government would sweep the country.

"The Temperance Act," he said, "no doubt had a great deal to do with my defeat. But I did what I thought was right, and if I had it to do again would do the same thing."

Fatal Thirteen Finds Five At The Gallows Foot

FOREIGNERS PLOTTED HOLDUP—CRIME ENDED IN MURDER—JUDGE HAD TO LEAVE COURT WITHOUT FORMAL ADJOURNMENT.

Climbing thirteen steps in the bunk house of the Ontario Rock Company, at Havelock, Ont., five Russians on the morning of the 22nd of June, robbed ten Bulgarians. When the pistol of one was discharged a man in the thirteenth bunk was fatally wounded. At the murder trial of the five, which concluded at Peterborough, the thirteenth witness made a confession. The five are to pay the death penalty in the first case of its kind in the history of Canada.

The case throughout proved most sensational, and against overwhelming odds and evidence, Mr. Basil W. Essery, Hamilton Trust Building, waged a brilliant defence for three of the men, as did G. M. Gordon, of Peterborough, for the other two. Chief Justice Mulock characterized the imposing of the death penalty as the most distressing and painful duty of his judicial life. When the last man was sentenced, he left the courtroom without waiting to adjourn the court.

The initial arrangements for the trip from Toronto to Havelock were made within the shadow of the Toronto City Hall. According to the evidence one of the men, Michael Bahri, after working ten days in the quarry at Havelock, returned to Toronto and informed the others he knew where some easy money was to be had. The Montenegrin, according to the other four, was not known until the Union Depot was reached, and not until Havelock was reached and they were in the sight of the quarry was the plan disclosed. This plan, said all the men, was to scare the inhabitants of the bunk house and get their money.

Before the first man had climbed the last of the unlucky number of upstairs, a shot rang out, but running upstairs and leaving a guard downstairs, the work of robbing the men began. The revolver of one, it was thought, had only accidentally discharged when he stumbled, and it was not until their arrest at Indian River did they know that a man was shot. Leaving the bunkhouse, the men ran for some minutes, took to the woods, and later separated, after the proceeds of the robbery, $10 was divided. They broke into two parties three in one party and two in the other. By a strange coincidence they met at Indian River station. The three that were the first to arrive at the station were met by a constable and were held in the station. They were told that trouble had occurred at Havelock and a man had been killed. When the other two stopped at the station for a drink they were all locked in the waiting room. Here they hid their guns, cartridges, and even concealed part of the money under the seats and in egg crates.

Upon the arrival of other constables the men were ordered to throw upon a chair the contents of their pockets. This they did, and the police said did not know who had the watches later identified at the trial by the men from the bunkhouse. As they were being taken from the station, ten-year-old Oliver Risoborough, son of the station master, picked up a box of cartridges, and the guns, etc., were discovered. He and a younger brother next day found $190 more. On the way to Peterboro one man threw away $80, although between two constables.

Another clue, in the shape of a rubber heel, the print of which was identified by a foreman, all the way from Havelock to Indian River station, through woods and fields, also played an important part in the trial. It was exhibit No. "22."

Each man was recommended mercy by the jury, and steps are already under way in the condemned men's behalf.

BIG MERGER OF THEATRICAL HOUSES

A ten million dollar theatrical merger is taking in a chain of houses from Montreal to the Pacific coast and has been organized by a Canadian syndicate.

The plan is to make Canadian productions, establish a theatre in London and bring British productions to Canada. Among the interested names given, the report states, will be those of A. J. Small, which include the Grand Theatres in Toronto, Hamilton, London, Peterboro, St. Thomas and Kingston, and the Walker Theatre, Winnipeg, and theatres in Calgary, Edmonton, Saskatoon, Regina, Moose Jaw and Victoria. A new theatre will be built in Vancouver.

Producing centres will be established for Canadian plays in Toronto as well as Montreal. The Montreal syndicate will be headed by H. Wyndham Beauclerk, while George F. Driscoll, formerly of London and Hamilton will have charge of the syndicate's active operations.

A. J. Small is in Montreal at present presumably in connection with this merger, but it is learned that the deal involves about ten million dollars.

Although the Shubert and Klaw & Erlanger interests are said to be involved in the merger, it is understood that the Princess and the Alexandra Theatres, Toronto, which operate with these producers, are not included in the amalgamation.

The following six resolutions have been proposed by the Secretary, Col. W. N. Ponton, for the agenda of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade at the annual meeting to be held in Toronto on November 20th. It is of interest to know that all the Boards of Trade of Ontario were drawn together through the united efforts of the Toronto and Belleville Boards and that the secretary of the Belleville Board is Honorary President and the Treasurer of the Belleville Board is Vice President of all the Boards of the Province. If our Board is not appreciated by the narrower vision of local critics it certainly is by their fellow-workers throughout Ontario.

The following are the resolutions submitted:—

Resolutions

(1) That the Provincial and Dominion Government be memorialized and urged to prepare and publish immediately a reliable and up-to-date general report upon the minerals and metals of Ontario, their distribution, quantity and quality, and especially with regard to iron, the foundation of one of Canada's basic industries.

(2) That the Government of the Province of Ontario be asked to take into immediate consideration the annual appointment of taxes on department stores, mail order houses and public utilities, so that municipalities where the business is carried on and where money is expended may receive a fair return for value given and franchise used.

(3) That railway freight and express rates on coal, wood and food products be reduced to the minimum of cost on all nationally controlled lines as a factor in the reduction of the high cost of living, and that the rates of all business and commercial telegraphs and cables be fixed at the lowest possible figure in order to encourage, develop and accelerate inter-provincial and inter-imperial trade.

(4) That every encouragement be given to the establishment and universal adoption of an Empire Trade and Standard, and that the immigration of British citizens between Great Britain and her Dominions overseas be facilitated in every way possible, and if thought advisable, subsidized, so that British commerce and British men and women, the assets of Empire, be fostered and retained under the flag.

5—That every possible encouragement by subsidy or otherwise be given to aviation for commercial and postal purposes by the Governments of Ontario and of the Dominion.

(6)—That the Government of the Province of Ontario be urged to conduct a special publicity campaign both in the United States and Great Britain setting forth the productive advantage and substantive attractions of all parts of Ontario as a field capable of transition and the establishment of branches of foreign and British industries in Canada, affording an appropriate present opportunity for such a setting forth of the manifold attractions of the Province to investors of capital, skill and industry.

A Sure Way To End Dandruff

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it. It then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be soft, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

Night Classes Are Beneficial

Report of Inspector on Night Industrial Classes at Belleville.

The following report of Inspector F. W. Merchant, upon the Night Industrial Classes at Belleville, shows the importance and value of the classes and the opportunity they afford of educational facilities for those employed during the day:

An excellent beginning has been made in industrial night school work in Belleville. The attendance, while not large, is very creditable considering the adverse conditions of last autumn. The instruction given is satisfactory and in quality quite up to the average of that of older schools. The policy of the committee in taking care that no instructor shall have too great a number of students is showing its effect.

In the classes in men's work, the proportion of learners and workmen from the shops is particularly noticeable and the intention that nearly all of them express of following up the school work next winter speaks well for the quality of the instruction and the type of men.

Interest in work the dressmaking class is now of good size and the cooking class will be large when the benefits to be derived by attending are understood by the women of the city.

The organization and supervision are of the best. If the principal had the time at his disposal to show his capacity for doing "outside work" as well as work in the school, one of the best industrial night schools in the Province would be developed.

The accommodation and equipment are very fair for present needs. Accommodation for the drawing class should be improved and no pains should be spared to make the lighting for drawing and sewing the best possible.

SUGGESTIONS

1.The committee is showing a lively interest in the work. It is urged that a systematic plan for assisting the principal in bringing home to every workman in Belleville the benefits to be derived from attending the classes be worked out and adhered to.

2. It is suggested that the committee form a plan of having members visit the school and every class in it at short intervals and thus show the students the deep interest they are taking in the work.

3. So many earnest, steady men from the shops are attending this winter that the classes in men's work should be much larger next year. (a) The men at present in the drawing class should form a class next year in more advanced drawing and designing with necessary mathematics added to it. (b) The men at present taking practices and decoration, should form a mechanical drawing and shop mathematics class next year. (c) The question of a separate class for apprentices and learners should have a careful consideration.

4. The class in cooking should be readily developed. A class in millinery might well be started and a class in home nursing, taught by a physician or a nurse, would be a very valuable addition to the women's work.

NIGHT COMMERCIAL CLASSES AT BELLEVILLE.

On the evening of inspection 19 were present in the Typewriting and Shorthand class and 11 in the Bookkeeping.

In my opinion, satisfactory instruction is being given and very good progress made. The teachers are thoroughly in their work and that the ground covered marks real progress.

The equipment including typewriters is ample.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of my darling son, Pte. Harry Douglas Barnhardt, who died of wounds in France, Oct. 21, 1918.

One year has passed since that sad day
God called the one we loved away;
Forget-him—no we never will.

As years roll on we love him still
Never a day but his name is spoken,
Never an hour but he's in our thoughts.
A link in our family chain is broken
He's gone from our home but not our hearts.

"THE DUMBELLS"

was the title given to the most famous aggregation of soldier entertainers in France, bestowed upon them in infancy, because they had their inception with the 3rd Division, and although they soon broke out of all divisional bonds and became the favorites of the entire C.E.F. and B.E.F., even going so far as a month's tour of England, the name, which was derived from the field marking of their division, stuck. One outstanding feature which has been a big factor of their success is that they are fighters first, the members of the company having served an average of sixteen months in the trenches. With them acting is, or was, their side line, but they do it so well that their triumphant tour of Canada promises to break all theatrical records.

Music and Drama

"BIFF BING BANG," AT GRIFFIN'S TOMORROW NIGHT

"Biff, Bing, Bang," the greatest musical comedy ever written and played by any military organization, and claimed by many to have been the greatest success ever offered to the footlights, will be the attraction at Griffin's tomorrow night, for one night only. The company presenting this show now in Canada, was known in France as "The Dumbells," and has a record of over five hundred performances given immediately behind the front lines during the war. After the Armistice they gave forty performances in Brussels for the benefit of the wounded and disabled soldiers and sailors. These performances were under the royal patronage of King Albert of Belgium, who has since presented Capt. M. W. Plunkett and his Dumbells with a medal in commemoration of their splendid success. They only other public appearance before coming to Canada was in London where they played a month, two weeks of which they appeared in the famous Coliseum, where they played to 91,200 people. All of the original company, who survived the war, are now in Canada, and their forthcoming appearance here promises to be one of the finest and certain by the most unique and interesting theatrical engagements ever staged in this city.

CHARMING STORY OF TRUE GIRL'S LOVE

Charming indeed, is the story of "True Heart Susie," D. W. Griffith's new picture which was shown before a capacity audience at Griffin's last night. It is one of those pastoral themes which rise to the dignity of screen classics by reason of the artistry of this master producer, which invariably hold their own against criticism. In this fascinating story of a little Moosier girl who loves a boy with rare devotion, the heart interest is supreme and the suspense wonderfully compelling. Susie May Trueheart loves William Jenkins so well that when a politician fails to keep his promise to send William to school she sells butter and eggs and even her cow to raise funds for the purpose. So it happens that William goes to college, but he is unaware that his good angel is Susie to whom he writes desultory letters. So it happens when he leaves college and is ordained a minister, he comes to his home as pastor of the village church. Then the tragedy of poor Susie's life is born. William weds a flighty beautiful girl who repays his love by accepting the attentions of less worthy men. But she is punished by fate. Susie, although she never has forgotten that she was the bearer of flowers at the wedding of the man she loved, protects the erring wife. The events that follow will be found most interesting. Sweet Lillian Gish plays the part of Susie and Robert Harron is William Jenkins. Clarine Seymour plays the role of Betty, the butterfly wife. The support generally is of the finest grade. Besides the above offering a funny two act Christie comedy "Shades of Shakespeare" and a thrilling 2 act detective drama are also being screened on the same program. Two good vaudeville specialties are also introduced on the same program in, Minnie Da Bey in a good songs logue and Dreano and Goodwin in a snappy singing, talking and dancing offering. The entire program will be shown again at Griffin's tonight, and at the Palace Wednesday, matinee and night on account of the overseas musical comedy, "Biff, Bing, Bang" holding the boards at Griffin's Wednesday night.

PLAY OF HYPNOTISM

The management of the Palace announces that tonight is the last opportunity to see Virginia Pearson in "Buchanan's Wife." This picture play is derived from the novel of Justus Miles Forman, the well known author it treats of a woman unhappily married to a student of hypnotism who makes her the subject of unusual experiments. When the husband disappears in a fit of melancholy, the wife turns for comfort to her sweetheart of happier days. Realizing that the only way she can be happy again is by marrying this man, she deliberately helps to establish the death of her missing husband; but the latter thwarts the plan by turning up again. How the embarrassing complication of one wife and two husbands is cleared away forms an interesting story that every Belleville theatregoer will enjoy. Besides the above offering "Hoot Mon", a funny Scotch comedy and a new and very interesting chapter of the "Perils of Thunder Mountain" are also being shown on the same program.

Hope of averting strikes of five hundred thousand bituminous coal miners, November 1st does not look bright.

NO REGRETS.

Prominent members of both parties have complimented The Intelligencer upon its fairness to the Liberal candidate all through the contest. We tried to give Col. O'Flynn a square deal in every way, and anything we had to say was said plainly and ample opportunity given for reply. Nothing was sprung at the last moment and no argument used against the opposition candidate that was not legitimate and to the best of our knowledge absolutely true. No one appreciates this more, we are convinced, than Col. O'Flynn himself, who is a fair fighter and willing to give and take just as hard knocks as public men are subject to. The Intelligencer tried to do its full duty to its readers and the public generally in the interests of good government, and as far as its newspaper campaign is concerned has no regrets.

W. H. IRELAND FOR WEST HASTINGS

PROVINCIAL RESULT A JUMBLE

After a hard-fought contest, Mayor Ireland, of Trenton, has been elected to represent West Hastings in the Legislature. Mr. Ireland's campaign was clean and open and fought entirely upon the public platform and in the public press. Never once has he disparaged his opponent in any way, and whatever he had to say about the Liberal candidate was of a complimentary nature. In fact, this was a feature of the campaign of both candidates; there were no petty personal allusions on the public platform at all.

Mayor Ireland's magnificent majority in Trenton, his own home town, and the solid support given him in the township of Sidney, shows that he is appreciated as a man of honor, and ability and worthy in every way to represent West Hastings in the Legislature.

In Belleville the Liberal candidate, Col. E. D. O'Flynn, polled a large local majority principally because of his personal popularity and a quiet but effective campaign waged in his behalf to vote for a Belleville man, some electors considering that their ballot is personal property, to be bestowed as an act of friendship and not as an expression of approval or disapproval of Provincial Government. However, no one will begrudge Col. O'Flynn his good showing in Belleville, which is a tribute to his personal popularity.

The returns from the Province as a whole are not encouraging, showing a mix-up which opens a wide opportunity for political scheming and shuffling. Both old parties have been hard hit and the United Farmers organization, without a leader, have the largest number of seats in the Legislature, but not a majority over all—having forty seats in a House of 111 members.

It is the general opinion that the election will prove abortive and that after a period of confusion there will have to be another election before a Government can be secured which will be able to "carry on." In the meantime the situation will be most interesting, to say the least, and both of the leading parties will have time to clean house and be ready for the next clash, which seemingly can not long be deferred.

The saddest feature of the election is the defeat of Sir William Hearst in Sault Ste. Marie, where the labor candidate was elected by a large majority. This would seem to indicate that the forces determined to drive Sir William Hearst from public life connected many of their efforts in his own riding, where he was able to spend only a couple of days during the campaign on account of his extended speaking tour. It is not creditable to Canadian politics or Canadian electors that a public man like Sir William Hearst, clean, honest and capable, should be given such a slap in the face at the polls. Another instance of a similar nature occurred in Kingston where Sir Adam Beck, the man who personally did much good for Ontario and saved the province a vast sum of money in lighting and power bills through the Hydro Electric Commission of Ontario, which he originated and carried forward to its magnificent success today.

It is to be hoped that the present election is just the boiling over of the pot of unrest and dissatisfaction with everything, which has followed the war, and that the political trickster is not to be preferred to Canada over men who have given great and valuable public service, and that not to their own personal advantage—rather the opposite, in fact.

The Hearst Government of Ontario, with a magnificent record of honest efficiency and progress, a war record which rings around the world, and a program of advanced legislation, far-reaching in its beneficial scope, has gone down to defeat and been succeeded by a condition critical and dangerous in the extreme—Legislatures divided into factions with no one faction able to assume the reins of Government without combining with another faction.

CRISP COMMENT

And the next day it rained!

It has been said that the Liberals originated the U. F. O. to create a diversion helpful to Liberal interests. The diversion materialized all right, but it developed into an eclipse which forced both old parties into the shade.

The Conservative candidate, Mayor Ireland, of Trenton, conducted his campaign in a manly, straightforward manner and made many new friends by his clean methods. That he will be a worthy representative of West Hastings in the Legislature goes without saying.

The new element introduced into the public affairs of Ontario in the U. F. O. and Labor candidates can be a strength or weakness to the province in proportion as they accept the responsibilities elected and their conception of their duty to the citizens as a whole and not to any particular class.

Now that the smoke of battle has cleared away we can all get down to business in the making of the Empire and Better Belleville and a Greater West Hastings. Obscured by the noise of election conflict four new industries have located in Belleville and one large new industry has been secured for Trenton. Cheer up, the best is yet to come.

No election is seemingly complete without a whispering campaign on the side in which the character of candidates is assailed in unworthy fashion. The public press and the public platform are wide open and fair enough to discuss all public questions with fairness to all and electors should not listen to street gossip and slanderous statements which are too false to bear the strong light of full publicity.

WHERE COLDS STRIKE

The throat, breathing passages and lungs are the weak spots at which colds strike. And these are the very organs most difficult to treat, because only a breathable remedy is capable of reaching the trouble-loaded there.

Peps provide a breathable remedy, and their superiority over remedies which are swallowed into the stomach is therefore obvious. For convenience, this breathable remedy is condensed into tablet form. To take the treatment, merely dissolve Peps in your mouth, and the medicinal vapor that is released is carried by the breath to the remotest parts of the breathing passages and lungs, healing, soothing and strengthening every cell with which it comes in contact. At the same time, by destroying all disease germs, these medicinal fumes prevent the development of colds, coughs and bronchial trouble.

Breathe Peps with you, and when you go from an overheated building to the keen cold of outdoors, put a pastille in your mouth. Also a protection against germs, keep Pep in your mouth, when breathing the fetid air of a crowded theatre or store.

Colds, coughs, throat troubles, chicken-pox and measles—Peps are equally invaluable. 50c. per box, at druggists, etc. All dealers, 50c. box.

The Poet's Corner

A MEMORY.

This is just the weather, a wet day and blowing,
All the shining, shimmering leaves tossing low and high,
When my father used to say, "Twill be great sowing;
God's weather's good weather, be it wet or dry."

Blue were his eyes and his cheeks were so ruddy,
He was out in all weathers, up and down;
With his pleasant smile and the word for a study,
"Sure, the weather's God's weather, who can take the harm?"

With a happy word he'd silence all complaining;
While the hay lay wet in field and the cattle shed;
When the rain rained every day and no sun was shining,
"Ah, well, God is good!" he'd say, "even while he sighed."

In the parched summer with the corn withering,
Every field bare as your hand and the dust at your feet to heed,
Still he kept his heart up when other hearts were sinking,
"God will send the fodder; 'tis He that knows the need."

Now, 'tis just the weather, a wild day and weeping,
How the blackbird sang and sang this morning, all the boxing leaves,
When my father used to say, "Twill be the great reaping,
God sends the weather to carry home the sheaves."

Society, even in America, cannot yet exist in safety without the protection of arms. Society is only a beleaguered castle surrounded by savages foot eager to plunder and demolish it, and protected only by its most its thick walls and devoted defenders. Law, the inviolability of life and property, brotherhood and the common weal, are still words and phrases unless there are police, armies and organized defence to make them good.

It was the fifteenth house he had called at since breakfast, and the bookagent was getting fed up.

"Sorry," said the householder when he could get a word in, "but I never read books."

"Buy it for the children, then," suggested the book agent.

"Well," was the despairing agent's last hope, "don't you want a nice heavy book to throw at the cat?"

"And now, my dear sir, I will not encroach upon your valuable time any longer—"

"Oh, it's all right, guv'nor," interrupted the "audience." "Fire away! Don't mind me. Here's no hurry; I've only your tax-driver."

His Official Widow

By T. LEDYARD SMITH

George Skinner had tried his hand at various occupations, from the lace of stick-at-it-ive-ness bore, as result, that being unsatisfied eye.

George had tried a little of everything. He had grown courageous once or twice—and had attempted work, but soon reformed and went back to his former ways. He even tried matrimony.

He was willing to try anything except year in and year out industry. To do him justice, it might be said, that he stuck closer to the general run of affairs surrounding horse-racing than anything else, but his investments at the track were not always made with the best of luck.

After some wear and tear of gray matter, he came to the conclusion that a man of thirty who has a wife should be insured; not for any small figure, but for something substantial, as high as he could stand for premiums.

Then he spoke to his wife.

"Why, my dear," said the wife should be protected. Not that she wished him to be so soon thereafter robed in white and started in the fortune-telling business. Oh, no, not at all.

Instead, her motive was that if he could only die—just officially die—and then come back and enjoy that which he had left behind, so to speak, as a ghost.

And now his mind was too busy with plans and ways; his brain was working at high speed to get to full capacity; working out a scheme and contrivance. He was talking a little to himself (?) to collect the insurance; fight.

Through the generous odds offered by a bookmaker ten dollars on a lucky horse supplied him with a roll with which he took out a policy for ten thousand. And to celebrate the start of his get-rich-quick scheme he blew his wife to as swell a la carte dinner.

And right here, if he had used glasses with strong lenses instead of fawning contents, he could have viewed his finish in the foreground.

In less than six months he had increased his insurance another ten thousand, the premium being acquired partly as before, but on a horse paying lower odds, and the balance on a cinch outside matter, the detail of which she was not disposed to discuss, not even with his wife. Call it conservation, for he did speculate as to his charity in that matter.

The summer was closing and the water would soon be too cold for comfortable drowning, such as he intended doing—to all intents and purposes. It was time to act, and his insurance was not as high as he intended.

The necessity for bringing a third party into the game was unfortunate, but it was necessary and had to be done; not, however, until this third party had raised cash to increase the insurance to forty thousand, from within. If they were successful, said third party was to have ten thousand.

They arrived at this conclusion after no little conference, and after the third partner had been introduced to the second partner, who could, of course, be trusted, and each solemnly declare, draw the full amount, but in whom they looked for honesty when the divvy came.

For conceiving the scheme and carrying it out George was to receive 30 shares—twenty thousand. For wearing mourning and looking sorry his wife was to have one and the balance of fund. For putting up the premium on twenty thousand insurance and in other ways the third partner was to get one share. So it was settled.

The third partner in this game had been more fortunate in some ways than George, and more shrewd and saving. He had put his spare dollars and spent his idle moments in a barber.

So in his selection George had picked out the right man. This launch was a necessary stage property in the play.

George's first move was to go east on a night boat, and again on another. He selected one that took a course through the middle of Long Island Sound.

After two trips east on this boat he calculated to the minute the running time from Bridgeport lighthouse at the entrance of the sound to a spot on the beach in the east, some ten miles from land on either hand, and returning by his pocket compass due south from another lighthouse on the north shore.

This was the exact spot where he was to—officially—drown; ten miles from the nearest land. This was the place where the two partners were to be with the launch, waiting to see him drown.

With the aid of an inflated undervest of rubber George would be able to float with ease, although he was a good swimmer, and then he would crawl ashore from out on the darkness of the sea, unobserved—drown. By the aid of a whistle, fastened to his wrist he could call them, and with the two pounds of power light from a picket electric lamp shore at intervals in the cabouts, provided a boat from the nearest shore to the scene before the launch and thus upset all his calculations.

This would truly be sad, and would necessitate planning a new way to die. But now his drowning might be a reality in spite of all his careful preparations.

Accordingly, to prove the judgment of his third partner to steer a launch at a course due south from their lighthouse, George made two more trips, throwing overboard at the exact spot timed from his own lighthouse at the west end of the sound, a contraband bag which floated a small electric light, and on each occasion his partners were within a half mile of the floating lamp, which they rescued and returned to George at Bridgeport on his way back to New York by rail.

The night for the event now arrived. His partners left Bridgeport in their launch upon receipt of a wire.

On the steamboat George identified himself at the office to the purser, and also at the bar. He seemed in the best of spirits and made a appointment to meet the bartender on the next trip to New York, when he would give him some valuable tips on the races.

George was so friendly that he made the acquaintance of a stranger at the bar, with whom he talked races. They had an appointment to meet in New York. After an exchange of cards the two strolled aft on the upper deck.

He said that just now he needed the air. Lovely night, was it not? And he sat on the side rail. A most careless thing for anyone to do unless he wished to make a wide circle in other wise satisfied wife.

He was talking a little thick. Then after looking at his watch once more—a habit people have who have drunk too much—he returned the watch to his pocket and then—then there was a cry and a splash.

The deck, save for one or two, was deserted, and in the commotion of a moment it was. It was minutes before the steamboat was stopped and more minutes before a small boat was lowered, which was then a mile or more away from the place of the accident. After a search of a half mile astern the boat returned, and the two oarsused-rude, impolite language to express their views upon a passenger who will delay a boat's schedule by failing overboard.

The stranger was much excited, as any stranger naturally would be who had not been let into the details of the drowning act.

For the rest, there were the usual formalities. The purser was notified and promptly had hysteria and could not be seen thereafter, except by the stranger, who for two days after called and extended genuine sympathy and offered all he knew of the accident. He spoke of the appointment they had made, and he offered his services if needed in any way. These were accepted to the extent of giving his testimony to the insurance company.

George maintained a temporary residence in Bridgeport—not that Bridgeport is a first stop between here and the hereafter, but it was just now convenient. He communicated with his widow through the third partner.

Finally, after a long delay, the company agreed to settle. Then the third partner evolved a new idea. The widow must become his wife. His wife? Why, she was the wife of George!

"George nothing. George is dead."

"Yes, but we know that George is not dead."

Then, but the law, represented by the company, says he is dead. He is legally dead, and you are his widow, and the company has agreed to pay. Now this is your position—my wife and forty thousand, or the wife of George and nothing."

"Do you mean—"

"Exactly," and the following day they were quietly married in Jersey City and returned to New York, where they could now collected her insurance of forty thousand.

Then, with her new husband, they went to a swell hotel. On the way they discussed in low tones their plans, and agreed to bank the money in the next day, as in the meantime to hold the bag in which it was carried.

George could do nothing, he assured her, for there was even turn up in New York. She felt very sorry for George, and cried—this time because she had lost him.

They entered the hotel and she waited in the reception room while her new husband went to register his Mr. and Mrs. He still carried the bag of money.

While he was gone he developed two new ideas, both of which he put through immediate execution.

He returned to inform her that he had changed his mind; went to George that they were married, and then he excused himself to go on another matter, and left her there standing over this new announcement.

His exit to the street by another door caused no consternation whatever. Nor could she complain to anyone and look humiliating so long.

The poor widow and poor bride waited, and if she were waiting for the return of the groom she would be still be waiting. She did, however, wait a long time and her patience was exhausted, her nerve gone, also, her money, her two husbands—but what's the use?

Simplicity, of all things, is the hardest to be coated.

Misery dumps a lot of stones on the road to success.

Honesty is the best policy, but playing policy often leads to dishonesty.

MY WHOLE LIFE
was spent in trying to cure an ulcer by using ordinary ointments," writes Mrs. Jeffrey, of 21 French Street, Methuen. "Then I heard of Zam-Buk, used it, and am now completely cured."

"Thirty-three years ago the ulcer appeared on my ankle, and gradually spread to my knee. The pain was terrific. For years I could hardly walk and had to remain in the house. For twenty-five years I received doctors' treatment but got only temporary relief.

Then I heard of some wonderful cures worked by Zam-Buk and commenced using it. The relief I experienced was wonderful. The inflammation was gradually drawn out. The pain was soon ended, and, at last after thirty-three years of misery, I was on the road to recovery. Now the long story short—perseverance with this wonderful balm resulted in a complete and permanent cure."

BRED GREAT MEN

Italian City of Florence May Claim High Honor.

Birthplace of Many of Those Who Rank, in Intellectual Achievement, Far Above the Rest of Mankind.

At first thought one would be apt to claim for London, the great metropolis, the honor of having given birth to the greatest number of the world's geniuses.

Among other great Londoners the following might be cited: Francis Bacon, philosopher and essayist; Spenser, Jonson, Milton, Shakespeare, known and honored poets; Hogarth, Reynolds, Turner, Millais and Holman Hunt, artists whose achievements are acclaimed by all the world of taste; Sir Christopher Wren, architect, whose who have influenced the building of empire; Daniel Defoe, the novelist; Faraday and Darwin, scientists, and many others. All these would stand in the very front ranks of greatness, some of them, like Milton and Bacon, towering above their fellow men like mountain peaks among molehills.

The Frenchman would undoubtedly stand up and claim the honor of having a long list of poets and painter and novelists and statesmen to justify his boast.

The Italian would probably put the finger on the map and back may we go in this quest? For if anyone has a right to be added to the record of the more modern city, where will you find her equal?

Then Athens would lift up her classic voice to heaven and read quote a long list of her sons who have formed the models of all subsequent time in art and poetry and philosophy and architecture.

But there is another competitor which can best them all in this contest. Compared with London or Paris, or even Rome, it is small indeed.

The city is Firenze—Florence—the native city of Savonarola, of Fra Angelico, of Michael Angelo, of Leonardo da Vinci, of the mighty Medici Angels, the glory of his age and of all succeeding ages; Florence, the city of Boccaccio, the father of novelists; of Machiavelli, who in time and position of this glorious galaxy of stars of the first magnitude.

How can a small place ever gave birth to so many mighty sons of genius in one of the standing puzzles of heredity and environment and education. Why does not Glasgow breed geniuses? Nobody knows. During a period of two hundred years Florence was a forcing bed for supreme achievement, and that forcing bed seems to have broke all records, ancient and modern, and it is hard to see where her competitor is to spring from who shall take away her crown of laurels.

Burgundy at its Best.

Burgundy at its best is regarded by the most eminent connoisseurs of Paris to be the best since 1865. In their view 1915 is the best.

The summer of 1915 was hot, so was the autumn, with light rains now and again at exactly the right intervals. M. Malthieu, celebrated savant on the subject of wines, writes: "Since 1865 there has been no Burgundy like that of 1915 in delicacy or strength. The 1915 vintage is a remarkable synthesis of bouquet, aroma, body and flavor."

But of course all this is of merely academic interest to us.

DAUGHTER OF THE PHILISTINES

By LEONARD MERRICK

He complied enthusiastically. She was being very sympathetic, and he felt, with perfect momentary content how jolly it was to have a lovely wife and talk these things over with her. Just what he had pictured.

"But wouldn't it be more exciting if you kept that a mystery till the third volume?" she said at the end of five minutes.

It was as if she had thrown a bucket of ice water on his animation.

"I don't want it to be a mystery," he said, sparing more difficulty. "That isn't the aim at all. What I mean to do is to analyze the woman's sensations when she learns it. I want to show how she feels as suffers; you and the temptation that she wrestles with, and loathes herself for being too weak to put aside. Don't you see—don't you see?"

She was chiefly sensible that his pleasure had vanished and that the note of interest in his voice had died. She, however repeated her suggestion; if she was to be a critic she must be prepared to maintain her literary views.

"I think all that would be much dull-er than if you had the surprise," she declared.

He did not argue—he did not attempt to demonstrate that her suggestion amounted to proposing he should write quite another story than the one he was telling about; he felt hope lessly that argument would be waste of time.

"Perhaps you are right," he said; "but one does what one can."

"But you should say, "What one will," dear; it can be done which ever way you like."

"There is only one way possible to me," I answered you," he said gently; "for once "the wrong way" is the more difficult."

"That which you think is the wrong way," said Cynthia; with gentle firmness."

He looked at her a moment incredu-lously.

"Good Lord!" he said; "let me know something about my own business! I don't want to pose on the strength of a solitary novel—I'm no arrogant—but let me know something —at all events, more than you! Heavens above! a great deveton has life to trying to learn the technique of an art which it wants three lifetimes to acquire; and Mr. Jones, who is a solicitor and Mr. Smith the shoe manufacturer and little Miss Pugh of Putney, who don't know the first laws of literature—who don't even "aware there are any laws to know—are all prepared to tell him how his books should be written."

"I'm not Miss Pugh of Putney," she said. "And if I were, we sh. know whether we like a book or whether we don't."

"Like!" he echoed. To "like" and to "criticise"—Men are paid to criticise books when they can't do it; it's thought to be worth payment. Editors, who don't exactly bubble over with generosity, sign articles for reviews. I don't pretend to teach Mr. Smith how to make his shoes; I've sense enough to understand he knows the way to do that than I. Nor do people think they can teach a painter how to compose his pictures, or that they can give a musician lessons in orchestration. Why on earth should they imagine they're competent to instruct a novelist? It is absurd!"

"Your comparisons are far-fetched" she said. "A painter and a musician, we all know, have to study; they——"

"They're entitled to the consideration due to a certain amount of money sunk—eh? That is really, it. There are thousands upon thousands of families belonging to the upper middle classes in England to whom fiction will never be an art, because the novelist hasn't been to an academy and paid fees. It is a matter of fact, it is only in artistic and professional circles—and one believes, in "Society" as it is called—that a novelist in England is regarded with any other feeling than good-humored contempt, unless he is publicly known to be making a large income. The commercial majority smile at him. They're a shibboleth—I'm sure it will be familiar to you: "You can't improve your mind by reading novels" is one of the stock phrases of middle-class English Philistia. Ask them if they improve their minds by looking at pictures in the National Gallery, or even in the New and they know it is essential they should answer, 'Certainly' Ask them how they do it and they are done.' Of course, they don't really improve their minds either way, because, to the contemplation of art in any form can be anything more than a vague amusement, a very much higher standard of education than they have reached is necessary; only they have learnt to pretend about pictures. It's an odd thing—or, perhaps, it's natural one—that an author of the sort of book that they are impressed by, a scientist, a brain-worker of any description, literary or not, talks and thinks of a novelist with respect, while these people themselves find him beneath him. There was a silence, in which both stared again at the sea. His irritation subsiding, it occurred to him that he might have expressed his opinions less freely, considering that Philista was his wife's birthplace. He was beginning to excuse himself when she interrupted him.

"Don't let us discuss it any more, Humphrey," she said, in a grieved voice, "please! I am sorry I said so much."

"I was wrong," said Kent; "I have erred you."

"No; I am not vexed," she replied, in a tone that intimated she was only hurt.

"Cynthia, don't be angry! Make it up!"

She turned instantly touching him with her hand, with a quick, pleased smile, and he set himself to efface the effect of his ill-humor upon her mood with entirely successful results. As they strolled back to the hotel, side by side, he felt her to be a long way from him—there was even a sense of physical remoteness. Mentally, she did not seem so near as in the days of their earliest acquaintance. He caught himself wishing he could debate a certain point in construction with Turquand, and from that it was the merest step to perceiving that Mentone would be jollier, if Turquand were with him instead. He was appalled to think that such a fancy should have crossed his brain, and strove guiltily to believe it had not; but once again he felt spiritless and blank, and it was a labor to maintain the necessary disguise. He observed forlornly that Cynthia always appeared happiest in their intercourse when the ineptitude of it was weighing most heavily upon himself.

UNDREAMED-OF RICHES COME TO MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN IN WONDERFUL OIL FIELDS

By Charles W. Barton.
Assistant Publisher of The Morning Telegraph.

When I boarded the train for Texas a month ago I was somewhat skeptical about the reports of the fabulous wealth which was coming to oil investors in Texas. I was prepared to meet a lot of smooth-talking, silver-tongued oil stock salesmen. To say the least, I expected that the oil men that I was to meet would show me the bright side of the oil business and put their best foot forward. Thus I was prepared to discount about 80 per cent. of what they told me and take what I saw with a grain of salt.

After having spent a month in the oil fields, my greatest worry is that if I tell the actual truth—the bare, cold facts—I will be considered a candidate for the presidency of the Ananias Club, or, speaking in the vernacular, the best liar east of the Mississipi.

I am told that in the town of Ranger a year ago there was hardly a man in the town who had a bank account of $5,000. Today there are probably twenty-five who have a bank account of $5,000,000. Millionaires are so common that nobody thinks anything about them.

Everybody seems to have plenty of money, even drillers making $12 and $15 per day.

Men and women have gone to sleep at night only to awake in the morning to find themselves multi-millionaires, because they have struck oil.

With modern machinery consuming an ever increasing amount of oil, and with England, France and Italy and all foreign nations calling upon us for more and more oil, the demand is sure to exceed the supply for a long time to come. Texas is the Aladdin of the world and opportunities there are greater than ever before.

Frankly, I must confess, that I expected to find a lot of crooks in the oil business. All my early training had taught me to shun an oil investment as I would a snake.

However, I must say that in my opinion the great majority of Western companies are absolutely on the level. I never met a finer class of people in my life than the men who are putting out these Western companies. There is no need for an oil company to be crooked. There is an inexhaustible supply of oil in Texas and there is so much money to be made by simply being fair and square that it is not worth while to be dishonest.

Jump on a train and go down and see for yourself, as I did, the wonderful opportunities which are open in every line of business in Texas towns and joining the oil fields. Talk with the farmer boy of a month ago, who today is a multi-millionaire. Talk with the immigrant who arrived $300 and today is worth over a million and owns her own oil well and is getting richer every minute.

I have been organizing companies for several years and I HAVE NEVER YET PROMOTED A FAILURE.

Royal Oil Wells will be my best effort.

I take full personal responsibility for Royal Oil Wells, Limited, and tender you my personal guarantee that we will produce oil and pay dividends. No efforts will be spared to make the company a whirlwind success.

Respectfully,

GLENN CRAIG TOBIAS,
President-General Manager

A man goes out and buys a lease in territory in which geologists have told him he should strike oil. He needs twenty-five to fifty thousand dollars to erect a derrick and drill a well, depending on the depth to which he must dig before he strikes oil. In some sections the oil "sand" is shallow fields, and in other sections he must dig much deeper. Barring accidents, such as drilling a crooked hole and having a cyclone blow the derrick, delay in getting materials because of lack of transportation, within about fifty to sixty days he knows whether he struck oil or has a dry hole. It doesn't take such brains to drill a well right next to another which is a producer, and strike oil, and if the company's holdings are in a producing territory where geologists state there is oil, the investor has more than an even chance to make a fortune.—From the New York Telegraph.

FACTS AND FIGURES. WHAT THE DRILLING RECORDS SHOW.

When an oil man decides to change operations into a field that is new to him, the first thing he does is to study the drilling records, the averages as applied to the new field. When you put your money into the oil business you should know the drilling records, what the percentages of the business are for and against you.

Records for the entire U.S., for the month of March, show that there were 2581 wells drilled. Only 463 were dry. In April there were 2500 drilled—only 457 were dry. In the Mid-Continent fields, including Kansas, Oklahoma and North Texas, month of May, 1504 wells were drilled—279 only were dry. In April 1417 were drilled, with only 252 dry. In North Central Texas alone, 401 wells were drilled, in the month of June. Of these 76 were dry. In May there were 263 wells drilled in North Texas with only 57 dry holes. Do you call that a gamble? Yet one good oil well will pay for a dozen dry holes. What matter if you do get one dry hole to every four oil wells?

FIVE WELLS TO BE DRILLED---FIVE CHANCES FOR A GUSHER IN THE HEART OF THE PROVEN OIL FIELDS

ROYAL OIL WELLS, LIMITED, WILL DRILL FIVE WELLS IN THE DEEP AND PROVEN OIL FIELDS. EVERY WELL WILL BE DRILLED RIGHT UP AMONG THE LARGEST PRODUCERS IN THE FIELDS. WILLIAMSON-DARING, AN EXPERIENCED OIL MAN, IS DRILLING ON FREESTONE STRUCTURES. EVERY WELL, ABSOLUTELY WITHOUT EXCEPTION, WILL BE DRILLED WITHIN 250 YARDS OF A PROVEN, PRODUCING OIL PROPERTY. THIS POLICY IS AN IRON-CLAD GUARANTEE FOR YOUR PROTECTION AND THE FIRST ASSURANCE OF ITS KIND EVER OFFERED INVESTORS.

50 Per Cent. FOR DIVIDENDS

Royal Oil Wells, Limited, is permanently pledged to the policy of substantial dividends—not 3% or 4% or 10%, but a full half—50% of every dollar's worth of oil produced. Do you realize what this means to you? Oil companies frequently earn a full 50% on capital invested in the short period of 30 days, many of them have earned 100% in 30 days. But the stockholder don't get it. Royal Oil Wells, Limited, will be conducted on a different basis. When the money is earned it is yours. Royal Oil Wells proposes to give it to you, and give it to you promptly. Thirty days after a well is drilled you will be gin receiving dividends from the oil produced. If our first well is a thousand barrel well 500 barrels a day or $1,000 a day will go to our stockholders.

There will be no set dividend rate. The earnings of each month will be split 50-50. 50% for dividends—50% for expenses and additional wells.

On the basis of one-half of our stock outstanding a daily production of 1,000 barrels would net you approximately 12% monthly, 50% quarterly or 144% a year on every dollar invested. We can't guarantee you that you will make a million dollars over night, but we can, and do, guarantee you that you will get every penny to which you are honestly entitled, and that every possible net dollar invested by you will go directly into oil operations—the purchase and drilling of the very choicest drilling locations to be had IN THE HEART OF THE PROVEN, PRODUCING OIL FIELDS OF TEXAS AND OKLAHOMA.

If you want to be an inside partner instead of a mere owner of stock, if you appreciate the kind of company that will pay the profits to you instead of to your estate, if you want to share in the great oil wealth that is enriching others, fill in the coupon, write your check for what you can afford to invest and mail it along at once. The coupon means money to you, and to every stockholder who buys into Royal Oil Wells, Limited. $10 is not too little—$10,000 is not too much. Remember, the more you put in the more you take out. But fill in the coupon now and mail it today. If you don't happen to have a check around, mail the coupon anyway and you can send your money later.

FORTUNES IN OIL.

There is an inclination on the part of a certain class to question the fabulous fortune reports that are constantly coming to light. However, no one will question the above statements by Charles W. Barton, who is one of the most respected and able journalists in the newspaper business.

As a matter of fact this page could be filled with condensed accounts of the unbelievable fortunes made in oil. Such stories come to light every hour of the day and yet not the half of them have been told. It is said of Tulsa, Oklahoma, that every member of the Chamber of Commerce is an oil millionaire, and that there are more than one hundred millionaires whose fortunes were made entirely through oil.

The oil business alone is open to the small investor as a possible fortune on a few hundred invested. It has been for years, and is today, the poor man's chance to accumulate large sums through moderate investments.

Immediately after the conclusion of the world's baseball championship, a party of "fans," including Col. T. L. Huston, vice-president of the American League Baseball Club, New York, Irvin S. Okanagan Valley is a valley of golden sunshine dicied with silver lakes and streams. Each way you look, the prospect changes; billowing hilltops, orchard covered slopes, and broad fertile meadows greet the eye. The valley is coming into its own and is prosperous and ranches are selling at very advanced figures.

Amid rugged and beautiful mountain scenery, at the foot of Okanagan lake, Penticton has become a popular centre for tourists. The Incola Hotel found it necessary to use every available space this season. Traffic was so heavy that sometimes verandas were used as sleeping apartments. The roads leading from Penticton are among the finest in British Columbia. One picturesque road leads through the Indian reserve. Along the road eighteen rustic bridges over gurgling streams are crossed in a distance of seven miles. A popular resort for the residents of Penticton is Skaha or Dog lake, three miles south of the town. Below is Vassa Lake, and a point of interest in the drive down the East shore is a painting on a huge rock. This was done by the Indians many years ago and there are outstanding figures of a horse and rider done in brilliant colors, which time and the elements cannot efface.

Twenty miles south of Penticton 2,500 acres of land will soon have an [illegible]

50,000 acres. Ten acres of bearing orchard at Penticton recently sold for $16,000, after the owner had taken off $1,700 worth of cherries. The balance was worth $4,000.

Seed growing is now being largely practiced in British Columbia, and the united seed growers have chosen Penticton as their headquarters and will erect their warehouse there. It is planned to grow seeds in the soldiers' settlement lands while the trees are young. Seeds from all over the Province will be sent there to be cleaned and stored.

At Kelowna on a forty acre apple orchard seven years old 37,360 boxes were grown and sold for $55,000.

There is unusual activity in the canneries and packing houses. One Kelowna cannery specializes in the canning of tomatoes. A creche is established in connection with each cannery. A jitney plies between Summerland and Penticton, following the famous Lake shore drive. On an August afternoon with blue hazes scarfing the slopes and gentle swelling mountains mirrored in the lake, it is a drive of unfolding beauties. This district has an unusually picturesque environment. The main mountain ranges are about 6,000 feet high with wooded slopes. In the centre of the district Giant Head rises a near and distant contour of a man's head.

Across the Lake lies Naramata, the last fruit district to be opened up. Here the "Red Mackintosh" apples have proved the best, while Tokay grapes are grown equal to any in the South of France. Belleville's New Industry

THE ONTARIO OAKOAL CO., LIMITED, have secured a franchise from the City of Belleville in return for an agreement to erect and equip a plant to convert Belleville's garbage and waste material into a highly efficient fuel, made under sanitary and scientific principles that insure the City being a cleaner and more healthful city, eliminating the dangers of infection and contagious diseases and creating employment for a number of citizens.

The Company's Managing Director will address a public meeting, to be held in City Hall Auditorium, on THURSDAY EVENING NEXT THE 23rd, INST., AT 8 P.M., to present to the citizens of Belleville a very interesting proposition.

The Company is not waiting to sell stock to the citizens, as it has the necessary Capital to build and equip—we are waiting for the City to secure the site of land best suited to our needs. Meantime, local interest has been aroused, since an OAKOAL plant will bring to Belleville an additional $50,000 per annum institution, and it has been suggested that the proposition suggested to the management be presented to the citizens, who may share in the benefits that a few men would prefer to receive.

The story of Conservation, Sanitation, Economies and Local Fuel Supply which you will hear will repay you well for your presence.

IMPROVES APPETITE.

A Study of Weather and Business Has Many Surprises.

Watch what you eat the next time it rains or snows. Perhaps you think it is weather takes away your appetite. It doesn't. It makes you eat more, says an American Magazine explains what weather does to the restaurant business. The writer says:—

"A study of the weather and business has its surprises. For instance, restaurant men know that appetites are not the same on a dark, gloomy day as on a day that is bright and cheerful. Natural enough! The surprising fact is that they eat most on the day that is raw and dismal.

"On a cloudy day,' an old restaurant man tells me, 'people hurry and eat. There is nothing else to do. On a fine day they eat less and hasten out into the open. But the less they eat the more particular they are about the quality.'

"Not so long ago a young woman opened a good little restaurant near the Department of Agriculture, in Washington. Most of her customers are employes of that department. She does a big business every day, but the rush is greatest when the day is the stormiest. On a fine day the men from near-by buildings walk to restaurants farther away, just for the exercise.

"No one knows just how much business is affected by the subtle influence of weather on human temperament. Dentists find that patients are inclined to be slow to make appointments and quick to break them on cloudy days. A cloudy day is depressing to many persons, and they lack the nerve to face the ordeal of having their teeth cobbled. The same thing that hurts the dentists' trade helps the regular pill doctors. A lot of people whose spirits are dampened by the weather think that if they go to a doctor and purchase an expensive prescription they will feel a great deal better," says the writer.

"I Wonder Would It Help Me?"

THIS question has been answered by many thousands of women who have found health and happiness in the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Sleeplessness, irritability, nervousness, gloomy forebodings of the future, depression and discouragement—these are some of the symptoms which tell of exhausted nerves.

In order to avoid nervous prostration or some form of paralysis it is well to get the building up process established at once by use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Glenmargarine to Stay.

Representatives of the agricultural constituencies were again to the front when the Government proposed to permit manufacture and importation of oleomargarine until March 31st, 1920, and its sale until March 1, 1921, was before the Commons. Here, importation, and sale of margarine has been permitted under an order-in-Council passed under the authority of the War Measures Act. Now that the war is over, it has been proposed to continue the permission by statute for a definite period. Members for rural ridings, Dr. Clending Donald Sutherland, of South Oxford; S. Frank Oliver, of Middlesex, and A. B. McCoig, of Kent, objected to the continuation of the right to manufacture, import and sell the butter substitute. They took the ground that to allow production and sale of margarine would be a serious blow to the dairy industry. Dr. C. A. Sheard, of South Toronto, on the other hand, urged the Government to further and foster the development of oleomargarine in Canada under proper supervision for the very purpose of keeping down the price of butter. A vote was necessary before the resolution was adopted, and the bill founded upon it was introduced.

SILKS OF GORGEOUS COLOR

Huguenot Collection Exhibited in New York Declared to Be a Marvel of Preservation.

What is perhaps the most wonderful exhibition of old French silks in the world is to be seen in the library of the International Buyers' club at 139 West Forty-second street, New York, says Electrical American. The collection comprises more than 100 specimens of silk manufactured by the descendants of the Huguenots who settled in Spitalfields and Bethnal Green, London, after the revocation of the edict of Nantes in 1685. It has lately come into possession of the International Buyers' club and is said to be the most valuable of its kind in the world.

The fabrics of the collection are as durable and the colors as brilliant as if they were turned from the looms yesterday. The disintegration of the silk fabric that one sometimes sees in Chinese mandarin coats has not taken place. Indeed, the old French silk workers did not develop their art from the ancient Chinese, who jealously guarded the secrets of their craft. The silk industry was originated in the western world by two Nestorian monks who had resided in China and who in about 550 brought to Constantinople the eggs of the silk worm in a hollow bamboo tube. From these contents developed the silk industry of Europe.

There is an elusive delicacy about the French silks that quite defies description. Many of the French patterns are quite up to date and are said to be in line for any revival of style. This is particularly true of the tiny patterns in checks, blue, red, yellow and brown in fields of white silk, all of which are adapted to cravats. The gorgeous colors are shown in the pattern of upholsteries; the most delicate and evanescent in those evidently intended for women's apparel or draperies. Wildfleur dyes the French weavers used, vegetable dyes that have given their beauty as the years go by. Gold, pure yellow, brilliant gold, is shown; white, heavy, flesh, cream, turquoise blue, ocean green, ashes of rose, chartreuse, honey, maple, geranium, scarlet, cardinal, dark red, a thousand other tints that would be hard to match now-a-days when we have 223 shades of navy blue alone.

The strength and durability of the silks in this collection, some of which are hundreds of years old, suggest that with reasonable care they are proof against disintegration of the ages. There is not a cracked, worn or thin sample among them. The brittleness of their dyes, some of whose formulas are at present lost to the world, is evidence that the world may never be forced to be completely dependent upon any one nation for its dyes and that the forgotten lore in the art of dyeing fabrics reveals the varied culture that may be retrived under the spur of necessity.

Treasure-Trove.

An ancient story of the greed of the Kings has been resurrected by an erudite member of the Institute de France, M. Arthur Bernard. The fact is there is some prospective work on hand for the utilization of the Three Hundred Years de captivité, history and modern enterprise come to blend in the same dear medieval ancientness. The story tells how the King of France, Louis IV, was taken one day to Aries, saw the Roman Amphitheatre and wished to buy it. He did not covet long, for the next day in this kingly episode was the shipping of the most perfect of Roman monuments en route for the capital city. The cost of the transfer was 60 for King of France, namely Louis XIV, with the precedent for the removal of the statue of Messalina from Bordeaux; not that the monarch ever needed either precedent or encouragement for his actions. The aeropagi started on their journey. It was in the year 1665. They had unfortunately not gone beyond the famous Font-Saint-Esprit, before the boats sank beneath an unusual and weighty a load. Now the congress for the development of water power, which sat in February this year, discussed among other schemes the transformation of the Font-Saint-Esprit. The question is—and it will be admitted to be an absorbing one—during the excavations in the bed of the Rhone will those aeropagi, after nearly four centuries ago, be recovered?

Unduly Apprehensive.

"I hope they'll make some exceptions in taxing luxuries," remarked the plain person.

"Are you expecting to be hit?"

"I might be. One of the greatest luxuries I know of is sitting around the house in my shirt sleeves and reading the paper."

INDIAN SENTENCED TO PENITENTIARY

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Oct. 20.—Steve Kaikkong, an Indian, who shot and killed his friend J. Jabez, following a drunken quarrel near Blind River, in June, was sentenced to twenty-five years' imprisonment by Chief Justice Falconbridge at the Fall Sitting of the High Court here. Kaikkong, after the row, deliberately went to his shack and procured a rifle, after which he shot Jabez in his own house. The charge was manslaughter, and the plea of the lawyer for the defendant did not seem to sway the jury.

Why Not Get An Organ?

If a piano is out of the question for the time being

Why deprive yourself of music in the home just because you do not feel you should buy a piano just now? A good organ, even though a used one, will bring music to you. If one of the children wishes to learn the piano let her start on the organ. Many a good pianist today first started on an organ.

We have a number of used organs which have been thoroughly repaired and put into first-class condition, and which we are clearing out at bargain prices and on easy terms.

A Camp Honeymoon

By IZOLA FORRESTER

Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

"Well, it's seven miles from Nowhere, sure enough," Dell declared with a sigh, after they had climbed the trail for three hours, and still the camp on Mirror lake lay far ahead of them. "I don't care, though. The farther the better, and I hope we'll never see a white man all the time we're here."

Wah-tonah, the guide, heard, and never changed his expression. If the white women who camped on the lake chose to think nobody else cared to camp there likewise, it was not his fault, nor his duty to instruct them. Two weeks before he had climbed the same trail with the three men who wanted to be where there were no women. One had been very ill. One was his brother and helped him over the rough places along the trail. The other sang much. His voice rang out in the wilds like some clear-toned bird call. The guide remembered, too, that he had been like the old hero hunters to look upon, tall and slim and strong, and he had laughed much and cheered the other two.

There was no fear that they would meet unless the curling smoke of the camp fires betrayed them to each other, but Wah-tonah felt his conscience was perfectly clear in the matter. They each had a whole side of the lake to themselves. If they would stay on their own sides there would be no trouble. And here he had a happy thought. Gravely he looked at the three; the one too fat, the one too thin, the one with the hair like sunlight and eyes like deep water in shadow. He did not know their names, but this one he liked best, so he addressed her.

"Too much bear on lake," he told her. "Not where you go. All good there. Too much bear other side lake."

"We'll stay right on our own side, thanks, Wah-tonah," Beth said promptly. "Anyway, we're all pretty good shots."

But she remembered what he had said. After the second week at the camp one day she had swung out into the woods to pick berries, and there came a suspicious crackling in the undergrowth. Watching keenly, she heard the slow, wary movements of a body pushing its way through, and before she thought twice she had slung her rifle to her shoulder and sent a good shot straight at the moving bushes. Almost instantly there came a good, heavy broadside of strong language, and Beth sat tight on a log, longing to laugh and only glad the shot had not taken effect.

Out from the woods came her "big game," six feet two, dressed in khaki, and frankly furious. At sight of her he stopped short, stared and then laughed with her.

"Well, you did clip my hat," he said ruefully, showing the two neat holes through the peaked crown. "Do I look like a bear?"

"You acted just like one," said Beth. "How was I to know. Wah-tonah, our guide, told me there wasn't a soul up here but us, and there were bears on the other side of the lake."

"The cheerful liar!" exclaimed the intruder. "He took our whole outfit up there a month ago, and knew we were going to stay, and he's been up with supplies twice since, and never told us anybody was here but ourselves.

"We've got a dandy camp down on the shore in that little curve where the pine grove is. Probably he didn't tell us about you because—well, my aunt's with us, and Dell, that's her daughter; Dell's just had a really terrible experience. She is completely disillusioned, and the engagement's broken, and we came up here to try and make her forget. She had heard of the lake from him, and always wanted to come, I believe."

"Isn't that too bad!" Stanley settled himself beside her sympathetically. "May I help pick berries, too? Maybe we can fix up a truce whereby I'll trade fresh fish with you for huckleberry pies; how's that? I'm dying for a whole pie. We're not much on cooking, any of us. There's Frank Carter—maybe you've heard of him, awfully clever fellow, scientist at Columbia—and his brother, Hal. I roomed with Carter during our post-grad. years and when he had to come up here with Hal, I told him I'd stand by. He's pretty sick; nervous breakdown and worry."

"Hal Carter?" queried Beth, eagerly. "Why, he's the man, you know."

"The man?"

"Yes, the one Dell was engaged to, and they were to be married this fall, and she went to visit a girl friend, Madeleine Collier, and she found out he'd been engaged to her, too."

"Well!" Stanley tried to look serious.

"But he had told Dell she was the only girl he had ever loved."

"Didn't that prove it, when he'd found out the other was a mistake?"

"I don't know." Beth looked away from him over at the waters of the lake. "I suppose in men engagements are just happenings, but perhaps they don't realize there are girls who are different, who really do believe in—"

"What?"

"Why, in romance, don't you know." She flushed a little, but went on, feeling she was pleading Dell's cause against one who was an infidel in the faith of loving. "It was an awful shock to her to find out he had been all through a real engagement before. Madelaine told her she had even started her trousseau."

"It may do her good to tell her"—his tone took on a quick sternness as he stood up—"that Hal's absolutely smashed up over her silly nonsense. He loved her completely. He made up bring him up here because it seemed they had planned to spend their honeymoon here in camp—"

"That's what Dell told me. I must get back, or they'll miss me."

"Let's try and tie up these ends of romance again, you and I," he said. "And don't think me an infidel. I believe, too, in love at first sight."

She ran back down the overgrown path to the camp with his words ringing in her ears and a guilty load on her conscience. But the secret of the other campers was as safe with her as with Wah-tonah, and when she coaxed Dell to take a long hike with her she never betrayed that Captain Stanley had laid out. He was to bring Halbert halfway round the lake, up to the rocky point where the pines were and leave him there to rest just when Dell would find her way up the narrow trail.

The two conspirators walked down at the base of the cliff. They had known each other now for two whole weeks, and when Dell and Mrs. Cameron had marveled at the fish Beth caught she only smiled happily. There was too much at stake to give the secret away.

"How long shall we leave them up there?" asked Beth, hopefully.

"Till they come down. If there had been any trouble she'd have come flying back the minute she saw him. It's all right. I'll bet a cooky they are married up here and chase us all away," he laughed up at her. "You had a cunning time, haven't you? I wonder if you still believe that?"

"What?"

"Love at first sight." Above them there came a whistle, then a hail from Hal. "Don't answer yet," he began. "They won't miss us a bit. Didn't you know the first day we met that—"

"They're coming down," said Beth. "I know it's all right."

He took her two hands in his and forced her to turn to him.

"I've never even asked a girl to marry me before," he said, "and here you won't even listen to me. I'll throw you over my shoulder and carry you back to camp if you don't answer me."

She laughed up at him teasingly as Dell and Halbert came in sight together.

"I'd love a honeymoon in camp, too," she said.

BIRD SAVED LOST BATTALION

And for That Reason "President Wilson" Has Been Cited for the D. S. C.

The carrier pigeon that saved the "Lost Battalion" was a visitor here the other day with the third assistant secretary of war.

This winged messenger, named President Wilson, is the sole survivor of a basket of signal corps pigeons that attempted to carry messages from the "Lost Battalion" to headquarters. For this service the war department has cited it for the Distinguished Service cross. In action it had its left leg shot away.

The official citation of President Wilson follows:

"During the operations of the tanks in the St. Mihiel offensive, one big blue bird, known as his trainer as President Wilson, working from the tanks carried messages of importance with such rapidity of flight as to call forth commendations from the signal officer of the first corps. Transferred to the Meuse-Argonne sector, with station at Cuisy, President Wilson again proved his merit. It was on the morning of November 3, the big blue, with his leg shot off, arrived at his loft. His flight, the second on this front, was made in 21 minutes, over a distance of 39 kilometers. Particularly creditable was the performance of President Wilson because of the fact that he homed in a heavy rain and fog. A powerful bird, of wonderful vitality, his wound was recovered quickly, and today graces the Hall of Honor of the American pigeon service, President Wilson is officially designated as U. S. A. 18, 16374, b. c."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Noted Chinese Engineer.

Jeme Tien-yu, better known among Chinese as Chan Tien-yu, died recently at Hankow. He was the builder of the Peking-Kalgan railway, the only purely Chinese railway, and has held many important posts in connection with China's railways and the ministry of communications. In building the Kalgan road he made a record for efficiency and economy, doing good work at small cost not yet equaled by an foreign engineer in China in any large undertaking. He was American-trained.—Far Eastern Bureau Bulletin.

Welcome Troops With Song.

In Frankford, Pa., 93 war camp community service has organized singing groups to welcome home the boys and to have the groups participate in the great peace celebration which is scheduled for May. The groups will be divided into adult community units, female industrial units and children's units, and will be so distributed about the town that the total number of voices will number about 10,000.

Kitty, My Pretty White Kitty

By E. E. MACKLEM

(Special, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

The house is full up, ah! The sizzling, white-aproned embodiment of activity and importance, on the steps of the high-class boarding house of the Misses Lovejoy, in the little health resort town of Rolling Springs, bowed her neat, big clipped head wellnigh touched the elusive pink spider lilies on the flower boxes beside the piazza steps. "I has to offered to you de instantest regrets o' my ladies, but eb'ry bed room is ratsened. De last one was bespoke by wish dat fashnoon."

When a man all his fifty years gets everything he wants and goes 700 miles on his physician's recommendation of the water and baths for a rheumatic knee, he naturally feels vexed when, at his journey's end, he doesn't get the first of his wishes granted.

Therefore Alderson's thin dark eyes clouded a bit as he turned away and strolled across the high sloping street toward the Coppell house, recommended of by the second best boarding house in Rolling Springs.

And just then "Miss Nellie," a little, slim, auburn-haired and smiling lady about thirty-five years of age, with the gentlest, softest brown eyes, came up this street. Alderson met her at her gate. His face cleared instantly, and when she stooped to pat the immense white cat that advanced to meet her, with "Kitty, pretty white kitty, are you glad to see her?" on her lips, an unreasoning twinge of jealousy went over Miss. Why should a beauteous creature like that waste affection on a cat?

That evening Alderson sat on the upstairs porch that opened off his room at Mrs. Coppell's, and in the full light of the moon he watched Miss Nellie Lovejoy as she stood by the row of pink-scented daturas, whose great, dew-covered white bells made a glory of the Lovejoy side yard. Then he saw her stoop and pat the white cat that followed her.

"I wouldn't mind being that cat," he thought whimsically.

The next afternoon, coming from the bathhouse at the springs, some distance from the boarding place, Alderson overtook Miss Lovejoy going home from her work as a clerk at Fraser's store. He spoke to her, and making a pretense of desiring some information, walked along with her as far as her gate.

Two days of religiously drinking the mineral waters and taking the baths had Alderson's rheumatic knee was nearly well, but he was having strange feelings in the vicinity of his heart.

He had never cared anything for women as he knew them in the North, but he had never before been acquainted with an auburn-haired Southern lady, with a voice like soft, rippling water and eyes like pools in the forest.

Hence at noon began quite frequently to come down on "No. 11," the late afternoon train, from the nearest big town for Miss Nellie Lovejoy, and fancy wicker boxes of chocolates without number, with "T. M. Alderson's" card inclosed.

And Miss Nellie glowed and dimpled and smiled until the Fraser customers, who had always loved her, fairly worshiped her.

And in the seventh heaven of delight Jonathan received the boxes of candy and flowers, and watched through the front door screen each afternoon the gentleman from Detroit, as he lingered at the gate, loath to lift his hat from his handsome gray head in good-by to Miss Nellie.

About three o'clock one morning of the fifth week of his stay in Rolling Springs Alderson was awakened by a "meowing" in the back yard. For an hour then was a continuous squalling. When the cat finally ceased its noise Alderson, who loved late sleeping, could sleep no more. He rose thoroughly exasperated.

The next night there was a repetition of the feline serenade. Alderson bounded from his bed and saw in the yard below the balcony the big, white cat that belonged at the Lovejoy house. He threw a convenient golf stick in its direction and returned to bed, but sleep was gone.

"To whom does the white cat that stays in your house belong?" Alderson asked a bit stiffly of Miss Nellie as he overtook her on her way home that afternoon.

"Snow Darling?" she smiled. "Oh, he belongs to Mrs. Gilman, an old lady who has made her home here so long, and we all make a pet of him," she went on in her sweet, soft tones.

"If he keeps up that after-midnight noise as he did last night and the night before," Alderson commenced, "everybody'll make a corpse of him."

"Why, we—we didn't hear any noise," Miss Nellie remonstrated, "you must have been dreaming, Mr. Alderson."

Three nights went by before the white cat again serenaded the Coppell house. Then two nights together Alderson's rest was broken. At that time he was of the only boarders who slept on that side of the house, and the only one who heard the caterwauling. At the end of the second night Alderson went to the Lovejoy house and remonstrated.

Miss Nellie was not at home, but Misses Euphemia and Jessie expressed their sorrow and promised to try to get Mrs. Gilman to keep "Snow Darling" in at night. Alderson went home somewhat mollified.

That night the cat was not in evidence, but Alderson was awakened by a sound of sobbing. He looked out and saw Miss Nellie Lovejoy, with her head bowed on her arms, sitting on the steps of the balcony. Alderson's heart gave a great throb. He was out of his room and down the stairs in a moment.

"Miss Nellie, what is the matter?" he asked, and his voice was tender.

"Snow Darling is dead," she sobbed. "Some one has killed him. He was lying in the road. He was run over by a motor car."

"Oh, I'm sorry," Alderson said, and he was sorry, for he knew how much the cat meant to the girl. "I'm sorry, but I'm glad, too, that the cat is dead. Now you can sleep at night, and so can I."

"You are cruel," she said, and she looked at him with a look that he could not understand.

"Cruel?" he repeated. "Why, I'm not cruel. I'm only glad that I can sleep at night."

"You are cruel," she repeated, "and I hate you for it."

"Miss Nellie," he said, "I'm sorry if I've hurt you, but I'm glad that the cat is dead. I'm glad that I can sleep at night. I'm glad that you can sleep at night. I'm glad that—that—"

"That you are rid of a nuisance," she said, and she looked at him with a look that he could not understand.

"Oh, my ladies knowed what was good for 'em," he commented, "dey's invest in about a dozen, worth a hundred-dollah-to-eat' stiff, absolutely stiff, unbeknowns! But bein' ole maids, poah things, dey don't know dat when you gits a man mad—he'll fahgit about bein' in de marryin' notion!"

Before breakfast next morning Alderson appeared at the Lovejoy house, tremulous with nervous anger. Miss Nellie opened the door. "I'm sorry if the kitty disturbed you," her soft voice was very sweet, "but Mrs. Gilman loves him so, she can't bear to see strain his liberty and fasten him up at night."

Alderson's exasperation broke out in mild fury. "Loves the pestiferous fiends of fur, does she? I love dogs, too, and I'm going to stay in the house where I am and get it! The next time that cat disturbs me, I'm going to restrain his liberty—with a bullet!"

"That wouldn't be right," quavered Miss Nellie.

Alderson turned abruptly and left her without another word.

He was not disturbed that night, but the next day he kept out of Miss Nellie's way. The night after, at the usual hour of half-past three, he was awakened by a feline wailing. He rose instantly. A single shot from his pearl-handled revolver and "Snow Darling" was no more.

Next day a very fat and exceedingly irate lady telegraphed her son to come to her. Jacob came, Alderson was haled into the police court and fined ten dollars for shooting Mrs. Gilman's cat.

"I'll go to jail and dry up before I pay that fine!" he informed the court.

"Sixty days in jail or the fine paid!" answered the judge.

"I'll live on bread and water for the next two months in my cell before I will pay that fine!" Alderson commented.

The town rang with the tale.

"De jailer says dat Detroit man's a-gettin' pale and his rheumatism's comin' back on him—not gittin' his mineral baths and de watah. He say he plumb uneasy about him!" Miss Nellie overheard Jonathan saying to the cook about a week after Alderson's incarceration.

Suppose he died of the heat or something? For three nights Miss Nellie cried herself to sleep. When she could stand it no longer. She went to the judge's office and paid Alderson's fine.

The judge, supposing that Alderson had requested his landlady to bring the money, to spare himself mortification, sent an order to the jailer: "Release T. M. M. Alderson. Locals."

"Judge said your fine was paid and to turn you out. That's all I know!" The jailer answered Alderson's remonstrance.

He went to the judge. "Who dared to pay that fine?" he demanded.

"Lady brought it. Supposed you sent it by your landlady," answered his honor.

Fuming with anger, Alderson strode off in the direction of the woods across the river. In a thicket of pines lying prone on the pine needles, sobbing like a hurt child, he came upon Miss Nellie. At sight of the little disconsolate figure in he leaves he felt his anger cool. A twig broke under his feet. She sat up, shaking.

"Oh, don't be angry with me!" she begged. "They said you were sick and suffering in that awful jail and I—I couldn't bear it! I went and paid your fine!"

With the touch of the wind, sweet with piney fragrance, in his flushed face and Miss Nellie's low sob in his ears, Alderson's pride and obstinacy fled. Nothing mattered but that little white bundle at his feet. He bent over and lifted her.

"You were afraid I couldn't rough it out?" he said, very tenderly. "You thought I needed somebody to look after me? Oh, and for all time! Won't you do it, little girl?"

BIG MEN OF AFGHANISTAN

Sethi Merchants, About Whom This Country Knows Little, Are People of Much Consequence.

The world is still a large place and contains a variety of men. The manufacturer who enters foreign trade makes many discoveries that were undisclosed in his school days. For example, in northwestern India he may meet the Sethi merchants, who conduct the trade of Afghanistan. These Mohammedan traders are men of consequence, and have their connections throughout Asia. Before Russia disintegrated they had branches in Petrograd and Moscow. They have their places of business in all the central Asia marts of importance, such as Bokhara and Tashkent, and buy and sell in Teheran and Shanghai. Clearly such merchants are men of consequence in vast territories our own part of the world scarcely guesses at. Its merchandising they add banking, selling drafts on strange cities where a European bank would look as out of place as an Afghan caravan on the Lincoln highway.

These merchant-bankers of central Asia may add to their adventures if the Afghan people in their warlike demonstrations against the British in India.

Learning It Early.

Son has just begun to go to school, and has much to say about the new little girls he meets, but every few days it is a different girl that attracts him. His mother said: "I'm afraid, son, that you are changeable."

"Don't we most always, mom," he answered: "it's them, when you know them better."—Life.

Everyone Who Bought Canada's Victory Bonds Made Money

EVERY one of the million and a half subscribers to Canada's Victory Bonds knows that he can sell them today for more than he paid for them.

Every one who bought Canada's Victory Bonds has received 5½ per cent. interest per annum—paid twice a year.

Over half a million Canadians who bought Canada's Victory Bonds on the instalment plan saved money that they would not otherwise have saved.

The guarantee back of Canada's Victory Bonds is the same as the guarantee back of a One Dollar or a Two Dollar bill. There is this difference, however, that you get interest on the Victory Bonds and you don't on the One or Two Dollar bill.

Canada's Victory Bonds will always be accepted as security for a loan.

Banks are ready to loan money on Canada's Victory Bonds.

Canada's Victory Bonds may be turned into cash at any time.

There is no other way in which you can invest your money with such absolute security—paying such a good rate of interest.

Canada will soon give her citizens an opportunity to buy Victory Bonds 1919. It will probably be the last chance to buy Canada's Victory Bonds on such favorable terms.

Prepare to buy as many Victory Bonds this time as you now wish you had been able to buy the last time.

SUITS AND COATS
Return to Strictly Straight Line is Predicted.

Variety of Styles and Contradictions Between Paris and New York Are Expected to Continue.

Differing from the general opinion abroad is an American authority who is emphatic on the subject of width in suits and coats and makes the statement that a return to the strictly straight line tailored coat is certain. In this comes from one of the houses which sent out all extreme and very well known it carries weight. It is possible, notes a leading fashion correspondent, that the next season will see the same variety of styles and absolute contradictions between Paris and New York that have prevailed for the last twelve months.

Paris, quite as much as China, is a place where they do things by opposites. Having discarded as much clothing from the knee downward as possible, in the warmest of weather they are wearing velvet berets and velvet hats. It is fortunate that there is a vogue for hats of black tulle and Chantilly or the smart Parisian would be doomed to wear nothing but velvet in the warmest of days unless she resorts to the gyrotined paper hat imitation.

The white velvet is, of course, very much overworked black, if one must wear velvet on a summer day. Lewis put forth some charming models in Angliore and milan, but they proved too commonplace for the Parisian, who confined to wear them.

One of Lewis' best liked models is bt white velvet in a rolling brimmed sailor shape with a huge "bow" of marabon in white also. It had the merit of looking summery, at least in color, and does not look as out of place as did some of the velvet tam-o'-shanters, which accord in description a great deal like our own Greenwich village headgear.

Less Crime, Fewer Carpets.

There does not as-first glance seem to be much connection between crime and carpets, says the London Daily Mail, but it is a fact that the decrease in crime brought about in India, as elsewhere, by the war has led to a decrease in the supply of Indian carpets. The reason is that most of these carpets, especially the finer and more expensive kinds, are made by convicts, probably in the great jail at Poona.

They are made entirely by hand, so as a case of few convicts few carpets.

SHIPS WHICH DON'T COME IN.

Few People See "Chambers of Horrors" In London.

In the very heart of the city of London there is a "chamber of horrors" which none but the privileged may enter, and of which the world at large knows nothing, says Pearson's Weekly.

There is nothing at all gruesome in the aspect of this chamber, which is, in fact, a small, cheerful room leading out of the great hall of Lloyd's, and on the walls of which is an array of flimsies, yellow and brown.

It is in those innocent-looking pieces of paper that the latest tragedy lies, for they tell of ships missing and lost, and each telegram has quite a tragic importance to some of the 500 underwriters who haunt the room.

Whenever a ship leaves port she is insured by her owners at Lloyd's against loss or damage to herself or her cargo; and this risk is divided among a number of underwriters, who insure her for certain sums ranging from £100 to thousands of pounds, in return for a premium.

A slip is passed round from one underwriter to another, and on the information supplied as to the destination, cargo, and class of the ship, the names of her owners and captain, the insurance required and its rate, each underwriter puts down on the slip the sum for which he is prepared to make himself responsible in case of loss or damage.

The limit is entirely at the discretion of the underwriter, and there have been cases in which a man has ventured £50,000, and even £100,000, on the safe voyage of a vessel.

When a man thus risks hundreds or thousands on a stake so full of uncertainty as the safety of a ship, which naturally encounters so many dangers, her voyage is a matter of daily anxiety to him until she reaches her destination.

When she is overdue the anxiety of the underwriter increases, and each day that passes without the ship's arrival at her destination being reported adds to it. He begins to see the wisdom of reducing his risk by "hedging," and at this stage the "doctor," as he is called at Lloyd's, comes on the scene.

The "doctor" is a man who deals in overdue risks, and for an increased premium is willing to take the original underwriter's responsibility on his own shoulders.

When the original premium was, say, 25s. per cent., the "doctor" demands five guineas—or, as the risk increases through the continued non-arrival of the overdue ship, ten, twenty, fifty, or more guineas for each £100 insured.

In some cases an underwriter has paid as much as seventy and ninety guineas per cent. to reinsure an overdue vessel, which has turned up safely after all, to his chagrin and the "doctor's" great jubilation.

It is thus easy to see with what trepidation a man who has staked a large sum on an overdue vessel must enter the "chamber of horrors," dreading day by day to see the fatal announcement that must mean a heavy loss, and may mean absolute ruin to him.

LUXURY IN EARLY TRAVEL

"Safety Barges" Instituted for Those Who Feared Hazard of Voyage on Hudson River.

The frequency with which boilers blew up on the early Hudson river boats led to the use of what were known as "safety barges," and these, in their day, were considered the utmost luxury in travel, comparable to the private cars of the magnates of today. The barges were boats with main and upper decks and were almost as large as the steamers which towed them. The rabble rode on the steamers, inhaled the smells of the kitchen and the freight holds, endured the noise of the engines, and took the chances of explosions, while on the barges behind the elite traveled in luxurious state. Food was brought from the boat kitchen to the barges' saloon over a swaying bridge, between the vessels and was served with great splendor under the direction of the barge captain, who was a noble figure in the setting.

The upper decks of the barges were canopied and decked with flowers, with promenades and easy chairs from which to view the scenery. At night the interiors were transformed into sleeping accommodations much the same as a modern Pullman, except that they were more commodious. Not the least attractive feature of these barges, according to a chronicler of their excellence, was "an elegant bar, most magnificently supplied with all that can be desired by the most fastidious and thirsty."

Recent news dispatches which tell of plans to establish floating cafes on the ocean just outside the three-mile territorial limit, in the nation's gone dry, indicate that luxurious floating establishments somewhat similar to these "safety barges" may again come into use.

Unique Houses.

Goodwood's famous Shell House, is a unique structure.

Another unique dwelling-house is that locally known as the Teapot Hall, near Horncastle. It was built in the same shape as a teapot by the captain of one of the old fast-sailing tea clippers engaged in the China trade years ago.

A house that is more than half boat exists near Gravesend, and is locally said to be the original of Dickens's house at Yarmouth as described by Charles Dickens in David Copperfield. The latter was also included many who were quite unpretending, and quite the last lot one would pick for heroics. Bill Foulks was a sample of the latter. His general make-up and character showed him into the cook-house help class. These are generally men who, hunky enough, do not yearn for drill and smartness, but rather for easy-going jobs about camps and such. He reaches France about November, 1918. WAR SERVICE BUTTON SALADE.

Every Man Who Wears a Button Is Not All He Seems.

Sergt. Aldous of the battalion was supposed to be armorer-sergeant. He was not efficient; never ought to have come along at all. The colonel fancied him though, back in Toronto during the formation period, and although told by the ordnance people that "the man was not fit for the job," persisted in his desires. It is a way colonels have at times, and a mighty awkward way it is, too. The sergeant reached England with his inefficiency, also France with the same incubus. Here, his brave front wept to pieces, and he was a burden to all concerned. Never saw the front, never thinked a rifle, never calmed his passage, was only a nuisance. So, back he came to talk largely of his experiences, always growing larger, to get a button and become a veteran.

Late in 1918 the last batch of draftees went forward; they naturally included many of those who through no fault of their own had not got over before. The batch also included many who were quite unwilling, and quite the last lot one would pick for heroics. Bill Foulks was a sample of the latter. His general make-up and character showed him into the cook-house help class. These are generally men who, hunky enough, do not yearn for drill and smartness, but rather for easy-going jobs about camps and such. He reaches France about November, 1918. Is attached to a celebrated Toronto unit, does his share of cookery and still retains the freshness and —back in the spring of 1919 quite a hero, by the cheers which greeted him; gets a button, too.

The captain in this salade had been a captain for some years before the war. He was the very sort you would think useful. The colonel fancied him muchly, and you have been told that captains' duties are to be thoroughly respected. So, in spite of the warnings of those higher up, the persistency of the colonel told, and the captain went over to England with the battalion. Here his usefulness was found to be quite a minus quantity, and when the battalion went to France, he stayed behind. By this time the colonel has seen light. The captain worked in a way for a while, had a trip to Canada on some vague grounds, came back go England, loafed some more, got sent to France on what is called Town Major's work, called "housey-housey" by the men, came back to Canada and got a button.

All shades have four parts if property made. The fourth part of this one concerns an ordinary private who never did anything, never got anywhere, never had any great desires or ambitions, or if he had certainly kept them to himself. Eventually he came along to the demobilisation period. He has had a couple of years' work as a soldier and had been duly paid, fed, and clothed. In spite of there being a war on of real bigness, no one had ever contemplated for a moment sending this man forward. He wasn't good enough to send, and so quietly loafed away here at home. There are quite a lot of these. When he came up for discharge, "Got your button?" "No, sir!" "All right, here —back in civil life and you get no button.

Now put the dreams on the soldier and make up your minds, that every man who has a button is not all he seems. It is a worthy badge and an honorable one, but there are tares in most wheat.

GENERAL BELIEF IN HONESTY

Something Very Like the Millennium Seems to Be Near in Great British Metropolis.

How is the sudden trust Londoners have come to exhibit for each other to be accounted for? There is an extreme shortage of copper coins for small changes in London, and one man says of his experiences: "On several occasions lately news vendors who have been unable to change silver have said to me, 'Never mind, pay me the next time you are this way.' Only one of them knew me as a regular customer. Even more unexpected credit than this was offered me at a railway booking office where I tendered a shilling for a two-penny fare. 'I'm short of coppers,' said the girl booking clerk, 'pay me tomorrow.' 'But I shall not be here tomorrow,' I replied. 'Then pay me the next time you are here, whenever it is,' she said. 'But supposing I forget,' I expostulated. 'Oh, I know that you will come and pay me some day, she answered. 'I've never known people fail.' Such confidence is enforced by others, who tell of copper credit thrust upon them by strangers, and often very poor and humble strangers.—London Mail.

Strong Man Was Chosen By French Government As Governor of Alsace

THE "lost provinces" of Alsace-Lorraine are a part of France again. By way of showing her attitude in the matter, France has put one of her strongest men who is also one of her most sincere haters of all things Prussian, at the head of the recovered territory. He is Alexandre Millerand, former French Minister of War, and a man with grasp of the characteristics, according to report, of old Premier Clemenceau. His personality is described as "forceful," and he has a "fighting jaw" which somewhat resembles that of the old "Tiger." Already, under his direction, the Germanized industries of the provinces are being converted into a part of the French system.

He was a lawyer and a newspaper publisher at various times, and he was one of the leading French Socialists for many years. But he has grown conservative and, like Clemenceau, bears few of the markings of the Socialist, and, like Clemenceau, has weathered many of the storms of French politics. The two used to be friends, then became antagonized, said it was not until Clemenceau recently was wounded by an anarchist that they became wholly reconciled.

A stocky, thick-set man, with regular, swarthy features, heavy white moustache, and thick, white hair, he is the personification of strength. It has long been a saying in France that "Millerand never backs up." He fought a duel with a Paris deputy once because he would not yield a disputed point. He was wounded and so lost the duel, but he later triumphed in the issue over which they fought. It was Millerand's refusal to "back up" that caused him to resign as Minister of War in 1912, when a crisis arose over his resignation of Col. Paty du Clam to the army. Paty du Clam, because of his part in the disgraceful Dreyfus affair, was in disrepute. When Millerand entered the War Ministry he found a promise left by his predecessor to give Paty du Clam a commission in the French colonial force. Millerand regarded it as a promise he was compelled to respect.

When the appointment was made a great uproar resulted, and the whole Cabinet was threatened with overthrow. Millerand saved the situation by resigning, but in his letter of resignation he declared he would follow the same course again were the same circumstances to arise.

He was Minister of Commerce under Waldeck-Rousseau, being at that time the first Socialist ever appointed to a ministerial post by the French Government. Later he was Minister of Public Works and twice was Minister of War. His return to the latter post came after the Great War had broken upon Europe. The need of a strong man was immediate then, and he was the man to whom France turned.

It has long been said that had Millerand not been forced to resign early in 1912 France would have been better prepared when war came, for Millerand was a believer in preparedness. He always had maintained that preparation for war was the aim that as War Minister he must hold ceaselessly before his eyes. "We must forsee the worst," was his watchword.

The problem Millerand faces is how to turn the Germanized industries of the provinces into an integral part of the French system.

The Webs of Spiders.

"As fine as a spider's web" is rather a misleading comparison, as all spiders' webs are not alike; nor are all the threads of which they are made. These may be dry or sticky, fine and regular, or coarse and rough, according to the will of the spider, and the use he wishes to make of it.

One kind of web is that seen on the grass on dewy mornings. This is merely a loose floor on which the spider runs and catches his prey. The thread is not sticky, and the web may last, if undisturbed, a whole season, attached to it is a tube of web, in which the spider hides.

Another web is in large meshes, but of definite shape. Insects get entangled in the mesh, but are not killed by any glutinous nature in the thread.

Then there are some webs, in which the spider runs about to catch the insects which get entangled, in addition, there is the familiar geometrical pattern. In making these, the insect first places the radiating lines in position. On these are woven the circles of sticky thread, which, however, never reach right to the centre. There are the webs which catch insects by their stickiness.

There are, in addition, many varieties of spiders which build no web at all, but catch their prey by running after it.—Tit-Bits.

BETTER THAN ANY MEDIUMS

Mince Pie That Brought Vision of Home Caused Wounded Soldier to Long for Life.

Pie is not among the articles treated of in works on materia medica, but a recent incident shows that it may have therapeutic value. In a hospital far an American sailor, for whom everything had been done by surgeons, doctors and nurses, and yet something was lacking. He was homesick; his mind was ever away in a little Atlantic coast town. One day, in the midst of his bodily pain and soul-suffering, there flashed upon him the object of his quest, and he murmured excitedly: "Oh, if I could only have a piece of mince pie." It was not that he wanted to eat a piece of pie, for he was too ill for that. His hunger was for what the pie represented. An American nurse who heard the wish managed, with some difficulty, to find all the ingredients for a real New England pie. When she took it to him she put with it a bit of cheese, also hard to procure in these times, so that nothing would be lacking, and in the cheese she planted a miniature Stars and Stripes. The poor boy could eat neither the pie nor the cheese, but they contributed just the home touch needed to improve his condition. When the wife of the American consul general visited him later she remarked upon the improvement in his condition, and he said: "Two days ago I was in such misery that I could have welcomed death. Now I feel that America is not so far away as I thought and that I have got to hang on."

Admired Roosevelt.

Archibald Tipper, a trapper, whose life has been spent in the sparsely-settled regions of Northern Canada, was among the three thousand or more persons who went to Young's Memorial Cemetery, near Oyster Bay, to place flowers before the grave of Theodore Roosevelt.

"This," Tipper said, "is a tribute to a great man's memory from the lowly trappers of Northern Canada. They loved him very much."

First of the Kind.

The airplane race from the Canadian National Exhibition to New York and return during the progress of the big Fair in August was the first international event of its kind ever attempted. The idea behind the contest was to demonstrate the commercial feasibility of aerial transportation between Toronto, New York and intermediate points.

The Sea—What It Means to You!

YOU would be surprised to learn how little many people know about the relation our prosperity bears to the problems of shipping.

With the exception of our purely domestic trade and that with our neighbors to the South, every dollar's worth of goods we produce must cross the seas, and so exports are largely the measure of our wealth as a nation. Submarine losses have placed a heavy premium on ships, so that we cannot rely on foreign vessels to carry our goods, but must build and MAN our own mercantile fleet.

Above all, we must see that CANADIAN seamen are available to man Canadian vessels as they become ready for our export service.

A Patriotic Duty

An Economic Necessity

The work of training Canadian boys for the sea is carried on by the Boys' Naval Brigades. Funds are absolutely imperative if the work is to be carried on and extended at this critical period. The appeal to the patriotic spirit is strong to give our lads a chance.

Help by giving—and giving liberally. Then help again by putting the great need before another. The Nelson Day Campaign is going to be a great success and it will be because of the loyal co-operation of public-spirited citizens like yourself.

What YOU do to-day counts much for Canada's future and your own! Assist generously.

Aims of the NAVY LEAGUE OF CANADA

To emphasize Canada's opportunities and responsibilities on the sea.

To raise funds for the relief of our merchant seamen, injured in the war, and for dependents of those who were killed.

To maintain sailors' homes in our ports.

To train boys and young men for our merchant ships by the organization of Boys' Naval Brigades.

Management of Gas Plant Discussed by City Council

DEPUTATION OF CITIZENS NOT SATISFIED WITH RECENT EVENTS N CONNECTION WITH GAS DEPARTMENT—GREAT WAR VETERANS ASK FOR PINNACLE STREET PROPERTY FOR MEMORIAL HALL.

At the City Council session last evening, a deputation of citizens was present and were heard in reference to the resignation of Mr. Gardiner, as manager of the Gas Department. As the result of a rather lengthy discussion the Council decided to leave the resignation in abeyance for a few days in order that the matters might be amicably arranged. A large deputation of members of the Great War Veterans' Association, headed by Maj. R. D. Ponton, inflated the Council Chamber with a request that the Council give the Association the old Pinnacle School premises for the erection of a Memorial Building. This matter was also held in abeyance for a few days as the Council had acquired the property for a proposed manufacturing concern. Some other matters of a minor nature were attended to.

Members present were: Mayor Platt, Aldermen Woodley, Hunter, Hanna, Riggs, Simmons, Treverton, Ostrom and Bone.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

Reports of Committees, communications, etc., were laid upon the table and dealt with into Committee of reports, etc., Alderman Riggs in the chair.

A number of accounts were passed, and the following recommendations were disposed of:

That all slot meters used by the Gas Department be called in and replaced by regular machines.

After some discussion it was decided to refer this recommendation back for further consideration.

That the tender of Wilde and Bumbaca be accepted for the construction of sanitary sewers on Queen, Everett, Henry and Cedar streets at $9,207.80 —Adopted.

That the tender of Wm. Donohue be accepted for the construction of sanitary sewers on West Moira, North Front and Grove streets for $15,266.10. —Adopted.

That Aldermen Hanna and Bone be appointed to meet with the Police Commissioners at a date to be fixed by the Commissioners.—Adopted.

Recommended that the duties of the assessor be fully carried out in 1920 as defined by the statute.—Adopted.

PAVING OF MURNEY HILL

A petition was presented by some of the residents on Bridge street west, objecting to the proposed pavement on Murney Hill.

The members of the Provincial Railway Board intimated that they would meet in the City Wednesday, 29th October at 1.30 p.m. in reference to this matter.

Ald. Bone thought that the citizens were wrong in objecting to the pavement.

Ald. Woodley stated that plans and specifications were prepared in 1913 ing that portion of West Bridge street, but the residents objected and asked for the Railway Board to meet here.

OLD SCHOOL PREMISES

A communication was read from the Board of Education offering to sell the Pinnacle street property to the city for $3,000 and to defer payment until next year.

Ald. Woodley stated that a party was in the city recently with a desire to procure this property for an industry and for this reason an offer was made to purchase it.

A motion prevailed that the offer be accepted.

A petition for a granolithic walk near Grove street was referred to the proper authorities to ascertain of property signed.

RESIGNATION OF GAS MANAGER

Messrs J. E. Parks, J. J. B. Flint, D. V. Sinclair, J. W. Murray and A. Robinson addressed the Council relative to the resignation of Mr. Gardiner as manager of the Gas Department and requesting the Council to do all in its power to retain the services of Mr. Gardiner, believing that he was the right man in the right place.

Mr. Sinclair thought it was unbusinesslike for the Council to allow Mr. Gardiner to go and it would be a mistake.

Mr. Robinson spoke in favor of a proposition to amalgamate the office of manager of the Gas and Water Works Department and he (the speaker) thought that Mr. Gardiner should be appointed the manager.

Ald. Bone referred to Mr. Dawson's report on the City Gas Plant and he (the speaker) thought better arrangements could be made even at the plant we have. He would not support a proposition to amalgamate the offices of manager of the gas and water utilities.

Ald. Simmons as chairman of the Gas Committee referred to the fact that during his absence this summer the Council had seen fit to have Mr. Cook as gas maker at the plant. The services of Mr. Gardiner should not in the absence of the speaker, be dispensed with. He did not think it possible to secure another man like Mr. Gardiner especially at the salary he is paid.

Ald. Woodley—This has been a burning question for some years. The Bylaw passed recently made Mr. Cook the man directly responsible for the manufacture of gas. For 12 months the gas made was below the minimum test. He was not in favor of the amalgamation of the two offices of manager of Gas and Water Works Department. Council did not ask for Mr. Gardiner's resignation, he did it voluntarily.

Ald. Ostrom—Mr. Cook is a thorough man and knows his business. He is also a stationery engineer. When Mr. Cook returned from attending the United States, a convention of stationery engineers, Mr. Gardiner said he would not have Mr. Cook. An agreement was made and signed by Mr. Gardiner and Mr. Cook and the matter was thought to have been settled in a satisfactory manner, but such later proved not to be the case. Under the supervision of Mr. Cook the gas has improved. The Council is strengthening Mr. Gardiner's hand in engaging Mr. Cook to make gas. He (the speaker) would like Mr. Gardiner to withdraw his resignation and remain as manager of the Gas Department.

Mayor Platt—It is the duty of the Council to try to retain the services of both Mr. Gardiner and Mr. Cook, who were both good men. He would move that the resignation be not accepted at present.

Ald. Hanna—The resignation of Mr. Gardiner was voluntary on his part.

Ald. Riggs—Mr. Gardiner has not been possibly as firm as he might have been.

The motion that Mr. Gardiner's resignation be not accepted for the present was adopted.

G. W. V. A. MEMORIAL HOME

Major Ponton addressed the Council to suggest that the city carry out what was decided on January last and that is going to give a grant of $10,000 to the G. W. V. A. This money is in the hands of the Association numbering 800 members and the city has been looked over for a site and the most suitable place for a Memorial Home is the old Pinnacle school premises. The School Board has made an offer to the City Council to pay the property for $3,000 and if the citizens of the concern wants that property we will give way but if this is not the case, we desire to procure the premises for the Memorial Home and we must vacate soon the premises we are now occupying. All members of the G. W. V. A. will assist in building up the city. If there is not a concrete proposition for a manufacturing concern to be established at the Pinnacle street side, the property be granted to the G. W. V. A. We expect to expend $20,000 on the proposed new Memorial Home. We want all citizens to be interested in this home.

Ald. Ostrom thought the Home property near the lower bridge on the south side of Bridge street west would be a more suitable site.

Mr. C. J. White, Industrial Commissioner said there was a manufacturing concern who was desirous of securing the Pinnacle street school site. They want a site in close proximity to a railway.

Major Ponton—If there is a bona fide offer for a manufacturing concern to locate in the Pinnacle street school the G. W. V. A. will give way.

Ald. Bone—I will give a guarantee that an industry is going to locate in the Pinnacle street school premises.

Major Ponton—We did not come to dictate to the Council, but to advise. The G. W. V. A. is waiting but there is a limit to waiting.

The matter was left in abeyance until the next Council meeting.

Federal Govt. Going Ahead on Temperance

No Indication That It Will Be Dropped, No Matter What Happens.

OTTAWA, Oct. 22—There is no special indication here of any intention on the part of the Government to drop its temperance bills, whatever may be the final result of the Ontario referendum. It was stated definitely by more than one minister this morning, that the Government had not considered any other course. The Federal bills are merely enabling bills to allow the Provinces to become just as dry as they themselves want to be.

If the Federal bills pass, and if the Ontario vote is indecisive, at least on the fourth question, there would not be much likelihood of the Ontario Legislature asking for a bone dry referendum, but that would be a question for the Ontario, and not the Ottawa, Government to decide.

Put Group Govt. Up To Farmers

TORONTO, Oct. 22.—Upon the action of the United Farmers of Ontario rests the fate of the next Government of Ontario. That the United Farmers fully realize this was plentifully indicated by the activities which bestirred U.F.O. circles in Toronto and throughout the Province yesterday. A movement of U.F.O. forces and influences, ever increasing during the day, commenced early in the morning, and their vortex was the U.F.O. headquarters at King street east, where Secretary W. J. Morrison continued as the mainspring of the farmer activity. R. W. E. Burnaby, president of the U.F.O. Co-operative Company and Hon. T. A. Crerar, until recently Minister of Agriculture in the Union Government, were also prominently identified with the course of U. F. O. events yesterday.

There seems to be little doubt but that the U.F.O. influence which in the next Legislature will be the dominating one, will be thrown in a block for group government, a system of administration which the Province has not experienced. The U. F. O. officials realize that with the Labor representatives they have not a workable majority in the House. The prospect of a sweep of their candidates finds them reluctant to assume full Governmental responsibility. If yesterday's concensus of opinion among the members the farmers' organization hold for 24 hours, they will by night have effected the first of a series Government with Cabinet representation for each of the four parties in the House.

SIR ADAM BECK WILL "CARRY ON"

Toronto, Oct. 22—Speculation regarding the course Sir Adam Beck would take in view of his defeat in London, and his earlier declaration that if rejected by his constituents he would feel bound to resign from the chairmanship of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, was set at rest yesterday by a statement from the Hydro chief that he will remain at his post, certainly until a new Government is in charge of the affairs of the province.

Unknown Man Killed On Track

KINGSTON, Oct. 21.—That this unknown man came to his death by accident while on the Grand Trunk Railway tracks," was the verdict of the coroner's jury. Coroner D. E. Mundell presided, and the only witness examined were Dr. J. A. Keyes, who was called to the G.T.R. station after the body had been discovered west of Collins Bay and brought to the city. Albert Rowley, section foreman on the G. T. R., who discovered the body lying near the tracks and Charles Cunningham, embalmer, gave evidence. Dr. Keyes stated that death was due to a fracture at the base of the skull, a fracture on the right side of the head and broken jaw. There was no sign of other injuries except one on the face, evidently made by his being thrown into the cinders on the track.

Albert Rowley told of the finding of the body a mile and a half west of Collins Bay at 4.55 p.m. on Thursday. The body was lying face down about six feet from the north rail of the north track. The man was dead but the body was still warm. From an examination of the ground about the track, Mr. Rowley stated that it was his impression that the man was struck by an east-bound train on the north or west-bound track while walking on the track. At section men of instructed to order trespassers off the right of way. There was no marked grade at this point. The man's hat, and tobacco in an overcoat pocket. The witness did not know what train struck the man, but supposed it had been a freight.

For James Reid & Co., undertakers, told of embalming the body. There was nothing found that would show the man's identity, but from a bullet wound in the left side, where the bullet had entered and left the chest, he was evidently a returned soldier. "E. L." was tattooed on the front of the left forearm. He was a heavy man overcoat, a sweater similar to military sweaters, also underwear similar to military underwear.

The jury was foreman of the jury and it took but a short time to reach a verdict.

Toronto Seat For Hydro Knight

Sir Adam Spoken Of as Leader of Reorganized Conservatives.

TORONTO, Oct. 22.—A Toronto seat for Sir Adam Beck and his selection as the leader of a reorganized Conservative party is the proposal that is dying from mouth to mouth in Conservative circles. One of the Toronto members, it is suggested, should resign a place in the Assembly. North East Toronto is mentioned in this connection, but the proposal has not yet assumed any definite shape. The necessity of calling immediately a convention of the Conservative party is also being discussed. Toronto Conservatives asked Sir William Hearst to call this before the election, but he refused. Now, when the fortunes of the party are at such a low ebb, reorganization is regarded as the supreme necessity.

Strong Move For Economy In British Government

MILITARY PROGRAMME WILL BE ATTACKED, ALSO NEW EDUCATIONAL SCHEME AND HOUSING POLICY—LABOR PARTIES DEMAND NATIONALIZATION OF MINES.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

LONDON, Oct. 22.—Economy is the watchword of the session of parliament which opens today and efforts are to be made by members of the House of Commons to throw into the discard the military programme outlined in the last budget, the new education scheme and the proposal to construct at least thousands of homes for working men. Military and financial commitments, national policy regarding Russia, military occupation of Ireland, with plan for Irish home rule, and the labor parties' demand for the nationalization of mines and railways will be important matters to come before parliament this session. It is expected that members of the House will closely question the government as to its policies, especially regarding expenditures, and Mr. Lloyd George may answer the questions in a few days.

Sir Adam Beck May Be Ontario's Premier

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer Canadian Press Limited

TORONTO, Oct. 22.—That Hartley Dewart, leader of the Liberals in the new Ontario Legislature, will be called on to form a Provincial Government, but that Hon. Adam Beck, defeated Independent Conservative in London and chairman of the Provincial Hydro Commission, will be the next Premier of Ontario, seems to be most popular opinion here tonight among fairly well informed people discussing the much mixed political situation in this province.

This is assuming that Sir William Hearst, whose government was defeated on Monday and who is meeting with his cabinet today, decides to hand in the resignations of himself and ministers to the Lieut.-Governor, Sir John Hendrie. This action is generally expected as the position of the government has grown worse in the matter of supporters during the past twenty-four hours by the news of the reversal in South Grey where it is now conceded that Hon. Dr. Jamieson, Speaker in the last House, has been defeated by G. M. Leeson, United Farmers candidate.

According to completed figures this gives U. F. O. forty-five straight members in the House of 111 seats, and if they combine with the labor delegation of eleven members and one soldier and one Independent Liberal, the farmers coalition would have a majority of five over all others in the House. However, it is conceded generally today, that the Lieut. Governor constitutionally would have a right to call on Hartley Dewart as leader of the last official opposition in the House to form a new government although Sir Lionel Worthington in the newly elected house is second to the U. F. O. in numbers.

In an interview today Sir John Hendrie, Lieut.-Governor, in reply to criticism made by Mr. Dewart in reference to a statement made by Sir John yesterday said, "Why should Mr. Dewart think he is not the man I will call on to form a government. The government has to be carried on, however, by somebody at present outside the elected House if he cannot be found among the already elected members." Unless Mr. Dewart can form a coalition, which hardly seems likely, the Lieut.-Governor will then probably call on the leader of the United Farmers, and it would be no surprise to many people if the farmers at their convention here this afternoon name as their leader Sir Adam Beck.

The situation regarding U. F. O. as far as could be farthered from conversation with U. F. O. delegates, before they met today in convention seemed to favor the creation of a coalition Government with the U. F. O. in control under a strong leader to be chosen, probably this afternoon. Leaders of the farmers today stated that conferences had been held with Sir Adam Beck on the subject and a report was to be made to the convention this afternoon.

Startling Events Will Wake Belleville To Realization

SECRET PLANS BY VICTORY LOANERS WILL BE INTERESTING ENTERTAINMENT—DON'T BE SURPRISED.

Do not be surprised if Belleville is some night bombarded by a humming airplane, or the usual Front street evening is aroused by a screaming pack of masked night-riders. Possibly you may be startled by a husky voice whispering in your ear as you sit entranced with Mary Pickford at a movie. No, do not be startled—it will simply be the energetic efforts of the Hastings County workers of the Victory Loan 1919 trying to make you realize that the war is not over so far as its expenses are concerned and also that you will be a "has-been" not to realize what a splendid investment opportunity you are missing.

Belleville and Hastings County are to be treated to a strenuous campaign this year for great preparations are being made to surpass the county's success last year. Optimism prevails among the workers, who are already stowing away enthusiasm and stunts which will burst upon our unsuspecting citizens next Monday morning when the campaign opens. They have been fortified by good news from bank managers, who say their deposits are much greater than before the Loan last year, in some cases being increased three-fold.

Under the able leadership of Mr. W. B. Deacon, who launched the two former Victory Loans in Hastings County, a splendid organization has been built up as follows:

County Chairman—W. B. Deacon.
Vice-Chairmen — W. H. DeRoiis, Tweed; S. B. Wright, Deloro; C. S. Collins, Coe Hill; Wm. H. Matthews, Trenton.
Secretary—H. W. Ackerman.
Chairmen of Committees.
Honorary—Col. W. N. Ponton, K.C.
Executive—W. B. Deacon.
Finance—W. B. Deacon.
Publicity—W. L. Doyle.
Canadian Press Association for County—J. O. Herity.
Sales—H. F. Ketcheson.
Music—Mark Sprague.
Employees—J. A. Higgs.
Special Subscriptions—Ald. Jamieson Bone.
Transportation—W. J. Carter.
County Organizer—W. B. Evans.
Publicity Organizer—A. C. H. Andrews.

Today a big publicity and canvassers' conference was held. Members of the Publicity Committee and the county canvassers met at 10.30 o'clock this morning in the Y. M. C. A., followed at one o'clock by a dinner at the Hotel Quinte, the canvassers from Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington counties also attending. Mr. W. B. Deacon acted as chairman and addresses were made by prominent members of the organization, among them being Mr. E. B. Thompson, Toronto, divisional organizer for the Bay of Quinte Division, to which Hastings county belongs, with Frontenac, Lennox and Addington and Prince Edward. "Pep" dominated everywhere and some interesting events are under way which are a secret at present. If all plans are carried through Belleville will be treated to some novel entertainment.

Boy Shoots Himself In Curious Manner

BRANDON, Man., Oct. 21.—A puzzling case interests the doctors here. Wm. Baker, an eleven-year-old boy of Brandon Hills, was shooting at a pigeon with the bullet struck a rock, rebounded and entered the boy's body over the heart and left at the back.

The doctors have the lad at the hospital, and cannot tell whether the bullet penetrated the lungs or went around under the skin, until an X-ray photograph is developed. His condition is serious.

Music and Drama

"THE VIRTUOUS THIEF"

Every girl stenographer and every employer of girls in business offices will be especially interested in the plot of "The Virtuous Thief" the new five photplay in which Enid Bennett will appear at Griffin's to-morrow to Saturday, with a matinee Saturday. Miss Bennett has won nation-wide reputation for herself by her artistry and charm. She plays the part of a girl who becomes a stenographer in the office of a Wall street broker in order to atone for the guilt of a weak brother, who has stolen money from her employer. The broker proves to be a type of business man, that is fortunately, extremely rare in the financial district—a rogue. Miss Bennett finds herself the central figure of a tangled plot that attracts toward her the finger of criminal accusation. How she is lured into a dastardly trap by her designing employer, who plays upon her intense devotion to her brother, and escapes in a miraculous way makes up the dramatic story, which was written by C. Gardiner Sullivan, the famous screen writer. Besides the above offering, a selected program of comedy and varied plays will also be screened.

"ONE OF THE FINEST"

The high favor with which Tom Moore is regarded by audiences everywhere promises further to be increased when he comes to the Palace to-morrow to Saturday, matinee daily, in "One of the Finest." Intent on presenting the likeable star in the greatest possible diversity of roles, Samuel Goldwyn is assured that Tom Moore will be seen at his best as a mounted policeman in the new comedy-drama. Aside from the chief character, the play is a welcome addition on its own account to the successes Tom Moore has to his credit. Simplicity, pathos and thrills, with many charming domestic episodes, serve to make it worthy successor to the same star's "thirty a week." It is a comedy-drama for the most part, although it rushes a height of intensity at the climax which will surprise Belleville Tom Moore enthusiasts. The star's superb horsemanship in the park scenes contrasts splendidly with his feeling displayed with the child, who divides honors with him throughout the play, and and the brilliant setting, and environment of high society only make the simplicity of the policeman-hero's home life all the more appealing. The 17th chapter of "Lure of the Circus" serial and a new comedy are also being shown on the same program.

BIFF, BING, BANG
AT GRIFFIN'S TO-NIGHT

Here is a record that n does the usual "six months in New York and four weeks in Boston" look like a vacation. This one reads: "Over five hundred performances immediately before the firing line in France"—and it is held by the "Dumbells," a merry Canadian troupe of soldier-actors, all of whom had served at least sixteen months in the trenches before being chosen for the entertainment corps. After the 500 run in France, they played forty performances, under the royal patronage of King Albert and Queen Elizabeth, in Brussels, That, and one solid month of two-a-day in London, two weeks of which they were put in at the famous Coliseum, where they played to 91,200 people in 24 performances, ends their record to date. What not for local relief and help which induces a better appetite and a greater freedom in the selection of foods. You will find Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets on sale at any drug store in the United States and Canada, as they are considered one of the stand-bys by the druggist.

STORY OF ROBIN ADAIR

Is the famous old song, "Robin Adair," which we have sung from childhood, Scotch or Irish? Scotland undoubtedly will be the general reply. Yet authentic history seems to point otherwise.

Hanging in the great hallway of the present mansion of Sir Thomas Hodson, at Hollybrook, Kilbride, Co. Wicklow, where Robin lived, played, and sang verses, is his harp, while, attached to a small building nearby is a brass plate bearing the inscription:

Here Robin sat, and sang, and quaffed the bowl,
Degenerate days! how fallen the ancient line!
How science bids ascending waters roll,
And fountains gush, where once flowed genial wine.

Robin, according to the latest researches, was a successful wine merchant in Dublin, with, evidently, Scottish ancestral connections. Hence the confusion. He it was who built Hollyrook, where he entertained lavishly, the original song of "Robin Adair," which goes back to the year 1730, being written to commemorate a visit he paid to some sporting friends at Pucktown, near Artane, Co. Dublin, commencing:

"You're welcome to Pucktown, Robin Adair."

Robin, in spite of his convivial habits, lived to a green old age, and ultimately died in Dublin in 1737. In addition to his harp, two of his wine glasses, which held a quart of wine each, are still preserved.—Tit-Bits.

Cans are carried by both men and women in every walk of life in China. It is a compliment to ask a friend distinguished guest to write some sentiment on the host's fan as a memento of any special occasion.

Jacob Weltner Hungarian Leader

THE coming to the fore of a man like Jacob Weltner in Hungary following the downfall of the regime of Bela Kun indicates that the Hungarian working class masses are pretty well cured of Bolshevism.

Jacob Weltner is the head of the Hungarian Soviets and as such he was the medium of communication between the Allies and the Communist Government in the negotiations that led up to the latter's resignation.

Weltner is a man of medium stature, dark complexioned, and is about forty-two years old. He is a Social Democrat of many years' standing and has played a leading role in the Socialist movement of Austria-Hungary and in the internationale as a whole.

The writer met Weltner in Stockholm in December, 1917, soon after the beginning of the Brest-Litovsk negotiations between Germany and the Bolsheviki. He came to Stockholm in great excitement over the new turn of affairs and was particularly put out by the separate peace negotiations inaugurated by the Bolsheviki. These were the days when the Prussian war gang, flushed victory seethed certain to the minds of Germans and the peoples of the Central Empires.

Weltner arrived in Stockholm on a Saturday and day and rushed immediately to the office of the International Socialist Bureau to see Camille Huysmans, the secretary. His object in coming to see Huysmans was to have some measures taken to counteract the effect of the peace negotiations between Germany and the Bolsheviki and, if possible, to stop them. How to put it to the writer:

"The Brest-Litovsk negotiations have put an end to the hope of a democratic peace in Central Europe. If they are allowed to reach the culmination desired by Germany the result at the end of a democratic Europe and particularly our own hope of democratic reforms in Austria-Hungary and Germany. Our imperialists are making about in greater pride and self-confidence than ever before, in expectation of routing Russia at Brest-Litovsk and of 'finishing' the Allies on the West front. The better part of the day and start a movement for general peace negotiations. If not they will receive blows next spring from which they will never recover."

It was Weltner's idea that the Stockholm conference scheme be revived and that the laborites of all countries get together and present a plan for a general peace to the belligerent governments. Weltner left—April 1st, honestly—that Germany was on the verge of victory. That his feeling was not altogether unfounded was demonstrated next spring when the Germans made their final offensive and seemed once more to have Paris within their grasp.

As the situation stood in the winter of 1917 Weltner's fears were perfectly justifiable, and his efforts to prevent the success of the German plans, both diplomatic and military, was the expression of a genuine desire for a democratic peace. That was why he was so strong in his condemnation of the Bolshevik conditions. He spoke of the Bolsheviki as "irresponsible adventurers" and condemned their opposition to the Stockholm conference.

It will be breaking no confidence to say now that as a result of Weltner's visit to Stockholm and his conferences with Huysmans, through whom he communicated with Arthur Henderson, the British labor leader, a number of the Allied envoys in Stockholm promised Huysmans to support the Stockholm project on their recommendations to their Governments, among them to the British Minister.

Nothing came of the subject, however, despite the statements made by M. Vorovsky, the Bolshevik Minister to Stockholm, that the Bolsheviki would be willing to discontinue the Brest-Litovsk negotiations provided the Allied Governments granted passports to the Stockholm conference. Apparently M. Vorovsky was overruled in Moscow.

Weltner's visit to Stockholm coincided with that of Scheidemann, but, unlike the latter, he did not call on M. Vorovsky, preferring to do his business with Huysmans and Henderson.

When asked why the Socialists of Austria-Hungary and Germany, realizing that the moment was a grave one, did not sound the call for a revolution, Weltner replied:

"It is easy for you Entente people to talk revolution in Germany and Austria, especially at this moment when our Governments are at the height of their military and political prestige. There will be no revolution in the Central Empires until General Defeat is declared in the field. Moreover, what assurance have we that after we make the revolution the Entente Governments will not jump upon us and crush us? We cannot afford to make a revolution while you simply sit by and applaud. The question is, What are you going to do?"

Weltner's fears anent the victory of Germany were not realized, but his statement that there would be no revolution in the Central Empires until Germany is defeated in the field was borne out by history. And in that revolution—as far as the new country is concerned — the modest and virtueless labor leader and editor seems to be playing an important part. Reuter's did the writer think that he would ever hear that when he bade him good-bye at the railway station at Stockholm as Weltner was preparing to catch a train for Berlin and Budapest.

Miss Edith Gleun, a member of the American Red Cross commission in Greece, has been decorated with the medal of military merit which is the highest honor that a woman can hope to receive in that country.

Belleville's New Industry

THE ONTARIO OAKOAL CO., LIMITED, have secured a franchise from the City of Belleville in return for an agreement to erect and equip a plant to convert Belleville's garbage and waste material into a highly efficient fuel, made under sanitary and scientific principles that insure the City being a cleaner and more healthful City, eliminating the dangers of infection and contagious diseases and creating employment for a number of citizens.

The Company's Managing Director will address a public meeting, to be held in the City Hall Auditorium, on THURSDAY EVENING NEXT THE 23rd, INST., AT 8 P.M., to present to the citizens of Belleville a very interesting proposition.

The Company is not waiting to sell stock to the citizens, as it has the necessary capital to build and equip—we are waiting for the City to secure the site of land best suited to our needs. Meantime, local interest has been aroused, since an OAKOAL plant will bring to Belleville an additional $250,000 per annum institution, and it has been suggested that the proposition suggested to the management be presented to the citizens, who may share in the benefits that a few men would prefer to receive.

A BLOODLESS REVOLUTION.

The bloodless revolution of the farmers of Ontario at the polls Monday has left both straight-line parties gasping for breath and the press guessing as to what is about to happen in the line of Government for the people by the people. One thing has been demonstrated, apparently, by the provincial election—party divisions and political affiliations have broken down as the result of changed conditions following the war as manifested in general unrest, high price of necessities, and labor troubles. The greatest disturbance has been caused, of course, by the high cost of living, which presents a serious and menacing problem to almost every family, and has occasioned a revision in the mode of living and the doing without many things formerly considered necessary to the comfort and well-being of the average family. The universal desire for a change has manifested itself at the polls in no uncertain manner and the tidal wave of unrest has swept the Hearst Government out of existence, but has substituted no stable government in its place as far as can be seen at present.

Views of leading editorial writers upon the present situation in Ontario are interesting, as the following extracts show.

The Montreal Star, which, being published in another province can view Ontario affairs from an independent angle, comments upon the situation in part as follows:

COLLAPSE OF TWO-PARTY IDEA.

It needed no special acuteness of observation to foresee that yesterday's voting in Ontario would be productive of surprises, but even those who had correctly interpreted the significance of certain incidents at Ottawa when Mackenzie King got the Liberal leadership, or, within the last few weeks, the failure of such veteran war-horses as Dargavel and Elliott to get even the nomination in the ridings that have been theirs from time immemorial, must have been astonished at the force and profund ty of the explosion. Today there are very few of the old political landmarks still erect in Ontario, and the former leaders of the two great parties must be searching vainly for something by which to get their bearings.

The standing result is, of course, the collapse of the old two-party idea, so far as the new Legislature is concerned. It is far too early to be dogmatic, but it is quite possible that today sees the beginning of the group system in Ontario; and that the Ontario result is merely indicative of what is to be expected in the larger field in the future. Whether or not the U.F.O. and the Labor men can preserve their identity as distinct groups against the obliterative influence of time remains to be seen. There is the history of the Patrons of Industry and the Canada First groups to prove the contrary. But it is unwise to argue from analogy in these unstable times. Neither the Patron nor the Canada First movements represented anything like the almost universal upheaval which has resulted, for the first time in its history, in sending to Queen's Park five distinct groups, Conservative, Liberal, Farmers, Labor and Independent.

The "practical politicians" will naturally begin at once to discuss ways and means, but it is unlikely in the extreme that either Mr. Dewart or whoever will be chosen to succeed the luckless Sir William Hearst will be able to make successful appeal to the farmer group. With a solid block of forty-one members in contrast with the Conservative twenty-nine and the Liberal twenty-eight, it is for the farmers to dictate, not to be dictated to or cajoled—provided always their leaders are men of firmness and have a clear and definite line to follow. It is obvious that neither of the older parties can hope to do more than exist as political groups in the new Legislature, and hitch their wagons to the farmers' star as occasion may serve.

HECTIC POLITICS.

The Toronto Star comments editorially upon the situation as follows:

The Hearst Government has gone down in defeat and Prohibition has carried. The Legislature will be almost entirely a new House.

Instead of two parties in the Legislature there will now be four parties, and the strongest of the four, numerically, will be the United Farmers of Ontario.

No one party in the House will be strong enough in itself to form an Administration, so that there will necessarily be a Union Administration, or a minority party will have to form a Government and depend upon earning and deserving the good-will and support of one of the other groups.

It seems probable that the U. F. O. would decline to form a Government either of its own or in fusion with either of the other parties, but remain aside, holding the balance of power and able at any time, especially with the fourth group of Labor and Independent members, to defeat any Administration that may be formed. Everything is uncertain except that a period of hectic politics stretches ahead for some distance.

A POPULAR BRAINSTORM.

The Toronto Mail and Empire is inclined to blame the temperance vote for the downfall of the Government, and chides the women electors for not giving the Hearst Government stronger support. Says the Mail:

The election, with all its singularities, is the consequence of unrest. The policy of the Government that received most attention in the contest was approved at the polls, but did not win the support of the people for the Government's candidates. A great part of those who voted to continue the Government's policy of legislation and restraint of the liquor traffic voted against the candidates of the Government. Conservatives are used to that kind of treatment at the hands of temperance voters. The other women, who owe the franchise they exercised in this election to the Hearst Government, in many cases voted only for the temperance legislation and omitted to vote for candidates, or preferred those who were opposed to the Government. In the popular brain-storm five Ministers were defeated. The Premier went down to defeat. It remains to be seen whether or not the voters have brought legislation and government to a state of deadlock.

THE WRECKAGE OF WAR.

The Belgian Government has decided not to repair the Cloth Hall of Ypres, but to leave it as a sacred rubble-heap, a perpetual memorial of the Great War. The Allies talk of "reparations." What money payment could balance the loss of the noblest architectural heirloom from the Middle Ages? War is a raging flame, sweeping away ten thousand treasures, material, intellectual and spiritual. The world will be the poorer for centuries because of the outbreak of Prussian madness.

Canada has progressed only one year upon the way of Peace. The rubble of the conflict remains in France and Flanders. The consequences of war are sharp also in Canada, but less apparent to a casual glance. Most of our difficulties are financial. There is no problem of rebuilding whole cities, blown to brick-dust. Because of the Royal Navy not a single enemy shell broke on Canadian soil. That fact gives us all the more reason for thankfulness, and should stimulate us to meet what few troubles we have.

The Dominion of Canada requires money, by hundreds of millions, to meet military obligations. For instance, all men demobilized in the fiscal year of 1919-20 had to be maintained ashore and afloat. They had to be paid and granted the usual allowances. The country was indebted to them for the amount of the statutory gratuities. Many sick and wounded soldiers are still in military hospitals. It is necessary to provide vocational training for such men as require a measure of re-education. Soldiers going on the land must be "grub-staked" to make sure of their success in the future.

Not one item in these expenditures is unnecessary. They are war-payments. Canada went to war at the demand of the people. These charges are a debt of honor which the people must acknowledge and pay.

The Government is floating another Victory Loan to meet the expenditures mentioned. The Bonds are fully guaranteed and yield interest at 5½ per cent. Thus their purchase is profitable from an economic as well as a patriotic viewpoint. The Canadian people have an opportunity to make a clean-up of their war-difficulties by buying Victory Bonds.

CRISP COMMENT

The Prohibitionist Liberals, as usual, showed their gratitude to the Conservative promoters of their cause by voting against them.—Mail and Empire.

Well, the U. F. O. made them all sit up and take notice, anyway, and busted right through both old party lines.

Henry K. Denyes, U.F.O. representative for East Hastings, has ability which will be of great assistance to the Farmers' party in the Legislature.

The U. F. O. and the Labor party seem constitutionally opposed to coalitions and prefer the group system, which may be tried out in the next Legislature, being a non-partizan administration similar to a town or city council. The experiment would be watched with interest. A suggestion has been made of a coalition of Liberal and Conservative members to form a government with Hartley Dewart as Premier. Strange what bedfellows politics makes.

The Secretary of the temperance board of the Methodist church in the United States announces that the cigaret is the evil against which the church will next launch a crusade. Whichever of the groups in the Assembly has the largest representation, it apparently will not be able to hold office except with the co-operation of one or more of the other groups. The political complexion of the Assembly will be so mixed that there can be no political certainty. It looks as if there would have to be another election in six months, unless late returns make a big difference in the line-up—Mail and Empire.

Ontario voted for prohibition in the abstract and against Ross-Hanna premier, in the concrete. Ontario cannot defeat a premier who ENACTED prohibition and expect the next premier to ENFORCE prohibition. A United Farmer premier might attempt to enforce prohibition. A Dewart premiership would be like the premiership of Quebec, Nova Scotia and other Liberal governments that let the people have more or less prohibition on the statute book, and all the liquor they want every place else.—Toronto Telegram.

Monkey as Labor Possibility.

The pre-cadet manager or brok of the Island is highly intelligent animal, and the Malays train them to pick coconuty. The modus operandi is something like this: The monkey is a "Naturalist is Borneo." A cord is fastened round the monkey's waist and it is led to the coconut palm, which it rapidly climbs. It then lays hold of a nut and if the owner thinks the nut is to be ripe for plucking he shouts to the monkey, which then twists the nut round and round till the stalk is broken and lets it fall to the ground. If the monkey catches hold of an unripe fruit the owner pats the cord and the monkey rises another. The monkey becomes a "Naturalist" when he knows his distances at his master's ve...

Mam'selle Marie's Ant-Eggs!

All manner of queer trades flourish in Paris. One man is an inventor of owls, another of canaries. If you pass a parlor that is to be entered, one may at once obtain the services of an instructor. Suits of Queer teachers take birds home to board and instruct, but if the owner prefers, such a teacher will come to the house, bringing with him a well-trained canary or talking bird, as he may be, to be put in the cage with the pupil.

Other Parisians devote themselves to the raising of bugs, and at the present time the inhabitants of a certain quarter were attacked by an inexplicable irritation of the skin. All up and down one street people were scratching themselves in the morning to plight, and this lasted till the shoulders. In that quarter looked almost like a colony of lepers. Finally the authorities looked into the matter and discovered that the doings of a certain Mam'selle Marie were the cause of the disorder.

She was a breeder of ants, or rather, strictly speaking, a raiser of ants' eggs for the fattening of young pheasants. When the police visited her establishment they encountered the woman 50 years old, of a most forbidding aspect. Her face and hands were as completely tanned as if they had undergone tanning by a skilful currier. The work had been done by the bites of the ants during the attacks of which she had protected the rest of her person by wearing a close suit of leather. These attacked, she slept in perfect security, surrounded by sacks full of the lively merchandise.

The skin of the nurse seemed to her an outrage, but, say what she would, Mam'selle Marie was compelled to transport her boarding establishment out of the city. It appeared that she had correspondents in many parts of France and received daily consignments. She was proud of her business or profession, as she called it, and found a ready market for all the eggs she could furnish.

Legend of "Dirty Dick."

Many visitors to London have heard of "Dirty Dick's," but few probably have taken the trouble to locate the famous old tavern, and Tit-Bits.

Situated at the corner of Bishopsgate and Catherine Wheel Alley, the tavern is of itself a curiosity to a story of old London. It was built 150 years ago, and one of its earliest tenants was the notorious "Dirty Dick."

The legend proceeds that he, having been crossed in love, gave way to melancholy, and altered his house to go to ruin. He would permit no person to enter the building to clean it, and declined to do so himself, the result being that inside the counters were thick with dirt, while cobwebs were the predominant note on the ceilings. Old furniture was the only way from age, and glasses which remained unwashed, unbrushed, were retained, and as the hermit-owner became older his premises grew more dirtier, until they became one of the sights of London.

Whatever his place may have been, "Dirty Dick's" liquor had the reputation of being of good quality, and his death certain portions of the cobwebs were carefully preserved by his executors as part of the stock-in-trade of the business, as to have removed the "attraction" would have been to steal a heavy blow at the place's popularity. For a number of years lately the premises, which include every extensive cellars, are let at a rent of $10,000 per annum, have been occupied by a firm of wine merchants.

DAUGHTER OF THE PHILISTINES

By LEONARD MERRICK

CHAPTER VIII

Mrs. Kent placed few obstacles in the way of her husband's industry and installed in Leamington Road, Streatham, he commenced his novel, and deleted and destroyed, and rewrote, until at the expiration of three weeks he had accomplished Chapter I. Primarily he did not experience so many domestic discomforts to impede him as Turquand had once predicted. Mrs. Walford had obtained a very respectable and nice-looking servant, whose only draw-back was having a father in a lunatic asylum, and the frequently expressed misgiving that, if she were harassed by a multitude of orders she might be overtaken by a similar fate. Ann was so "superior" Mrs. Walford explained, and a "general" had really proved so difficult to procure, that she had not allowed the thought of a hereditary taint to disqualify her, and both the bride and bridegroom declared she had been quite right. Cynthia confessed later to finding it a little awkward when a duty was neglected, since she was delivered from remonstrating by the fear 'the girl might go mad at her'; but apart from this Ann was an acquisition.

The author's working hours were supposed to be from ten o'clock till seven, with an interval for lunch; but the irregular habits of bachelorhood made it hard for him to accustom himself to them and it was often agreed that he should take his leisure in the afternoon and resent himself at his desk in the luring hours of lamplight, when the neighbors' children were at rest and the scales ceased from troubling. To these neighbors he found he was an object of considerable curiosity. He had never lived in a suburb hitherto and he discovered that for a man to remain at home all day offered much food for conjecture there. Subsequently, in some inexplicable manner, his vocation was ascertained and then, when Cynthia and he strolled out, people whispered behind their window-curtains, and stared at them with smiles which suggested that they were not thought very respectable.

Of his wife's family he saw a good deal, both at The Hawthorns and at No. 64, Leamington Road, and his liking for his brother-in-law did not increase. There was an air of condescension in Mr. Caesar Walford's self-sufficiency that he found highly exasperating. The bank's debit had been faced during their absence for the coming season, and he repeated the newest compliments paid him by his master with the languid assurance of an artist whose supremacy was already acknowledged by all the world. The latent burst of admiration into which Princess had been betrayed had always to be dragged by his parents from reluctant lips, but he never forgot any of it.

Humphrey was sure the artist thought even less of him than the neighbors. Fiction he rarely read, he said. He said it with an elevation of his eyebrows, as if novels were far beneath his attention. His eyebrows were, in fact, singularly expressive, and he could dismiss an author's claim to consideration, or ridicule a masterpiece, without uttering a word. There had been more truth than is usual in such statements when Humphrey had averred that he was not encroached on the score of his unprofitable spare, but when he contemplated the complacent sneer by which this effectual young man pronounced a novelist of reputation to be entirely fatuous, he was galled.

Cynthia had told her mother how hard he was working and once, when they were spending an evening at The Hawthorns some weeks after their return, the subject was mentioned.

"Well," exclaimed the stock-jobber tolerantly, "and how's the story?—getting along, hah?"

"Yes," said Kent, "I'm plodding on with it fairly well, sir."

He was aware his father-in-law did not take fiction seriously, either, and he always felt a certain restraint in speaking of his profession here.

"And what's it about?" asked Mrs. Walford, much in the indulgent tone in which one puts such a question to a child, "Have you made Cynthia your lovely heroine, and are you flirting with her at Dieppe again? I know what it'll be—ha! ha! ha! I'm sure you've meant yourself by the hero in your last book; you know I told you so long ago."

He was convinced also that she would say it with equal perspicacity about every book he wrote.

Your Country's "Promise to Pay"

WHEN you buy Victory Bonds you hold Canada's solemn promise to repay you their full face value in money at the time stipulated in the bond with interest every six months.

THEREFORE, in point of security, Canada's Victory Bonds are in the first rank of the world's investments because——the principal and interest are as certain of payment as anything can be—backed by the whole assets of Canada—the pledge of honour of Her people—and all the assets of all the people of Canada.

—Victory Bonds are also the most "liquid" form of investment. Without trouble or delay they can be converted into cash at any time.

—Victory Bonds pay a good rate of interest—more than any other investment having equal security—nearly twice the interest paid by Savings Banks.

FOR the investment of estate funds, trust funds, sinking funds and all other money which by law or other necessity must be placed only in unquestioned securities, Canada's Victory Bonds are the premier investment.

EXECUTORS, trustees, municipalities, public service corporations, officers of lodges and fraternal societies, and all others with trust funds to invest, can further their own and their country's interest by investing their funds in Victory Bonds.

AND because of the good rate of interest which Victory Bonds pay, together with the supreme security behind them, there is every reason to believe that Canada's Victory Bonds, 1919, will increase in value in the open market, as have Victory Bonds of all previous issues.

BUT Victory Bonds, 1919, are much more than a sound money investment. They are vital to the continued prosperity of the country. The proceeds of the Victory Loan, 1919, will furnish the means of retaining our great export business, by bringing to Canada foreign orders for agricultural and industrial products, which mean the continued prosperity of every citizen. The Victory Loan, 1919, will also enable Canada to carry out her necessary plans of demobilization—fulfill her pledges to her fighting forces—and to readjust the country from War to Peace conditions.

IN HIS PERSONAL INTEREST—

—to obtain an investment of unrivalled security

—to secure an investment yielding a high interest return

AGAIN IN HIS OWN INTEREST AND THAT OF CANADA—

—to ensure the continued prosperity of the nation

—to enable Canada to discharge her duty to her soldiers

—in order to finance Canada's period of readjustment from War to Peace

CHAPTER VIII

Mrs. Kent placed few obstacles in the way of her husband's industry and installed, in Leamington Road, Streatham, he commenced his novel, and deleted and destroyed, and rewrote, until at the expiration of three weeks he had accomplished Chapter I. Primarily he did not experience so many domestic discomforts to impede him as Turquand had once predicted. Mrs. Walford had obtained a very respectable and nice-looking servant, whose only drawback was having a father in a lunatic asylum, and the frequently expressed misgiving that, if she were harassed by a multitude of orders she might be overtaken by a similar fate. Ann was so 'superior' Mrs. Walford explained, and a 'general' had really proved so difficult to procure, that she had not allowed the thought of a hereditary taint to disqualify her, and both the bride and bridegroom declared she had been quite right. Cynthia confessed later to finding it a little awkward when a duty was neglected, since she was deterred from remonstrating by the fear 'the girl might go mad at her'; but apart from this Ann was an acquisition.

The author's working hours were supposed to be from ten o'clock till seven, with an interval for lunch; but the irregular habits of bachelorhood made it hard for him to accustom himself to them and it was often agreed that he should take his leisure in the afternoon and resent himself at his desk in the luring hours of lamplight, when the neighbors' children were at rest and the skies ceased from troubling. To these neighbors he found he was an object of considerable curiosity. He had never lived in a suburb hitherto and he discovered that for a man to remain at home all day offered much food for conjecture there. Subsequently, in some inexplicable manner, his vocation was ascertained and then, when Cynthia and he strolled out, people whispered behind their window-curtains, and stared at them with smiles which suggested that they were not thought very respectable.

Of his wife's family he saw a good deal, both at The Hawthorns and at No. 64, Leamington Road, and his liking for his brother-in-law did not increase. There was an air of condescension in Mr. Caesar Walford's self-sufficiency that he found highly exasperating. The hare's debut had been fixed during their absence for the coming season, and he repeated the newest compliments paid him by his master with the languid assurance of an artist whose supremacy was already acknowledged by all the world. The latest burst of admiration into which Princess had been betrayed had always to be dragged by his parents from reluctant lips, but he never forgot any of it.

Humphrey was sure the artist thought even less of him than the neighbors. Fiction he rarely read, he said. He said it with an elevation of his eyebrows, as if to convey a fear for his attention. His eyebrows were, in fact, singularly expressive, and he could dismiss an author's claim to consideration, or ridicule a masterpiece, without uttering a word. There had been more 'eyes' than is usual in such statements when Humphrey had averred that he was not conceited on the score of his unprofitable sports, but when he contemplated the complacent sneer by which this affected young man pronounced a novelist of reputation to be entirely fatuous, he was galled.

Cynthia had told her mother how hard he was working and once, when they were spending an evening at The Hawthorns some weeks after their return, the subject was mentioned.

"Well," exclaimed the stock-jobber solemnly, "and how's the story?... getting along, heh!"

"Yes," said Kent, "I'm plodding on with it fairly well, sir."

He was aware his father-in-law did not take fiction seriously, either, and he always felt a certain restraint in speaking of his profession here.

"And what's it about?" asked Mrs. Walford, much in the indulgent tone in which one puts such a question to a child. "Have you made Cynthia your lovely heroine, and are you flirting with her at Dieppe again? I know what it'll be—ha! ha! ha! I'm sure you meant yourself by the hero in your last book; you know I told you so long ago."

He was convinced also that she would say it with equal perspicacity about every book he wrote.

It takes a joint of beef to make a bottle of Bovril

Bovril contains the goodness of the beef.

THE vital elements that give beef its special place and value as a food are concentrated and stored in Bovril.

Just as the equivalent light of 32 candles is concentrated in one electric lamp, so the vital elements of beef—of many pounds of beef—are concentrated in a single bottle of Bovril.

But Bovril is not merely a precious food in itself; it possesses the peculiar power of enabling you to extract more nourishment from other foods. This gives Bovril its wonderful body-building power, proved by independent experiment to be from 10 to 20 times the amount taken. Bovril, therefore, in the true sense of the word, is a Great Food Saver.

Always keep Bovril in the house.

Bovril stands alone

Story of Tower of London, Where Wm. Hohenzollern May Await His Trial

THE Tower of London has been suggested as a place where William Hohenzollern might be held pending his trial.

Palace and prison, once noted also for its menageries and its pageantry, birthplace and death house of monarchs, scene of hairbreadth escapes and reputed hidden treasure, ghastly in its memories of tortures and killings and sacred for its martyrs, the Tower of London amply warrants description as the "the most ancient and most poetic pile in Europe."

William the Conqueror gave London a charter but built the White Tower to show the people how little that charter might mean. Like the English Constitution, the rambling London Tower of to-day is a product of centuries, and not one but many towers now are scattered over some 13 acres. The site had been a fortress since Roman times.

To the Middle Tower Elizabeth came back a Queen five years after her jealous half-sister, Mary, had kept her there a prisoner. The hunchbacked Richard III hired three assassins to murder his nephews in Bloody Tower. Not until years later were their bones found and taken to Westminister Abbey.

Lady Jane Grey, she who "had the birth of a princess, the life of a saint, and the death of a malefactor," was beheaded in London Tower. Henry VIII waited to hear a gun fired from White Tower, signal of the execution of Anne Boleyn, so he might marry Jane Seymour next day. Henry's Minister, Thomas Cromwell, sent hosts of enemies to London Tower to be butchered until he helped pick Anne of Cleves for his ninth married monarch, but when Henry saw this prospective bride he pronounced her "a Flanders mare," and off went Cromwell's head with the rest.

Relieving such stories of royal cruelty are the immortal "last words" of the brave men and women who laid their heads on the axeman's block.

"God forbid the King shall use any more such mercy to my friends," laughed Sir Thomas More when told that Henry VIII had "mercifully" consented to let him be beheaded instead of hanged, and, to the executioner, as he moved his beard aside, "Pity that should be cut that has not committed treason."

The Countess of Salisbury refused to lay her head on the block because she had committed no wrong, so that, says an observer, apologizing for the executioner, "he was constrained to fetch it off slovenly."

"If you strike me twice, I cannot promise you not to stir," warned Monmouth. Asked to raise his head a bit Algernon Sidney retorted, "Not until the general resurrection, strike on." "Peter," inquired Sir Walter Raleigh, to keep up the spirits of his attendant, "Dost thou know of any plaister to set a man's head on again when it was cut off?"

Consigned to the Tower for some thirteen years Sir Walter set a fashion which made a salon out of the palace-prison. While he was not attending his garden, and distilling essence from plants, he wrote his quaint "History of the World," and then, too, William Penn wrote "No Cross, No Crown," not to mention the writings of the Duke of Orleans and Sir John Eliot.

About the main entrance to the Tower was a menagerie until a hundred years or so ago because Frederick II of Germany sent Henry III of England several panthers and Henry did not know what else to do with them. Later James I, who liked bear baiting, added those animals to the zoo.

The warders, known as "beef eaters," probably because they once were fed on rations of meat, form one of the curiosities for London visitors. They wear Tudor costumes and, like the Swiss body-guard of the Pope, they keep their ancient costumes undisturbed by currents of modern fashion.

Just before midnight the head warder and the porter, carrying a bunch of huge keys, go to the guard room, summon "the escort of the keys," make up of "beef eaters" and with a brief ceremonial, pass to lock the great outer gate. The keys then is given formally to sentries as the ceremonial changes, and the sentry's detail salutes the keys as the officer says, "God preserve our King." Every three months the password for the day or queen sends the password of the Tower to the constable, signed and sealed, and the Mayor of London is the only other outside person supposed to know it. This is but a relic of the time when the Tower was primarily a fortress.

Like the Bastile, London Tower has been empty of late. One famous effort, in which 4 Col. Blood, disguised as a clergyman, nearly made away with the Jewelled Crown, is thought by some to have been inspired by Charles II because he needed the money the rare gems would bring.

One of the less well known, but most spectacular incidents, was the escape of two priests by a ruse that would have done credit to Monte Cristo. One of them, having been stirred up by the hands for days, and then put in a rack while his wrists still were swollen, without making him betray his faith, wrote in orange juice to friends outside, for a light rope with a weight at one end. He also asked that a boat be brought to the river Gate Tower on a certain night. On that night he made his way to his fellow prisoner's room. The two flung the weighted end of the rope to their friends in the boat, pulled up a heavier rope, climbed down the steep wall to the boat safely and made their escape.

Doctor Tells How to Detect Harmful Effects of Tobacco

Try These SIMPLE TESTS

New York.—Doctor Connor, formerly of Johns Hopkins Hospital, says: "Any man who smoke, chew or snuff incessantly, and who seemingly healthy, is suffering from progressive organic ailments, which will soon show up, if he has been addicted long to the use of tobacco, and thousands would soon get well if they would only stop the use of tobacco. The chief habit-forming principle of tobacco is nicotine, a virulent poison. Many affects the nerves, vision, breaks, and the circulation of the blood. The harmful effect of tobacco varies, and depends on constitution. All be afflicted with general debility, nervousness, indigestion, constipation, gas, sleeplessness, loss of memory, lack of will-power, mental weakness, etc. Others may suffer from heart disease, high blood pressure, dizziness, cold extremities, shortness of breath, cancer or the common affliction known as tobacco heart. If you are using any of the form you can easily detect the harmful effects by making the following simple tests. Hold about one full page from a book at arm's length and read the finest letter indicated. Second test: Light a cigarette, and you must frequently clear your throat. The chances are that your throat is affected by catarrh, and it may be the beginning of cancer. Third test: Take a walk to the morning before taking your usual smoke walk up three flights of stairs at a rapid pace, then stop. If you find that you are out of breath, your heart beat is hurried, throbbing, or irregular, you may be a victim of functional or organic heart trouble. Stop the use of tobacco at once, and if you find it very difficult, you are a slave to the tobacco habit, and are positively poisoning yourself with the deadly drug, nicotine, in either raw you should try the alternative treatment which is said to bring prompt relief, irrespective of the damage already done, the craving for it, and the habit are overcome by degrees. You can overcome the craving and stop the habit in a very short time by using the following inexpensive formula: Take one ounce of Fluid Extract Cascara Compound, add to it one pint of water, and in a comparatively short time you will have no desire to smoke, the craving will have left you. With the nicotine habit broken, you will improve in general health with rapidity beyond belief.

Note.—When asked about Nicotol tablets one of our leading druggists said: "It is truly a wonderful remedy for the tobacco habit; many cases of cure that we have ever said before. We are authorized by the manufacturers to refund the money to every reader who tries it and who is not entirely satisfied after such use; and in a comparatively short time you will have no desire to smoke, the craving will have left you. With the nicotine habit broken, you will improve in general health with rapidity beyond belief.

MY HEAD!

When the head feels thick or aches, when one feels all out-of-sorts —perhaps a coated tongue—it is the signal that poisons are accumulating in the system, and should be cleaned out at once.

Auto-intoxication can be best ascribed to our own neglect or carelessness. When the organs fail in the discharge of their duties the putrefactive germs set in and generate toxins—actual poisons, which fill one's own body.

Sleepiness after meals, flushing of the face, extreme lassitude, biliousness, dizziness, sick headache, acidity of the stomach, heartburn, offensive breath, anemia, loss of weight and muscular power, decrease of vitality or lowering of resistance to infectious diseases, disturbance of the eye, dyspepsia, indigestion, gastritis, many forms of catarrh, asthma, ear affections and allied ailments result from auto-intoxication or self-poisoning.

Take castor oil, or procure at the drug store, a pleasant vegetable laxative, called Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, composed of May-apple, aloes and jalap.

THE OFFICIAL COUNT

Mr. W. H. Matthews, Returning Officer for West Hastings, made his official declaration this afternoon in this city of the votes cast for the Provincial Legislative candidates, also the referendum. The complete list will be published in tomorrow's issue.

Y.M.C.A Notes

At the Y. M. C. A. last evening a big membership drive was launched. There were fifty boys and young men present who have been organized into ten teams in two sections. The objective of this campaign is 250 new members, including boys and men, and also girls and women, who will be given the privileges this season.

Mr. T. J. Madden, chairman of the Membership Committee, presided at this gathering, and Mr. J. Carley, of Galt, who was for six years physical director of the Galt Association, spoke to the boys of the possibilities of the Association work and gave them some good advice re selling memberships.

Mr. Frank W. Wilson, District Secretary for Eastern Ontario, was also present and addressed the gathering. Mr. Wilson had been present at the launching of the Peterborough campaign on Friday last and brought a challenge from the Peterborough Association, who are out to get 350 members, and say they will do this so fast that the Belleville people in getting their 250 are going to be left far in the rear. The local boys took up the challenge and it will be of interest to watch the results.

Peterboro's Revenge.

Just mention Belleville's victorious baseball team to a young man in Peterborough, and with a smile he'll come back with the answer: "Watch the Membership Campaign in Belleville and Peterborough Y. M. C. A.'s this week and you'll have to take off your hat to us, and don't forget, later on there's to be some exciting basketball games between us, too!"

Peterborough are out for 350 members, Belleville 250 this week, and keen interest is aroused among the people of both cities.

Last Friday at a meeting in Peterborough the young men threw down a challenge to this friendly contest and they are boldly confident of victory. The challenge was accepted by a large group of young men at the local Y. M. C. A. last night, who are determined to show up Peterborough again. These fellows decided to get off their coats and go right after every man and boy in the city, not only that he should become a member of the "Y," to help defeat Peterborough, but because of the benefits offered him this year.

Will Peterborough win? Who said Belleville can't show them up again? Everybody can help by lining up this week.

A Y.M.C.A. Concert Party.

The war developed many things and the Canadians in no small way added vital features to the fighting units for their warfare and the maintenance of the morale at a high pitch.

The Y.M.C.A. put on a program including canteens, athletics, movies, services, and later developed a concert school when, during 1917-18-19, over fifty different parties were trained and equipped by Captain Plunkett of the Y.M.C.A., who leads the "Dumbells," showing in Belleville tonight. Practically all the members of concert parties served in the fighting line. The "Dumbells" was a Y.M.C.A. party for a year, then the 2nd Division General asked that it be the official Divisional Party but still under Captain Plunkett and equipped by the Association.

As a Divisional Party it showed in four large theatres in London in 1918, including the Coliseum, where it drew record houses for two weeks. The high quality of the entertainment astonished the Londoners and demands came from all over the British Isles for them to play in their towns. This party has a forty weeks tour in Canada this season.

MANY ALIENS GOING HOME.

Hundreds of Poles Are Leaving the Country Every Week.

To Judge from the steady exodus of aliens, now that the war is over, Ontario in a short time will be minus many thousands of her "Polack" citizens. Strangers in a strange land, never adapting themselves to its customs nor mastering its language, these foreigners are now turning their eyes towards the land of their birth. A wave of sentiment appears to have swept over the whole community. Every man, woman and child is suffering from "homesickness" in the most poignt degree.

Many of them have been out of touch with their home towns since the outbreak of hostilities. Seventy-five per cent. of their savings is kept in the Post Office, and an examination of the books would show that each man's saving averaged about $1,000. As this is worth five times as much in their own country, they want to get home and live like millionaires in their home towns. They emigrated because of the existing conditions in their country, but now that the old regime has been abolished and a new democratic government established, they are anxious of sharing in the benefits.

It is estimated that 500 applications for steamship passages are received weekly. Unfortunately there are many obstacles in the way of those men leaving Canada, while in the United States their departure is encouraged. The men are willing to pay big prices for their passage over. So eager are their brethren across the border to go home that many are sailing on Canadian vessels while their Canadian brethren are left on the dock.

An example given by an agent was that of the Stefano, which sailed on September 17. She had on board 730 passengers, of whom 480 were from Chicago and the remainder from Canada. Fifty of the Canadian "Polacks" were left on the wharf. One of the hinderances to their departure is the absence of proper consular service. So far the Roumanian consul has not shown up, and the Polish consulate is only occupied by a provisional consul.

There are many complications with regard to nationalities on account of the division of Poland between Germany, Russia and Austria. Many of the men who have been classed as Austrian now turn out to be Galicians, or men of Polish origin, who have lived in the land annexed by Austria. Under the new conditions they are claiming their Polish nationality. It is necessary for them to swear allegiance to the new Polish Government. By an order passed on April 8, 1919, Poles were released from registration, and it was possible for them to leave the country after they had procured a passport from their consul. At the alien registry office it is said that about 250 of the registered "Poles" have already received these passports and have left the country.

On account of the transient character of the people it is hard to estimate how many foreigners there are in Ontario, but it is thought that there are between 80,000 and 100,000. Of these, 15,037 are registered in Toronto as alien enemies. The number registered each year is approximately as follows:—1917 (Aug. 15), 1,846; 1915, 3,495; 1916, 2,894; 1917, 3,510; 1918, 2,310; 1919 (Sept. 30), 672.

Of these it is estimated that between 500 and 600 are continually moving from town to town each week.

Told Foreman to Get Another Man

O'Brien Says He Did Not Think He Would Ever Be Able to Work Again

"Tanlac is undoubtedly the finest medicine I have ever taken in my life," said J. T. O'Brien, of 24 Larch Street, Toronto, Ontario.

"For a long time," he continued, "I was in a terribly run-down condition, suffered from disordered stomach and kidneys, and just seemed to be played out. I had no appetite and suffered agonies from indigestion and gas on my stomach. I had a dull, aching pain right across the small of my back all the time and I would get home from work at night feeling completely exhausted. Nothing did me any good. I lost hope of ever getting well and told the foreman where I work that he would have to take on somebody in my place, as I felt I couldn't hold out any longer.

"Then one of the men at the works advised me to try Tanlac. I did so, and I am back on the job every day now, and feeling just fine. My appetite is splendid. I eat anything and haven't a sign of indigestion. My kidneys don't bother me and I have gained several pounds in weight. Tanlac relieved my stomach trouble of twenty years standing and, that is why I'm boosting it like I do."

Tanlac is sold in Belleville by Ostrom's Drug Store, in Trenton by J. H. Dickey, in Deseronto, by W. J. Malley, in Stirling by J. S. Morton, in Madoc by J. Will Vitoo, in Marysville by T. J. McAlpine, in Cressby by Jas. Campbell, and in Thomasburg by J. H. Blakley.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Minnie M. Jose, who died October 22, 1918:

When thoughts of her comes to our mind,
Her form again we see.
She had a kind and helping hand,
Where ever she would be.

We could only raise our tearful eyes,
To our dear Father in Heaven.
For grace to say, Thy will be done,
And help to live for Heaven.

We all have trials here to bear,
The world seems full of woe,
Sickness, sorrow, pain and death,
We see where e'er we go,

But the darkest cloud has a lining bright,
If we look on the other side;
In our Father's house we'll meet again
Where all our tears are dried.

—Mrs. Holton and daughter.

Why Not Get An Organ ?

If a piano is out of the question for the time being

Why deprive yourself of music in the home just because you do not feel you should buy a piano just now? A good organ, even though a used one, will bring music to you. If one of the children wishes to learn the piano let her start on the organ. Many a good pianist today first started on an organ.

We have a number of used organs which have been thoroughly repaired and put into first-class condition, and which we are clearing out at bargain prices and on easy terms.

West Hastings' Official Returns Give Ireland 425 Majority

SLIGHT CHANGES REVEALED BY RETURNING OFFICER'S OFFICIAL SUMMING UP OF RESULT OF MONDAY'S VOTING IN LEGISLATIVE CONTEST IN WEST HASTINGS—CANDIDATE O'FLYNN'S BELLEVILLE MAJORITY INCREASED—SIDNEY TOWNSHIP STRONGLY ENDORSED CANDIDATE IRELAND.

The official summing up of Returning Officer W. H. Matthews, who opened the ballot boxes yesterday and examined the records of the deputy-returning officers, made some slight changes in the returns as originally published in respect to the Legislative contest. The majority reported for Candidate Ireland for Trenton is slightly reduced, while the official records show that Sidney Township gave a larger majority for him than was unofficially recorded. Candidate O'Flynn's majority in Belleville is 493 instead of 463, as published. The official statement is as follows:

U.F.O. Still Seek For a Leader

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer
Canadian Press, Limited

TORONTO, Oct. 23.—While Sir William Hearst and members of his defeated Conservative Government at the palatial Parliament Buildings, at Queen's Park today were in secret session discussing how best to relinquish the reins of power in this province, the victorious United Farmers of Ontario with equal privacy at their dingy headquarters near St. Lawrence Market wrestled with the problem of selecting an official leader who would probably be the next Premier of Ontario. They also discussed important matters of policy and their possible alliance with the Independent Labor Party. It is understood that some statement as to the Conservative Government's plans will be formed this afternoon. Members of the Cabinet when they emerged from the Council room, declined to make any statement until the official announcement is given out by the Premier.

Father Vaughan On Race Suicide

Declares It 4s Making Empire Disgrace in God's Eyes.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—Father Vaughan, well known for his work among the poor of London, in a forceful address at Saturday's session of the congress on tuberculosis prevention, said: "It is terrible to think, when the death rate has exceeded the birth rate so greatly, when the nurseries are silent and the theatre courts are clamorous, that tuberculosis is also making a heavy levy on human life."

"We should have throttled tuberculosis long ago," said Father Vaughan, "It is healthier in some of the slums of London than in the fashionable district of Mayfair.

Referring to the decrease in the birth rate, Father Vaughan declared: "We want all the children possible. We do not want birth prevention thus stinting the empire and making it a disgrace in God's eyes.

Miners Rejected Strike Settlement

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer
Canadian Press Limited

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—United Mine Workers of America today formally rejected the proposal by Secretary of Labor Wilson for settlement of coal strike called for November 1. John Lewis, President of the miners' organization, announced that the proposal was indefinite and failed to meet the situation. He added that he would so report to the joint conference this afternoon.

Handled Liquor For Man Higher Up

TORONTO, Oct. 23.—"These were not intended for to-day, they were meant for yesterday," said David Crawford of Scarboro Township, with reference to fifteen barrels containing whiskey which the county constables were unloading from a truck at the York County Buildings Tuesday. The barrels were part of a lot of thirty-eight discovered by the police after they had forced their way into Crawford's house at Scarboro Junction, on receiving notice from County Constables Dennis and Baker, whose suspicions had been aroused by the large number of sugar barrels being removed from a car at the station. The barrels, it was found, contained five dozen bottles of whiskey each, except to a few that held in all a few dozen bottles of each liquor.

The constables, when they made the seizure, arrested David Crawford who is a farmer, and his hired man, Tom Foley, and put Crawford to work driving the truck that they used to transport the liquor to the County Building. In an interview with Chief Constable Phillips, Crawford claimed that he was made the temporary custodian of the liquor; that a "guy" had given him $7,000 with which to pay for it; and that a man would be at his place that same evening to receive the money. On this understanding he was allowed to return to his home with the constables. Crawford stated that there was another car of liquor somewhere on the track which was to arrive at Scarboro Junction that night.

The bottles of whiskey contained in the sugar barrels were carefully packed in excelsior, and lined so that if tapped—not too strongly—they would yield sugar.

U.F.O. Decide To Carry on No Entangling Alliances

UNITED FARMERS ARE WILLING TO FORM A GOVERNMENT HOWEVER IN CO-OPERATION WITH SUCH MEMBERS OF OTHER PARTIES AS ARE IN SYMPATHY WITH THEIR PLATFORM AND PRINCIPLES, AND ARE FREE TO GIVE THEIR SUPPORT THERETO.

After sitting in conference for over five hours yesterday the farmer members-elect who fought under the U. F. O. banner decided to take the plunge and accept responsibility in the government of the province. Their statement issued by Secretary Morrison at the close of last night's meeting of members, and defeated U. F. O. candidates is a model of brevity, but it clearly declares the readiness of the U. F. O. to combine with other progressive elements in the other party groups in the formation of a coalition Government may or may not be a farmer. That is one of the matters that has yet to be determined and much will depend upon the strength which the Beck boom can gain in the next few days. The conference will be resumed this morning and it is possible that the leaders will be able to give the rank and file guidance upon this point.

But whoever may be the choice for Prime Minister, the Government will be dominated by U. F. O. policy. That much is abundantly plain. The conference yesterday recognized the fact that it would be impossible for them to succeed with a U. F. O. Labor Government, even with a few additions from among the farmer members of the old parties and they accordingly are prepared to give full consideration to all interests in the province in the formation of a Cabinet. But the men who join with them must be ready to support the U. F. O. and platform and principles.

WILL NOT HAVE DEWART

The statement issued last night nips in the bud H. Hartley Dewart's plan to unite the U. F. O. Liberals and Labor members in opposition to the Conservatives under the Dewart leadership. The farmers having carried on their campaign against both of the old parties, and having bumped one, proportionately, almost as much as the other, are not going to hazard the success of their movement by an alliance with either party. They have practically notified Mr. Dewart that he will not be Ontario's next Premier, and the Liberal leader if he should feel inclined to subscribe to the farmer platform would go into a coalition Government—if invited—as an individual member. Under the circumstances it seems probable that Mr. Dewart will continue to be an Opposition leader.

If the U. F. O. declaration bars Mr. Dewart, it bars, to the same extent, Sir William Hearst. The farmers offered no interpretation of their briefly worded statement, but while leaving the door open for the inclusion in a coalition Government of such men as Hon. Dr. Cody and Brig.-General Ross it probably shuts the door upon both so far as leadership is concerned, since both are leaders of one of the old parties and choice of either might appear to indicate an alliance. The Beck boom is based largely upon the fact that he has disassociated himself from party.

Only sentence of the U. F. O. statement caused a good deal of comment in outside circles last night—the promise that the members "going hands with the farmers must accept their "platform and principles." Much will depend upon how insistent the farmers are in requiring acceptance of their platform to the letter. In the main the U. F. O. platform could be accepted by the progressive elements of all groups in the House and would offer little obstacles to coalition; the abolition of patronage, increased educational facilites, reforestation, Hydro development, the carrying out of the will of the people expressed in the referendum. The "planks" which may prove troublsome are those condemning the Provincial highway policy, endorsing the policy of direct legislation the policy through the initiative and the referendum and proportional representation.

Drasti cReduction In British General Military Staff

No Self-Determination For Ireland Until Order is Restored

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—Speaking at Wallasey, Cheshire, last night, Field Marshal Viscount French, Lord Lieutenant-Governor of Ireland, made a bitter attack upon the Sinn Fein government of Ireland. Among other things he said:

"The self-constituted, illegal and insane Sinn Fein government is possessed of a great secret army called the Irish Volunteers, to which are attached assassins whose business it is to murder police and soldiers who question their decrees in any community. The people are frightened into screening offenders and courageous efforts on the part of the police are abortive. We are anxious to give self-determination and be faithful and just to all, but little can possibly be done until law and order are established. When people hear of coercion I hope they will consider the matter in a just light."

Terms of New Victory Loan

OTTAWA, Oct. 23.—Sir Henry Drayton, Minister of Finance, yesterday made known the terms of the forthcoming Victory Loan.

The prospectus will ask for a minimum amount of $300,000,000, with the right to accept all or any part of subscriptions in excess of that sum.

As in previous years subscribers will be given a choice of maturity, five-year bonds due November 1, 1924, or 10-year bonds, due Nov. 1, 1924. The securities will carry interest at the rate of 5½ per cent. per annum, payable May 1 and Nov. 1, and the issue price will be 100 and accrued interest for both maturities, making the income return 5½ per cent. per annum. Purchasers may pay in full on application or in five installments, as follows.

Terms of Payment

Ten per cent. on application: 20 per cent. December 9, 1919; 20 per cent. January 9, 1920; 20 per cent. February 10, 1920; 31.21 per cent., March 9, 1920. The last payment of 31.21 per cent. covers 30 per cent. representing accrued interest at 5½ per cent. from November 1 to due dates of the respective installments.

As a full half-year's infrest will be paid on May 1, 1920, the cost of the bonds will be 100 and interest. If payment is made at the time of application the price will be 100 flat. After the initial payment subscribers to have the privilege of paying in full on any due date hereafter, with accrued interest computed at the rate of 5½ per cent. per annum.

For Small Subscribers

Arrangements have again been made with the banks for the purchase of bonds by small subscribers on the installment card system, spreading the payments over ten months. Due to their capacity the banks will also accept bonds from small investors for safe-keeping, without charge, for a period of one year.

As in 1918, bearer bonds will be available through the banks for delivery at the time of application if subscribers making payment in full. Bonds registered as to principal only or both as to principal and interest, in authoized denominations will be delivered to subscribers making payment in full as soon as the required registration can be made. Bonds with coupons will be issued in denominations of $50, $100, $500, and $1,000, and may be registered as to principal. Fully registered bonds, the interest on which is paid directly to the owner by Government cheque, will not be issued in denominations lower than $500. The subscription lists will open on October 27, and close on or before November 15, 1919.

Not Exempt From Tax

As previously intimated by the Minister of Finance, the bonds of the new issue will not carry the tax-exempt privilege which was attached to the issues made during the war. This means that in computing this Dominion income tax the holder of the new securities who is subject to the tax will be required to include the interest as part of his taxable income.

In making the announcement Sir Henry Drayton said: "This is not my loan, it is not the Government's loan; it is the loan of the people of Canada, backed by all the resources of Canada. It is to be spent to discharge our war commitments and provide for national working capital. The security is undoubted, the interest return exceptionally attractive. I confidently appeal to the Canadian people for the same full measure of support that has been given to the previous flotations, which have heralded to the world Canada's capacity and standing."

Purposes of Loan

The purposes of the loan, which are set out in detail in the official advertisements and literature of the campaign, are described in general terms in the prospectus as follows:

"The proceeds of the loan will be used to pay indebtedness incurred, and to meet expenditures to be made in connection with demobilization (including the authorized war service gratuity to our soldiers, land settlement loans and other purposes connected with their re-establishment into civil life), for capital outlay upon shipbuilding and other national undertakings forming part of the post-industrial reconstruction program, and for the establishment of any necessary credits for the purchase of grain, foodstuffs, timber and other products, and will be spent wholly in Canada."

Previous war loans were: :

1st—October, 1915, $150,000,000, 5 per cent., 10 years, issued at 97.5.

2nd—October, 1916, $100,050,000, 5 per cent., 15 years, issued at 97.5.

3rd—March, 1917, $150,000,000, 5 per cent., 20 years, issued at 95.

The Victory Loans were:

1st—November, 1917, $150,000,000, 5½ per cent., 5, 10 and 20 years, issued at 100.

2nd—November, 1918, $300,000,000, 5½ per cent., 5 and 15 years, issued at 100.

VAUDEVILLE POLICY DISCONTINUED AT GRIFFIN'S

The management of Griffin's Opera House announce that commencing tonight and throughout the winter season a straight policy of special photoplays will be shown on the silver sheet at Griffin's. Hart in "Wagon Tracks," Elsie Ferguson in "The Avalanche," "Terason" "Oh You Women," Mary Pickford in "Captain Kidd, Jr.," "Wolves of the Night," William Farnum and Louise Glaum in "Sahara" D. W. Griffith's greatest screen achievement, "Broken Blossoms" which has enjoyed a phenomenal engagement in New York at $3 prices, "Auction of Souls" screened four weeks at Strand Theatre, Toronto and which by order of the Ontario Censor Board is being exhibited to no persons under 21 years, Anita Stewart in "Midnight Romance," Jack Pickford in "Bill Apperson's Boy" "Doug" Fairbanks in his first 'big four' pictures "One of the Bravest" Fannie Ward in "Common Clay," "Choosing a Wife," John Barrymore in "Raffles" Nazimova in "The Red Lantern," "13th Chair," Mary Pickford in "Daddy Long Legs" Anita Stewart in "Mary Regan" Mary Pickford in "The Hoodlum," Nazimova in "The Rest" Anita Stewart in "Human Desire," and other plays which will be announced shortly.

"THE VIRTUOUS THIEF" HAS A CAPABLE CAST

Enid Bennett, the charming star, is a stenographer in her latest picture, "The Virtuous Thief" which is being shown at Griffin's tonight to Saturday, with a matinee Saturday. In an effort to save from prosecution her brother when he stole money from his employer and to shield the family name, she leaves her employ and goes to work as a typist for the man from whom her brother stole. Her employer proves a scoundrel who is leading a double life. He tries to take advantage of the brother's guilt in order to force his attentions on the girl but is foiled. Later he is murdered and suspicion points toward the girl typist how she is cleared but by a miracle will prove amusing interesting. "The Son of a Hun" a funny 2-act Fox Sunshine comedy, Screen Magazine, British News and a beautiful Outing Chester colored travelogue are also to be being exhibited on the same program.

TOM MOORE AT PALACE

Tom Moore is a mounted policeman in his newest Goldwyn picture, "One of the Finest" which is being screened at the Palace Theatre to-night to Saturday, matinee daily, and his natty uniform seems to be the magnet toward which love, adventure, romance and thrills gravitate. Mary Hayes, daughter of a former commissioner who lives with his widowed mother and a little girl, Mary Jane Andrews, to whom he has given a home when her father is sent to prison. His kindness and devotion to the child almost brings about his undoing, however, when the rejected suitor of the girl he loves seeks to make her believe that the child is Larry Hayes' own. The truth comes out in a surprisingly dramatic climax but not before the policeman sees all his hope crumble and the girl he loves believes the worst. She has misjudged him on another occasion also. Specking in the park, her limousine has been stopped by Larry and a reckless admirer to her. She construes this as impertinence and induces her father to have officer Hayes reduced in rank. It is in the succeeding events, when he is a mere plain clothes man sent to guard her sister's diamonds, that she comes to recognize him as the only man she could ever love. "One of the Finest" is replete with exciting moments and clever characterizations. The 17th chapter of the whirlwind circus serial "Lure of the Circus" and other plays are also being presented on the same program.

Opposition Urges Delay With G.T.R.

OTTAWA, Oct. 23.—After frankly confessing his lack of confidence in the efficacy of Government ownership and expression of railways and criticizing the proposal to acquire control of the Grand Trunk Railway Company as ill-timed, D. D. McKenzie, acting floor leader of the Opposition, Tuesday offered in the Commons an amendment to the motion for second reading of the Government's bill. His resolution, which was seconded by Hon. W. S. Fielding, asserted that the bill proposed an uncertain and very large addition to the public debt at a time when the existing obligations of the country were so vast by in excess of all previous obligations as to cause anxiety that a measure of such importance required study which could not be given it in the closing days of the session, that under the circumstances the introduction by the Government of a measure of such great importance as the acquisition of the railway and property of Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada was improvident and inexpedient. Therefore, Mr. McKenzie proposed that consideration of the bill be deferred until a future session of Parliament.

Hon. Sir W. Rowell made a vigorous reply to Mr. McKenzie's arguments. The President of the Privy Council pointed out that Canada already had public ownership of railways and that the present unfortunate railway situation was not due to public ownership, but arose out of private ownership. Under private ownership there had been unnecessary duplication of lines and waste of money. The bill before Parliament was to make the Dominion's position as an owner of railways and investments in railways more secure. The bill would empower the Government to secure control of lines which would gather up in Ontario and Quebec freight for the Eastern and Western lines of the present National Railway system, and would distribute in those provinces the products of the East and West. The combined system of Government-controlled and operated railways after the Grand Trunk was acquired would be worth vastly more than the sum of the values of the separate parts of that system. He met the argument that the bill was introduced too late in the session by pointing out that there was no time fixed for the close of the session. 'How would we be in a better position to consider this legislation next February than now?' asked Mr. Rowell.

He condemned Mr. McKenzie's amendment as dilatory, as contrary to the public interest, as contrary to the success of the Government railways, and in the interest only of those opposed to public ownership.

A MILITARY GENIUS

TRIBUTE IS PAID TO SIR HENRY WILSON.

Premier David Lloyd George Tells How the Former Chief of the Imperial General Staff Foresaw the Great German Campaign of 1918—He Was Also Instrumental In Carrying Through Vital War Arrangements.

But little is known by the general public of the great services performed in the war by Sir Henry Wilson, Chief of the Imperial General Staff, recently made a field marshal, and therefore on this account the tribute paid to him by the British Prime Minister on the occasion of a dinner in his honor a short time ago will be interesting. Mr. Lloyd George said:—

"We meet to-night to do honor to a great soldier. He rendered essential service to his country at the most critical moment in its great storm, and rendered greater service to his country than is generally known, for among his defects is one of excessive modesty. The first time I met Sir Henry Wilson was, I think, in 1911, at the Committee of Imperial Defence. Owing to the arrogance and the arbitrary action of the German Government the peace of Europe was being menaced and the Committee of Imperial Defence was suddenly summoned to consider the situation. Under the direction of Lord Haldane he made arrangement with Marshal Foch (then Gen. Foch) for the Expeditionary Force that the Government decided to send in 1914. Those arrangements came into operation as the result of the work done by Sir Henry Wilson, and they came into operation in a way which was very characteristic of him. There was no noise, there was no fuss, there was no advertisement about it, there was no hitch. No one knew about it, it was done until it had been done, and no one knew that it had been done by him. It was such a vast expedition, it was sent with promptitude, and was the most perfect piece of machinery I have seen at work in the course of the war and it was his task.

"I will give you the second service, service of no mean order, that he rendered, and that those of us who have been watching him know the full value of even more than the general public, because it was one of the things that was due to his foresight to the notice of the general public—I think I have seen it stated

TIME TO WAKE UP AND GET BUSY.

Now that the excitement of the election campaign is over, residents of Belleville and Hastings County generally should turn their attention and concentrate their energies in united effort to have the rich resources of this district developed.

The mineral wealth of Hastings County has scarcely been scratched as yet and only needs a comprehensive publicity campaign to attract the attention and compel the investigation of the Government and capitalists all over the world.

It is freely conceded that the advantage of Belleville as a location for industries, large and small, has no superior in Canada, with abundant and cheap electric power, splendid shipping facilities by rail and water, including three transcontinental railways and a short direct water route connection with the United States, besides splendid harbor facilities.

Five new industries have recently selected Belleville as manufacturing headquarters, and are actively engaged either installing machinery or preparing to do so. These industries have been secured largely through the enterprise and progressiveness of local capitalists who desire to see Belleville prosper and are willing to invest their money in local industrial enterprises of a sound nature.

The industries now being established in Belleville are for the most part going concerns which have been successfully operated in other places and are removing to Belleville because of its superior location and in accordance with a policy of expansion and the introduction of new capital.

An organization of citizens has been perfected which has for its object the encouragement and expansion of local industries by the investment of local capital, with a board of directors charged with closely scrutinizing every industrial proposition which can be brought to Belleville and which has the promise of fair returns upon investment for the purpose of increasing the productive capacity of the business. This organization can be of great assistance to Belleville in securing new industries and stands between the local Board of Trade and many promoters with a keen business microscope to detect the flaws, if any, in each proposition and ascertain its merits. This organization is worthy of the earnest consideration of every citizen of Belleville and district who has money to invest in industrial enterprises.

One of the greatest drawbacks at present to the development industrially of Belleville is the lack of suitable houses with all modern conveniences, for workingmen and at reasonable rents. The Housing Commission appointed by the City Council seems to have died on the job.

The time for awakening is at hand—wake up, Belleville, and arouse, ye citizens of Hastings County, to the possibilities of this district in the great revival of industrial activity in Canada which must follow the war.

WHY A "WAR" LOAN?

The Victory Loan of 1919 is a war loan—even though Canada is officially at peace. Wars do not end with the laying down of arms. The stroke of a pen at the bottom of a Peace Treaty does not by magic restore the ravages and dislocations of war. That is the experience of all countries today, and is part of the history of past conflicts. Peace gives birth to a multitude of responsibilities that are the aftermath of war; and no responsibilities can be effectively faced without money. There is the great problem of the soldier which is by no means disposed of. There is the equally great problem of maintaining Canada's trade so that there will be work for all and a ready market for the products of the field, the mine and the workshop.

Canada has been marvellously successful in avoiding the depression which usually follows peace. Owing to the success of her Victory Loans of 1917 and 1918 she found herself in a better position than any other belligerent save the United States to meet war-created problems; better in a sense even than the United States, which last spring was obliged to float a loan to liquidate short date liabilities. Canada has been able to treat her soldiers with ten-fold greater generosity than did the United States, and is able to show a community both agricultural and industrial, equally prosperous. But to maintain this prosperity and splendid stability, Canada must support it generously or the good work cannot go on. It is up to everyone who has prospered to buy 1919 Victory Bonds.

SMYRNA.

The Place In Asia Where the Rugs Come From.

Turks are making vigorous protest against the mandatory intrusted to Greece over Smyrna. Smyrna, too often known only to the Western peoples, as "the place where the rugs come from," though they do not, even with Damascus in the claim to being the oldest city of the world. One of the seven cities of the Christian Church in Asia Minor, it also is among the seven cities that claim Homer. You will recall the lines:

"Seven wealthy towns contend from Homer dead
Through which the living Homer begged his bread."

It has passed through all the cycles of the average city's history time and time again, at one period having a government which suggests that of the Russian Soviets, and it has survived earthquakes, plagues and destructive wars.

Its known history runs back to a thousand years B.C., and it may have flourished in the unrecorded ages before that remote time for all the written history connotes. The Aeolians preceded the Greeks, who made it an Eastern centre of their early culture. It had declined and all but fallen when Alexander, after taking Sardis, released it from the yoke of the Lydian and acting upon a suggestion said to have come to him in a dream, decided to restore it. It also fell under Roman, Mongol and, finally, Turkish dominion.

It was under the Lydians that the once proud city was split into a series of communities, which effectively tied its political and military hands, so that this dean among Ionian cities cut little figure in the golden era of Hellenic culture.

The new Smyrna, as rebuilt by Alexander, was moved about three miles south of the older site which was to the northeast of the landlocked gulf of the same name. Nestling between the "muddy green" waters of this gulf and the sunrise slopes of hills behind it, Smyrna always was a city beautiful, a fact which was early set upon coins.

Ancient coins also bore the likeness of Homer, whose identity with the older Smyrna seems fairly well founded because the Meles river, with its cave nearby that formed the Homeric "dark study," flowed lazily past the ancient city, though its waters since have been diverted to other and deeper channels.

To-day a thriving port, despite the Turkish disinclination to modernize its harbor facilities, Smyrna is a cosmopolitan, some say nondescript, city. The reason for the less flattering appellation is summed up by Charles Dudley Warner, who said: "One of the most ancient cities on the globe, it has no appearance of antiquity; containing all nationalities, it has nationality; it is an Asiatic city with a European face; it produces nothing, it exchanges everything."

Among its heaviest exports, before the world war, when nearly 8,000 ships visited there yearly, were figs, tobacco, silk, raisins and carpets. The rugs known by Smyrna's name might be cited in support of Mr. Warner's last contention, for they came from the far interior districts, which necessarily made them a long journey and a devious route.

One of the Last of Old-time "Reds"

Tom Wah-Toot, who remembered the first coming of the white man to the Klickitat valley, Washington state, has gone to the happy hunting grounds at the age of at least one hundred and ten. He was known and liked by everyone in the region, and would tell vividly of the events of days when white people invaded the territory of the Yakimas and Klickitats. He was present at the council of Walla Walla plains in 1855, and was a warrior under Kamiakin in the Yakima Indian war that followed. He took part in the block house battle and massacre of white settlers at the Cascades, Mount Laur, Phillip H. Sheridan was in command of the troops sent from Fort Vancouver to defend the garrison. After the revolt was crushed Tom-o-Wah-Teet was always friendly to the whites, and his many services have been repaid, for since he became nearly blind about five years ago and could no longer support himself, he was fed and cared for by working on farms, those he once aided have looked after his wants.

Erzberger Is Assailed

REVELATIONS are the order of the day in Germany. During the last few weeks almost every major statesman of the Fatherland hurled a rhetorical or journalistic hand grenade or two right into the reputation of his neighbor, and some of them seem to register hits, with the audience wildly applauding. The fun started on July 25, when, in the National Assembly at Weimar, the Conservative representative, von Graefe, staged, as the Kolnische Zeitung puts it, a dashing cavalry charge against the Government, and in particular against its supposedly weakest defence; that is, the person of the Vice-Premier and Minister of Finances, Erzberger. He said that the forces backing the present Government were largely responsible for Germany's breakdown in the war and attacked Erzberger for ruining the German treasury. The Kolnische Zeitung reports: "All that which in the course of time had been charged against the balance sheet of the revolution was industriously collected and dished up by Graefe."

Even before the signing of the Peace Treaty there were rumors that the Conservatives, or, as they now call themselves, German Nationals, would start a general offensive just the Government, attempting to fix the entire blame for this disastrous outcome of the war on the men who went to Versailles, and thus shielding the Junker politicians and generals really responsible for the catastrophe. The objective of such a campaign was, according to the press friendly to the Government, to discredit the coalition of majority Socialists, Democrats and Centrists and pave the way for a Conservative and counter revolutionary victory at the elections.

One of the first big shots was fired by Count Botho Wedel, the former German Ambassador at Vienna, who, in an article published in the Hamburger Nachrichten, accused a host of grave charges against the Vice-Premier and Minister of Finance, Matthias Erzberger. Count Wedel's article dealt chiefly with Erzberger's famous peace visit to Vienna in 1917, which proceeded in two, first, that the enterprise of the Central states was "not backed authorization; second, that by indiscreetly communicating to the Entente Count Czernin's confidential report about the desperate situation of Austria Erzberger wrecked the prospects of a favorable peace.

Count Czernin's report, Count Wedel alleges, which was handed out to the Kaiser's headquarters at Homburg by Count Ledochowski, was intended "to shatter the German Government's confidence in a favorable outcome and to induce Germany to make a peace of compulsion, thereby acknowledging defeat." Count Wedel continues:

"On a visit to Homburg the Emperor Charles and Count Czernin suggested that Germany should return Alsace-Lorraine to France, Austria, if was said, was ready to yield territory, to join Galicia, considered lost in any event, to Poland, and to cede Poland with Galicia to the German sphere of influence.

"At German General Headquarters this report did not make the impression desired by the Austrians, chiefly because of its exaggerations.

"A circular dispatch of July 2 of this year in the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung proved the impression that Chancellor Hertling's visit there had, in April, 1912, confided the contents of Count Czernin's report to Erzberger and sent him to Vienna with the purpose to see the Emperor Charles and preventing a peace conference. This errand was successfully executed by Herr Erzberger.

"I understand now that Herr von Bethmann-Hollweg denies that he had any knowledge of the sinking of Czernin's report to Erzberger. Such knowledge I did not suppose, and have been inexplicable on his part.

"Herr von Bethmann-Hollweg also denies the allegation that a letter was sent Erzberger to Vienna. There was no necessity for such special mission, as the German Embassy in Berne and the German Legation in Switzerland were at the Chancellor's disposal.

Count Wedel now turns to an ex-Centrist leader, Erzberger's methods. The Centrist leader is charged with sinking of the Czernin report to Erzberger. Such sinking did do as much as Erzberger accuses.

The former First Sea Lord, who is celebrated for taciturnity, recently came out of his chill in a letter to the London Times. He began it thus:

"This letter is not to argue with your leading article. It is only dastardly fools who argue. I never contradict. I never explain. I never apologize. These are the secrets of a happy life."

After declaring that the fleet will be presently obsolete, he goes on to say:

"Was I wrong about the water tube boiler, when the whole of the expert world was against me?

"Was I wrong about the turbine when I put it in a dreadnought, when only before it was in a penny steamship, and experts called it a box of nails?

"Was I wrong about the battle cruiser that sank Von Spee and all his fleet with its prodigious speed and big guns?

"Was I wrong about the submarine, when seven months before the war I described that it was not the Lusitania by the Germans?

"Was I wrong to bring the fleet from the Mediterranean to the North Sea in humble imitation of Nelson, who said your battle ground should be your drill ground?

"Did the fleet at Scapa Flow on August 4, 1914, win the war or not? Every vessel of this line of battle that was there was conceived when I was First Sea Lord.

"I say, with St. Paul, I boast myself as a fool. He was compelled; so am I. Seeing that many glory after the flesh, I will glory also. Up to a certain point I suffer fools gladly but I am trustee for no estate that is only going to be left to millinges fourpence in the pound left. It was time to kick.

"The Times takes two days to get where I am. This is by return of post.

Everyone Who Bought Canada's Victory Bonds Made Money . . . . . .

EVERY one of the million and a half subscribers to Canada's Victory Bonds knows that he can sell them today for more than he paid for them.

Every one who bought Canada's Victory Bonds has received 5½ per cent. interest per annum—paid twice a year.

Over half a million Canadians who bought Canada's Victory Bonds on the instalment plan saved money that they would not otherwise have saved.

The guarantee back of Canada's Victory Bonds is the same as the guarantee back of a One Dollar or a Two Dollar bill. There is this difference, however, that you get interest on the Victory Bonds and you don't on the One or Two Dollar bill.

Canada's Victory Bonds will always be accepted as security for a loan.

Banks are ready to loan money on Canada's Victory Bonds.

Canada's Victory Bonds may be turned into cash at any time.

There is no other way in which you can invest your money with such absolute security—paying such a good rate of interest.

Canada will soon give her citizens an opportunity to buy Victory Bonds 1919. It will probably be the last chance to buy Canada's Victory Bonds on such favorable terms.

Prepare to buy as many Victory Bonds this time as you now wish you had been able to buy the last time

Lord Fisher Foretells That the British Navy Will Soon be Obsolete

LORD FISHER, of Kilverstone, G.C.B., O.M., is at it again, telling the British what is this and that about the navy. He says the ships constituting the present Grand Fleet will be obsolete for war a few years hence and that, accordingly, action should be taken. It has been the wizardry of his judgment in naval matters that caused the British to give ear to the cutting tongues of a sea master.

LORD FISHER.

Wheel-Mounted Sled.

Snow and ice are not perpetual in Alaska, popular belief to the contrary, and while dog sleds are commonly used during the colder months they are of no value in the summer when the ground lacks its covering of white, say Popular Mechanics. This latter fact led a resident of the territory to invent a conveyance to be drawn by his dog team during the warm season. A sled of Indian design was mounted on four small bicycle wheels, and a steering column and wheel from an automobile were connected to the front pair. Five dogs, hitched in the usual manner, draw the wheel-mounted sled.

Quick Work.

A man who was wanted by the police had been photographed in six different positions, and the pictures sent to the chief of police of a neighboring town, where it was thought likely the fugitive was in hiding. After the lapse of a few days the following reply reached headquarters: "Sir: I duly received the portraits of the six unknown whose capture is desired. I have arrested five of them, and the sixth is under observation and will be secured shortly."

Our War Debt.

It will surprise many who do not believe in thrift to consider the war debt of the Dominion. Since March 31, 1914, the public net debt has increased 480 per cent. from $336,996,000 to an estimate for 1919-20 of $1,951,000,000. Pensions are estimated this year at $100,000,000; land settlement, $35,000,000, and soldiers civil re-establishment, $10,000,000. Interest on the public debt alone rises from $12,093,000 in 1913-14 to $102,767,000 this year. War expenditures for 1919-20 were estimated at $350,000,000, exclusive of pensions, and this year's consolidated revenue receipts are estimated at $244,000,000.

Income tax had been levied on 51,388 people in 1917, and the amount of assessment was $11,121,669. Only 47,021 people paid, and the amount collected was $1,469,500. Ten million dollars. Only 12,642 persons paid on incomes between $1,500 and $5,000, and $1,469,500 was collected from them. Only 48 persons paid on incomes over $100,000, a total of $1,470,000.

"N-no," he said, "I shouldn't care to try to make "copy" out of my wife. It wouldn't be easy and it wouldn't be congenial.

"You ought to know her faults better than anybody else's, I think, by this time," said Miss Wix tartly.

"And her virtues," answered Humphrey.

"Oh," said Miss Wix, with acidulated humour, "she says two months are quite long enough to find out all Cynthia's virtues, Lonica."

"I didn't hear him say anything of the sort," said Miss Walford crossly. "Well, what is it about? Tell us."

He felt awkward and embarrassed. "I can't explain a plot; I'm very stupid at it," he said. "You shall have a copy the moment it is published, later, and read the thing."

"I do wish he'd call me "mamma"!" she cried. "He makes me feel a hundred years old."

To divert the conversation, he inquired if she had read the last of Henry James's.

"I don't know," she said. "Oh yes, they sent it me from the library, this week. It isn't bad: I didn't like it much. Did you read it, Caesar?"

Caesar became conscious that people talked.

"Read he echoed wearily. "Read what?" "

"James's last. I forget what it was called—or—something. I saw you with it the other day. A red book."

"I looked through it. I had nothing to do."

"Quite amusing," she said, "wasn't it?"

"I forget," he murmured; "I never do remember these things."

"It took a clever man some time to write," said Kent; "it might have been worth your attention for a whole afternoon."

The other was not disturbed. Neither his confidence nor his amiability was shaken.

"Do you think so?" he said with gentleness. "I can't read things any more. There's nothing to be gained. What does one acquire—whether Angelina marries Edwin, or whether she marries Charles?" He shook his head and smiled compassionately. Sam Walford guffawed. "When I feel that my mind's been at too great a tension I sometimes glance at a novel; but I'm afraid—I'm really afraid—I can't concede that should be justified in giving an afternoon to one."

"Caesar has his work to think of, you know," put in Cynthia; "it is not like us women."

"You'll find it a tough job to get the best of Caesar in an argument," added Walford good-humouredly.

"Oh, I don't deny that I have read novels in my time. There was a time when I could read a yellow-back: life made this admission in the evident belief that it took was far more frivolous in cardboard covers than while it was in its first edition of cloth "But I can't do it to-day."

"Well," cried Mrs. Walford, "I must say I think it's—it's really very clever to write a good novel, I couldn't write one; I'm sure I couldn't. I haven't the patience."

"Oh!" exclaimed Caesar with charming confusion, "it's Humphrey's own line—of course it is. I always forget." He turned to Kent deprecatingly: "Do you know, I never think of you as going in for that; it's a surprise every time I recollect it."

Kent said it was really of no consequence whatever.

"Well, well, well," said Walford, "everybody to his trade. We can't all be born with a fortune in our throats. Wish we could—eh, Humphrey, my boy? Did you hear what Lasalle said about his voice the other day? Caesar, just tell Humphrey what Lasalle said about your voice the other day."

"Oh, Humphrey doesn't want to listen to that long story," declared Mrs. Walford. "I'm sure."

He could do no less after this than express curiosity.

"Do, Caesar!" entreated his sister; "I haven't heard, either."

"A trifle," he demurred, "not interesting. I didn't know I'd mentioned it."

"Oh yes," said Miss Wix. "Don't you remember you told us the story at tea, and then you told it again to your father at dinner? But do tell Cynthia and Humphrey."

"I—er—dined with Pinecox last night at his rooms," he drawled. "One or two men came in afterward. He introduced me. I didn't pay much attention to the names—you know what it is—and by-and-by Pinecox proved me to sing. He said I was "a pupil" and I could say one of the men was prepared to be bored.....This really is too personal that——"

"No, no, no! go on. What nonsense" said his mother.

"I could see he was prepa..d to be bored, so I made up my mind to—sing! I was nettled—very childish, I admit it—but I was nettled. I didn't watch him while I sang—I couldn't. I did better than I expected. I assure you."

"You forgot everything," said Sam Walford, "I know."

"I did not. I didn't think of Pinecox, of him, of anybody in the room. When I had finished, he came up to me and said "Mr. Walford, I am sick with envy. Ah, heaven! if I could command such a career!" The man was Lasalle!"

Kent asked himself speciously if this thing could be.

Dandruff Soon Ruins The Hair

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

BRITISH CLERGY DEBATE MODERN GHOST TALKS

LEICESTER, England, Oct. 23.—The Congress of the Church of England held a warm debate over Spiritualism, which started through an attack from the Very Rev. William R. Inge, Dean of St. Paul, London, who is known to the newspapers as the "Gloomy Dean" because of his somewhat despondent view on present-day life.

The Right Hev. James E. C. Welldon, Dean of Durham, and one or two other prominent clergymen made a partial defense of Spiritualism and the Archbishop of Canterbury said the entire subject would be considered by the Bishops when the Lambeth Convention met next year.

"If," said Dean Inge, "this kind of after-life were true—that portrayed in the pitiable revival of necromancy in which many desolate hearts have sought spurious satisfaction—it would indeed be a melancholy postponement or negation of all we hope and believe about our dead."

CAN'T DISMISS IT AS FRAUD

Replying, Dean Welldon said: "It is too late to dismiss spiritualism as a fraud—or as some say—a nuisance—fraud."

The Dean added that the Spiritualistic phenomena was on the nature of science like Crooks, Lodge, Flammarion and Lombroso, and continued:

"I take it that the evidence is good that the foundations of Edgar Chapel at Glastonbury were discovered through communications received by automatic writing. I think Spiritualism has come to fill a void in church practice; and, because of the coldness in the services themselves, for the departed should be restored, I believe.

The Rev. J. A. Magee the last speaker, was loudly applauded. He said:

"Sir Arthur Conan Doyle is moving from city to city ministering to a popular craze. I challenge Sir Arthur to deny that Spiritualism is perilous to the mental, moral and physical health. Every several or third young lady one meets now imagines herself a modern St. Theresa."

REVIVAL OF CULT

Spiritualism is undergoing a remarkable revival in England, apparently partly through the hopes of many war-bereaved persons to communicate with lost relatives. The revival is said to be due largely to the writings of Sir Oliver Lodge and popular discussions in which Sir Arthur Conan Doyle figures as the chief champion of the cult.

The British courts sometimes deal strongly with mediums and astrologers. Lord Justice Bankes of the Appeal Court, however recently decided in the case of a clairvoyant before him that she was not guilty of the offensive, if she believed in the powers she claimed to possess. Lawyers assert that this precedent, if followed, puts on the courts the task of deciding when a person really believes in what he is practising.

DEBT OF GRATITUDE THAT MUST BE MET

"Nelson Day" Campaign of the Navy League Will Provide the Money

To pay the debt of gratitude to the dependents of Canadian Seamen lost in the War; to provide protection and home comfort for seamen who come to Canadian ports and to train native born boys for the Navy and Merchant ships are among the objects of the "Nelson Day" campaign to raise $500,000.

The Navy League of Canada has undertaken this campaign with thorough confidence that the people will see them through with it as they did the "Sailors' Week" campaign last year.

Last year the grateful people of Canada bore their share of providing for the 30,000 dependents of the 11,000 sailors lost to the Empire in the War. This year the Navy League is appealing only for the support of the dependents of Canadian seamen, actually lost or injured in the War.

Even under modern conditions the calling of the sailor is a hard one followed only by hardy, brave and adventurous men. In former days the natural hardships, toil, peril, loneliness and need of home. But now by the work of the Navy League through the nine Sailors' Institutes in Canada seamen in our ports have places of protection and home comfort to which they may go.

To provide and maintain such places is the least than can be done to help the men who go down to the sea in our ships to carry our wheat and manufactured products to the ends of the earth. The funds raised in the Nelson Day campaign will help materially to do this.

PRINCE HAS CLEAR CARRYING VOICE

Everyone who has heard him has commented upon the Prince of Wales' remarkable voice. It is clear, with great carrying powers, the enunciation is distinct. Every word is well defined Very few public men possess a voice of such splendid speaking qualities. Without apparent effort he can make himself heard four and five hundred yard, away.

The keenest critics of voice qualities the soldiers who have listened to commands and speeches expressed through the medium of all sorts of voices, of princes of the blood on days of high ceremony, praise with emphasis the speaking ability of the Prince of Wales.

And further the Prince has a happy aptitude for choosing words of concise, direct and attractive meaning.

What phrase could be better than this "The Victory Loan is the bridge between war and peace."

The Prince of Wales has graciously consented to the use of his coat of arms on a flag, which is to be the prize of honor for districts winning their quota in the loan. A flag will also be given to organizations of fifty or more employees.

"I hope every city and district will win my flag," says the Prince.

KINGSTON SOLDIERS CLAIM MANY WERE LEFT OFF LISTS

KINGSTON, Oct. 22—The Kingston branches of the O. W. V. A. and A. and N. veterans claim that five hundred soldiers and two hundred wives of soldiers, are unable to vote on the referendum here Monday as a result of their names not appearing on the registration lists. It is also claimed the soldiers who were ill in bed and unable to look after themselves when the registration was taking place, were overlooked by the enumerators. With the concurrence of the G. W. V. A. and A. and N. veterans have sent the following telegram to Sir Wm. Hearst: :"We strongly condemn the method by which the referendum was conducted in Kingston Monday and for your failure to put in force here for the soldier your promise made in Guelph. Hundreds of soldiers and their wives were robbed of their vote here, and we demand an immediate investigation."

Week-Old Corns Should Be Unthinkable

These positive facts are now known to millions.

The pain of a corn can be instantly stopped, and forever.

The corn itself can be ended completely, and usually in two days.

The method is scientific. It consists of attaching a Blue-jay plaster, forgetting the corn, and letting things take their course.

The results have been proved by experience.

They have been proved to so many people that corns are now comparatively uncommon.

Corn aches are needless. Paring corns is folly.

Old-time flarbs and mussy treatments have no place today.

You will know these facts, and quickly, if you'll try a Blue-jay on one corn. Do it tonight, and the whole corn question will settle itself forever.

Tobacco Crop in the Largest in Many Years.

The Ontario tobacco crop has been harvested without damage by frosts. This is the largest and the best crop that has been grown in Ontario since the writer began the annual statistical crop report. In 1911 the production was larger, if tradition is correct, but we have no figures covering that year.

The Tobacco Division began the work of securing the exact acreage planted to tobacco each year in 1916, and issuing an annual report each fall since that time.

These reports are secured by having a grower in each school section of the tobacco districts of Ontario report the acreage devoted to tobacco in his school section, and also the yield per acre. Township reporters give the same information for the township in which they reside throughout the tobacco-producing area. All figures thus obtained are checked by the tobacco inspector, who, late in the summer and early fall visits every school section, and practically every farm in checking up the reports and estimates.

Despite the remarkable fall for harvesting and curing, too many growers made the mistake of leaving the harvested plants in small piles in the fields for several days, and in many cases rain came and sand and mud covered the leaves. This spoiled the quality of the cured article very materially. This is a very poor method of handling, and such tobacco cannot be expected to command a good price that the carefully handled article does. Tobacco should never be raised on after it has been at all thoroughly wilted. Placing in small piles for two or three days starts the yellowing and curing process, but scaffolding or rough sheds in the field would be better and leave the plants free of dirt and mud in case rains came before the tobacco could possibly be housed.

The following figures give the acreage and estimated production of the tobacco crop for this year—1919:

Kind Tob.	Acres.	Pounds.
Essex, fine-cured .	1,450	1,300,500
Essex, Burley . . .	2,010	2,612,500
Essex, Havana gold seal and dark types	800	842,000
Essex Is., Burley.	750	825,000
Kent, Burley . . .	2,700	3,310,500
Kent, Zimmer, Snuff, etc.	265	291,500
Welland, Burley . .	8	9,000
Elgin, Burley . . .	162	181,500
P. Edward, Burley	24	25,000
Lincoln, Connecticut Havana . . .	35	36,300
Brant, Burley. . . .	12	16,800
Norfolk, Burley . .	80	89,000
Total for all types of tobacco . . .	9,326	10,709,400

It can be seen that the total acreage for all varieties in all of the tobacco-growing districts of Ontario amounts to 9,326 acres, which, placing the estimate exactly where experience and the crop indicates, will yield 10,709,400 pounds. The fine-cured tobacco acreage shows only a slight increase over 1918, the same is true for the Snuff, Havana, Zimmer, Comstock and all types other than the White Burley. The White Burley shows between sixty and eighty per cent. increase over 1918.

The following tables give the 1918 acreage and production of tobacco:

Kind Tob.	Ac'ge.	Produc.
Essex, Fine-cured.	1,366	1,020,000
Essex, Burley . . .	2,176	2,811,900
Essex, Zimmer, Havana, etc. . . .	688	731,400
Essex Is., Burley.	550	685,000
Kent, Burley . . .	3,377	3,860,000
Kent, Zimmer, Snuff, etc.	209	255,000
Welland, Burley . .	11	12,000
Elgin, Burley . . .	13	15,000
P. Edward, Burley	21	22,000
Lincoln, Connecticut Havana	25	28,000
Total	6,235	7,461,400

Market Outlook—The market outlook was never brighter. The fact that fine-cured tobacco is selling in the Southern States at higher figures than for this period last year, though the crop is considerably larger, indicated in a measure a shortage of tobacco stocks. This year there will be a few million pounds short of our home requirements, and prices prevailing in the Southern States and the adverse exchange on Canadian money in American currency, all go to increase the demand for our 1919 crop of tobacco.—H. Fraser, tobacco inspector.

Canadian Fair In London.

The organization of a Canadian Fair in London next October is the subject of a visit to Canada by H. Greville Montgomery. The British Industries Fair is held annually in London in 1920, and the Canadians are invited to exhibit, but very few have responded. It is thought, however, that if Canada would make a show in Lyons Fair the Dominion could have an exhibition of her own in the centre of the British Empire at a time when Canadian manufacturers are so keen to embark in the world export trade.

Mr. Montgomery is a well-known public man, former Liberal M.P. for Bridgewater and editor of a Canadian paper proprietor. He revived the Building Trades Exhibition at the Royal Agricultural Hall in 1895, said to be the largest series of trade exhibitions in the world.

How Much One Eats.

It is not easy to estimate the amount of food consumed by each person in a year, but one dietetic expert who kept a record of his meals during twelve months declares that he ate 180 loaves of bread, 180 pounds of meat, drank sixty-one gallons of milk, and ate no fewer than 300 eggs.

It is promised that Helen Keller, the famous blind and deaf woman, is to appear in the "movies."

Front!

By Floyd Hamilton Hazard

(Copyright.)

Somewhere within the diminutive body of Cyrus Caesar Jones there lived a spirit which flourished like a green bay tree, in spite of all untoward circumstances.

It was at least a third larger than Jones himself, and, for this reason, the greater part of the time, he had a firm conviction that Jones was quite a man, and equal to almost any high achievement.

He was an alert, practical, business man, with a large stock of knowledge neatly purchased at the University of Hard Work; and there was brick dust in his hair. His eyes were of a deep, comprehending blue, and when there was anything worth seeing he seldom closed them. His grim appearance was greatly in his favor; but for the past week it had availed him nothing.

Was it his fault that the old firm had failed?

"No, it was not!

Was it his fault that his weary search for another position had so far proved utterly fruitless?

Again no!

Was he to blame because his savings had melted away?

Well, hardly!

He was sitting on the curb, at the intersection of Fifth avenue and Thirty-fourth street, in New York, moodily reversing in his mind his recent experiences, as he abstractedly watched the people in the dining room of the enormous hotel opposite.

"What a week!"

His search for similar work had degenerated into a frantic scramble for any kind of work at all. And how, on nothing, pay rent and doctor's bills and acquire food and coals to go on?

"Great heavens!" he thought. "If only I had some cash!"

Cash! Cash! Cash! beat in on his brain.

"Got to have it! Can't get it!" said Jones.

"Can get it!" answered Jones' spirit. "Keep a-going. Can and will get it."

"I'm hungry," complained Jones.

"Shucks!" scoffed his friend. "Pull in your belt a couple of holes!"

At the ends of a pile of garish rubbish near Merry's, he noticed a string of pinkish beads.

"The little girl that lost them won't mind if I give them to Helen," he mused, as he slipped them into his pocket. "A trifling present and a doubtful one, but a big help at that. It isn't her fault that she doesn't know I'm out of work."

He cleaned them in the fountain and placed them in the lonely security of his empty purse.

A copy of the morning's paper was stuck between the slats of the bench on which he sat. He was too tired, too harassed by doubt and fear and hunger, to read; so he left it with him.

This spirit of his made him step to sympathetic unity with girl-go-rollerskates, who had fallen and bumped her nose near his home. It also served him to greet the doctor at the entrance, to this up-to-date tenement.

"Hello, Doc! How's my wife?" he genially inquired, with a sinking heart.

"All right," was the reply. "The crisis came and went. She will need rest and recover, if you can manage the diet. But how about my bill?"

Again Jones prompted.

"How about your bill? Why! Aren't you Doctor Bill?" he laughed. "Can't let you stop treatment yet, you know. See you tomorrow."

Satisfied, the doctor left him; but there was another touch needed to almost complete his misery. Jones met the grocer.

"Your rent has been overdue five days," was this individual's pleasant salutation.

"I know it," answered Jones nonchalantly. "Could send a check the first Commercial do you right now?" he queried in a bantering tone.

"It would, if I could get it," was the reply in forbidding tones.

"Well!" said Jones cheerfully. "Don't look so grouchy! Let's be having you. Come round and see me tomorrow night."

His feet seemed fastened to the steps as he slowly dragged them up the five flights of stairs, but after the click of the latch-key his heavy heart was lifted by a glad cry as he entered the little three-room flat.

"Cyrus! Oh, you dear! Come quickly and let me press you close. The doctor says I will soon be well. Well! Yes! Completely and soundly well! What do you think of that?"

"Think!" he choked, as he bent over the bed and kissed his invalid wife. "Why, Helen, darling! I can't think the glory of it!"

"Hooray!" shouted Jones and his spirit. "Hooray!"

There was a wail from the crib by the bedside.

"Hello, son!" he cried, as he caught up the baby and kissed him. "Remember is a goin' t' get well! D'ye hear that? Yes, sir! Listen to that and quit it—you dear little Indian!"

He drew up a chair and sat heavily upon the child in his arms.

"What is it that you need tonight, dear heart?" he inquired.

"Two prescriptions, some more port wine, milk and eggs," she answered. "Oh, dearie! Sickness is so terribly expensive. I just know it is costing more than your income, even with all that the people in the house have done for me."

"Well, I'm a long way from being poor yet," he contained. "Poor! Well, I should say not! Can Alcoke call me poor, with you and the baby, and a job, and a roof over it all? Poor? With me managing things? Not! Cheer up, girlie, and see what I've got for you. It's just a little Angora muff for you to wear the next Sunday you're able to go out."

She took the necklace and admired it. Then she held out her arms to him.

"You thoughtful, noble boy," she whispered.

"Oh, Cy, dear! I forget to tell you. The man was here today and cleared off the gas. He said the bill hadn't been paid."

"Well, what a stupid oversight on my part! I'll stop in there and make them have it turned-on again tonight."

"How have things gone with you today, sweetheart? Dear me! You look completely worn out."

"Fine!" he lied, and turned away his face. "Only I must go, and I won't leave you alone a minute longer than I can help. Here is today's paper. You can read it tomorrow."

He tossed the copy he had picked up in the park upon the bed.

Then the door closed behind him. Jones collapsed. He was all in. Not so, however, with Jones' spirit. It took him, willy-nilly, to the druggist's, the grocer's, the dairy, and the gas office; and it forced Jones to make the four greatest "talks" of his life.

"The grand smash for mine tomorrow night!" said Jones to himself, on his way back to the house.

Half famished as he was, Jones managed to control himself and to cook his supper before he ate it. By the time he had devoured it his whole being was shouting for relaxation and rest. So, after rapid preparations for the night, he sought his cot; which had been set up in the little dining room, stretched himself upon it, and immediately fell into deep sleep.

From a phantasmagoria of doctors, sick persons, hospitals, babies, sorrel-faced men who refused him work, house agents, tradesmen, children on roller-skates, little girls who had lost things, restaurants where he had eaten but could not pay, the police, jails, and the like, he was released by a cry from his wife. He awoke, and with a bound was on his feet.

It was early morning.

"What is it, Helen, darling?" he cried, as he rushed into the next room, fear gripping him.

She was propped up by a pillow and was excitedly reading the copy of the newspaper he had given her the night before.

"My beads, Cyrus! My beads!" she exclaimed. "Where did you get them?"

He sat weakly down upon the foot of the bed.

"Down-town," he faltered.

"Did you buy them or did you find them?" she questioned eagerly.

"I found them near Merry's on Fifth avenue," he replied shamefacedly, certain that all his perfidy was now discovered.

"Oh, splendid! I just knew it! I was certain of it. Here, read that." She took the paper and saw:

$2,000.00 reward and no questions asked upon the return of plain necklace of six-teen (16) rose-tinted pearls, recently lost on Fifth avenue, Forty-second to Fifty-sixth streets.
H. T. LEFFINGWOLD, Hotel Shropshire.

"Helen, it can't be true!" he gasped as the two gazed at each other, wide-eyed. "Let me see them, quick!"

She withdrew the necklace from its hiding place under her pillow.

His sleep-laden eyes brightened as he beheld it. He examined the beads carefully and counted them.

"Pearls!"

No doubt of it whatever in the light of his present information.

Jones' home-coming on this day of all days was a triumphal progress. He and his spirits were making holiday.

When his latch-key again admitted him he had receipts in full from the doctor and from his creditors of the previous night.

There was also a slip which recorded the fact that he had paid two months' rent in advance, properly signed by the astonished agent.

In the inner pocket of his vest there was also, reposing snugly, a bank-book.

"Was it true?" she called anxiously as he entered. "Was it really and truly true?"

"As true as ever was, sweetheart," he answered chucklingly, as he came into her presence. "And here is another present."

"What! A bank-book!"

"Nothing less, my dear. And it records the wealth of Helen Jones."

"Not all of it," she answered, flushed with joy. "It is the very least of my possessions."

She cuddled her baby closer and gave Jones a long, fond look through wet eyes.

"But that isn't all, dearest," said Jones. "I've secured another position, a much better one."

"You have! How is that?"

"The man who owned the fifteen thousand dollars' worth of pearls paid a reward and refused to ask any questions; but I insisted in making a full explanation. We finally had a long conversation and he incidentally mentioned that he had long needed a capable manager. He said, however, that he had searched in vain for a man of spirit and was about to give up the task in despair."

"And what did you say to that, Cy, dear?"

"I said 'I am the man,'" answered Jones truthfully. "And, what is more, I succeeded in proving it to him. But that is another story."

"My Back Is So Bad"

PAINS in the small of the back, lumbago, rheumatism, pains in the limbs all tell of defective kidneys.

Poisons are being left in the blood which cause pains and aches.

The kidneys, liver and bowels must be aroused to action by such treatment as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

There is no time for delay when the kidneys go wrong, for such developments as hardening of the arteries and Bright's disease are the natural result.

One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

Soldier Boys Have A Splendid Show

One of the clearest theatrical performances it has been the privilege of a Belleville audience to witness in many moons was the production of the overseas revue, "Biff, Bing, Bang," given at Griffin's Theatre last night by a company of soldier-performers, known to the theatrical world as The Dumbells.

Every member of the company served on an average of 16 months in the trenches before being chosen as entertainers by the director, Captain M. W. Tinsley.

The Dumbells are on a home-coming tour of Canada with a record of over 500 performances close behind the lines in France and Flanders; 40 performances in Brussels and a month in London. They present a wide variety of entertainment, brimful of delightful features, and though the programme is a long one, every item is of interest—there is not a "dud" in the company's repertoire.

The performance is decidedly unique, to say the least, being a complete up-to-date musical revue, presented entirely by soldier-boys, who portray all the roles, male and female, from the dancy-prancy chorus girl to the stately prima donna.

The programme embraces 21 numbers, any one of which could readily find a place on the large vaudeville circuits. Every item was given with loads of "pep", an abundance of polish, and the large audience was not at all slow in showing appreciation of the high class entertainment. Each number was on good, and the performance attained such a high degree of excellence that it would hardly be fair to discriminate, but the Italian song and dance by Messrs Murray and Plunkett, "A Cosy Corner" by A. O. Murray and the boys, "Oh, You Wild Woman" by A. W. Plunkett," "Kit Inspection," by Ben Allen, and "Nonsense" by "Stac" and "Red" were especially delightful.

The two skits "Commandeered" and "The Morning After," also won unstinted applause. It is safe to say that no other performance has been so thoroughly enjoyed by a local audience as "Biff, Bing, Bang."

The gowns worn by the "ladies" and the staging of the production could not have been improved.

It is pleasing to note that the entertainment was attended by an audience that taxed the capacity of the theatre.

Complete Treatment That Gives Gratifying Results

WARNER, Ont.
"I had an attack of Weeping Eczema so bad that my clothes would be wet through at times.
For four months, I suffered terribly, I could get no relief until I tried "Fruit-a-tives" and "Soothe-Salve"."
Altogether, I have used three boxes of "Soothe-Salve" and two of "Fruit-a-tives", and am entirely well."
G. W. HALL.

Both these favorite remedies are sold by dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

"Fruit-a-tives" is also put up in a trial size which sells for 25c.

Three Men Die of Treated Alcohol

It Had Been Accustomized For Manufacture of Explosives.

PARRY SOUND, Oct. 22.—Three more men have lost their lives by drinking alcohol which had been treated with acetone for the manufacture of explosives. Saturday a bottle of alcohol was found by one of the men, and a number of them, regardless of the fact that already a number of men had lost their lives by drinking the stuff, proceeded to drink of the bottle and as a result Peter Ferguson, his son Thomas Ferguson, and George Ferguson, brother of Peter, all at Nobel village are dead and George Tayler of this town is dangerously ill.

A crowd of thirteen hundred United Veteran rioters surrounded the home of W. E. Turley, Secretary of Provincial G.W.V.A. last night. Police reserves were called out before the crowd dispersed.

ROBBED MOVING TRAIN

The police are looking for a man who pulled off an unusual stunt in broad daylight on Monday. He boarded a freight train near Napanee and while it was on the way to Kingston he robbed a car of wearing apparel, and when he jumped off the train near Kingston he had almost enough for a new outfit. Railwaymen noticed him jump off the train, but as yet he has kept clear of the law.

A PROPOSED NEW INDUSTRY

At the City Hall this evening a public meeting will be held to discuss the proposition of the Ontario Oakoal Company, which company propose to locate in this city. The company manufacture from garbage and other substances a fuel which it is alleged will prove much cheaper than coal.

RAILWAY ACCIDENT

G. T. R. westbound express due at Belleville this morning at 2.10 was derailed near Rideau Station, east of Kingston. The train ran some distance on the ties, but fortunately remained upright and the only serious casualty reported is that of an express messenger, who is said to be severely injured. The accident resulted in the disorganization of traffic for several hours.

HORSE AND CAR COLLIDE

At 9.40 this morning a collision occurred at the junction of Front and Bridge streets between an auto and a horse and buggy. The car was being driven down Front street when in passing the corner of Bridge street the horse came in contact with the car. Fortunately no person was injured, but the horse in some manner sustained a rather severe cut on the neck, presumably from the corner of the wind shield of the car. The animal was taken to a veterinary surgeon who dressed its wound.

VICTORY LOAN GATHERING

A large gathering of Victory Loan workers was held in Belleville yesterday, representatives being present from Prince Edward County, Lennox and Addington, Hastings and Belleville. In the morning business conferences were held at the Y. M. C. A. building by a luncheon at the Quinte, which was a jolly affair enlivened by snappy songs and vigorous speeches. Mr. W. B. Deacon, District Chairman of the Victory Loan campaign, occupied the chair in his usual happy manner.

All necessary preparations are being made, according to Rt. Hon. Bonar Law for the trial of the former Kaiser.

Rioting broke out last night again around Lexington theatre, New York, where German opera is being put on. One man was injured.

RED SOX 10—TRENTON 2

Yesterday afternoon, the Red Sox handed the Trenton team a nice lacing to the tune of 10 to 2. This game makes it three out of four games for the Red Sox. It makes the twenty-eighth victory for the Sox. The team played good steady ball all year, under the capable management of Mr. E. Collins, and they only lost five games in their thirty-three games played. They won the Junior City League pennant handily, as it was predicted by many had little trouble in disposing of their opponents.

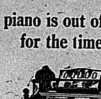
Why Not Get An Organ?

If a piano is out of the question for the time being



Why deprive yourself of music in the home just because you do not feel you should buy a piano just now? A good organ, even though a used one, will bring music to you. If one of the children wishes to learn the piano let her start on the organ. Many a good pianist today first started on an organ.

We have a number of used organs which have been thoroughly repaired and put into first-class condition, and which we are clearing out at bargain prices and on easy terms.

Of the three vacant seats at dissolution, two had been Conservative and one Labor.

The change in the morning's figures of the present standing is due to the fact that D. C. Anderson, Liberal, in Simcoe East, was defeated by a U. F. O. candidate making 45 Farmers and 29 Liberals in the new House.

The Ontario Sunday School Association at its convention yesterday decided to alter the name of the body to the Ontario Religious Education Council.

Members-elect of United Farmers decided not to form an alliance with either old party but will attempt to form a government on their own platform.

Her Dream Hero

By EMILY H. GALLAWAY

(Copyright.)

The girl closed her eyes dreamily and listened to the strains of "La Paloma", which the distant orchestra was playing. It was good to forget for a minute and to drift luxuriously.

She glanced at the gay throng in the hotel cafe and then back again to the man sitting opposite her.

"It's awfully good and kind of you, Jim, to dig me out of that studio and give me a breath of this," she murmured. "And I know you grudge every minute from your precious 'old railroad.'"

"Not these nighties," and the look in the man's eyes made the girl glance quickly down at her oysters.

"Do you know, Jimmie, I've done nothing but work since our last party three weeks ago. I haven't seen a soul."

"Whose fault is it?" asked the man. "If you will have a cold-blooded career listed of—"

"Now, Jimmie, dear, don't let's disagree tonight. You know you promised not to ask me again," and the girl's brown eyes looked beseechingly up.

The man's face settled into its habitual speculation.

The man hastily changed the subject.

"I wish you wouldn't wear that jewel around," he began. "It's too valuable and too well known for a girl to keep in a studio."

"Jimmie, just when I was started off on my ideal lover, you have to interrupt with some of your practical advice." And the petulant curve of the girl's lips was most distracting.

"I'm awfully interested, I assure you. Do you suppose you'll ever meet this ideal of yours?" The laugh in the man's voice was belied by the grim look in his eyes.

"Every man has an ideal," said the girl.

"I'm going to tell you something that's happened to me—I don't know whether you'll believe me or not—it certainly does sound queer—but it's as true—as this bread and butter!"

"I was so tired," went on the girl, "I thought I'd never get to sleep—when I—finally did, I began to dream. I couldn't tell you to save my life what it was about. All I remember is the man in it.

"I saw him just as plainly as I'm seeing you—and I'd never, never in my life seen him before. He was the sort of man you'd turn around and look at—tall and athletic looking, with a face like a—well, like a Greek god."

"You'd probably seen him somewhere before," explained Jim.

"I could never have forgotten that face if I had once seen it," said the girl. "Now comes the queer part. The next morning I was going down to the publisher with my illustration.

"I got out of the subway at Union Square, and as I came up the last step I tripped a little and almost fell into a tall man who was starting down the stairs. I looked up at him to apologize and it was—the man's I'd been dreaming about!"

"For Heaven's sake!" ejaculated Jim, "what did you do?"

"I stood there and stared—and the man stared back—then I realized I didn't know him from Adam and I—managed to go on."

"He was sort of a gype not to have done anything—a chance like that," grinned Jim.

"He wasn't that sort," said Aileen severely. "He raised his hat and went down the steps."

"Is that the end?" asked Jim.

"No, it's not," continued the girl. "I couldn't work all that day—I couldn't get that man out of my thoughts. I wonder if you've ever felt that way, Jim—it's awful."

And the strains of "La Paloma" seemed to stifle her.

"Poor little girl, I know," said Jim, and he looked as though he did.

"That night the girl went on "I dreamed about him again.

"The next morning it was the same —I couldn't work. By afternoon I was so nervous I put on my things and started to walk down the avenue. Jim, I met him in front of the Holland House!"

"Go on," said the man intensely. "Go on."

"I've got to speak to you," he said, and his voice sounded just the way I knew it would—low-toned and vibrant.

"'May I walk a little way with you?' he said.

"Jim, I could no more have prevented him than I could have stopped breathing—we walked down Fifth avenue—and I haven't the remotest idea what he said.

"I finally managed to gasp that I must go home. And he put me in a taxi—and in a sort of daze I came home. Then I began to realize that I didn't even know his name and he didn't know mine!"

"Bad technique on his part," grunted Jim.

Aileen leaned forward.

"Jim, don't you understand this wasn't an ordinary flirtation? I don't think he'd ever spoken to a girl like that before in his life—and I'm sure I'd never done such a thing—it was just that we'd found each other—out of all the world—just we two!"

"Well, is that the end?" asked Jim.

"No. This morning the telephone rang! Remember—he didn't even know my name! The instant I picked up the receiver I knew who it was—When I heard his voice—Oh, Jim!" and the expression in Aileen's face made Jim look hastily away.

"All he said was, 'May I call tonight?' and I said, 'Yes, at 9.'"

"But you're going to the theater with me," said Jim. "You promised, you know."

"If he asked me to marry him," said the girl, "I'd—I'd do it!"

Jim's face went white.

As Jim left her at her studio door his face looked drawn and tense in the semi-darkness.

"May I drop in later?" he asked. "I'd like to meet him."

Aileen nodded absently. She seemed to be far off in another world. Jim turned abruptly and went down the stairs.

She chose a clinging rose chiffon—and in the soft folds of lace, she pinned the great opal—the stone her mother had worn—and her mother before her, perhaps on such a night as this.

At 9 o'clock drew nearer Aileen went into the studio—the air seemed impossible to breathe and she lifted open the windows and walked up and down.

Nine o'clock! The strain was telling on the girl. It had been ordered to her that he might not come.

At five minutes past 9 the girl managed to get to her feet—and then the sharp ring of the bell sounded through the studio!

For a moment all strength seemed to leave her. The door was miles away. It was almost an eternity before she could cross the room and open it.

A man, in faultless evening dress, with the pale face of a Greek god, stepped into the room.

The girl in the rose-colored gown could only look at him. She knew she must say something.

At last she managed to murmur a faint greeting.

Then the man seemed to realize that his eyes had never left her face.

"I cannot tell you how I appreciate this privilege you have given me," he said.

His voice relieved the tension. The instincts of the hostess returned to her.

"I have many old heirlooms," said the girl, and she turned hastily and pointed out some rare porcelains, a painting or two, and several old tapestries.

The man came nearer.

"It's no use," he said; "we can't talk, you and I—we can only feel. There's just one thing for you and me, girl—heart."

And before Aileen knew what had happened, the man had seized her roughly in his arms.

"Now you understand each other," whispered the man, and he leaned over and—kissed her hotly on the lips!

Then all Aileen's terror left her. It seemed as if twenty demons gave her strength to resent that desecration.

"How dare you!" she gasped. "How dare you!" And the scalding tears of humiliation filled her eyes.

"Well," sneered the man, "what do you suppose I came for, eh?"

Before the lightning flash in the girl's eyes the man's bold relaxed. She freed herself and faced him with all the fury of her fighting ancestors in her face.

"Leave this room, instantly!" she said, her voice trembling with rage.

The man with the Greek face bowed. Quietly he took up his hat and coat —and walked to the door.

With his hand on the knob, he paused and looked back at the girl.

She was standing in the middle of the room as he had left her—not a muscle had relaxed. She might have been a statue of Vengeance and all the Furies.

The man turned hastily and the door closed behind him.

Then down went Vengeance and the Furies in a little pathetic heap on the floor.

When Aileen opened her eyes she was looking into the big, strong face of Jimmie.

"Little girl, what's happened?" he was asking anxiously.

"I've been such a little fool," sobbed Aileen. "But I don't care, I don't care as long as you are here," and she clung to Jimmie with all her might.

"I'm here, dear—everything is all right," he said, and gathered her into his arms as if she'd been a baby.

"Jimmie, you'll never leave me, will you?" murmured the girl.

"Never," said Jimmie, with conviction. "Will you promise me the same?"

"Hush," said the girl, "I've got to tell you about that—that man!—Oh, I'll never dream about another one as long as I live!"

"You needn't tell me about him if you don't want to."

"Jim," said the girl, "he wasn't what I thought he was. He looked here just like Jim. He was a thief—he kissed me by stealth," and her crimson face went down on Jim's shoulder.

"I wonder what else he stole," said Jim, looking around.

"You don't think!" gasped the girl, "that he was a real thief?" And her hand went mechanically to her throat.

The great opal was gone!

"Good Lord!" said Jim, his voice trembling with anxiety. "You might have been killed! You're sure you're safe. We'll call up the police instantly. That opal is marked—you're bound to get it back. He's been following you around—that's where you'd seen him before you dreamed about him."

"It scares me to death," said Aileen, clinging desperately to Jimmie. "Don't —don't telephone yet. It's way across the town and I'll be so lonesome, till you—get back!"

And then her arm stole up around his neck.

"For," she said, "why didn't you tell me before how much I loved you?"

NEW STYLES IN PARISIAN HATS

Smartest Headgear Now Shown in French Capital More or Less Crowdless.

HINDU TURBAN IS POPULAR

Milliners Must Be Credited With Some Remarkably Smart Effects in Those Styles—Both Plain and Printed Foulards Worn.

Paris milliners are sending us midsummer hats that are in delightful contrast to the utterly unreasonable velvet-crowned hats with tulle or organdie brims we have been wearing during the last two summers, says Sarah Marshall Cook, writing in the New York Tribune.

The smartest tulle hats are crownless, but for those who object to having their carefully coiled heads disarranged by the breezes a soft, puffy layer of tulle is provided as a crown. Every type of both day and evening headdress that French women are wearing carries out some phase of this fad, over which Paris has gone quite mad.

Turbans Are Worn in Evening.

An everlasting source of inspiration for our hats is the Hindu turban, and never it has found its way into hats of tulle. Turbans are worn in the evening. They are not a variation of the oriental headdress, but the real thing, being formed of a braided band of gold lame, topped by tulle and shower wreaths of aigrettes. A very smart effect is produced by placing black aigrettes on brown turbans.

Lewis, the man milliner of Paris, has had phenomenal success with transparent hats. His favorite model is in shape very much on the order of the bead covering worn by the beauties of the court of Louis XVI. The brim of this crowniess hat consists of frills of white silk net, held in at the back by a saucy bow of the same material. Any woman with chestnut hair who tops her well-coiffed locks with a hat such as that may be sure of looking particularly lovely.

Metal Brocades in French Parasols.

When we saw metal brocades in our summer evening gowns and hats we thought the craze for this material had reached its climax; but that it had not by a long shot is indicated in the darkest French parasols. Those of black taffeta are lined with deep bands of metal brocaded ribbon. Black tulle parasols have bands of embroidery done in silver or gold threads.

Handles are as elaborate as parasols themselves. Ebony sticks studded with turquoise beads are used, as are also sticks of ivory. Some of these very handles have two bracelet rings, one of ebony and the other of ivory.

From Renee of Paris comes a frock of printed foulard, with the foundation skirt of plain foulard; undulating frills of white organdie trim the abbreviated sleeves and the low surplice opening.

Huge knobs of carved wood finish the sticks of the new coaching parasols.

In contrast to these elaborate sunshades are lovely little garden sets, consisting of pagoda parasols made of mousseline frilled at the edge with two rows of narrow black ribbon and of hats made of the same materials.

Plain and Printed Foulards.

We have, at one time or another, experienced the exhaustion and despair which come from the search for frocks to wear on trips to town that will give us the coolness and comfort provided by dresses of perishable light summer materials without making us conspicuous. French dressmakers are combining plain and printed foulards in a way that is altogether charming to make midsummer dresses suitable for such wear.

One of the cleverest of these combi-

This is La Laveuse, the simple morning frock that Premet is making for country wear.

stirt of foulard. The neck and abbreviated sleeves are finished with softly undulating frills of organdie.

That the success of the foulard dress is assured is proved by its remarkable popularity at the Paris races; large patterns in black and white being particularly in evidence. There is a great demand for both silk and cotton dress fabrics of large designs.

Mousselines are printed in very lovely colors at present and, in foreign parts of the old Duke of Kashmir, A Paisley shawl worn all the way down the front of the bodice with an open bolero cut-away at the waistline and having flimsy sleeves (a mass of soft white mousseline printed in bright red. This dress is worn over a straight white organdie slip, frilled around the bottom and down the front, the frilled white slip falling at least four inches below the mousseline skirt.

Something New.

More than a century ago the ill-fated Marie Antoinette popularized a simple dress, known as La Laveuse, or the washerwoman's frock. Today the house of Premet is making charming frocks of this kind for its favorite customers, who order a half dozen at a time made in different becoming colors to wear on summer mornings in the country. So simple and easy fitting are these frocks that they are almost negligee.

The frill across which are part of the dresses are demure and charming. Sometimes when pale-tinted cotton fabrics are chosen for these gowns little frills of black organdie are used for the collar, cuffs and ends of the apron strings. One of these Premet dresses is here illustrated. Any home dressmaker could easily copy it, and with very little work have morning dresses that are distinctive as well as comfortable and useful.

Fichus Resemble Quaint Capes.

Another pleasing French idea that could be utilized in having clothes made by a seamstress perhaps in having a gown remodeled—for it is difficult to get remodeling ideas—is the fichu bodice which Lanvin has emphasized in so many of her dresses this season. This fichu resembles a quaint shoulder cape. It is a simple little thing to make and is picturesque and becoming to all gowns worn.

Mme. Lanvin attaches slim, straight skirts to equally straight, high-waisted bodices, and then drapes around them the fichu, which she makes of lace, embroidery or net. When crepe is used an embroidered pattern of a contrasting shade is usually worked on it. The fichu shown in this model today from Lanvin made in the colors of France. For the skirt she used crepe the shade of the French soldier's coat, whereas the fichu was red embroidered in blue.

Little Girl's Party Dress.

For party wear this summer the petite Parisienne has a little girl in the frock of georgette, trimmed with tucks or ferretticing, or with dainty em broidery in delicate colors.

Insurance Against Tuberculosis.

Dr. P. J. Menard outlines in the Presse Medicale a plan for universal compulsory insurance against tuberculosis, the funds from which would serve for the fight against tuberculosis. His scheme is something like compulsory social insurance against sickness, but the tax or insurance dues imposed would include all classes of society, not merely the wage earners. He protests that the fight against tuberculosis should not be left to charity or private initiative.

The New Magna Charta of Labor

THE attention given to industrial relations by the Peace Conference, gives this all-important phase of human effort its rightful place in the consideration of the people. Progress and prosperity depend on the good relations of employer and employed. Industrial strife will lead to chaos.

For this reason employer and employee should keep informed on the trend of events in the Industrial World.

Coming events in Canada are charged with unprecedented importance. Employer and employed have been in conference at Ottawa, under the auspices of the authorities, with a view to furthering the good work of the Peace Conference, and arriving at some common understanding for future peace and accord—the development of Canadian Industry and Commerce.

Important conferences are taking place in the United States, Great Britain, France, Australia, the neutral countries—and even in Germany itself. All these have, and will have, a great and growing influence and bearing on conditions in Canada.

Employer and employed cannot afford to fail in keeping themselves informed on the issues discussed and decisions arrived at. The Globe is very specially fitted to give this service.

Its staff of editorial writers are chosen for their ability to interpret, explain, and point out the many intricate questions involved. Governed by sober thought, The Globe expresses its opinions on these important subjects, with careful regard for the interests of employer and employed. Its view of industrial economics is that both sides have rights.

The Globe's cable and other news services are maintained as much for the purposes of publishing the world's industrial news as any other news.

Indian Summer and Squaw Winter.

Concerning "Indian Summer" the American states: "It is by no means easy to account for the origin of the term. The principal characteristics of the season which it describes are haziness, smokiness and high temperature. Some explanations of the origin of the term are: (a) That the Indians predicted such spells of weather; (b) That the smokiness was produced by Indian fires; (c) That this was the last season of Indian attacks on the settlements; (d) That white; (4) That the season portrods of the Indian character of deceptiveness; (e) That the name was given because one of the seasons of East India was similar in character.

"Squaw Winter" was a name for the spell of cold weather preceding the Indian summer, and perhaps the key to the explanation is to be found in this latter term.

Japanese In Canada Honor Dead.

The Japanese of British Columbia, some 14,000 in number, are erecting a memorial shaft in Stanley Park, Vancouver, in honor of the Japanese who lost their lives in the great war. Hundreds enlisted with British Columbia battalions and 54 lost their lives. One won a Victoria Cross. The memorial shaft will be of marble and will stand 34 feet high and will cost $15,000. It will bear bronze tablets with the names of the engagements and the dead Japanese. The Canadian and Japanese coats of arms will be intertwined.

Strange Eskimo Custom.

A strange custom is practiced among the Eskimos. When a doctor is called in he receives his fee as soon as he arrives, and if the patient recovers it is kept; if not, it is returned.

TIMES HAVE CHANGED.

The Trips of Columbus and the R-34 Contrasted.

They had to bribe men in the earliest and timorous days of Columbus to ship for the first Atlantic trip. Sailing towards the edge of a perfectly flat earth had no particular charms, even for criminals and "jawbone men" who were offered indemnity if they would go. Life imprisonment, in safety, seemed better than high adventure terminated at any moment by a sudden, cataclysmic death.

That was 427 years ago. Now there is no need to call for criminals to man the first Atlantic trips in the air. They had to turn men away from the crew of the R-34, on the first voyage by lighter-than-air machine, and even then one stowaway got himself aboard and made the trip. The idea was to keep the tremendous dirigible as light as possible. And so, with all this eagerness for flying, the R-34's crew was smaller than the crew of the Santa Maria, which consisted of 52 ignorant and fearful men, who had no idea just why they went, or where. On the three ships together, the Encyclopedia Britannica says, there were 88 men. 52 on the sailing ship Santa Maria, which Columbus commanded himself, and 15 apiece on the caravels Pinta and Nina.

It took that small, bobbing Spanish fleet just seventy days to make its trip, and the R-34 took only four and a half; and one might suppose that the longer would have been more tedious, and the shorter, flying one, more miraculous and joyful. But, if the diaries of two individuals can be taken as at all representative, there was no wonder in the flight of the dirigible to compare with that which compassed about on every side the Santa Maria, the Pinta and the Nina. Columbus wrote the one diary, abstracted by Las Casas, and Lieut. J. C. Shotter, the engineer officer of the R-34 kept the other. And the impression gleaned from the latter one is that transatlantic crossings in the air will be too utterly boring to be endured unless some unusual and diverting form of recreation be thought up for blase travellers. Even the ocean itself can hardly be seen, says he, and it's a weary life above the fog and clouds. There was a wonderful sunrise one morning, though with cloud reflections of a surprising kind. "This would at least be a little distraction from the cloudy monotony for prospective passengers on transatlantic voyages," says he, with a gleam of hope.

It was different, and very wonderful, at least for Columbus himself, who had an eye out for the roundness of the earth, from August 3 to October 12, in 1492. Even the frequent disappointments about land, even those mutinering affairs (for whom the wonder was so great as to amount to fear) could not dispel the rare magnificence of the nights and days or the almost uncanny strangeness of the things which happened. The passengers on the R-34, the truths was, knew that the earth is round. It was not for them a theory to be proved.

In the first place there was the compass. It acted peculiarly—more peculiarly than any one had supposed. If would on the simple westing way to Asia. It was on September 13 that the "westerly variation of the magnetic needle" was realized, and from then on even the stupidity of malcontents could not dull the radiance of that trip. Every day some odd and splendid thing occurred. A meteor fell on September 15 only four or five leagues away. Then there were the vast plains of seaweed known as the Sargossa Sea. And the weather, sweet and balmy, like, so Columbus said, "an Andalusian April," with only the song of the nightingale not there to make it perfect.

On the 16th there were birds and a few ridge of cloud. But the real signs of land did not come until October 11, when the Pinta picked up a cane, a pole and a stick which seemed to be wrought with iron, a board and a branch covered over with berries. "And with these signs all of them breathed and were glad."

There was a demonstration of thankfulness and joy when once they got to land which only men of Southern Europe could have staged. They wept and knelt and prayed and planted banners for the Catholic majesties of Castile and of Leon, and for themselves. The R-34 came from Northern Europe and there were no tears nor kneelings, so far as has been told. Nor were any flags planted. However, there was a reception, done in Anglo-Saxon way, to relieve the officers and crew of all the boredom which attends this flying above the fog.

How odd that men were so afraid in those timorous days to take a trip of so much wonder; so eager now to fly tediously above the clouds. Fear and wonder will be very much akin. One's only regret is that the stowaway, who seems to have lost the fear and kept the wonder, was in no circumstances to keep a diary of his own!

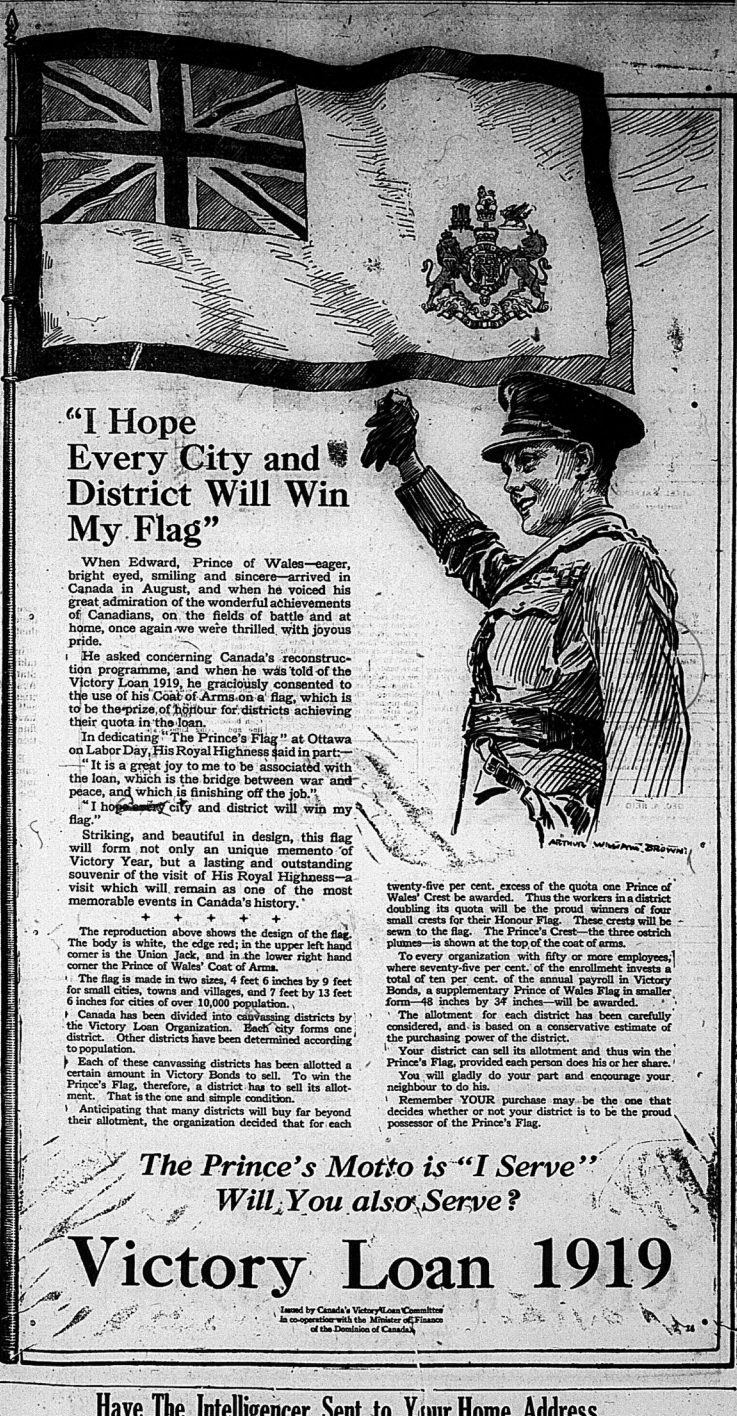
Those Movie Stars!

June Elvidge, moving picture star, is being sued for divorce. Her husband is Lieut. Frank C. Badgley, M.C., of Ottawa, Canada. The marriage of Miss Elvidge to the Canadian army officer in November, 1918, was one of the romances of the war. Another war bony of Canada's army is now mentioned as the man who has come between the screen and her soldier husband. He is merely styled "Jack" or Lieut. Badgley's co-plaint. "Jack" is said to be a first lieutenant in the Canadian army and has won the Military Cross.

Mrs. Badgley has made a vigorous denial that at any time has she been guilty of the conduct attributed to her by Lieut. Badgley, with either "Jack" or any other man.

Lieut. Badgley was a member of the First Canadian Expeditionary Force. He won the Military Cross at the battle of Courcelette in 1916, and after being wounded, shell-shocked and gassed, was invalided home.

Miss Elvidge began her theatrical career in 1914. She had been a chorus girl only two months when she was made an understudy for the prima donna. Soon after she had an offer to appear in moving pictures and ever since has been a star on the screen.



"I Hope Every City and District Will Win My Flag"

When Edward, Prince of Wales—eager, bright eyed, smiling and sincere—arrived in Canada in August, and when he voiced his great admiration of the wonderful achievements of Canadians, on the fields of battle and at home, once again we were thrilled with joyous pride.

He asked concerning Canada's reconstruction programme, and when he was told of the Victory Loan 1919, he graciously consented to the use of his Coat of Arms on a flag, which is to be the prize of honour for districts achieving their quota in the loan.

In dedicating "The Prince's Flag" at Ottawa on Labor Day, His Royal Highness said in part:—

"It is a great joy to me to be associated with the loan, which is the bridge between war and peace, and which is finishing off the job."

"I hope every city and district will win my flag."

Striking, and beautiful in design, this flag will form not only an unique memento of Victory Year, but a lasting and outstanding souvenir of the visit of His Royal Highness—a visit which will remain as one of the most memorable events in Canada's history.

\+ + + + +

The reproduction above shows the design of the flag. The body is white, the edge red; in the upper left hand corner is the Union Jack, and in the lower right hand corner the Prince of Wales' Coat of Arms.

The flag is made in two sizes, 4 feet 6 inches by 9 feet for small cities, towns and villages, and 7 feet by 13 feet 6 inches for cities of over 10,000 population.

Canada has been divided into canvassing districts by the Victory Loan Organization. Each city forms one district. Other districts have been determined according to population.

Each of these canvassing districts has been allotted a certain amount in Victory Bonds to sell. To win the Prince's Flag, therefore, a district has to sell its allotment. That is the one and simple condition.

Anticipating that many districts will buy far beyond their allotment, the organization decided that for each twenty-five per cent. excess of the quota one Prince of Wales' Crest be awarded. Thus the workers in a district doubling its quota will be the proud winners of four small crests for their Honour Flag. These crests will be sewn to the flag. The Prince's Crest—the three ostrich plumes—is shown at the top of the coat of arms.

To every organization with fifty or more employees, where seventy-five per cent. of the enrollmeht invests a total of ten per cent. of the annual payroll in Victory Bonds, a supplementary Prince of Wales Flag in smaller form—48 inches by 34 inches—will be awarded.

The allotment for each district has been carefully considered, and is based on a conservative estimate of the purchasing power of the district.

Your district can sell its allotment and thus win the Prince's Flag, provided each person does his or her share.

You will gladly do your part and encourage your neighbour to do his.

Remember YOUR purchase may be the one that decides whether or not your district is to be the proud possessor of the Prince's Flag.

The Prince's Motto is "I Serve"
Will You also Serve?

A HAPPY HUNTING GROUND

The summer sun beat down on the heaving cradle of the deep, and little Bill lay dozing on the soft lazy swells. Forty miles away the dim outlines of the mountains of Vancouver Island drew a faint fretwork against the horizon. Close the bold point of Point Grey loomed high, and closer still the rugged entrance to Howe Sound met its endless battle with the charging rollers from the Gulf of Georgia. Little Bill's mother was somewhere in the depths looking for anything in the line of fish, but preferably salmon.

A smudgy smear appeared on the skyline. It drew rapidly nearer. Little Bill saw it not. Pushing herself along at the rate of eighteen knots the fast C. P. R. steamer Princess Patricia raced for harbor, keeping a railroad schedule, and piling a huge wave from each side of her sharp bows. She came close to Bill, who had not yet been christened, the roar of machinery, the rumbling rush of the wash startled him, and as he looked he was turned over and over in the big wave from the steamship. Little Bill forgot home and mother and all things but escape. Making his little flippers fly he drove himself toward the safety of a cove on Bowen Island, where, in the placid reaches, he rested again, feeling much more comfortable.

This is a true story. Bill is a young hair-seal. There are many thousands of his kind in the coast waters of British Columbia. They do no harm, excepting perhaps that of eating a few million salmon each season and destroying a few thousand yards of salmon nets that entangle them. The only other possible annoyance they might prove to create is that of following trolling fishermen and taking the fish off the hooks when the fisherman thinks he has caught one sure. Otherwise they are fat, lazy, comfortable, intelligent and kindly. They respond quickly to human attention. And the strange thing is that the human appeal is not made through the stomach. Young seals will make friends with men who never fed them a thing to entice them to closer relationship.

For instance there is the illustration of Bill. He rested in the warm cove at Bowen Island. He heard a seductive whistling sound, and he raised his head to look. There, not a hundred yards away he saw some two-legged creatures playing about in the water, and one who was sitting on a floating log was making the attractive noises with his lips. Bill slipped beneath the surface.

Picture the astonishment of the boys on the raft. Suddenly in their midst there came a little spotted seal that swam gently through them and drew up against the raft, asking as clearly as anything could, to be invited into the revels. One boy reached down, placed his hands behind the tiny flippers and lifted Bill out. They petted him and scratched him, dove and swam about with him. He seemed to enjoy himself fully as much as they. The day drew to a close and the lads went homeward, leaving their deep-sea playfellow alone. Next morning when they came to swim they whistled again. Close beside the raft a sleek little head like that of a wet spaniel raised itself, and small flippers wriggled joyously. The daily play was on again. It was then he was christened Bill, and learned to know the name. This happened weeks ago and still Bill plays tirelessly and in utter confidence. He rustles his own food, he asks nothing but friendship and companionship. Some where on the sandbars of the Fraser river his mother sleeps, and perhaps dreaming of her wandering lad. But Bill, apparently, dreams of nothing but the coming day, and his friends in woollen tights.—I. V. E.

Benefits of Organization For Retail Merchants

LARGE GATHERING OF MERCHANTS OF DISTRICT HEAR INTERESTING ADDRESSES BY OFFICERS OF RETAIL MERCHANTS ASSOCIATION—BOARD OF COMMERCE SCORED.

A judge, a lawyer and a railway conductor, comprising the Board of Commerce appointed by the Government to investigate the high cost of living, prices, business methods and cost of doing business, was the subject of unfavorable criticism by the speakers who addressed a gathering of retail merchants in the Y. M. C. A. building last evening. The Retail Merchants Association have been working for the establishment of a Board of Commerce for some years but object strenuously to the personnel of the Board as appointed as incompetent to get at the facts and give the merchants a square deal. The intimation was given that the Retail Merchants Association was going to fight the methods of the Board of Commerce. As one speaker said, "We don't mind being called thieves and scoundrels by a section of the press, but we are not going to have it rubbed in. It is a case of the Kaiser rambling around the country. The present Dominion Government will never come back after the next election if they don't pull this Board of Commerce off."

The gathering was a large and representative one of business men from Belleville, Trenton, and other parts of the district, and the proceedings were of a most interesting nature. An excellent lunch was served by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. followed by addresses.

The principal speakers were, Mr. Henry Watters, druggist of Ottawa, President of the Eastern Ontario and Ottawa Valley Branch of the Retail Merchants' Association; Mr. E. M. Trowern, Secretary of the Dominion Executive of the Retail Merchants Association; and Mr. W. C. Miller, Secretary of the Ontario Provincial Board, Retail Merchants Association.

Mr. D. V. Sinclair, President of the Belleville Branch of the Retail Merchants Association, presided in his usual happy manner, and welcomed the visitors from out of town. He referred to the recent election and the success at the polls of the U.F.O. as a triumph of organization which the merchants would do well to heed. Very little is known by the average merchant of the great benefits to business—which have resulted from the activities of the Retail Merchants Association in securing favorable legislation and in other ways. Mr. Sinclair urged the adoption of high ideals in business life, the first principle being the best service to the community possible, taking the motto of the Prince of Wales, "I serve."

Lt.-Col. E. O. O'Flynn gave a rapid fire two-minute talk upon the necessity of backing up the Victory Loan to the limit.

Boosting Belleville

Alderman Bone welcomed the visitors and in a brief but pointed address emphasized the necessity of home loyalty in community building, instancing the fact that local investors were prone to give their money to promoters for outside enterprises when there were better opportunities for investment in local business concerns which helped to make a bigger and better community. He announced that the wheels were now turning at the plant of the Elliot Woodworking Co., a new industry in Belleville, formerly located in Toronto, a record having been made in the installing of machinery. The Judge Jones Milling Co. was also actively installing machinery and had broken ground for a new elevator. He urged the necessity of a free Bay Bridge and better roads and the cultivation of a general progressive community spirit to promote local prosperity.

Mr. Sinclair said that new industries were locating in Belleville and Trenton. You cannot drop one hundred dollars anywhere in Hastings County without everybody feeling the benefit, said Mr. Sinclair.

Superior Service

The benefit of membership in the Retail Merchants Association was explained by Mr. Henry Waters, President of The Eastern Ontario and Ottawa Valley section of the Retail Merchants Association. Concentrating on superior service was the keynote of success in business, said Mr. Waters, the only competitor to fear being the one who gives superior service. The cut price and long hour-man was not dangerous. Commenting upon the present political situation in Ontario Mr. Waters said the Retail Merchants had as much right to special representation in Parliament as any other class. He was decidedly against class legislation. He criticized the Board of Commerce as not properly constituted to get the right results. Diocletian, in the year 305, undertook to fix prices with the result that production ceased and he was discredited. Speaking of community service Mr. Watters said that the Retail Merchants Association of Ottawa had taken hold of the Exhibition there this year, with the result that despite unfavorable weather and other adverse conditions a surplus of $20,000 had been rolled up instead of deficits as in previous years.

Helping the Merchants

Mr. W. C. Miller, secretary of the Provincial Association, gave a clear and convincing resume of the achievements of the Retail Merchants Association in the interests of the trade. Merchants had been excluded from the operation of the Workmen's Compensation Act, resulting in a considerable saving to them. The Bulk Sales Act, as originally framed, was very unfair to merchants desiring to dispose of their business, and the objectionable features had been removed as the result of the activities of the association. The Transient Traders By-law protected the local merchants. Trading Stamps, false advertising and other practises injurious to trade had been curbed by legislation. The Knowles bill seeking to abolish manufacturers resale price had been defeated, standard weights for vegetables secured, and efforts were being made to have the obsolete Division Courts act amended satisfactorily. The Bankruptcy Act, with 170 clauses, had been closely scrutinized by the R. M. A. with the result that the finest act in the world is now on the statute books, to go into effect on November 1 this year. Successful efforts had also been made by the association to induce wholesalers to confine their sales to dealers.

Mr. Miller criticized strongly the privileges enjoyed by the Mail Order houses in the distribution of catalogues by mail, the people having to

Reported Capture of Premier Lenine

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited

HONOLULU, Oct. 24.—Nikolai Lenine, Bolshevik Premier of Russia has been captured by the anti-Bolshevik forces, according to a wireless message picked up by the Japanese ship, Tenyomaru, in the harbor here. The message gave no further details of reported capture of Lenine.

VISCOUNT ASTOR HAS PASSED AWAY

LONDON, Oct. 24.—Viscount Astor of Hever Castle, died of heart disease Saturday morning. He had been in ill health for a year.

The body of Viscount Astor is lying at the residence of his son, Waldorf Astor, member of Parliament, in St. James' Square.

Through Viscount Astor's wish his body will be cremated, and it is understood Mrs. Astor will be placed in the private chapel of his one-time country home, Cliveden, at Taplow, Bucks, now occupied by Waldorf Astor.

TWO OR THREE MEN IMPLICATED IN MURDER

Winnipeg, Oct. 23—It is believed that detectives working on the Fort Forge murder case have been enabled definitely to establish that at least two, and probably three, men were implicated in the plot against DeForge, and that they made their escape after the murder in a high-powered automobile.

The information regarding the escape by automobile was given by a woman whose identity has not been disclosed, who was within one hundred feet of the murderers when they dashed away. Another woman, Mrs. Robert Hardyman, heard someone running back of an apartment block shouting "Come this way," according to information in possession of the police.

NUMEROUS WOMEN FIGHTING WITH REDS

London, Oct. 24.—The Bolsheviki forces have been flung back in the Kamyshin section, losing 3,000 men taken prisoners, and many machine guns, according to General Denikine's wireless communication. Extremely fierce fighting is reported in that district.

Kamyshin lies north of Tsaritzyn, on the Volga river.

A Bolshevik wireless message from Moscow says that volunteers are arriving at Petrograd continuously from the remotest Russian villages and are forming special detachments; among them are numerous women. The same message says that Admiral Kolchak in his retreat to Petropavlovsk destroyed nearly three million tons of newly-cut grain.

Further wireless reports from Moscow say that the first tanks manufactured in Petrograd were sent against General Yudenitch's front lines and caused the greatest enthusiasm among the Red troops, who, aided by these, took numbers of prisoners.

A West-Bound G.T.R. Derailed At Rideau

Not One Car Overturned, But Passengers Shaken Up—Express Messenger Injured.

KINGSTON, Oct. 24.—No. 15, the west bound G. T. R. mail train was derailed at 12.50 yesterday morning, at Rideau station, the first station east of Kingston Junction. The train which does not stop there, was going at fifty miles an hour.

The entire train consisting of 11 cars, left the track, with exception of the engine. The accident is thought to have been caused by a broken rail. None of the cars overturned and as a consequence the casualty list is not serious.

Wm. Christie, Montreal, express messenger, was the only one sufficiently injured to be brought to hospital, with a broken rib, caused when a crate of automobile springs fell on him. Several persons were bruised or shaken up. Two tracks were torn up for several yards, and two wrecking crews are clearing away the debris. A temporary track is being built around the wreck.

Sir Adam Beck Would Demand Pro-Hydro Govt.

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 24.—Sir Adam Beck said in lower editing of the discussion in the newspapers concerning its future course. He intimated that it was very doubtful that he would remain as chairman of the Hydro-Electric Commission.

"As no account will I stay except that I am assured of a Government that is in full sympathy with and behind the power development and Hydro-Radial projects," he said. "It would be useless to attempt to go on otherwise. Millions of dollars are involved in the transfer of private interests in Toronto, Montreal, Hamilton and elsewhere, and money is no object if these interests can secure a favorable result for themselves. I have fought and fought, but it seems to be of no use."

It was apparent that Sir Adam felt depressed and discouraged, and those who are close to him state freely their belief that he will retire.

It is pointed out that such certificates are restricted to a few French cross-channel pilots daily entering British ports in return for similar privilege to British pilots. Yesterday's vote in the House was a refusal to modify the restrictions withholding pilot certificates.

Lloyd George Government May Not Have To Resign

ONLY HALF OF THE MEMBERS OF HOUSE OF COMMONS WERE PRESENT WHEN ALIENS BILL WAS DEFEATED VOTE OF CONFIDENCE MAY BE ASKED FOR.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—Members of the Lloyd George Cabinet are today considering the situation which has arisen as a result of the adverse vote in the House of Commons yesterday when the Government lost ment to the Alien Bill was rejected by a vote of 195 to 112. Because of the fact that there was only about half of the members of the House in their seats when the vote was taken, it is believed the Government will not resign, but it is possible that Edward Short, the Home Secretary, who was in charge of the Alien Bill, may quite office. Andrew Bonar Law, Government leader in the House, secured a delay until Monday for his colleagues by moving an adjournment immediately after the result of the vote on the Alien Bill had been announced. Bonar Law's declaration that any subsequent action by the ministry would depend upon the view of the House of Commons as a whole may indicate an intention on the part of the Government to ask for a vote of confidence at an early date.

The Ministerial Council, under the presidency of Lloyd George, discussed the political situation this morning and later the entire Cabinet Assembled.

Watchful Waiting of Political Parties

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

TORONTO, Oct. 24. — Watchful waiting by the four parties in the provincial legislature—elect, while a small sub-committee of the predominating United Farmers selects an acceptable leader seems to be the position of things today.

Except the Liberals, who "gathered under the leadership of Hartley Dewart this morning to further discuss the situation there was no meeting of the parties today. The United Farmers, "stand adjourned" and have gone back to their fall plowing to assemble here again on Wednesday to hear the report of their committee regarding a leader. F. C. Drury of Simcoe and Sir Adam Beck still seem to be most prominently mentioned for this post, but the name of Dr. Creelman, president of the Ontario Agricultural College, and former Commissioner of Agriculture under the Hearst Government was mentioned today as a possibility. The labor men will meet at Hamilton tomorrow to decide upon their course and it is expected that the Conservatives will meet next week.

"Pep" And Optimism Mark Victory Loan Forces

GREAT DRIVE BEGINS MONDAY FOR LAST POPULAR LOAN TO SUPPLY FUNDS TO COVER WAR EXPENDITURE AND CARE FOR RETURNED SOLDIERS AND DEPENDENTS.

The organization which has in hand the Victory Loan Campaign 1919 for Hastings County is the most complete and thoroughly efficient combination that has ever attempted a patriotic endeavour in Hastings County.

The first two years of the loan were experimental to a great extent. Last year the workers were handicapped by the epidemic of influenza which was raging throughout the campaign. This year the outlook is brilliant. Not a hitch has been discovered in the preparatory work of organization and Citizens at large are most interested in the work.

Sir Henry Drayton has announced that this will be Canada's last popular Loan, therefore there are thousands of our citizens who through misfortune or timidity were unable to participate in the previous loans but who have seen the wonderful advantage of this investment who will eagerly buy up Belleville and Hastings County's allotment.

All of the previous bonds are now selling above par even though the new great loan is being floated. What will be the portion of this investment when no other offerings are to be had? Undoubtedly this year the value of this loan will increase beyond the widest expectations of the most optimistic Victory Loaners and sorry indeed will be the person who has not taken advantage of this great opportunity to invest.

On Monday morning canvassers will start out and call on every business place and home. Meet them with a smile and buy to your utmost as it is everyone's duty to invest every cent possible to help Canada retire the war obligation.

On Monday night a great rally will be held in the City Hall, Belleville at which Mr. W. S. Herrington, K.C., M.P. of Napanee will be the principal speaker as well as other excellent orators. There will also be a large number of artists who lately performed in that excellent musical show, "The Winning Girl," numbers of which will be presented for the entertainment of the audience.

Fall of "pep" and optimism, the following workers are preparing to burst forth on Monday as follows:

BIG REWARD FOR SLAYER

WINNIPEG, Oct. 24—The Manitoba Government will pay one thousand dollars for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of James W. De Forge, on Saturday. The finding of an automobile in Grand Forks, N.D., Monday, which was stolen in Winnipeg the night before the murder, is regarded by the police as significant.

Had To Lie In Bed Most of The Time

Mrs. Bartels Could Eat Only Milk and Crackers—Is Like New Person Now.

"Of all medicines in the world none can equal Tanlac," said Mrs. Henry Bartels of 786 Van Buren St., St. Paul, Minn., the other day.

"I suffered from indigestion so bad that what I ate wouldn't stay on my stomach," she continued, "I had to diet myself for a long time on milk and crackers, and I lost weight rapidly, going from one hundred and thirty-five down to one hundred and nineteen pounds, an actual loss of sixteen pounds in about three months' time. Gas would form on my stomach and sometimes rise up into my chest and press against my heart so bad that I could hardly get my breath. I was restless all the time and couldn't sleep good at night. I had awful headaches, and at times I was so dizzy that I couldn't get out of bed in the morning. Finally I got so frightfully run down that I had to lie in bed most of the time, and have my daughter do the housework. I tried everything to build up my system, medicines, treatments, dieting and everything else I knew of but none of them did me any good.

"One day I noticed in the paper about Tanlac, and decided to try it. And it proved to be the thing I've been looking for. I have taken four bottles now, and it seems like a dream the way I've improved. My appetite came right back, and it's the truth I can hardly get enough to eat now. I don't suffer at all from gas or indigestion, and that has made my breathing like it ought to be. I am never restless or nervous, and can sleep all night long, and when I get up I don't feel tired and drowsy like I used to but feel rested and refreshed. Headaches and dizzy spells don't trouble me any more, and I'm gaining in weight and strength right along. It's wonderful how Tanlac has built up my whole system, and made a new woman of me altogether. I'm only too glad to tell others about my experience with such a remarkable medicine as Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold in Belleville by Ostrom's Drug Store, in Trenton by J. H. Dickey, in Deseronto, by W. J. Malley, in Stirling by J. S. Morton, in Madoc by J. Will Vitos, in Marysville by T. J. Mumford, in Ormsby by Jas. Campbell, and in Thomasburg by J. H. Blakley.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor of the Intelligencer:

Sir:—When passing a photo studio recently, I noticed in the window a colored photograph of the country residence of R. J. Graham, Esq. To me it is the loveliest picture of its kind, I have ever seen. It has not the stately grandeur or magnificence of Sir Hy Pellatt's castle in Toronto, but to me it is far more attractive, because it is so quaint and homelike, so colonial in type, so countrified, so to speak. To me the house and grounds are a thing of beauty and a joy forever and absolutely perfect and in keeping with the surroundings. I hear that Colonel Marsh is completing building a fine residence. I hope he does not change his mind. Men like these are not misers, but spenders and when fortune comes their way they start in at once to add beauty to the landscape, which is just as essential to the prosperity of any country as tilling the land.

Yours truly,
O. H. ACKHILL, V.S.

Civilization Not a Blessing.

Mene, the Eskimo boy whom Admiral Peary brought back from the Arctic some years ago, died of pneumonia in a logging camp, says an exchange. It was scarcely a kindness, though meant as one, for Peary to take him away from the native snow and ice.

A man of the old stone age could not survive in the modern environment of civilization; or perhaps in the view of Dr. Oro-Magnone, who drew pictures in colors on the walls of French and Spanish caves 30,000 years ago, drawings that still survive, civilization does not amount to much when dangers from street cars, automobiles, falling airplanes, influenza and a multitude of other things are greater than were those from the sabre-toothed tiger or the woolly rhinoceros in their day.

The Eskimo has ever flourished in the temperate zone. The scenery of Greenland and Baffin may be monotonous, it may have a certain uniform whiteness that tires the eye, but fresh air is abundant and sipping. It is not poisoned by soft-coal smoke, and it suits the natives lungs!

Insurance Against Tuberculosis.

Dr. P. J. Menard outlines in the Presse Medicale a plan for universal compulsory insurance against tuberculosis, the funds from which would serve for the fight against tuberculosis. His scheme is something like compulsory social insurance against sickness, but the tax or insurance dues imposed would include all classes of society, not merely the wage earners. He protests that the fight against tuberculosis should not be left to charity or private initiative.

When a man gets lonesome he begins to realize what poor company he is.

Ever notice that most of the things you are prepared for neglect to happen?

ASK YOURSELF

are you logical in your use of medicine? When your stomach is ailing you take something that reaches the stomach, but when the trouble is in your lungs or breathing passages, do you take something that gets there direct? This is where so many people make a mistake. They swallow remedies into the stomach in a vain attempt to cure an ailment which is of the lungs! Then they wonder why they receive no benefit.

For ailments of the lungs and breathing passages the logical treatment is the use of a remedy that is breathable and therefore capable of reaching the lungs direct.

Peps is that kind of remedy—a breathable remedy in tablet form. When Peps are dissolved in the mouth medicinal vapor is released and breathed to all parts of the bronchial tubes and the minute air cells of the lungs, soothing the inflammation and consequent irritation, healing the sore places and ending the cough.

Next time you are troubled with a cough, sore throat, bronchitis or laryngitis, take Peps and prove for yourself the superiority of the direct treatment. All dealers 60c.

New Fuel Factory Will Use Garbage

The public meeting called for last evening in the City Hall in connection with the Ontario Oakoal Company, Limited, was slimly attended, not more than 40 being in the City Hall.

Ald. Woodley was chairman and explained the object of the meeting. The Oakoal Company is not asking for any local capital but will start an independent here for the manufacture of oakoal. All that is asked from the city is a free site, which will be given.

Mr. J. Long, the company's managing director, was present and outlined the proposed new industry. He stated in his opening remarks that this was an important matter to the city and it was regretable that more citizens were not present. The Ontario Oakoal Company was organized with a capital of $250,000. There seems to be some misunderstanding in regard to the company's operation. We are not asking citizens of Belleville to take stock as it has sufficient funds for the company to erect plants in Toronto and Belleville. If, however, any citizens desire to be partners in the profits of the company, they will be privileged to do so. In short the garbage collected was fed to hogs, but it created diseases amongst hogs and in more than one place they had to be slaughtered owing to an outbreak of hog cholera. It is a fact that germs are in the garbage and thus infected the hogs. There should be a rigid inspection of herds of hogs. Instead of destroying the garbage, the Oakoal Company, treat it scientifically, and disinfect it thoroughly. It is ground and reduced to a pulp and transferred to a mixing machine where coal dust is installed and then it is pressed. The fuel is free from dust and is purified. We are going to place on the market a product that shows by analysis has much heat properties. It even gives out a greater heat than anthracite coal. After you have burned the product you have in the ashes a fertiliser. After the oakoal product is used in the city, there will be no need of collecting of ashes. It will burn from 12 to 16 hours. It will be sold at from $8 to $9.50 per ton. Every householder who uses oakoal as a fuel product means to him a much less coal bill. The Oakoal Coal Company will be in a position to make it Ontario and other provinces, some 5,000 tons of Oakoal per day. It is a fact that there will be in the future a less supply of anthracite coal and this will mean an increase in the price of coal. The Oakoal Company has an immense supply of anthracite coal dust, so that will not increase the price. The only thing that would possibly raise the price of Oakoal would be freight rates, but this is not probable, as they are now about as high as they can go. If the company established in this city with a population of 12000 the burning of oakoal would mean a saving to the consumers of coal of some $90,000 per annum. The operation of a 100,000 ton plant in Belleville would mean a paying of a 22 per cent. dividend. For ee week only, a stock book would be opened in Belleville. A $40,000 plant would be erected here and equipped with modern machinery for the manufacture of oakoal. The speaker stated that it had been proven that 65% tons of oakoal was equal to 8 tons of coal. There was no fuel that stood the test that oakoal did. In regard to those enlarged preference would be given to returned men. All we ask from the city is a free site. When this is settled work on the plant will be commenced.

How To Make Your Hair Beautiful

Ten Minutes' Home Treatment Works Wonders, Stops Falling Hair and Dandruff and Makes the Hair Soft, Brilliant, Lustrous and Fluffy

Better than all the so-called "hair tonics" in the world is a simple old-fashioned home recipe consisting of pain Bay Rum, Lavona (de Compose) and a little Menthol Crystals. These three mixed at home in a few minutes, works wonder with any scalp. Try it just one night and see if you can find dandruff a trace. Lavona, 6 oz. Bay Rum and ½ drachm Menthol Crystals. Dissolve the Crystals in the Bay Rum and pour in 8 oz. bottle. Then add the Lavona, shake well and let it stand for an hour before using. Apply it by putting a little of the mixture on soft cloth. Draw this cloth slowly through the hair, taking just one small strand at a time. This cleanses the hair and scalp of dirt, dust and excessive oil and makes the hair delightfully soft, lustrous and fluffy. To stop the hair from falling and to make it grow again rub the skin briskly into the scalp with the finger tips or a medium stiff brush. Apply night and morning. A few days use and you will not find a single loose or straggling hair. They will be locked on your scalp as tight as a vise. Dandruff will disappear. You will find fine downy new hairs sprouting up all over your scalp and this new hair will grow with wonderful rapidity.

Benefits of Organization

pay for the deficiency in revenue.

The service to members given by the legal credit and collecting departments of the R.M.A. was very valuable and Mr. Miller instanced a case where a woman had sued a merchant for $15,000 for injuries sustained by falling in his store and breaking her ankle. A verdict of $1,500 was secured but the R. M. A. took up the case, appealed and had the verdict set aside. The Association felt it could not afford to let such a precedent stand.

Credit Reporting

The association credit reporting department is free, collections made and a delinquent list furnished.

Plans of merchants for alleged violation of the O. T. A. in selling flavoring extracts had been remitted in four instances as the result of the intervention of the legal department of the R. M. A.

Free auditing of freight bills was also an important department of the R. M. A., no charge being made except where errors were found and rebates secured for the merchant when a percentage was deducted.

Importance of Retailer

"Only a little retailer," was the appellation frequently used to refer contemptuously to the local merchant by people who did not know any better, said Mr. Trowern, who said that the retailer was a member of the largest organization in Canada, pay more taxes, support more picnics, church bazaars, poor houses, patriotic funds, red cross, charity, etc., give more credit, lost more money, give better service, and take more abuse than any other class in the community.

Mr. Trowern's address was the gem of the evening, witty in every line but forceful with good homely philosophy and straight truths of interest to the retail merchant. He did not hesitate to criticise, the government where he thought criticism was due, nor did he withhold just praise. Retail merchants were the mainsprings of distribution and their profession was dignified and important. The Christian religion had spread over the wide world as the result of the activities of twelve little retail fishermen.

The Industrial Relations Commission was criticised by the speaker as not being properly constituted. It had a Judge, a newspaper man, a railway conductor, a paper manufacturer, and a lumberman in its make-up but nary a retailer.

The Industrial Conference also came in for criticism, especially the eight-hour day pronouncement, which in the opinion of the speaker was absolutely impracticable as a general principle. Each department of industry has its own problems and must regulate its own hours of labor.

Co-operative stores were characterized as the greatest fraud ever perpetrated on the public, robbing with one hand and handing back with the other. It was only the old trading stamp scheme in another dress, said Mr. Trowern, and morally unsound.

Dreamers and schemers must be put in their place in Canada, a land flowing with milk and honey, with the largest per capita savings in the banks of any nation in the world. The little nation of shopkeepers" had set the world free and Canada was going to point the way to better things.

Splendid legislation was the Board of Commerce idea but wrongly operated, in the opinion of the speaker, back after the next election if they who voiced his objection strongly. The cost of living would never be brought down by rambling lawyers drawing eight and ten thousand dollars a year each of the people's money. The Retail Merchants Association was going to fight the methods of the Board of Commerce. "We don't mind being called thieves and scoundrels by some newspapers," said Mr. Trowern, "but we are not going to have it rubbed in by Kaisers rambling around the country. The present government at Ottawa will never come don't call off the present Board of Commerce."

Mr. Trowern's address compelled close attention and evoked great applause and laughter, and the gathering reluctantly permitted him to resume his seat.

In every way the meeting was a pronounced success and will no doubt result in an increased membership for the local branch of the association and renewed interest.

Chinese Caligraphy.

The Chinese, according to a Canton paper, recognize the extreme complexity of their written language. About twenty years ago, in the days of the Empress Dowager, a scholar and reformer named Wang Chao, who held the highest obtainable literary degree, conceived the idea of a simplified form of Chinese writing. He invented a phonetic system of symbols, which was promptly branded revolutionary and suppressed, while its "reformer" also was banished. Lately, however, the idea has been reintroduced, and the Government has tried a system of the same kind, but more complicated, without much success. Two missionaries of Tsangchow have fared better in an effort to revive Wang Chao's phonetic script, which is based on the fact that, although the number of characters is vast, there are only three hundred and eighteen "word-sounds" in the Chinese language.—Family Herald.

What Shape IS A Horn?

Did you ever hear of a horn or a megaphone that was square?

Do you know why they never send vibrations through a square pipe?

Every phonograph or talking machine has a "horn," but they call them "amplifiers." They are really the megaphones of the machine. It is their duty to round out the tone and send it to the listeners.

Now what shape do you think this "horn" should be to give the best "tone"—and what do you think it should be made of—resonant, vibrating metal or wood—built on the violin principle?

Before you buy any phonograph, find out the shape of the horn and what it is made of.

One of the secrets of the Brunswick's wonderful tone on ALL records is the exclusive patented OVAL tone chamber and throat—built entirely of wood, like a vine violin.

It actually DOES eliminate all harshness, all the stridency, and that "tinny" timbre that we have always thought a necessary evil of the old-style "Talking Machines."

All we ask is that you use your own ears—your own judgment—see this wonderful improvement with your own eyes—compare it with anything you like—at any price.

You cannot afford to make a mistake, and it costs you nothing to be sure.

MADE IN CANADA.

GOVERNMENT HIGHWAY—GOVERNMENT BRIDGE.

The City Council lost no time in connection with drawing the attention of the Legislature to the necessity of wiping out the anomaly of a toll bridge between Hastings and Prince Edward counties. On motion of Alderman Bone and Hanna the City Council will request member-elect W. H. Ireland to take up the matter of a free bay bridge with the Government and also urge that the highway between Belleville and Picton be taken over. This is a movement which might well enlist the assistance of members-elect Parliament of Prince Edward County, and Denyes of East Hastings. A Government dominated by farmers should have no objections to free highways and free bridges.

BELLEVILLE FIRST WITH BELLEVILLE BOOSTERS.

The following extracts from an article written by E. M. Trowen, Secretary of the Dominion Executive Council of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, show clearly the necessity of the cultivation of a civic loyalty and co-operation to ensure a progressive and prosperous community.

"In making a survey of all the towns and villages throughout Canada, can any one say that they see great evidences of prosperity? Can they see more stores being built or new additions to old ones? Is there more paint used than formerly on the store fronts? Are the stocks doubling up or keeping pace with the population? Is there a general appearance of prosperity all around? Are there more and better pavements, better fire-fighting appliances, more contented civic employees, better paid school teachers, etc.? If not, why not. Could it be because of the lack of pride in the town or village? Is the money that is paid to the farmers or producers passing through the town or village and circulating so that all engaged therein can have an opportunity of being rewarded for their services, or is the money going direct to one or two large mail order houses hundreds of miles away and starving the trade of the town?

"Take the actual trade and business out of a town and you reduce its power to pay taxes. Taxes can only be paid by those who have money to pay them. Mendicants and beggars never pay taxes. Every retail merchant who has a store in town should make it a rigid rule to buy all the things he requires from his fellow retail merchants in the town. If the goods you want are not in stock leave your order and encourage your fellow retail merchant to stock them. If retail merchants themselves patronize and encourage mail order catalogue houses, how can they complain if others do the same thing?

"If you want your town to thrive you must keep your money in local circulation. You must constitute yourself a Town Booster. Canada's continued prosperity depends upon her live up-to-date towns. It is far better to have eight million happy and contented people in Canada, all having enough work to keep them busy and sufficient salaries to enable them to lay something away for a rainy day, than it is to have thousands out of employment, thousands receiving starvation wages, thousands in the poor houses, and a few living in luxury and abundance. The more active, energetic towns that we have the more quickly will be the distri' ution of wealth.

"Canada's future depends upon the prosperity of her towns and villages. If the towns and villages of Canada decline, Canada will also decline. If you want your town to die, take your money out of circulation and send it away to a mail order house. If you want a thriving, up-to-date place where the people love to congregate, be a Town Booster; take an interest in the stores in your town; encourage those who keep clean, comfortable hotels, where commercial travellers can stay with comfort and obtain good meals. If you have a local paper, weekly or daily, subscribe to it, and if you are a merchant or a manufacturer, advertise in it and see that the proprietor keeps everlastingly boosting your town. If it is worth living in it is worth boosting; if it is not worth living in we would advise you to move out as quickly as possible and give place to better men."

CRISP COMMENT

It was old Hi Costa Livin who defeated the Hearst Government, not the U. F. O., Liberals or Labor or Boose, or any other old thing—and you can lay to that.

A lot of needed political house-cleaning can be taken up now that the Farmers have taken possession of Queen's Park. Both parties have fences to mend.

Allan Studholme, the pioneer labor representative in the Legislature, died too soon. His was a voice crying in a wilderness of empty benches, and he was the head, body and tail of the labor party at Queen's Park. How his old heart would have warmed could he have been alive today with such a labor following as will sit in the next Legislature.

Ontario will not soon be served by a higher minded, fairer spirited man than W. H. Hearst. The Whitney tradition of honesty was carried on in the Premiership of Sir William Hearst. The Conservative party has completed more than fifteen years of an honest and successful attempt to give Ontario the best and most progressive Government that the people of this country, or any of the provinces thereof, ever received at the hands of any Canadian administration. Sir William Hearst threw away the certainty of victory by his refusal to force a war-time election in 1918. W. H. Hearst may not be recognised as his own or his party's best friend, but never in thought, word or action did Sir William Hearst prove himself other than a devoted friend to Ontario and to public ownership, progress and public rights in Ontario.—Toronto Telegram.

The Conservatives, who numbered 76 in the previous House of 111 seats, are now reduced to 26. Their views are at variance with those of the other groups, their Government was overwhelmingly defeated by the electors, and it is therefore impossible for them to take any part in negotiations toward a coalition for the purpose of forming a new Government.—Toronto Globe. Why, of course not! The very idea of the Government still in power having anything to say about its successor! The poor old Globe is not sure of anything these days except that it hates the Tories with a never-dying hate for leading it into strange by-paths. It will soon be seeking Hartley Dewart's forgiveness for ignoring him in its editorial column.

DOCTOR PRAISES ZAM-BUK

"For sixteen years," writes Dr. A. F. Shibley of Washington, D.C., "I have used Zam-Buk in my practice, and am convinced that there is nothing to compare with it for skin troubles, from roughness and irritation to chronic sore diseases. Zam-Buk, without a doubt, has wonderful curative properties, and when I have occasion to recommend a balm to my patients, I always recommend Zam-Buk. I have found the results from its use to be perfectly satisfactory."

Members of the medical profession are noted for their caution in recommending a remedy—only doing so when they have absolute confidence in it. The fact that Zam-Buk is so highly recommended by doctors the world over, and that in Dr. Shibley's experience it has stood the test of sixteen years' constant use, puts it, undeniably, in a class by itself.

In the home, in the office, shop and factory, on the farm and when travelling, Zam-Buk should be kept always handy. It is indispensable for all sores, eczema, boils, ulcers, blood-poisoning and piles, as well as for cuts, bruises, burns and scalds. All dealers 50c. box.

WAITIN' AT THE DOOR.

It's a mighty soothin' feelin' at the closin' of the day,
When I finish out the furrow and I put the plough away,
And I turn the tired horse out in the meadow to rest,
And I walk across the stubble to the place I love the best,
I forget the sweat and labor and I ain't so lame and sore,
'Cause I know my wife and children are awaitin' at the door.

I could talk about your glory and your rapture and your bliss,
But I tell you they ain't patchin' side of Lucy's lovin' kiss,
And you'll never think I was honey
jest a-soakin' from the hive,
When the children 'gin a-swarmin' like they'd eat me up alive.
Tell you, man, there's pleasure livin'
that I never felt before
I had a wife and children waitin' at the door.

When we gather round the table ready for our evenin' meal,
While my Lucy asks a blessin', in my heart I sort of steal
A humble little prayer to Him awatchin' up above—
To keep our feet a-ploddin' in the pathway of His love—
It will jest that He could hear me and He leaves the golden shore,
And shares the meal with me and them that's waitin' at the door.

Automobile Thefts.
Edmonton Journal.

Present proceedings in the Supreme Court of Criminal Jurisdiction reveal the fact that the penalty for automobile stealing has been changed. This offence has become so common in the Dominion that the Federal House has thought fit to designate special punishment for a crime that is attaining serious proportions in Canada and, particularly in this province.

Previously the theft of automobiles came under clauses in the code dealing with theft in general. The penalty ranged from a very light sentence or fine to 14 years imprisonment. Under the new statute which came into effect on October 1st, the minimum sentence is one year and the maximum two years. The fixing of one year's imprisonment as the lowest punishment is good, but popular opinion seems to have it that the maximum ought to be the same as in ordinary theft.

In many past cases the magistrates or judges have been inclined to excuse the offence on the ground that the defendants were frequently of immature age. The tendency is now to view the matter from the standpoint of the man who loses his car. At least one Supreme Court Justice in this province has promised to inflict the maximum penalty in all such cases that are found guilty before him.

Too Many Middlemen?
Toronto Star.

It was shown by evidence before the Board of Commerce that the jobbing firm of D. D. Hawthorne and Company made a net profit last year of $190,000, and a net profit between 1912 and 1919 of $800,000. Mr. Murdock, one of the commissioners, thinks that the jobber is one of the unnecessary luxuries. Are there not too many middlemen, not only in this, but in other business? If leather is dear and labor is dear, that surely is a reason for cutting down overhead expenses to the lowest possible figure. The product of labor seem to pass through too many hands, and too many people are paid for doing unnecessary work. We do not blame the persons engaged in these occupations. They work the system as they find it. But the system seems to be wrong.

A Laugh or Two

Even a crook may cast a straight shadow.

Old age makes a specialty of discovering lost opportunities.

Nothing interferes quite so much with a man's own progress as trying to get even with somebody else.

Anybody can have high ambitions, but it takes a man of nerve to stick to them.

"Well, Dorothy, what did you see in the country?" asked a father of his little 4-year-old daughter, who had just returned from a visit to her grandparents.

"Oh, lots of funny things," was the reply, "and the funniest of all was the hired man unmilking the cow."

Blinker—The undercrust to that chicken pie you brought me was abominably tough."

Waiter—"There wasn't any undercrust to that pie, sir; it was served on a paper plate, and you've eaten it."

"See that fellow yonder marking time? He must be a returned soldier."

"No, he isn't. That is Billings. He's a great ladies' man and is practising to keep in step with the girls who wear narrow skirts."

"May I have a word with you, Mr. Green?" began the young man.

"Certainly, you may," said the Wall street father.

"I want you to decide a bet."

"Very good. Go on."

"I want to marry your daughter."

"Tut tut, sir."

"But wait. Your daughter has bet me that you will give your consent to our marriage, and I have bet her that you will not. Now, you certainly would not want to decide the bet so she would lose; now would you?"

Little Roy, after his first experience in a street car, said to his aunt, "The flats were awful small. There was only room for mother and me downstairs, so pa had to sleep in one upstairs."

Dominion Plebiscite on Prohibition.

The Dominion plebiscite on prohibition of the liquor traffic was taken September 29, 1898, and the votes polled gave the following results:—

	For.	Against.
Ontario	154,498	115,784
Quebec	13,431	122,760
Nova Scotia	24,678	5,370
New Brunswick	26,918	9,675
Prince Edward Is.	9,461	1,146
Manitoba	12,418	2,277
British Columbia	5,731	4,756
N. W. Territories	6,238	2,824
Total	278,380	264,693

In 1902 the Ontario Legislature passed Premier Ross' bill for local option, but made its going into operation upon a majority vote of the provincial electors. The vote was taken November 4, 1902, with the following result:—

For new law	199,749
Against	103,514
Majority for	96,201

But the law required that 212,723 votes should be recorded in its favor, which number was equal to a majority of the votes cast at the preceding provincial general election; hence the law failed to be ratified.

These Old Crochet Edges.

You probably never thought to use again the crocheted edges already used. And you can, by the very simple expedient of cutting the edge away and crocheting a single chain to connect the scallop loops. It is a very simple matter after that to sew on to the new edge as you would a fresh lace edging. You should the old edging be obviously old, what say you to treating it to a dye bath? Wonderfully effective are dyed laces of all sorts just now. And whether you are going to use the edging on frock or blouse or undies, the dyeing can help good for all. A further suggestion is to dye the undies and the edging at the same time, so as to be quite sure that they match up.

Tobacco Habit Dangerous

Says Doctor Cannon, formerly of Johns Hopkins Hospital: "Constantly men suffering from fatal diseases would be perfect health were it not for the deadly drug, Nicotine. Stop the habit now, before it is too late. It's a simple matter to quit. Just go to your druggist in any form you like, and get Nicotine tablets; take them as directed, and in 5 days all craving for tobacco disappears. I've recommended my Nicotine tablets to many of my patients, and they all report the same glorious relief. Nothing else will avoid it. In the meantime try Nicotine tablets; you will be surprised at the result."

DAUGHTER OF THE PHILISTINES

By LEONARD MERRICK

"If I could command such a career," reiterated Mr. Walford. "What do you think of that! He's coming out in the spring, you know."

"Yes, so I've heard," said Humphrey. "Where?"

"They've got settled; here in town, probably, at the Opera House. He sang to the manager last week. The man was—was altogether staggered."

"Ha!" said Kent perfunctorily.

"There's never been anything heard like it. I tell you, he'll take London by storm."

"What I can't understand," said Miss Wix, her mouth pursed to a buttonhole, "is how you didn't know Lasalle directly he came in. Is he the only musical celebrity you aren't intimate with?"

Her nephew looked momentarily disconcerted.

"One doesn't know everybody," he said feebly. "Lasalle happened to be a man I'd not met."

"What do you mean, Emily?" flared Mrs. Walford. "You don't imagine that Caesar made the story up, suppose?"

"Mean?" said Miss Wix with wonder. "Make it up? Why should he make it up? I said I did not understand, that is all. Quite a simple observation."

She rose, and seated herself stiffly on a distant couch. Mrs. Walford panted, and turned to Humphrey, who she was afraid had overheard.

"How very absurd," she said jerkily —"how very absurd to her to make such a remark! So liable to misconstruction. By the way, do you see anything of that Mr. Turkey—Turquand—what was he called?—now? Has he—er—er—any influence on the press?"

"He knows a good many people of a kind. Why do you ask?"

"We shall be very pleased to see him" she said; "I liked him very much. He might dine with us one night—when there's nobody particular here....... I was thinking he might be useful to Caesar. The press can be so spiteful, can't it—so very spiteful. Of course, Caesar will really be independent of criticism, but still—"

"Still, you'll give Turquand a dinner,"

"Oh, you satirical villain!" she said playfully. "Hee, hee, hee. You're all alike, you writing men; you'll even lash your mamma-in-law. Aren't you going to have anything to drink? Sam Humphrey has nothing to drink. Cynthia, a glass of wine?"

The servant had entered with a salver and the tantalus, and Sam Walford proposed the toast of his son's debut. They prepared to drink—and it was noticed then that Miss Wix sat alone in her distant corner.

"Emily, aren't you going to join us?"

"I beg your pardon, Emily," exclaimed Walford. "I—I didn't know you were with us in any longer, upon my word I didn't."

"The poor are always with us," said Miss Wix, in a low and bitter voice. "If it can be spared, a modicum of whiskey."

"Then you'll tell Mr. Turquand we shall be happy to see him?" said Mrs. Walford to Kent. "Don't forget it. You might bring him with you one evening—I dare say he'll be very glad of the invitation—and he can hear Caesar sing. What's your hurry? I want to talk to Cynthia. You aren't going to write any more when you get back, I suppose?"

He acknowledged that he was—that he had taken his wife to a matinee with the understanding—but it was past two when they left her mother's house and turned homeward through the silent suburb which the cheerless had just yielded back a few theatregoers, sweepers, and sooty-looking In the cold clearness of the winter night the women's long-cloaked figures and flimsy headdress drooped dejected-ly, and the men with their dress coats ers flapping thinly as they walked by their side, appeared already oppressed by the thought of the early breakfast to which the maid-servant's knock would summon them in time to hurry to the station again. The prosperous residences lying back behind egress, trim shrubberies and curves of carriage-drive finished abruptly, and then began borders in which fifty pounds was already a distinguished rental. The monotonous rows of villas, with their little flower-set gables and their little hackneyed gates, their painful grandiloquence of nomenclature seemed to Kent a pathetic expression of lives which had for the most part reached the limit of their potentialities and now passed without ambition and without hope. Some doubtless looked forward or looked back from the red brick maze, but the majority the race was run, and this was conquest. He was about to comment on it, but the girl was very quiet and the remark upon his lips was not one that would have been productive of more than a monosyllable assent under any circumstances.

Catarrahal Deafness and Head Noises

Tells Safe and Simple Way to Treat and Relieve at Home

If you have catarrh, catarrhal deafness or head noises caused by catarrh, or if phlegm drops in your throat and has caused catarrh of the stomach or bowels you will be glad to know that these distressing symptoms may be entirely overcome in many instances by the following treatment which you can easily prepare in your own home at little cost. Secure from your druggist 1 ounce of Parmint (Double Strength). Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. An improvement is sometimes noted after the first day's treatment. Breathing should become easy, while the distressing head noises, headaches, dullness, cloudy thinking, etc., should gradually disappear under the tonic action of the treatment. Loss of smell, taste, defective hearing and mucus dropping in the back of the throat are other symptoms which suggest the presence of catarrh and which may often be overcome by this efficacious treatment. It is said that nearly ninety per cent. of all ear troubles are caused by catarrh and there must, therefore, be many people whose hearing may be restored by this simple, harmless, home treatment.

NO SUCCESS IN GROUPS

NELSON, B.C., Oct. 24.—The Nelson Daily News says: "If political history teaches anything it is that parties of this sort do not for long retain their hold. They soon become merged with one or the other of the so-called old parties. Group Government has never been successful in British countries, while parties which purport to represent one class in the community do make for representative democratic Government."

VANCOUVER, Oct. 24.—The Sun says: "The result must be accepted as an expression of widespread dissatisfaction. Conservation has been rejected, but the Liberalism has not been approved. A plague on both your houses' says the elector. 'I think mighty little of you.'"

"The element which has done proportionately best is Labor."

Prohibit All Means of Evil, Says Burnham

Peterboro M.P. Serious in Campaign Against Cards, Cigarets, and Bible Feathers.

OTTAWA, Oct. 24.—Mr. Burnham of Peterborough told a reporter that he was quite serious in proposing that provision be made for prohibiting by referendum the use of playing cards, birds' feathers and tobacco as well as intoxicating liquor in the prohibition bills now before Parliament. He said he had spoken to the Minister of Justice yesterday afternoon and had asked him to include the new provisions in the bills.

Mr. Burnham is openly opposed to prohibition, but he declares that the referendum system now appears to be so popular he thinks it should be extended to other commodities than intoxicating liquors if the people wish to declare themselves.

In a statement issued yesterday afternoon, Mr. Burnham said that prohibition had superseded 'the old cry of salvation." "If the prohibition of one possible means of evil," he said, "is right and proper, the prohibition of all such means is right and proper."

The general impression in the corridors is that Mr. Burnhams' motion is a "reductio ad absurdum," but Burnham himself affirms his serious intentions.

Acids In Stomach Cause Indigestion

Create Gas Sourness and Pain. How to Treat

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated-Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk—is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

TWELVE CHILDREN BITTEN BY DOG

TORONTO, Oct. 24.—Running amuck among school children in Shirley Avenue School a dog, owned by Mrs. Charles, bit twelve of the boys and girls during its short period of liberty. The dog, according to Principal Mason, is usually kept in the house, and when it escaped at noon it became naturally affrighted at the sight of so many strangers. Several of the children had been frightened at its approach and in running away many apparently received injuries. Fortunately only four of the children were bitten severely enough to require medical attention.

RESCUED FROM DROWNING

Burlington, Oct. 24—By the bravery of Irwin Cotter and his cousin John W. Cotter, a retired soldier, both of Toronto, Cyril Thomas was rescued from drowning here. Thomas was out on the lake in his canoe and when about half a mile from shore was upset in rough water. Hearing cries for help the Cotters went to his assistance and after some difficulty succeeded in getting Thomas aboard their craft. He was taken to shore in an unconscious condition but after strenuous efforts, Dr. Peart succeeded in reviving him.

LIGHTED MATCH TO EXAMINE TANK

Sydney, N.S., Oct. 24.—Because he lighted a match to find out whether an alcohol tank needed refilling, James McNeil aged sixteen years, lost his life at Glace Bay Friday afternoon.

The boy was employed at Stern's drug store and while his employers were out at 5 p.m., a traveller came in and asked among other things, about the state of the alcohol supply.

McNeil lighted a match to peer into the tank, which immediately burst into flames. The lad was so horribly burned that he died in the hospital a short time later. He was a son of Town Clerk McNeil of Glace Bay. The fire loss was not great, as the blaze was quickly extinguished.

E-id Bennett in "The Virtuous Thief" leads Bill at Griffin's—Tom Moore at the Palace.

AN APPEALING HEROINE

"The Virtuous Thief," Enid Bennett's latest Ince picture was presented with great success at Griffin's last evening. This is a delightful bit of drama with finely drawn characterizations of real human people living in the Flatbush district of New York. In it there is drama, suspense and good comedy relief. Miss Bennett is charming as Shirley Armitage, a stenographer who goes to work for a scoundrel to save the honor of her brother, who goes to work for a scoundrel to save the honor of her brother, who in a moment of temptation took $150 of his employer's money to back a "sure thing" on the Stock Exchange. The weak brother, is plated with remarkable good taste by Lloyd Hughes. Niles Welch is convincing and appalling in the part of the timid, yet jealous lover, who has the whistling habit. Willis Marks gives a good interpretation of Major Armitage, an old Southerner, who, despite his residence in New York, still reads the Memphis paper and writes caustic criticisms to the editor. William Conklin portrays with realism the lecherous stock broker. An especially good bit is done by Andrew Robinson as the police captain and Dorcas Matthews and Lucille Young rise to the requirements of their parts. A funny 3-act Fox Sunshine comedy, "Son of a Hun" a beautiful outing chester educational reel "Wild Birds", Gaumont News, Screen Magazine, and Lyons and Moran in a big U comedy "Wise Wives" completes a most entertaining program all of which will be shown again to-night and Saturday matinee and night.

TOM MOORE IN STRONG ROLE

"One of the Finest" is Tom Moore's new picture which was screened at the Palace yesterday. Not only does it afford any number of delightful surprises in the way of startling complications and unexpected thrills, but it shows the likeable star in a decidedly new guise. He is Larry Heyes, a mounted policeman, monarch of all he surveys in the fashionable park comprising his beat. He makes his first mistake in the performance of his duty when he overtakes a speeding limousine and reminds its beautiful occupant, Frances Hudson (Seena Owen) that her chauffeur is exceeding the speed limit. The society girl resents his remark and is angered by his firm laughing reioinde to her reply So she sets about to have her father cause Larry Heyes' dismissal. Instead of this however, he is endowed to the extent of plain clothes man but not before Frances Hudson has been saved by him when her life is in peril. Powerfully she resents his timely interference and the policeman only laughs the more. Assigned to guard her sister's wedding presents, Larry again meets the girl he can't forget and she proves that she hasn't forgotten him either. From this moment surprises begin to happen, a thrilling and interesting chapter of the "Lure of the Circus" serial, Topics of the Day with its may amusing and original titles and the British Canadian News are also being exhibited on the same program.

TOP OF HEAD BLOWN OFF

Peace River, Alta., Oct. 21.—The body of John F. Doherty, missing since Sept. 29, was found in the cellar of his home at Hythe, with the top of his head blown off, and his wife and Sam Druschk, a neighbor have been arrested charged with the crime. There was ill-feeling between Dougherty and Druschk and Mrs. Dougherty blames the latter for her husband's death, but her own story is far from being consistent.

A coroner's inquest found that Dougherty came to his death by a rifle shot in the head. The crime is being charged against Druschk and Mrs. Dougherty.

Worry is the undesirable thought a fellow can't help thinking.

Too Much Appetite

may be as dangerous as too little

When the skin is sallow or yellow, the eyes dull, the head aches or sleep broken and unrefreshing, the back aches, or there is a pain under the right shoulder blade—it is an indication that the body is being poisoned by poorly digested and imperfectly eliminated food-waste. SET THE THAMES ON FIRE.

Result Was Greatest Shock to London Known for Centuries.

"There is a saying in use about setting the Thames on fire," when anyone does anything exceptional, says Spare Moments. This actually happened on June 30, 1861, when one of the most disastrous fires in the world's history broke out in Tooley street, near London Bridge, on that (Saturday) evening. A whole block of wharves and warehouses stocked with valuable merchandise was entirely burnt out.

The fire raged for a month and the damage was estimated at many millions of pounds. Thousands of chests of tea, barrels of Russian tallow, oil and saltpetre were destroyed. The flames as they crept along were carried by the wind to the river and soon many barges were blazing. The excitement was great as the falling warehouses fell right over into the river with repeated crashes.

By midnight the scene as witnessed from London Bridge was one of the grandest and most terrible since the Great Fire of 1666, which, curiously enough, started within a stone's throw of this one. Streams of rockets were fired from the river, and an army of thieves shovelled, by every way, coins off with it and reaped a rich harvest. A score of large, well-stocked buildings were destroyed with their contents, homes were plunged into mourning, and firms ruined.

A fortnight later the fire broke out again, and burnt for three days, but previously, four weeks elapsing before the flames died down entirely. Hundreds of thousand of tons of water failed to extinguish the conflagration. Thousands of men lost their employment and those who were brave enough to enter the blazing warehouses were never found again.

The fire was the biggest loss to insurance companies that had ever known, and the greatest shock to London for centuries. It took years to rebuild the street, and the memory of the fire still lives.

ENGINE DRIVERS.

Men Who Have Travelled Some Millions of Miles.

The city man who journeys thirty miles a day to and from his office would probably be astonished to learn that a single year's travelling would take him as far as Calcutta, and that every three years he covers a distance greater than that around the earth at the equator, and to London Answers.

And yet he is a "stay-at-home" compared with hundreds of men who seldom give a thought to their performances. Many an engine driver and guard has a mileage running into six or seven figures. When Benjamin Jeans stepped down for the last time from his footplate on the London and Birkenhead express, he could boast that he had travelled 4,000,000 miles, having reeled off his "world circuits" at the rate of approximately four per year for fifty-four years. Another express driver on the L. & N.W. Railway, Thomas Beck, had completed a record of 3,000,000 miles when he retired.

When that fine old skipper, Captain Greenstreet, turned his back on the sea a few years ago, he had crossed the equator 75 times and the Cape of Good Hope 16 times. He had made 92 voyages to and from Australia and had left behind nine 2,500,000 miles of sea-roaming.

And even that wonderful achievement was eclipsed by H. Stevens, a steward on board Cunard liners, whose record of Atlantic crossings reached a total of 3,400,000 miles. Compared with such astounding feats of globe-trotting, pedestrian records seem insignificant. But there are several men living to-day whose tramping has covered hundreds of thousands of miles. Among them, W. Moore, a letter carrier, walked 270,000 miles in thirty-two years over Yorkshire roads, and Richard Williams, in 48 years, must have paced the enormous journey of 415,000 miles.

FROM CHERRY-BLOSSOM LAND

The Japanese Give Good Example

It is a proverb of Cherry-Blossom land that beauty of face and figure depend upon personal health.

What is it that makes our Canadian women unhappy, sallow-faced, with dark circles under the eyes, and very plain and at forty-five when they should be in their prime?

Women suffer in girlhood from backache, followed by irregularities and as a result diseases of the womanly organs are more common than any one but a physician in active practice could enumerate.

After long experience in the treatment of women's diseases, Dr. Pierce evolved a vegetable tonic and corrective which he called Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This is a purely vegetable preparation, without a particle of alcohol contained in it.

When a woman complains of backache, dizziness or pain—when everything looks black before her—a dragging feeling, with nervousness, she should turn to this "temperance" herbal tonic. It can be obtained in almost every drug store in the land and the ingredients are printed in plain English on the wrapper. Put up in tablets or liquid. Dr. Pierce, of Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., will send a trial size of the tablets for ten cents.

Controlling Airships.

For some time experiments have been carried out in various countries with the object of controlling aircraft from the ground, and a French machine succeeded recently — on a Versailles course with certain specified detours—in covering a distance of 180 kilometers (about 110 miles) and in landing, when required, at a certain aindrome. A similar machine has been devised in the United States which, according to a recent statement of Secretary of War Baker, can travel without a pilot some 100 miles and land close to a designated post.

Tinsel Cloth Turbans.

Among the various styles of turbans offered to the trade is one in which tinsel cloth is used. The best model in this line, according to the bulletin of the Retail Millinery Association of America, is the Hindu draped one made of this fabric. The drapings appear in a variety of arrangements on the pill box or elongated toque lines. Old gold, light blue, pink and steel are the colors used in this material. Various pretty trims are used—tinsel roses, ball, tassels, pearl hat pins and beaded flowers. Large models have this material, too, in a plainly fitted and semi-transparent effect on the brim and draped on the crown.

A Word re the Oakoal Proposition

Mayor Woodley and the Managing Director of the Ontario Oakoal Co., Ltd., effectively set the public right at the meeting held in the City Hall last evening. Belleville knockers, as usual, started a rumor that the Oakoal proposition was simply to be a stock selling game—but these knockers did not have the courage to attend the meeting and hear the striking facts as presented.

Mayor Woodley explained why the Council had granted the Company its charter and said outside capital would build the plant, equip it, and that the city would encourage every legitimate industry, since industry was Belleville's need and since industry meant a bigger and better Belleville.

The Managing Director stated that the object of the meeting was to explain the value of De Oakoal, method and process and to remove from the public mind the impression that "Knockers" who were opposed to Oakoal's interests had created.

The stock of the company, capitalized at $125,000, had been practically all sold. He read the names from a list of over 40 shareholders of prominent manufacturers., wholesale men, professional and scientific men, and bank managers who were among the shareholders, and results of demonstrations, tests and investigations made by the Government Fuel Testing Station at Ottawa. Fuel Controller McGrath, Dr. A. B. McCallum, chairman of Canada's Research Bureau, Toronto University, Fuel Briquetting Engineer McGraw of New York; Prof. Phillips of Texas University, Medical Officer of Deseronto, the Veteran, Grand Army Journal of Canada, Toronto World, Times, Mail-Empire, St. Catharines Standard, Hamilton Times and Bradstreet's, to th. satisfaction of the audience.

He said he was not asking any citizen of Belleville to put a dollar in Oakoal stock, but had been asked by the citizens to give them an opportunity of becoming shareholders and had therefore decided that inasmuch as the company would do a business of approximately $240,000 annually in Belleville, he would give those who desired to participate in the dividends his company would earn if not only in Belleville but throughout the province of Ontario and Quebec, which territory his company owned and was fully paid for—an opportunity, for one week only, to become shareholders.

Mayor Woodley stated that while not doubting the company's statement as to the value of Oakoal as a fuel, he had determined for himself by a test in a city bake oven that, Oakoal was all the company claimed for it. He had burned two briquettes for 15 hours and the fuel did not disintegrate or clinker.

A demonstrating office will be opened Saturday morning, October 25th, where the fuel will be seen burning and where representatives of the company will—for one week only—explain the method and process and receive applications for stock.

Oakoal will save the citizens nearly $100,000 a year in their fuel bills. Oakoal will provide work and wages. It will solve Belleville's fuel problem and make Belleville a cleaner and healthier city to live in.

BEWARE OF DECEPTION

Statistics show that we eat enough baking powder, the amount so used is too small (usually 15/100 of 1%) to affect the quality or effectiveness of the baking powder containing it, and when so used, is plainly for the purpose of fraud. Intelligent buyers will not permit themselves to be deceived by the water glass test.

When Father Decides

By R. RAY BAKER

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure News paper Syndicate.)

It was no use, the motor just wouldn't start. Not a sputter could Anne Davis get out of it. She tugged and tugged at the flywheel, but there was not even a buzz to reward her efforts.

She looked down the river, vexed and despairing. The boat was floating at a fair rate of speed, and unless she could get it moving in the other direction before long she would have little prospect of getting at the Best-While cottage before dark.

Already it was dusk, but she managed to make out something coming upstream. Soon she heard the creaking of oarlocks and presently a shadowy shape loomed into view. It was a rowboat with a man bending vigorously at the oars.

"One of the inhabitants," Anne decided, but there was little disdain in her voice. Meeting one of them in the village she would not have favored him with passing notice, but now any kind hand would be welcome. She hailed the stranger.

"Stop a minute, will you, please?"

He rested with his oars partly out of the water.

"Did you call me?" he shouted, after brief hesitation.

"Yes. I can't get this old engine started. I wish you would help."

With some skill but much more difficulty he managed to get the rowboat alongside the motor craft. They were of about the same size, for the gasoline-propelled vehicle was far from being pretentious. It was, in truth, simply a rowboat in which a one-cylinder engine had been installed, and it was rented along with the cottage that the Culbertsons, with whom Anne was staying at the resort, had leased for the season.

Anne had insisted on coming after some provisions that were needed at the cottage, and she had started out early in the afternoon for Alexon, feeling not a little conceited over being the pilot and sole crew of the miniature little craft. The Culbertsons had expressed misgivings over the venture, but Anne generally had her own way, and was possessed of a reputation for being a self-reliant sort of girl, so she was allowed to make the trip alone.

Everything went smoothly until she had covered about half of the ten-mile journey on the way back, when the engine went dead without warning. Not another boat of any description was in sight, for it was at that time of day when most folks are partaking of their evening meal. She must have drifted two miles when the rowboat came into sight.

Anne breathed a sigh of relief when the newcomer grasped the gunwhale of the motorboat and peered over at her. He had brought a lantern, and by its light she could see that he was a rather good-looking young man of perhaps twenty-six. He had on a green shirt and blue overalls, and on his head was a wide-brimmed straw hat.

She caught a glimpse of a tin can and a flapjack in the bottom of the boat, and in order to be congenial she inquired whether he had had any luck. Imagine Anne Davis discussing the subject of angling with a country rustic! Imagine Anne Davis, the breaker of men's hearts back in the big city, talking familiarly with a denizen of this country town!

"Fair, fair," he replied, and his voice seemed to be singularly musical for an uncultured person. "I got half a dozen —or seven, I forget just which it is. Hold the boats together, and don't move, will you, while I crawl over and see if I can start your engine."

She did as instructed, hoping he understood the business of getting from one boat to another. He caused one considerable rocking, but nothing serious happened, and presently he was tinkering at the engine, while she held them closely to the gunwales of the two boats where they met.

"Got it," he grunted after a few minutes' investigation, which was hampered somewhat by the dullness of the lantern and the smoky lantern. "Loose battery connection, that's all." She heard an energetic burr from the engine.

"Wait a minute; I better tie up," he reminded himself aloud, and left the motor to attach the painter of his boat to the gasoline craft. Returning to the motor, he gave the wheel a spin and the boat started down stream with a chug-chug that, under ordinary circumstances, was far from musical, but it sounded almost like chimes to Anne in this particular instance.

"Turn it around," she called. "I'm going up the river. It got turned the other way while we were floating and I was trying to start the engine."

He soon had the boat breasting the current, and again she sighed with relief.

"Guess I better take you home," he suggested. "It's pretty dark now, and besides, you look tired, and besides—I need the ride myself."

Naturally she assented. After he had proved so useful she could not very well dismiss him and send him back to laboring with the oars again. On the way she got boating and decided it would be a great lark to carry on a little flirtation with her new acquaintance.

She started by introducing herself, and in return he told her that his name was Harry Sanderson. His invitation to spend the night at the Culbertson cottage, and after some slight hesitation he accepted.

So it came about that the breaker of men's hearts in the big city set out to break one in the country. But she got fooled. Before the evening was through Anne Davis had fallen in love for the first time in her life.

"Stuff and nonsense!" roared Uriah Davis. "Do you mean to tell me you have picked out a farmer for a husband? I tell you you're insane. You're stark, raving mad. Look at your opportunities here in Detroit."

"It's no disgrace to live in a small town," Anne told him. The summer season was over and she was home after a three weeks' love affair that started out frivolously and developed into a very serious case.

"Well, I won't have it, that's all," her father insisted. "You aren't going to disgrace the family like that. A girl of your beauty can pick off scads of money without any trouble."

Anne bit her lip savagely and stamped a foot.

"I don't want a man of money. I want Harry, and I'm going to have him or I'll die an old maid jetty—with a broken heart." She left the room, sobbing, and went and climbed into her bed, where, bolstered by soft pillows, she wrote a "good-by, forever," letter to Atanson.

Mr. Davis evidently was determined to see that things went to his liking, for the next day he made the startling announcement that he had invited his young law partner to the house for dinner.

"You're heard me speak of White," he said. "You know, he's been with the business for ten years and I've never yet got around to having him meet my family. He's a hustler, all right; in fact, he's worked up until he's been carrying on the burden of the firm's practice. He worked so hard that he broke down last spring, and he's only back in the harness this week, after a long rest, which appears to have done him lots of good. He's the man for you, Anne. I approve of him, and you will, too, if you can forget this silly country romance, for he's an attractive young chap."

Anne pouted in her room, but when her father summoned her down to meet Mr. White she put on her best smile and straightened her hair and added a few finishing touches of powder to her face, then went to the reception room. It was just as well to humor her father, she thought. It would not do to treat his partner shabbily.

When she descended the stairs she saw a slender, well-dressed, well-groomed young man talking to Mr. Davis, who immediately stopped their conversation when she appeared and introductions were in order.

The next noon, at luncheon, her father inquired:

"Well, Annie, how do you like Mr. White?"

She looked across the table with a happy little smile and blushed prettily. After a few sips she placed it on the table and replied:

"Fine, father. He and I are engaged. We're to be married next month."

Mr. Davis all but choked on a piece of meat. He was forced to swallow half a glass of water to prevent strangulation.

"Great heavens!" he ejaculated, gasping. "So soon? You certainly are ily approve, but it seems rather sudden." Then he grinned, somewhat intelectually. "But what about this country lover?"

Anne laughed.

"Well, you see, father, Mr. White happens to be the country lover. His name was Harry Saunders down in Atanson, and mine was Susie Smith. You see, we each started out looking for the other, but we really 'fell in love.'"

ALL SHOW RIBBON

Dresses for Midsummer Are the Prettiest in Years.

Net, Lace and Sheer Organdie Frocks In Particular Call for the New Effects in Way of Trimming.

Nothing prettier or more daintily feminine could be imagined than the ribbon-run midsummer dresses of this year. Net, lace and sheer organdie frocks have satin ribbon run through width run through shirred casings, the ribbon emerging here and there to make a coquettish bow. Several of these dainty frocks have been worn on the stage this winter. There were three at least in "Glorianna" and the determined ingenue in "Miss Nell o' New Orleans" wears a delectably youthful frock run with pink ribbon; one across the bodice and three across the skirt, the emerging bows of ribbon coming under each other, all the way down the frock. A lovely summer afternoon dress for a young girl is of white net, with several shirred casings on bodice, tunic and skirt and blue satin ribbon run through each casing. Care should be taken in planning such a frock to have the ribbon-run casings at equal distances apart. One across the bodice just below the bust; one at the hip and another at the knee, usually makes a graceful proportion of trimming. Of course, the wide elbow sleeve will be finished at its edge with a shirred ribbon, and a smart bow of the ribbon on the other side of the sleeve.

SEVERE STYLES COME BACK

Return to Correct and Neat Tailleurs of Ten or Fifteen Years Ago Observed.

There is a revival of the correct and neat tailleur such as we wore ten or fifteen years ago. One might even say that there is no difference in the cut, either in skirt or jacket. The little handkerchief in the side pocket and the flowers in the buttonhole have resumed their places. Often a waistcoat in color or a white border coming below the vest adds to the neatness of the costume. The only difference between the severe tailleur of today and that of the old decade is the insistence on the wide waist; there is no indication of corseting or of girdle.

This return to the strictly tailored costume for street wear, the resumption of the clear definite lines, and the desire to be free, on street costumes, from ingenious folds and restless fringes and floating panels is very decidedly marked among the women of the smart world. One may see the women who sponsor this new mode jumping out of their cars in front of the hotel looking as if they were ready for horseback, with a flowery buttonhole in the left revers, or perhaps a Spanish carnation.

It is with this idea in mind that the great dressmakers are taking to bringing back the Louis XV jacket, that is to say, the jacket worn by the men of that period, which opened over waistcoats of heavy stuffs imported from London. They are in brilliant colors, printed with English hunting scenes of the eighteenth century.—From the Paris Letter in Vogue.

SURE IT WAS DRAKE'S DRUM

British Sailors Convinced Sound They Heard Was Made by Spirit of the Old Rover.

Sir Francis Drake was "standing by" to old Britain's fleet, in case the humbled navy of Germany attempted to take a final stand at the Dogger Bank before lowering its colors, November 21, according to Arthur Machen, writing for the Quarterly Outlook describing the great surrender. Among the British ships was the Royal Oak, chief flagship of the Earl of Devonshire, Drake's home county. The German ships came into sight about eight o'clock in the morning, and immediately the roll of a drum was heard aboard the vessel, Mr. Machen writes. All aboard were convinced it was "Drake's Drum" of English legend.

Captain Macmahon ordered an immediate investigation to find out who was aboard the vessel and the ship was stripped for action. Every man was found at his post, but the drum continued to beat. After other investigations the captain made a tour himself, battalioned to find the cause, "All who heard it are convinced that it was no chance sound, such as the flapping of sails," Mr. Machen writes. "It was recognized by all as the rolling of a drum."

The legend of "Drake's Drum" is that whenever England is in danger the old rover will appear from the beaches at the sound of the drum beat, ready to enter the fight to defend England.

SOLDIERS ON THE LAND

EXAMPLES OF KHAKI FARMERS WHO MAKE GOOD.

It Is Believed by the Soldiers Settlement Board That 100 Per Cent. of the Returned Men Who Go on the Land Will Prove Successful—Encouraging Reports Are Coming From the West.

A VERY good soldier turned into a placky and exceedingly busy farmer, with 320 acres of his own to look after, is R. K. Klinglbiel, who is now at work on a homestead in the Red Deer district of Alberta. He is a fair sample of several soldier-farmers who have come back from fighting and taken up ploughing and that kind of thing, in as determined ana courageous a spirit as they took up their soldiering. The Soldiers Settlement Board helped him to make a start, and if the weather is kind to him this summer he will have a contribution to make to what is known as the nation's bread basket.

The Klinglbiels went out on the land in the manner of real pioneers, with an outfit of horses, some farm machinery, a tent to live in and a wagon-load of chattels. The tent will be replaced with a little house before the summer is over, and in due course there will be a thrifty farm in existence on that particular half-section, for the Klinglbiels are going to make good as farmer and farmerette.

Most of the other soldier-farmers will make good, too. One of the officials of the Soldier Settlement Board says that 100 per cent. of the men whom it is helping to go on the land will prove successful in their new work, but even if one makes a fair allowance for occasional misfits and grouchers, there will still be a marvellous green crop from the general success of the scheme.

It is expected that between 7,000 and 8,000 men will take up farming next year, in all parts of the Dominion, under the auspices of the Settlement Board. Somewhat more than half of these will be located in the Prairie Provinces. Alberta is likely to retain the lead which it has already taken, inasmuch as it has the largest area of available land for the purpose. The offices of the board in Edmonton and Calgary are like bargain-counter rushes just now, and the back-to-the-land movement is on in full swing. But for that matter the same story can be told in every province in the Dominion.

Arrangements have been made by the Settlement Board to help the ex-soldiers with their purchases of stock and equipment, a branch of the service having been established for that particular purpose. Leading manufacturers of farm implements are giving special prices to the soldiers, requisition from the board, and lumber supplies will be purchased on similar terms. Horses and cattle are being sold from Government stables, guaranteed safe and sound. Every precaution is being taken to get the settler started right.

The money-loaning end of the Soldier Settlement Board's work is already assuming surprisingly large proportions. In April $1,269,000 was given out on approved loans to soldiers throughout the Province, and Manitoba was a close second with $1,055,000. Saskatchewan took something over $500,000, and will grandly double that amount in May, since it is now catching up with the other provinces.

Major E. J. Ashton, commissioner of the board, has been doing some figuring as the result of his recent inspection tour of the Western offices. He takes Saskatchewan as an illustration,—and on the estimate of the military authorities, who say that there are between 25,000 and 30,000 men still to demobilize in that province, it has been counting up the possible money totals that Canada will be called upon to face before the thing is through. It is said in Ottawa that 75 per cent. of the men are expected a desire to go on the land, and the average loan out of a possible 7,500 is running at about $4,000. At this rate the total loan in one province alone will amount to more than $70,029,000.

The forward tendency of the returned soldiers is, of course, more in evidence in the prairie provinces than in Ontario or Canada, and because Alberta and Saskatchewan are making such strides in the money-loaning business is not to say that the Federal Treasury is to be over-taxed in an effort to get the money back and in the quickest time possible. But just the same the Settlement Board's program of rehabilitation is one of the most humanly interesting and financially tremendous projects that Canada has ever undertaken.

Names of Western Provinces.

The origin of the names of the four Western provinces of Canada is as follows:—

Manitoba—It is derived from the word "Manito" (the Great Spirit) and "bo" (passing). Thus Manitoba is supposed to mean the "Passing of the Spirit." It is taken from the Cree language. Manitou or Manito means the Spirit, otherwise the Supreme Being, in other Indian languages.

Saskatchewan—Saskatchewan is a Cree word meaning "Swiftly Flowing River." Anglicized in the word Swift Current.

Alberta—The province takes its name from Her Royal Highness Princess Louise Caroline Alberta, wife of the Marquis of Lorne, afterward the 9th Duke of Argyle. The old provisional district of Alberta, which is now included in the province, was created in 1882, during the Marquis of Lorne's administration as Governor-General of Canada.

British Columbia—Columbia is another name for America, and British was placed before it.

SACRED ARABIAN BOOK

GERMANS MUST RETURN THE OTHMAN KORAN.

Treasure Carried Off the Roll of Parchments Which Meant So Much to People Who Believe In the Prophet of Islam, But the Allies Now Give It Back to the Original Owners.

A LARGE roll of parchment yellowed by thirteen centuries and covered with ancient Arabic script, played an important part in the construction of another and formidable historical document, the Peace Treaty. Germany is required by this treaty to disgorge, along with provinces, billions in cash and various art treasures, among them the Koran of Othman. Just what importance attaches to this particular copy of the Koran is a question that smites the public mind as allied to secret diplomacy.

The Grand Magazine interviewer carried this query to Leon Cahen, Orientalist, hailing from the universities of Petrograd and Oxford — a familiar of the East, well versed in the depths and shoals of Mahometanism.

The Prophet of Islam left nothing written, for the sufficient reason that he could neither read nor write. The numerous suras, or chapters, of the Koran are said to be many sermons, so many prophetical outbursts, which, attended by flaming disciples, were launched by the prophet amid a characteristic of the East. Only Mahomet's wife was a possessor of a book, and she was down by a rare one possessed of the Prophet himself.

These considerations gave extraordinary importance to a canonized compilation made at Abu Bekr's command, of the revelation of Mahomet. The commission presided over the work, headed by Zaid Ibn Tabit, a young Arab who was the secretary to the Prophet.

The first Koran, derived of scant writings, but chiefly "from the breasts of men," was inscribed on palm leaves, known to it as the to be known as the "Book of Leaves," by a very important personage. But it was not the one mentioned in the Peace Treaty.

A generation later Calif Othman Ibn Affaner Koran problem pulling at his Islamistic beard. A number of compilations from divers unofficial sources were in circulation. Some were more or less incorrect, and this spiritual and political distress arose resulted therefrom.

Then a commission was formed, headed by the same Zaid Ibn Tabit, now an old man, who had figured in the earlier compilation. Based on the venerable "Book of Leaves," which had been deposited in Medina, Mahomet's birthplace, a new and authoritative Koran was drawn up. Three copies only of the original were made, and all other copies of the Koran ever since have done away with. Even the sacred "Book of Leaves" was destroyed a little later. The possession of an incorrect version was considered heresy, an easy passport to subterranean parts.

The three copies were given to as many Moslem centres and subsequently lost. The Ottoman Turks, as the Othman Koran, was deposited at Mecca, where it remained through the centuries until the late war.

Calif Abdul Mejid was a preliminary chapter in explaining the Peace Treaty reparation which led the Turks, when the Arab insurrection and the menace of the British Sues Canal made it unsafe, to entrust for the Othman Koran to Constantinople. The Germans secured it when the allied fleet was promising to join the Dardanelles.

This Berlin transfer was a dreadful piece of sacrilege. The Othman Koran, next to the holiest things of Islam, had reposed for centuries in the golden casket in the Mosque of Medina. No infidel had ever gained access to it. Only the Sultan, the great Orientalist, contrived to have it taken from place—by disguising himself faithfully as an Arab and now this sacredest of Korans was taken to Berlin.

In the month of Ramadan the pilgrims go to Mecca. Representatives of the world they take their arduous way. They pray at the holy places, and thus gain for themselves the title of Hadji and the privilege of wearing the green turban.

Thus it has obtained for a thousand years, with a good percentage of the pilgrims further betaking themselves to Medina to pay devotion to the Othman Koran.

Now, these pilgrims have ever been a source of large revenue. They pay admission to the holy places, and the Arabian high cost of living needs astonishing tricks for their exploitation. The districts of the holy shrines would be sorely grieved if permanently deprived of any considerable portion of the pilgrim patronage.

This is precisely the misfortune that the Turks foresaw as the result upon the insurgent Arabs.

The Othman Koran is essential to the economic development of the Hedjaz railway and the pilgrimage.

Suppose the Germans in a raid had carried off the English royal crown. The King would not fear. Nor, for the sustaining of his diadem would he rely upon circumstance.

King of the Hejaz, such as has been recently, would be to him what the Othman Koran would have more than one but a Moslem can know.

And—the home coming of the Koran will strengthen the King of the Hejaz.

"Do you think the Germans intended to keep the Othman Koran?" I asked the Orientalist.

"I don't," he replied. "It would take a strong imagination to picture the pilgrims, in the month of Ramadan, dragging their pious Moslem feet to Berlin."

Medical Man Won V.C.

FOR most conspicuous bravery and devotion to duty on September 2, when under most intense shell, machine gun and rifle fire, he went through the Guards Brocourt support line with the battalion, Private Hamilton and with utter disregard of personal safety he remained on the field until every wounded man had been attended to. He dressed the wounds of a seriously wounded officer under terrific machine gun and shell fire, and with the assistance of prisoners and of his own men, succeeded in evacuating him to safety, despite the fact that the bearers suffered heavy casualties.

Immediately afterwards he rushed forward in full view of the enemy under very heavy machine gun and rifle fire, to tend to a wounded sergeant, and having placed him in a shell hole dressed his wounds. Capt. Hutcheson performed many similar gallant acts and, by his coolness and devotion to duty, many lives were saved.—Official Record.

Capt. Hutcheson—Antrois in the valley of the River Seaton, Ont., a little village slowly eastward to Durty. The slope is studded with little clumps of wood and through it runs the great national highway from Antrois to Cambrai. Cutting the highway almost due west from Vis and following the line of the ridge there is a sunken road. A windmill with its sails missing, a house and barn-like structure above stood out in front of Dury, September 2, 1918, but it has vanished from the landscape since then, hemmed in a pile of ruins.

September 2 was the date set for the second phase of the big drive of the Canadian Cambrai. The objective was the Drocourt-Queant line of trenches which followed the high ground and ran through Dury. It was the second day back from Hindenburg line which had been broken through the week before. The "jumping-off trenches for the Fourth Division were in front of Haucourt-Ardies, a long day's work before the men as they gathered for the Canadian Cambrai. Behind and behind the fire. Five trenches protected the village to be crossed. The sunken road was bristling with guns. Every available cover had machine guns in it. The Germans were determined to hold the Drocourt-Queant line at all costs.

At five o'clock through a ground fog that lay on the hillside the Fourth Division men started on the day's adventure across No Man's Land. The zero hour was heralded down a heavy barrage over the hillside, which at the time of day was flooded with sunshine. Under the fire Capt. Hutcheson and his men worked their way. The machine guns took a heavy toll of the men attacking, and the gunners were particular about the persons that they picked. Stretcher-bearers and gas troops were also a special target, although they carried no weapons of self-defence, and many fell. Nevertheless, they were strewn on the hillside. To these Capt. Hutcheson administered unceasingly through the long day's fighting.

Another direct from a machine gun a wounded officer was lying severely wounded. Hutcheson went to him and dressed his wounds, after dressing into service some of the prisoners to assist. Nevertheless he got the officer away to safety, and left him in a shell hole, dressed his wounds. These are only a few of the gallant acts of this medical officer during the attack.

WHEN I GET MARRIED.

Small Boys Give Their Ideas of Wedded Life.

Tit-Bits tells of a schoolmaster who told his class of boys, from seven to fourteen years of age, to write a composition on the subject "When I Get Married." The results are amusing. One eleven-year-old wrote:

"I shall depend upon my wife to get the dinner and tea ready for me when I come home. If my wife has not the tea ready for me when I come home there'll be a barny. I wonder if my wife will be soft enough to let me be the master of the house and the children. I wonder if she will always be going to the pictures and leaving me to mind the children. If she is going to do that way I shall take my ration books and leave home."

One boy has very definite ideas as to the duties and pleasures of married life.

"When I get married," he says, which I shall not do until I can pay for a good home and the necessaries of life for my wife and myself, I should go and see that no water ran through the roof and dropped on the beds. I should not like the walls to be damp. When we had been married for a bit, with a kiddie or two toddling about the house, I should soon want them to grow older, so that I should not be awakened in the middle of the night by their screams. I should be a teetotaller, shave twice a week, and smoke two ounces of thick twist a week."

Another boy sees it very simply: "I will be my own master in some things, but in other things I'll let my wife have her own way. My wife and I will have a night out every fortnight. Of course, we shall have some children."

One little fellow does not believe in heiresses. "I shan't get married to a rich lady," he says. "Because she will be always wanting dresses that cost a lot of money, and her wealth grows less and less till she is poor, then I shall have to work very hard to please her. I shall marry a lady that can do housework and requires no servants—a lady who will agree to everything I say."

The palm, however, goes to a twelve-year-old who promises to be a husband when courting. He writes:

"When I get married I shall, I hope, agree with my wife. I shall keep trying to get more knowledge of my work, then I should get better positions in my trade, and that means more money. I think that the more money you get the better it will be for the wife. If I had any children I should try to cultivate a hobby for them. I should give them a money-box each, and allow them something per week to put in their boxes. When they had got enough they could buy what they wanted, provided it was sensible, such as a camera, fretwork, or foreign stamps, or any other hobby. I should build a shed and put there a punchball and a few other things in, and make it like a little gym for them. Then I would put a hammock in one end of it, for wife to lie in and watch her little nonsies learn to 'play the game.'

"If I had any girls I should bring them up with the boys. They could go with them on their madcap adventures, but still I should like them to cultivate that quiet dignity and characteristic of real ladies."

Foretelling the Weather.

As a weather prophet the crow has no equal. Should rain be imminent, these birds will rise from their nests or resting places, wheel about overhead for a time, and then return to the places whence they arose. Should their stay in the air be short, then the rain will not be long delayed. If they continue flying overhead for a considerable time, then the downpour may not be immediate, but its duration may be prolonged when it does appear. Should the birds, in addition to remaining long on the wing, indulge in a loud clamor, then the disturbance in the weather conditions is likely to be severe.

The peacock is credited with much discernment as regards the weather. His proud, dignified strut vanishes, and he gives vent to shrill, ear-splitting screams when rain is approaching.

Swallows are unerring in their instinct. If they are flying high, then a maximum is not an immediate necessity. But if, when they are in search of their food, they skim along at a low altitude, it is safe to predict a downfall at no great period. The long-distance flyers, such as gulls and rooks, are well worth attention. They are not weather-wise, but they are wise in common sense. They never venture far from home when dirty weather is brewing.

In the English Channel, an east wind is certain to follow the advent of the curlew on dark nights; while the appearance of the seamew presages rain and strong southwest winds. If you observe the sea gulls leaving the coast, making for inland, and settling on the fields, then you may safely bet on a storm from the southeast.—Tit-Bits.

Some Desert Reptiles.

Quaint and curious are the ways of some reptiles of the desert, as revealed by the famous naturalist, Mr. C. L. Camp, who has been studying them in the Colorado Desert.

He tells of some reptiles—the burrowing snake sonora, the gridiron-tailed lizard, the ocellated sand-lizard, and the desert "horned toad"—which actually swim into the loose sand, making strong lateral movements of their heads. The gridiron-tailed lizard is very swift and agile, and when chased will race over the sand at fifteen miles an hour.

Most of the desert reptiles of the Colorado Desert are colored like their surroundings and are difficult to detect. Others can change their colors to suit their surroundings, while not a few of the desert lizards are able to part with their tails very rapidly when they are seized.

There is humor in the ways of desert tortoises. When one meets another — unless both are males, when a fight invariably takes place — each nods its head rapidly up and down as though in salutation, and sometimes noses are touched as they pass.—Tit-Bits.

UNDREAMED-OF RICHES COME TO MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN IN WONDERFUL OIL FIELDS IN LONE STAR STATE.

BY Charles W. Barton.

Assistant Publisher of The Morning Telegraph.

When I boarded the train for Texas a month ago I was somewhat skeptical about the reports of the fabulous wealth which was coming to oil investors in Texas. I was prepared to meet a lot of smooth-talking, silvery-tongued oil stock salesmen. To say the least, I expected that the oil men that I was to meet would show me the bright side of the oil business and put their best foot forward. Thus I was prepared to discount about 80 per cent. of what they told me and take what I saw with a grain of salt.

After having been in Texas only seven days, after seeing the oil fields, my greatest worry is that if I tell the actual truth—the bare, cold facts—I will be considered a candidate for the presidency of the Ananias Club, or speaking in the vernacular, the best liar east of the Mississippi.

I am told that in the town of Ranger a year ago there was hardly a man in the town who had a bank account of $5,000. Today there are probably twenty-five who have a bank account of $5,000,000. Millionaires are so common that nobody thinks anything about them.

Everybody seems to have plenty of money, even drillers making $12 and $15 per day.

Men and women have gone to sleep at night only to awake in the morning to find themselves multi-millionaires, because they have struck oil.

With modern machinery consuming an ever increasing amount of oil, and with England, France and Italy and all foreign nations calling upon us for more and more oil, the demand for oil is bound to increase for a long time to come. Texas is the Aladdin of the world and opportunities there are greater than ever before.

Frankly, I must confess, that I expected to find a lot of crooks in the oil business. All my early training had taught me to shun an oil investment as I would a snake.

However, I must say that in my opinion the great majority of Western companies are absolutely on the level. I never met a finer class of people in my life than the men who are putting out these Western companies. There is no need for an oil company to be crooked. There is an inexhaustible supply of oil in Texas and there is so much money to be made by simply being fair and square that it is not worth while to be dishonest.

Jump on a train and go down and see for yourself, as I did, the wonderful opportunities which are open in every line of business in Texas and particularly in the oil fields. Remember that a man who a month ago, who today is a multi-millionaire. Talk with the immigrant woman who invested $300 and today is worth over a million and owns her own oil well and is getting $1,000 per day royalty.

A man goes out and buys a lease in territory in which geologists have told him he should strike oil. He needs twenty-five to fifty thousand dollars to erect a derrick and drill a well, depending on the depth to which he must dig before he strikes oil. In some sections the oil lies in shallow fields, and in other sections he must dig much deeper. Barring accidents, such as drilling a crooked hole or striking a cyclone destroy the derrick, delay in getting materials because of lack of transportation, and other minor matters, the average man who has the money and the brains to drill a well right next to another which is a producer, and strike oil, and if the company's holdings are in a producing territory where geologists state there is oil, the investor has more than an even chance to make a fortune.—From the New York Telegraph.

FACTS AND FIGURES. WHAT THE DRILLING RECORDS SHOW.

When an oil man decides to change operations into a field that is new to him, the first thing he does is to study the drilling records, the averages as applied to the new field. When you put your money into the oil business you should know the drilling records, what the percentages of the business are for and against you.

Records for the entire U.S. for the month of March, show that there were 2584 wells drilled. Only 463 were dry. In April there were 2900 drilled—only 467 were dry. In the Mid-Continent fields, including Kansas, Oklahoma and North Texas, month of May, 1564 wells were drilled—279 only were dry. In June 1417 were drilled, with only 202 dry. In North Central Texas alone, 401 wells were drilled, in the month of June. Of these 70 were dry. In May there were 293 wells drilled in North Texas with only 27 dry holes. Do you call that a gamble? Yet one good oil well will pay for a dozen dry holes. What matter if you do get one dry hole to every four oil wells?

50 Per Cent. FOR DIVIDENDS

Royal Oil Wells, Limited, is permanently pledged to the policy of substantial dividends—not 3%, or 4% or 10%, but a full half—50% of every dollar's worth of oil produced. Do you realize what this means to you? Oil companies frequently earn a full 50% on capital invested in the short period of 30 days. Some have earned 100%, in 30 days. But the stockholder don't get it. Royal Oil Wells, Limited, will be conducted on a different basis. When the money is earned it is yours. Royal Oil Wells proposes to give it to you, and give it to you promptly. Thirty days after a well is drilled you will begin receiving dividends from the oil produced. If our first well is a thousand barrel well 500 barrels a day or $1,000 a day will go to our stockholders.

There will be no set dividend rate. The earnings of each month will be split 50-50. 50% for dividends—50% for expenses and additional wells.

On the basis of one-half of our stock outstanding a daily production of 1,000 barrels would net you approximately 12% monthly, 36% quarterly or 144% a year on every dollar invested. We can't guarantee you that you will make a million dollars over night, but we can, and do, guarantee you that you will get every penny to which you are honestly entitled, and that every possible net dollar invested by you will go directly into oil operations—the purchase and drilling of the very choicest drilling locations to be had IN THE HEART OF THE PROVEN, PRODUCING OIL FIELDS OF TEXAS AND OKLAHOMA.

FORTUNES IN OIL.

There is an inclination on the part of a certain class to question the fabulous fortune reports that are constantly coming to light. However, no one will question the statements made by Charles W. Barton, who is one of the most respected and able journalists in the newspaper business.

As a matter of fact this page could be filled with condensed accounts of the unbelievable fortunes made in oil. Such stories come to light every hour of the day and yet not the half of them have been told. It is said of Tulsa, Oklahoma, that every member of the Chamber of Commerce is an oil millionaire, and that there are more than one hundred millionaires whose fortunes were made entirely through oil.

The oil business alone is open to the small investor as a possible fortune on a few hundred invested. It has been for years, and is today, the poor man's chance to accumulate large sums through moderate investments.

WHAT CANADA HAS ACHIEVED IN WAR

Wonderful Efforts of Canadian in Financing Are Not Fully Realized

When one considers that war and warfinancing were efforts unknown to Canadian the record of her achievements in arms and in providing the sinews of war - are all the more remarkable.

On another page of this paper will be found an official statement of how Canada spent the $610,000,00 raised by the Victory Loan of last year and towhat uses the money asked for by the new and final Victory Loan will be directed.

Put concisely in catechism form the account touches every point of vital interest in a manner satisfactory to the most critical. The page advertisement should be read carefully, and then cut out and preserved for future reference. Its facts and figures are so well presenter that students of them are sure to realize their obligations to Canada's soldier sons and their responsibility for the maintenance of Canada's prosperity during the reconstruction period and to pledge themselves to buy Victory Bonds to the limit of their ability.

ESKIMOS IN STRAITS FOR LACK OF SUPPLIES

DUNDEE, Oct. 24.—The Eskimos are described as in desperate straits from lack of supplies, reports brought by the crew of the Norwegian steamer Mercurius, which has arrived here from Cumberland Sound, where they found the Eskimos resorting to ancient seal-killing methods and melting up tin cans to make bullets. The Mercurius, it was said, was only the second vessel to visit the Cumberland Sound trading posts since the outbreak of the war.

SHOWMAN RINGLING DEAD

DOVER, N.J., Oct. 23.—Alfred T. Ringling, head of Ringling Brothers circus owners, died at his Oak Ridge estate yesterday. He was 56 years old. Mr. Ringling was born in Mecosta, Iowa, and is survived by his widow, a son and two brothers, partners with him in the show business.

Little Autumn Bride Entertains Sextette

Six Girl Friends Meet for the First Time Since the End of the War.

The September bride was giving a tea to the five girls who had been her best friends for years. The six of them had been known as "The Sextette" and had been inseparable until the war.

The little captain was just back from the war, and Dot had married him as soon as he was discharged. Of the six, Mary had suffered most heavily as her husband had been killed in action leaving her and her wee baby alone and with few funds.

Dora had completed her training as a nurse and was doing splendid work in one of the big military hospitals. Alice was a "green sister" and was turning her knowledge of basketry to good account in the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment.

Kathleen, whose lover had gone overseas early in the war, had been the stay-at-home of the crowd.

Anne was a business girl, and came in, her cheeks glowing from her walk in the crisp autumn air.

"Oh, isn't this heavenly," she ejaculated as she sunk into a chair. "Dot, you ought to be so glad you have a home so we can all get together again."

"I am," said the September bride, with glowing face. "Not for that reason entirely though."

"What is doing up town?" asked one of the group. "I feel as if I am out of the world when I don't go up town once in a while."

"Well, the town is getting pretty busy," answered Anne. "You know the Victory Loan starts next week, and the hive is humming already."

"Anne ought to know a lot about it as she works in a broker's office," said Dot as she poured the tea into the pretty fragile cups.

"I am finding out a lot about it every day," replied the business girl. "You'd be surprise at how many reasons there are why this loan should be a smashing success."

"I just know one personally," said the little bride. "It is needed to pay for bringing my boy home to me."

"Demobilization," stated Anne. "Exactly. Everyone wanted their boys back as soon as the armistice was signed, and Canada did her best and got them across in marvellously quick time, considering the number there were. Now the expense of it all has to be met."

"I know that the hospitals have to be kept up for a long time yet," said the nursing sister. "The boys that have been wounded and broken in health need much care yet, and they are looking to Canada to give them back their health if possible. The doctors and nurses must be paid, and the hospital equipment maintained, and it all takes money. I should think the Victory Loan of 1919 would be needed for that."

"A second good reason," said Anne. "Obligations to soldiers in hospitals."

"For my part I feel that the boys who are getting better need a lot of attention," said the "green sister." "I did in my work such a lot of them that cannot go back to the old jobs they had on account of a lost leg or arm, and they are worrying about what will happen to them when they get out of hospital."

"True, now you have hit a good reason," Anne remarked. "It is to help these very boys that the loan must go through. Canada is undertaking to train every man that has been crippled or otherwise disabled so he cannot resume his pre-war occupation, so that he can earn his own living. And the department sees to it that he gets a position when his course is completed. We must lend our money to give these boys a chance."

"They lost their limbs for us," said the war widow softly.

"Mary, dear, you are one of the very best reasons why every cent of the loan must be raised," said Anne, giving a loving glance at the black-clad figure. "All the dependents of our glorious dead must be provided for. Think, girls, of all the wives and babies and mothers that are finding it hard now to make ends meet. We must think of them, and lend generously."

"For a reason, too," said Kathleen. "Harry wants to go on a farm. You girls can laugh if you like, but I would make a dandy farmer's wife. Harry says the Government will lend him enough money to buy and stock a farm. He will have twenty years to pay for it, and the rate of interest is low. He says there are 25,000 returned men who want to go on the land."

"That's a fine reason," said Alice. "Besides helping the returned soldier to help himself, it is aiding production and that is badly needed all the time."

"Now you have touched a reason that I can talk about," said Anne, the business girl. "You see, girls, Canada depends on selling the surplus products of the farm and the factories to allied countries, especially Great Britain. Well, unless Canada has enough money to give credits to these countries they won't buy from us at all. If England went elsewhere for her food stuffs and her manufactured materials, just think what it would mean. Our factories would close down and men would be out of work—"

"Oh, Anne, don't! That is too awful to think about," said the September bride. "I still have two cheques that were wedding gifts, and I am going right down to-morrow and put them into Victory Bonds."

"That's fine," said Anne. "It will be a sure way to save it, and you'll get such a nice lot of interest. I hope I get a Victory Bond for a Christmas present myself."

20TH CENTURY MINISTER.

A Clergyman's Views of an Ideal Clergyman.

What are the qualifications of "the twentieth century minister?"

Rev. John Galt, of Peterboro, Ont., who was awarded the first prize in the competition promoted by the Forward Movement Committee of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, thus sums up the requirements:

"A man, strong, very courageous, whose shoes are as iron and as brass, and whose strength shall be even as his days. This is what the hour demands, for the Promised Land . . . is manifestly now in sight."

"Let the church . . . forego make an end of talking about improving the comfort of the ministry. Tell them that their King has need of them . . . Call them, not to comfort and to ease, but to hardship and heroic endeavor.

"The minister that the twentieth century calls for, and the only minister that will count, will be the one who is cast in manly mould . . . clean, strong, virile, fearless."

"He is called to be a man among men, one whose advice may be sought and whose counsel may be depended upon in connection with everything that matters in the liver of men, a man who will count for something in matters relating to the well being of his community."

"The minister must be a man of God, one who has entrance to knowledge of God, His will, His purposes, His plans . . . a man after God's own heart."

"Not a man with a theory or a philosophy, although he may have plenty of both, but a man with a clear and definite 'Thus saith the Lord' . . . Prolonged and devout study of the Word of Truth cannot fail to make the student wise unto salvation."

"Of all men of the twentieth century who may speak to their fellows with authority, the ministers of the Gospel must be conceded the chief place. . . . There need never be anything cringing or apologetic about the man who is called and sent."

"All the strong men of the pulpit have been clothed with the authority of knowledge, and it was largely this that made them strong and gave them presence and dignity before the people."

"The minister will be invested with the authority of a great and pressing urgency, and urgency always brings with it the highest kind of authority for the man who will point the way, for the man who has the word to speak, for the man who can deal with the situation. All this the Christian minister can do and all the more if he himself is charged with a sense of the supreme urgency of the situation, if he recognizes and feels the dire condition, both now and in the hereafter, of those who know not the Gospel."

"It is difficult to see how a man can be a worthy minister without a brave heart and a ready will to sacrifice. To reprove, to rebuke, to exhort, without fear or favor, or in spite of fear and in defiance of personal interest, demands courage as real as that called for in any military campaign. Nor can the minister dispense with physical courage, for the path of duty will always lead him to where death is doing his most deadly work. He will be expected to be calm and strong, when others are full of fears and weakly prudent. His must be the courage strong enough and tender enough to go to the broken-hearted in their hours of darkness and despair."

"One need the ordinary man fear that this is not for him, that he is not big enough; any man is big enough for all this and more, whose one hand is given to the Christ, that he may be held and made to stand, and the other given to his brother-man, that he may be the link between."

"The minister must be a man with a tender heart as well as a strong and brave man. . . . He will know how to be as tender with the erring, but repentant, as he is severe in the denunciation of sin."

Subscriptions to the Navy League Fund reached $40,000 at noon the first day of the campaign.

A HAPPY HUNTING GROUND

The summer sun beat down on the heaving cradle of the deep, and little Bill lay dozing on the long, lazy swells. Forty miles away the dim outlines of the mountains of Vancouver Island drew a faint fretwork against the horizon. Closer the bold point of Point Grey loomed high, and closer still the rugged entrance to Howe Sound met in endless battle with the charging rollers from the Gulf of Georgia. Little Bill's mother was somewhere in the depths looking for anything in the line of fish, but preferably salmon.

A smudgy smear appeared on the skyline. It drew rapidly nearer. Little Bill saw it not. Pushing herself along at the rate of eighteen knots the fast C. P. R. steamer Princess Patricia raced for harbor, keeping a railroad schedule, and piling a huge wave from each side of her sharp bows. She came close to Bill, who had not yet been christened, the roar of machinery, the rumbling rush of the wash startled him, and as he looked he was turned over and over in the big wave from the steamship. Little Bill forgot home and mother and all things but escape. Making his little flippers fly he drove himself toward the safety of a cove on Bowen Island, where, in the placid reaches, he rested again, feeling much more comfortable.

This is a true story. Bill is a young hair-seal. There are many thousands of his kind in the coast waters of British Columbia. They do no harm, excepting perhaps that of eating a few million salmon each season and destroying a few thousand yards of salmon nets that entangle them. The only other possible annoyance they might prove to create is that of following trolling fishermen and taking the fish off the hooks when the fisherman thinks he has caught one sure. Otherwise they are fat, lazy, comfortable, intelligent and kindly. They respond quickly to human attention. And the strange thing is that the human appeal is not made through the stomach. Young seals will make friends with men who never fed them a thing to entice them to closer relationship.

For instance there is the illustration of Bill. He rested in the warm cove at Bowen Island. He heard a seductive whistling sound, and he raised his head to look. There, not a hundred yards away he saw some two-legged creatures playing about in the water, and one who was sitting on a floating log was making the attractive noises with his lips. Bill slipped beneath the surface.

Picture the astonishment of the boys on the raft. Suddenly in their midst there came a little spotted seal that swam gently through them and drew up against the raft, asking as clearly as anything could, to be lavished into the reveis. One boy reached down, placed his hands behind the tiny flippers and lifted Bill out. They petted him and scratched him, dove and swam about with him. He seemed to enjoy himself fully as much as they. The day drew to a close and the lads went homeward leaving their deep-sea playfellow alone. Next morning when they came to swim they whistled again. Close beside the raft a sleek little head like that of a wet spaniel raised itself, and small flippers wriggled joyously. The daily play was on again. It was then he was christened Bill, and learned to know the name. This happened weeks ago and still Bill plays tirelessly and in utter confidence. He creates his own food, he asks nothing but friendship and companionship. Somewhere on the sandbars of the Fraser river his mother sleeps of nights, gorged with pink salmon, and perhaps dreaming of her wandering lad. But Bill, apparently, dreams of nothing but the coming day, and his friends in woollen tights.—I. V. K.

A HAPPY HUNTING GROUND

The summer sun beat down on the heaving cradle of the deep, and little Bill lay dozing on the long, lazy swells. Forty miles away the dim outlines of the mountains of Vancouver Island drew a faint fretwork against the horizon. Closer the bold point of Point Grey loomed high, and closer still the rugged entrance to Howe Sound met in endless battle with the charging rollers from the Gulf of Georgia. Little Bill's mother was somewhere in the depths looking for anything in the line of fish, but preferably salmon.

A smudgy smear appeared on the skyline. It drew rapidly nearer. Little Bill saw it not. Pushing herself along at the rate of eighteen knots the fast C. P. R. steamer Princess Patricia raced for harbor, keeping a railroad schedule, and piling a huge wave from each side of her sharp bows. She came close to Bill, who had not yet been christened, the roar of machinery, the rumbling rush of the wash startled him, and as he looked he was turned over and over in the big wave from the steamship. Little Bill forgot home and mother and all things but escape. Making his little flippers fly he drove himself toward the safety of a cove on Bowen Island, where, in the placid reaches, he rested again, feeling much more comfortable.

Miss Canada Gives Account of Her Stewardship

And explains her War Financing to her citizens

Miss Canada: In humility, because of the sacrifices which have been made for me, but in pride because of the Spirit of Fortitude of your Sons, I come to enlist your most sympathetic support, as expressed by your financial aid, to enable me to meet the many obligations that still remain towards the men who fought. I also wish you to provide me with sufficient National Working Capital to consolidate the position in the world's markets, that you, by your industry, have so honourably won.

Citizens: Perhaps you might like to take this opportunity of telling us how you expended the $610,000,000 we loaned to you last year?

Miss Canada: I would. You will recall that I asked you for funds to carry on the war, and to enable me to advance credits to Great Britain and our Allies, who, by their purchases here, have prospered our farms and factories. Do you want details?

Citizens: Yes. The more facts and figures you give us, the more fully will you answer the natural queries of those to whom you are now appealing for a further loan.

Miss Canada: Very well, then. I suggest you ask me questions. That is the best way to bring out the facts.

Citizens: How much of the Victory Loan 1918 did you use for war expenditures?

Miss Canada: Three-fifths of it —$380,900,000 in fact. Before giving this expenditure in detail I wish to explain that your demobilization expenses as against those of mobilization have been concentrated within a few months. The expense of transporting our Army overseas was spread over more than four years. Consequently the cost of it did not bulk so large in any one year's budget. But to bring home in a few months hundreds of thousands of men, spread from England, France and Flanders, Italy, Egypt, Palestine to far-off Siberia, was a gigantic and expensive task. It taxed all my resources.

Citizens: Realizing the conditions you faced, because of the shortage of shipping, and remembering that other parts of the Empire were eager for the speedy return of their men, we think you did very well. Give us now the details of your war expenditures.

Miss Canada: $312,900,000 was spent for the payment of soldiers since the Armistice—the cost of feeding them, part cost of bringing them home, separation allowances to their dependents, the maintenance of hospitals, their medical and nursing staffs, in Britain as well as Canada, the organization and conduct of the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-Establishment (which includes the Vocational Training Schools) and the financing and operation of the Soldier's Land Settlement Act.

In addition to this, I have already authorized and am paying gratuities to soldiers on their discharge.

Citizens: What is the amount of the gratuity?

Miss Canada: I used $59,000,000 of the Victory Loan 1918 for this purpose, and expect to use $61,000,000 of Victory Loan 1919.

Citizens: Did you make any other disbursements under the heading of war expenditures?

Miss Canada: Yes, $9,000,000 was spent at Halifax, to be used in reconstruction after the disaster.

Citizens: We quite appreciate the fact that these were all necessary war expenditures. Perhaps you will tell us now what you did in the way of advancing credits to Great Britain and our Allies?

Miss Canada: With pleasure. I advanced Great Britain $173,500,000 to help purchase your grain; and I loaned her another $30,000,000 to buy other food stuffs.

Citizens: Did Great Britain buy any fish from us?

Miss Canada: Yes, $9,000,000 worth. I loaned her the money to pay you for it.

Citizens: Were there any other loans to Great Britain?

Miss Canada: Yes, Great Britain bought $2,900,000 worth of ships built here. I loaned her the money to pay for them. Then I loaned her $5,500,000 to meet other obligations in connection with munition purchases.

Citizens: What security have you for all this?

Miss Canada: Great Britain's pledge to repay—backed by the resources that made her Banker, Manufacturer and Bulwark to her Allies during the war.

Citizens: That's good enough. Did you do anything for our Allies?

Miss Canada: I loaned them $8,200,000 to buy your foodstuffs, raw material and manufactured products.

Citizens: That accounts for last year's Loan. Will you tell us now why you need another Loan, and how you purpose using it?

Miss Canada: I need another loan to finish paying the expenses of demobilization, since the proceeds of the 1918 Loan were exhausted, and to meet the obligations I still owe to your Soldier Sons. I also need money for National Working Capital.

Citizens: What are the obligations to soldiers?

Miss Canada: The cost of bringing them home. The payment of all those still undemobilized, including sick and wounded, who are still in hospital, and who of course remain on the Army Payroll until discharged. The upkeep of hospitals, and their medical and nursing staffs.

Citizens: How much will these items entail?

Miss Canada: $200,000,000.

Citizens: Does that include the gratuities?

Miss Canada: No. I shall need $61,000,000 of the New Loan to finish paying these.

Citizens: Will that include the money to finance the Dept. of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, including the Vocational Training Schools, and the working out of the Soldiers' Land Settlement Act?

Miss Canada: No. I estimate $57,000,000 for this. I have already approved loans to the amount of $26,000,000 to soldiers already settled on the land under this Act.

Citizens: How many soldiers are taking advantage of it?

Miss Canada: Up to August 15th, 29,495 soldiers had applied for land under the terms of the Act. 22,281 applications had been approved. 9,043 men were already placed on farms, and millions of acres will be under cultivation, that might otherwise be idle.

Citizens: What do you consider the great national advantage of having soldiers become farmers, apart from increased production of food.

Miss Canada: The love of outdoor life and the resourcefulness of our soldier citizens are just the qualities to make them successful farmers, and upholders of the best Canadian tradition.

Citizens: Have you any other war obligations?

Miss Canada: Not that I foresee. I have covered the major ones.

Citizens: You purpose extending further credits to Great Britain and our Allies, do you not?

Miss Canada: Yes, to the extent that your Loan will permit me to.

Citizens: Why sell to Great Britain and our Allies if they can't pay cash?

Miss Canada: Their orders are absolutely essential to the continuance of your agriculture and industrial prosperity. The magnitude of their orders, and the amount of employment thus created will depend upon the success of the Victory Loan 1919.

Citizens: Will you explain simply this idea of credit, and why it is so necessary that we should give it?

Miss Canada: Farmers and manufacturers (and that includes the workmen on these orders) must be paid cash for their products.

Therefore I must borrow money from you to give credit, temporarily, to Great Britain and our Allies.

Actually, no money will pass out of Canada.

If you do not grant this credit, other countries will; and they will get the trade, and have the employment that should be yours, to distribute amongst their workers.

And remember, you absolutely need these orders to maintain employment. If you don't finance them, employment will not be as plentiful, business will feel the depression and conditions everywhere will be adversely affected.

Citizens: Will you use the proceeds o the Loan for any other purpose?

Miss Canada: Yes. I must carry out the National Shipbuilding and Reconstruction programme. I am also committed to advance loans to Provincial Housing Commissions.

Citizens: What are individual—personal advantages to be gained in buying Victory Bonds?

Miss Canada: The fact that Victory Bonds are among the world's premier investments—in security—in good interest yield—and in ready saleability.

Citizens: What do you mean by Security?

Miss Canada: I mean that the whole resources of Canada—all the assets of all the people—plus all the wealth yet to be discovered is behind my pledge to repay you your principal when due and to meet each interest payment.

Citizens: What do you mean by "good interest yield?"

Miss Canada: You receive on your savings deposits 3%. Invest in my Bonds, with the security of all Canada behind you, and you get 5½%.

Citizens: What do you mean by "ready saleability?"

Miss Canada: I mean that if, at any time, you wish to get cash for Victory Bonds—that is, sell them—you can do it at a moment's notice. Or, if you want to borrow money on them, any bank will loan it to you and accept them as security. For all practical purposes Victory Bonds are as good as money, except that if you keep a bill in a box at home, or in a vault, it doesn't earn interest—but Victory Bonds do.

Citizens: Would you advise a person to take money out of a Savings Bank and invest it in Victory Bonds, and if so, why?

Miss Canada: I would—because I pay almost double the interest paid by Savings Banks and my obligation is undoubted.

Citizens: Do you think Victory Bonds will increase in value?

Miss Canada: They ought to. Every person who subscribed to Victory Bonds last year has made money. I have every reason to believe my credit position must steadily advance.

Citizens: You have given a good account of your stewardship, Miss Canada, and realizing the obligations we have to our soldier sons,—our brothers—to our farmers and industrial producers—to our workers everywhere—to You, the Spirit of our beloved country—to those who have so gladly and gallantly died for her—we pledge ourselves to buy your Victory Bonds to the absolute limit of our ability, and thus ensure the realization of our highest and best aspirations for Canada and all Her peoples.

Cut this out and read it carefully. It will answer a great many of the questions you may be thinking of in connection with the

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press Limited

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 25—The entire staff of Leon Trotsky, Bolshevik Minister of War and Marine of Russia has been captured at Tsarskoe-Selo according to a Reval despatch to the National Tidende. Trotsky himself escaped by clinging to a railroad car and later fleeing from the scene in an automobile. Yudenitch's army is reported to be under fire from the Bolshevik dreadnought Poltava which is lying in the Neva river inside of the city limits of Petrograd and shooting over the house-tops.

Oxford Holsteins Bring Big Prices

WOODSTOCK, Oct. 25.—The big demand for Oxford County Holsteins in the United States is again emphasized by the success of Messrs. Haley and Lee, of Springford, at the recent dairy show held in Chicago. These well known Oxford breeders took sixteen head of their cattle to the show. Of this consignment eight were sold. The highest price was received for Homestead Susie Colantha, a nine-year-old cow which has won wide fame for herself and her owners in Canada, brought the fine figure of 7,500. She sold to John A. Bell, Jr., of Carnegille, Pa., Judge Morscrip, one of the big American authorities on dairy cattle, said that this cow was, individually, one of the rarest and most perfect specimens of the Holstein breed. In production her record shows that she is excelled by few on the continent. As a junior two-year-old she gave 15,359 pounds of milk, the equivalent of 627.5 pounds of butter in a year. As a three-year-old her better record in seven days was 26.50 pounds, and in seven days as a mature cow her record was 31.2½ pounds of butter.

This cow won first at Toronto and first at London during the course of the past season.

Messrs. Haley and Lee received close to $12,000 for the eight animals they sold while in Chicago.

Britain To Give Fleet To Pacific

MELBOURNE, Oct. 24.—Admiral Lord Jellicoe's report upon the question of naval defence for the British Empire and her colonies in the Pacific Empire and her colonies in the Pacific the Australian House of Representatives. Lord Jellicoe assumes throughout the report that future danger to the Empire and her colonies lies in the Pacific and the Far East.

The second dominant note in the report is his insistance on the value of hospital ships as the chief weapon at sea. Lord Jellicoe's apparent assumption regarding Canada, is that she will readily put her share into vessels and their upkeep. It is probable that the first vessels for both Canada and Australia will be gifts from the British fleet.

Australian Fleet

He recommends that there be an Australian fleet of two battle cruisers eight light cruisers and thirteen destroyers, besides eight submarines and other subsidiary craft. This is based on the conception of an imperial Far East seaging fleet, comprising vessels of the Royal Navy, the East Indies squadron, the Australian, Canadian and New Zealand navies. Upon these Britain would pay 74 per cent., while Australia would contribute 7.5 per cent., Canada 12.3, South Africa and New Zealand the balance.

While Canada's percentage is thus fixed at a comparatively higher figure, Lord Jellicoe proposes to bring up the charge against Australia and New Zealand by an additional assessment in view of the fact that they are not called upon to pay the heavy dock cost in the Atlantic by asking those colonies to bear 25 per cent. of the 74 per cent. assumed by Britain in the far east.

Big Harbor Defences

Jellicoe additionally recommends that there be also Australian harbor defences of twenty destroyers, ten submarines and eight-two minesweepers.

The total cost of Australia is estimated at four million and twenty-four thousand pounds sterling annually, while the total annual cost of the whole Far Eastern Pacific fleet would be £15,870,000.

Central Jellicoe has been making Over one hundred gallons of alcohol a few days ago on his way across the Pacific to Vancouver. He foresees the demand, within the next five years of a strong eastern fleet, comprising vessels of the Royal Navy, the East Indian squadron and the Australian, Canadian and New Zealand navies.

Added Cherries To The High Wine

TORONTO, Oct. 24.—Fined $300 and costs a week ago for selling liquor, Phillip Abraham was back in the Police Court yesterday on a charge laid by the License Department of manufacturing liquor. Two jars of high wine to which cherries had been added had been seized. Louis Heyd, K.C., argued for the defence that the adding of cherries to pure spirits was not manufacturing alcohol, because the alcohol spirit was present before the cherries was introduced. Magistrate Denison held that 'manufacturing' had been proved and imposed a fine of $200 and costs. Over one hundred gallons of alcohol found in Abraham's cellar was not confiscated as the caused maintained the liquor was purchased before the importation of alcohol into the province was prohibited.

One Thought Will Pervade Belleville Monday Morning

EVERYONE WILL COMMENCE TO EAT, SLEEP, THINK AND TALK VICTORY LOAN FOR THREE WEEKS—BIG RALLY AT CITY HALL.

When the Belleville alarm clocks arouse our citizens to the realization that they must get up and shave or Monday morning there is one thought that should come to everyone's mind—THE VICTORY LOAN IS ON. Alien Bill Will Be Amended

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—Members of the Lloyd George Cabinet conferred with some of their supporters in the House of Commons today relative to the situation which has arisen through the defeat on Thursday of the Government amendment to the Alien Bill. It was stated during the day that an understanding had been arrived at by which a new clause to the bill which would be acceptable to the government would be moved by members of the House. It is expected in this way to surmount the difficulty which brought about the defeat of the former amendment and to avoid the abandonment of the Bill.

Canada's Clocks Go Back Sunday

At 2 a.m. on Sunday, October 26, the Daylight Saving System will be put away for the winter and standard time will come into effect.

When the daylight saving system came into effect this spring the change in the clocks was carried out smoothly and without any attendant difficulties. Railway trains changed their schedules in concurrence with the change in clocks, and almost unconsciously Canada began getting up an hour earlier in the morning and retiring an hour earlier in the evening, although perhaps the latter practice was not so general as the former.

Railway officials, heads of big industrial and other branches of industrial and commercial activity point out that it is well for each individual to take cognizance of the change that will take places in the time at 2 a.m. Sunday, the individual failing in this is very likely to find his working schedule at sixes and sevens on Sunday.

$100,000 For First Shakespeare Copy

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 25.—What is said to be a new world record in the price of books was established by the Rosenbach Company of this city, when the firm sold a single volume for $100,000. The purchaser is a New York collector, who asked that his name be withheld for a few days.

The book in question is considered the most valuable in the world, barring ancient manuscripts. It is the only known copy of the first collected edition of Shakespeare's works, published in London by Thomas Pavier in 1590, and printed by William Jaggard, who also printed the famous folio edition of 1623.

The volume contains nine plays by the Bard of Avon, and at one time belonged to Edward Gwynn, the Elizabethan collector.

OTTAWA, Oct. 25.—"This road, so far as I am concerned, is going to have the best board of railway men that can be got, no matter where they come from," stated the Hon. J. D. Reid, Minister of Railways and Canals, in answer to a question put by Mr. W. D. Euler.

"If the hon. Leader of the Opposition wished it to be understood by the public that they would be turned out to the present board he was absolutely wrong. The board will be reorganized."

"It is the intention to reorganize the whole of the present board?" asked Mr. Euler.

"I expect," answered the Minister. "This declaration followed a speech by Mr. Euler, in which he argued that the present government should be made as successful as private ownership, providing the best management was obtained, and the Government remained free to the professed determination not to allow political interference. He understood that the board was to be reorganized, from a statement made by the Minister of Railways the other day, and he wished to be corrected if he was wrong.

The Minister said the member was absolutely right, and that if there were any words stronger than those he had used to make that evident he would like to use them.

MUTT AND JEFF IN ANOTHER NEW HIT

"Mutt and Jeff" in their latest and greatest "fun phest," entitled "Mutt and Jeff's Dream," will make their annual visit at Griffin's next Wednesday night.

The new play is said to be the most laugh hit of the season, combining fun that is clean and wholesome, likewise original. Music of the "catchy" variety, settings, stunning and a specific production that dazzles. Comedians and vaudeville act, of the better grade and a company of thirty, mostly girls, including a chorus of sprightly maidens, who can both sing and dance are some of the things that make "Mutt and Jeff's Dream" the foremost of all popularized musical farce comedies.

Although the high cost of everything has pervaded the theatrical line, same as all other business, it is Mr. Hills aim to keep the theatre-going public the benefit of pre-war prices as long as it is possible to do so.

Advance sale of seats will open at the Griffin Box Office next Tuesday morning at 10 a.m.

REAL BILL HART IS IN CHAPS AGAIN

The real Bill Hart hero of every small boy from Maine to California, and from Canada to the gulf—beloved by all who care for red-blooded action on the screen—will be seen in his latest picture "Wagon Tracks" at Griffin's this Monday and Tuesday. In several of his recent films, Mr. Hart has doffed chaps, and six-shooters, appearing as a convict in one, a parson in another leaving the Western plains for the asphalt of the city streets. But now he is back in business, astride a trusty horse and with his wide-brimmed Stetson atop his head. He riots through a picture filled full to the ... with action, excitement and heroic deeds. Thereare lively scraps, quick shooting, all the characteristic incidents of the southwest. These incidents of life as it was lived in the pioneer for action piled on action, true love and the code of honor of the far West who revel in scenes which show the everlasting hills and deserts that make hard and sun-silvered beauty or very evil will find it all in "Wagon Tracks." A funny 2-reh Mack Sennett comedy and 3 other selected plays will also be exhibited on the same program.

MASSIVE EXTRAVAGANDA

The 1919 William Fox extravaganza "Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves" will be presented for the first time at the Bijou Theatre for three days, with a matinee daily, commencing Monday. This remarkable story is familiar to Eugene Quesnel, of Montreal, was suffering from Kidney Complaint and had suffered for five long years. This is his letter:—

"I could not sleep nights and on some occasions could hardly walk. I had been treated by many of our best physicians but without relief. I took over 15 pounds and was very weak, and friends who knew me before were astonished. One day I met one of our leading druggists, who had been cured by your famous Gin Pills. He advised me to try them. I bought two boxes and before I had used one box I felt a big change. Before I finished the second one I was completely cured, and I can assure you if I had only known what I know now, I would not have spent one hundred dollars for nothing—when two boxes of Gin Pills cured me."

Gin Pills are the finest preparation for kidney and bladder trouble ever produced. At the first warning pain in back or side, get Gin Pills. Young and old. The Arabian Nights, from which this tale is taken, was compiled nearly a thousand years ago by the famous authors of the orient, and no great was the interest in their tales that they have been translated into every nationality. The coloring and the mystery of the orient give unlimited opportunity for gorgeous reproduction that have been fully realized in this wonderful production. The exotic atmosphere of the ancient Persian city that has been idealized in the story have been faithfully re-created for the photoplay. A new chapter of Winograph's thrill packed serial "Perils of Thunder Mountain" and a new Luke comedy will also be shown on the same program.

Tells How To Regain Perfect Health And Keep It By Bathing Internally

Are you aware that nearly one million bright, intelligent people throughout Canada and the United States have internally bathed instead of drinking their systems with drugs? Why? Because it keeps them in better health in every way.

Internal bathing is the only sure means of keeping the intestines clean and free from accumulated waste matter, which is sure to slowly poison the system and become food for the millions of bacteria which infest the system, thereby causing auto-intoxication, impure blood, indigestion, headaches and a hundred other ailments which are directly the result of constipation.

If you want to be healthy at the time we would strongly advise you to get a J. B. L. Cascade, which is the only perfected appliance ever devised for efficiently cleansing the colon and lower intestines. It is the invention of Dr. Chas. A. Tyrell of Battle Creek, who is a specialist on Internal Bathing. The J. B. L. Cascade is shown and explained by J. S. McKeown's Drug Store, where you can receive an interesting book called "Why Man of Today is Only 22% Efficient." It will tell you facts about yourself that you probably never realized before, or write Tyrrell's Hygienic Institute, 163 College Street, Toronto.

PLENTY OF WORK FOR EVERYBODY

OTTAWA, Oct. 25.—Increased demand for labor and an upward tendency in wages in some callings, indicate that there is plenty of work available throughout Canada, is shown by recent employment figures obtained from official sources.

During the past week there were ment office 3,423 applications for employment from ex-soldiers and sailors. In the same period there were referred to vacancies 3,285 men, this being practically 96 per cent. of the applications.

Up to date 87,687 applications from ex-members of the forces have been received, and of these 83,962 have been successfully placed, a percentage of 94.60 of the applicants.

There is such a demand for labor that the wages of husbands have advanced to $75 a month and "all found" which is a record for that industry.

KING—FOX

On Wednesday October 22nd, 1919, at 1.30 a.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. L. Fox, Belleville, R. R. No. 2, was the scene of a pretty wedding when their eldest daughter, Alma May, became the bride of Mr. Melvin D. King, of Madoc, Rev. Thos. Wallace officiating. The bride was given away by her father and looked charming in a gown of white georgette and satin with pearl trimmings, and wore a veil of tulle and orange blossoms. She carried a beautiful bouquet of cream and white roses. The bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Gladys L. Wiley, Belleville, wearing pink georgette with hat to match and carrying pink roses. Little Dorothy Fox, Madoc, cousin of the bride, made a beautiful flower girl, wearing a frilled frock of white crepe-de-chine and carried a large crotchet basket of sweet-heart roses. Mr. H. Rollins, Madoc, ably assisted the groom. Mrs. H. McCoy of Madoc, sister of the groom, played the wedding march. During the signing of the register Miss Jessie Scott sang "Because."

The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a cameo brooch, to the flowergirl a pearl ring, to the pianist a French ivory hand mirror and to the groomsman, kid gauntlets.

After congratulations had been extended to the young couple about one hundred and twenty-five sat down to a sumptuous wedding dinner, served by friends of the bride. The dining-room was prettily decorated with streamers and ever-greens.

The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and costly presents, besides a number of substantial presents which showed the esteem in which she was held.

In the afternoon about forty young people motored to Belleville where the happy couple took the train amid showers of confetti for Montreal and points East, the bride travelling in a silver-tone cloth coat with dress and hat to match and a pretty marabou fur, the gift of the groom. On their return they will reside near Madoc, where the groom is a farmer. The best wishes of a host of friends go with them.

The C. O. League Cup and the "News" Trophy Emblem of amateur ball for Ontario, along with individual presents for the players will be presented at the armouries on November 7th. It is understood that both cups are most beautiful.

Let us show the boys our appreciation and support by trying to keep the team which brought Belleville a first real sporting honors, intact for 1920. This honor is sought throughout the province by many teams. It is the first time in the history of the News trophy which has been played for during many seasons, that it has been lifted out of Toronto.

All the regular players with the exception of two were born in Belleville. These two are still boys and have spent several years here. There were no importations. It would be hard to find another team with a record like this.

"Billie" Mills, catcher—Born in Belleville 25 years ago. First played in Junior series in Belleville in 1909, later graduated to Senior Ontarios and Grand Trunks, and is now recognized as the premier amateur catcher of Ontario. "Billie" is also a hockey player of no mean repute, having been a member of the Belleville Junior O.H. A. team prior to his enlistment and service in France with the 52nd Battery. He was one of the leading hitters in the C. O. League.

"Freddy" Goyer, pitcher. The big left-handed boy was the pitching ace of the Ontario champions, sensation of the Central Ontario League and class of all Ontario pitchers for the season of 1919. He is Belleville's own. He holds the strike-out record in the Ontario play-off, getting eighteen at Toronto against the Oslers, one better than the record set by "Cannon Ball" Scott of last years Hillcrest Champions and Lindsay C. O. League team this year. He was born in our fair city 25 years ago, learned baseball with local teams, and this year reached the goal desired by all Ontario amateur pitchers, that of winning a championship, the goal reached being more prized because it comes to his home town. He, along with Mills, is one of the players who should be kept with our team for the 1920 season.

"Walt" Gerow, 1st base.—Was born in Belleville 30 years ago. He is an old Park Nine and Ontario product, having started to play in 1906. He is well known to local sports, and as 1st baseman "Walt" has had no peers in the city for years. He has been the hero in many Belleville victories and has now reached the pinnacle of fame with the other champions.

"Cap" Smith, 2nd base.—Known to all Belleville as a star on our own home diamond for many years. In his earlier ball days "Cap" played the part of pitcher and for local teams pulled many wins against outside teams. He is right handed. His infield experience helped materially in the champions' victory. James is 33 years of age and was born here.

"Ollie" Meagher, 2nd and 3rd base.—Although a youngster, has proved himself indeed an acquisition to the champions. His versatility in playing infield positions has kept the victors in first position. He played in all the games at 2nd in the earlier part of the season, later at 3rd for about half the season and again back at 2nd, until injured in the semi-final with the Oslers at Toronto on Sept. 27th. He is also recognized at basketball, hockey and other athletics. Allan was born in Belleville 20 years ago.

"Vera" Weir, short stop.—Another young ball player, the product of our city's High School, was born in LaRoy, N.Y., is nineteen years of age, and has lived in Belleville for many years. He has played at short in all games the team has played this year and displayed the cooliness of a veteran, besides being one of the team's leading hitters. Vernon is also prominent in other athletics. He holds the Senior championship of the B. H. S. for 1919. He plays O. H. A. hockey with our local team and is one of the best basket-ball players in the city.

"Joey" Kelleher, pitcher, outfielder and 3rd baseman.—Joe, one of the most willing workers on the team, has played at all the above positions during the season, starting taken part in all games, in which his team has played. As right-hand pitcher, he is a worthy side-partner of Goyef, and as third baseman displayed real class, his throwing to bases being far above the average. Joe is a C. O. League teams or Ontario finalist. He is 24 years of age and was born in Belleville.

Sammy Symons, right field.—Arrived home from France in time to get into the game shortly after the opening of the season, and has since played in nearly every match. He is a real as well as nigh perfect all season. He was a big factor in the team's playing at Oshawa. At college Sammy "Wick" less to introduce him to Belleville sporting fraternity as "Sammy" has for many years been a star on our O. H. A. intermediate hockey team, and a reliable senior ball player. He is 30 years of age and was born here.

"Wishful" Ross, centre fielder.—The peerless heavy hitting centre-fielder is another youngster. He was born in Belleville and is aged 20. His work in the outer garden has been sensational

CANADA A GOING CONCERN.

Canadians who are in reality shareholders in their country, and whose personal interest is the national interest, are not ready to ask for a winding-up order. They know Canada is a going concern that will continue to grow in power and productiveness. Every thrifty and far-seeing Canadian is asked to treat Canada as such and invest in the new stock issue that is necessary for her to carry on with, and meet the great responsibilities created by the sacrifices of war and the problems of peace. In plain terms the Victory Loan 1919 is a stock issue offered to the shareholders to enable the country to carry out its plans for re-establishing the returned soldier and making him a national asset, and for maintaining the great international markets which are a necessary complement of increased production. These markets for Canadian products have in a large measure been created by the credits to Great Britain and other countries which could only have been financed by the great popular loans of the past. Everyone who regards Canada as a going concern and whose interest it is to keep her in that happy state of equilibrium owes it to himself to support the new Victory Loan by his surplus profits or savings, by his enthusiasm and by his sense of patriotism.

GOVERNMENT EMPLOYMENT BUREAUS.

An analysis of the labor situation in the province of Ontario during the week ending Oct. 11, made from the reports of the Trades and Labor Branch shows that the number of men applying to the bureaus for work is slightly in excess of the number of vacancies for men reported. During this week 2519 men registered and orders were received for 2465. The number of men actually placed in positions was 1961.

By far the biggest demand was for general laborers, orders of this nature numbering 1007 in the week. The bureaus were able to supply 690 of these men.

Classes of work for which there were more men than openings include commercial occupations for which 197 men applied during the week. On the other hand, in the building and metal trades, there were more orders than men.

In the Women's Department the largest demand continues to be for household workers, only a small percentage of whom can be secured. Of 213 orders received in the week, 66 were filled. The supply of casual workers was more satisfactory, and 308 day-workers were placed in 366 positions. The shortage of women and girls for factory work also continues extreme.

THE GLORIOUS 21ST BATTALION.

The 21st Eastern Ontario Battalion is to celebrate Armistice Day (Nov. 11) with a battalion re-union and banquet at the Russell House, Ottawa, in the evening of that date, under the auspices of the 21st Battalion Club of Ottawa.

A year ago they were at work putting the finishing touch to the Hun, having been in the forward movement continuously since the memorable morning of August 8th, when the British line went into action for the Big Push.

Arriving in France the middle of September, 1915, and putting in the deadlock winter 1915-16 in Ypres salient, they started their glorious battle record with the fighting for the craters at St. Eloi; from that time on they were in every battle in which the Canadian Corps was engaged, and valiantly did their part in making Somme, Vimy, Hill 70, Passchendaele, Amiens, Arras, Cambrai and Mons names to which Canadians ever can point with pride and honor.

To all at a meeting of this kind must come thoughts of those of their comrades who went down. But also comes the joy of greeting comrades long separated, who have stood together through thick and thin.

No more fitting time for a re-union could be selected than the anniversary of the day, when after months and years of warfare the battalion at last knew its task accomplished, and a world-detested, treacherous and despicable foe had at last been humbled and beaten; that Peace was at hand, and Canada and home loomed large in the minds and hearts of all.

We all wish the 21st Battalion a most happy and joyous re-union. We look with pride on their battalion record and trust that should it be their intention to make this re-union an annual affair, it may be our privilege to greet them in Belleville at some future date.

CRISP COMMENT

Guesses at what is going to happen in Ontario are about as thick as guesses at what may happen at Ottawa later on.

Quite a few members of the last legislature will be slow on the "come back."

Hartley Dewart seems to be the only leader visible confident that he can form a government at present, but just wait until the farmers get their all-wool and forty acres wide government going. Dewart won't be even in the also ran class.

For the first time in Ontario, Labor candidates have a solid little representation in the Legislature. The experiment may have a great influence on the course of politics in this province for the next century.

Railroad time, otherwise known as daylight saving or summer time, ceases tonight, possibly forever on a general scale, as the rural communities have never observed it and considerable confusion and resentment have been occasioned by reason of the hour's difference between the town clock and the county clock and the railroad clock. In Belleville for several weeks part of the population have been observing standard time and part railroad time on account of the action of the city council in reverting to standard time, the result being far from satisfactory. Next week standard time will again be universal and the confusion occasioned by two systems of time will be at an end.

COMBINE COLLAR AND GIRDLE

Attractive Feature of a Frock That Meets With Favor Among Many Women.

Navy blue and white organdie combined with bright-toned blue and red embroidery fashions an unusual little frock. Its very attractive feature is a high surplice collar, which is prolonged into a girdle and fluffy sash bow of navy blue organdie. This comes also in combinations of brown or rose with white-organdie.

Finer than calico but invested with all the quaintness and charm of that material are the new English prints of the type which one frock represents. Almost any of our grandmothers might have worn just such a dress with its square neck and elbow sleeves, but the modern young woman who wears this frock does not look in the least like anybody's grandmother. Bands of plain white braid emphasize the simplicity of the design and the material, and a band and bow of contrasting ribbon velvet is tied over the print sash. The flower design comes in ... and in black.

DAUGHTER OF THE PHILISTINES

By LEONARD MERRICK

CHAPTER VIII—Continued.

Their front-garden slept. He unlocked the door, and saying that she was very tired, Cynthia held up her face immediately and went upstairs. After he had extinguished the gas, Keut mounted to the little room where he worked, and lit the lamp. Beyond the window, over the bare trees, the moon was shining whitely. He stood for a few moments staring out, and thinking; he scarcely knew of what; then he seated himself, and began to reread the last page of the manuscript that lay on the desk. He had just commenced to write, when Cynthia stole in and joined him.

"Are you busy" she asked.

"No, dearest," he said, surprised. "What is it?"

She came forward, and hung beside him, fingering the pen he had laid down. She had put on her dressing-gown, and her hair was loose. She was very lovely, very youthful, as she looked like a child playing at being a woman. The sleeves fell away, giving a glimpse of the delicate forearms and he thought the softness of the neck she displayed seemed made for a parent's kisses.

"How cold it is!" she murmured. "Don't you feel it?"

"You shouldn't have come in," he said; "you'll take a chill. You'd better go to bed, Baby."

She shook her head.

"I want to stop."

"Then, let me get you a rug and wrap you up. He rose, but she stayed him petulantly.

"I don't want you to go away; I want to speak to you.....Humphrey"

"Is anything the matter?"

"I've something to tell you." She pricked the paper nervously with the pen-point. "Something....can't you guess what it is, Humphrey? Think—it's about me."

A tear splashed on the paper between them. Kent's heart gave one loud throb of comprehension and then yearned over her with the truest emotion that she had awakened in him yet. He caught her close and caressed her, while she clung to him sobbing spasmodically.

"Oh, you do love me? You do love me, don't you?" she gasped. "I'm not a disappointment, am I?"

She slipped on to the hassock at his feet resting her head on his leg, with the tumbled fairness of her hair across his trouser; as she crouched there she looked more like a child than ever, a penitent child begging forgiveness for some fault. He swore she had fulfilled and exceeded his most ardent dreams, that she was sweeter in reality than his imagination had promised him; and he pitied her vehemently and tenderly as he spoke; became in such a moment she spoke, because in such a moment she was answered by a lie. The lamp, which the servant had neglected, flickered and expired and on a sudden the room, and the two best figures before the desk, were lit only by the pallor of the moon. Cynthia turned herself and looked up in his face deprecatingly.

"Oh, I am so sorry; I meant to remind her. See, I'm punished—I'm left in the dark myself."

AN IMPORTANT DISCOVERY SWOLLEN VEINS RELIEVED

That Absorbine, Jr., would relieve various veins was discovered by an old sportsman who had suffered with swollen veins for nearly fifty years. He had made unsuccessful efforts to get relief and finally tried Absorbine, Jr. knowing its value in reducing swellings, aches, pains and soreness.

Absorbine, Jr., relieved him and after he had applied it regularly for a few weeks he told us that his legs were as smooth as when he was a boy and all the pain and soreness had ceased.

Thousands have since used this antiseptic liniment for this purpose with remarkably good results.

Absorbine, Jr., is made of oils and extracts from pure herbs and when rubbed upon the skin is quickly taken up by the pores; the blood circulation in surrounding parts is thereby stimulated and healing helped. $1.25 a bottle at druggist or postpaid. A liberal Trial Bottle will be mailed your address for 10c in stamps. Booklet free. W. F. Young, Inc., 457 Lyman Building, Montreal, Can.

HIGH SCHOOL CONCERT

The concert held last night in the City Hall under the auspices of the Belleville High School in aid of the Great War Memorial Scholarship fund was well attended and thoroughly enjoyed by all present. The program consisted of instrumental and vocal music by three artists from Chicago, Miss Charlotte Bergh, Coloratura Soprano. Dorothy Bell, Harpist, was unable to be present, and her place was ably filled by Miss Edna Wheeler Barrett, and Mr. Tracy Jay Kingman, baritone. Miss Bergh has a wonderful soprano voice and sings with unaffectedness and perfect ease, and was most generous in her encores. Miss Barrett, harpist, was be equally as popular, her selections being perfectly rendered. "The March Triumphant was opened the Concert and the old favorite "Old Black Joe," as one of the encores, brought forth hearty applause. Mr. Kingman's baritone, sings with much expression and undoubtedly won the admiration of all. Mrs. Wagner acted as accompanist in her usual capable manner.

"I think it my duty to tell you how much your medicine has done for me. I suffered for three years with terrible Eczema. I consulted several doctors and they did not do me any good.

Then, I used one box of 'Fruit-a-tives' Soothe-Salve and two boxes of 'Fruit-a-tives' and my hands are now clear. The pain is gone and there has been no return. I think it is a marvellous cure because no other medicine did me any good and I tried all the remedies I ever heard of, without benefit until I used 'Soothe-Salve' and 'Fruit-a-tives.'

"Fruit-a-tives' cooled the blood and removed the cause of the disease, and 'Soothe-Salve' completed the cure."

The Membership Campaign is run ning along very well, reports last night showed thirty-five members secured for the day making a total to date of 102, bringing the total membership to 352. There is still a good deal of work required before we may reach the objective of 500 but the decision last evening was that the teams should carry on to the end of the month extending the Campaign for another week. The Queen Victoria team in the Boys' Section is still leading the G. V. R. team in the Senior Section. The teams will report again this evening at 7.30. In the competition with Peterboro up to last night, they had secured 112 to our 102 so that on a percentaged basis Belleville is ahead as they were to raise 350 to our 250.

Last evening at the Y. M. C. A. Alleys the first game of the Y. M. C. A. League was played when the Steel Co., under the guidance of Mr. Murphy met Sulmin's team of Merchants. The result was a win for the Merchants. The Steel Company had several new players who need a little seasoning and no doubt will give us excellent recount of themselves in future. Scores were not as large as might be expected so early in the season. Verdyen was high man with 302, his total score being 147 the high single score for the match. It is expected that others will be ton from this League the schedule will be published in a few days. The results were as follows:

A Word re the Oakoal Proposition

Mayor Woodley and the Managing Director of the Ontario Oakoal Co., Ltd., effectively set the public right at the meeting held in the City Hall last evening. Belleville Knockers, as usual, started a rumor that the Oakoal proposition was simply to be a stock selling game—but these knockers did not have the courage to attend the meeting and hear the striking facts as presented.

Mayor Woodley explained why the Council had granted the Company its charter and said outside capital would build the plant, and equip it, and that the city would encourage every legitimate industry, since industry was Belleville's need and since industry meant a bigger and better Belleville.

The Managing Director stated that the object of the meeting was to explain the value of the Oakoal method and process and to remove from the public mind the impression that "Knockers" who were opposed to Oakoal's interests, had created.

The stock of the company, capitalized at $125,000, had been practically all sold. He read the names from a list of over 400 shareholders of prominent manufacturers, wholesale men, professional and scientific men, and bank managers who were among the shareholders, and results of demonstrations, tests and investigations made by the Government Fuel Testing Station at Ottawa, Fuel Controller McGrath, Dr. A. R. McCallum, chairman of Canada's Research Bureau, Toronto University, Fuel Briquetting Engineer McGraw of New York, Prof. Phillips of Texas University, the Medical Journal of Toronto, the Veterinary, Grand Army Journal of Canada, Toronto World, Times, Mail-Empire, St. Catharines Standard, Hamilton Times and Bradstreet's, to the satisfaction of the audience.

He said he was not asking any citizen of Belleville to put a dollar in Oakoal stock, but had been asked by the citizens to give them an opportunity of becoming shareholders and had therefore decided that inasmuch as the company would do a business of approximately $300,000 annually in Belleville, he would give those who desired to participate in the dividends his company would earn, not only in Belleville, but throughout the province of Ontario and Quebec, which territory his company owned and was fully paid for—one opportunity, for one week only, to become shareholders.

Mayor Woodley stated that while not doubting the company's statement as to the value of Oakoal as a fuel, he had determined for himself by a test in a coke oven that Oakoal was all the company claimed for it. He had burned two briquettes for 19 hours and the fuel did not disintegrate or clinker.

A demonstrating office will be opened Saturday morning, October 25th, where the fuel may be seen burning and where representatives of the company will—for one week only—explain the method and process and receive applications for stock.

Oakoal will save the citizens nearly $100,000 a year in their fuel bills. Oakoal will provide work and wages. It will solve Belleville's fuel problems and make Belleville a cleaner and healthier city to live in.

For the Informal Occasion

SUNDAY night supper—or when intimates drop in unexpectedly—EDDY'S Paper Serviettes are quite appropriate. They lend a certain refreshing, pic-nicy flavor to the occasion, like when you are seated on the grass, and somebody starts telling stories. And besides they save your linen serviettes—and that's an item nowadays.

Ask your dealer for a package of Eddy's Paper Serviettes today. You'll find them useful and economical.

SOLDIERS ON THE LAND

EXAMPLES OF KHAKI FARMERS WHO MAKE GOOD.

It Is Believed by the Soldiers Settlement Board That 100 Per Cent. of the Returned Men Who Go on the Land Will Prove Successful —Encouraging Reports Are Coming From the West.

A VERY good soldier turned into a plucky and exceedingly busy farmer, with 320 acres of his own to look after, is E. K. Klingbiel, who is now at work on a homestead in the Red Deer district of Alberta. He is a fair sample of several soldier-farmers who have come back from fighting and taken up ploughing and that kind of thing, in as determined and courageous a spirit as they took up their soldiering. The Soldiers Settlement Board helped him to make a start, and if the weather is kind to him this summer he will have a contribution to make to what is known as the nation's bread basket.

The Klingbiels went out on the land in the manner of real pioneers, with an outfit of horses, oxen, farm machinery, a tent to live in and a wagon-load of chattels. The tent will be replaced with a little house before the summer is over, and in due course there will be a fine farm house on that particular half-section, for the Klingbiels are going to make good as farmer and farmerette.

Most of the other soldier-farmers will make good, too. One of the officials of the Soldier Settlement Board says that 100 per cent. of the men whom it is helping to go on the land will prove successful in their new work, but even if one makes a fair allowance for occasional misfits and groschers, there will still be a margin large enough to prove the general success of the scheme.

It is expected that between 7,000 and 8,000 men will take up farming next year, in all parts of the Dominion, under the auspices of the Settlement Board. Somewhat more than half of these will be located in the Prairie Provinces, Alberta is likely to retain the lead which it has already taken, inasmuch as it has the largest areas of available land for the purpose. The offices of the board in Edmonton and Calgary are like bargain-day counter rushes just now, and the back-to-the-land movement is on in full swing. But for that matter the same story can be told from every province in the Dominion.

Arrangements have been made by the Settlement Board to help the ex-soldiers with their purchases of stock and equipment, a branch of the service having been established for that particular purpose. Leading manufacturers of farm implements are giving special prices to the soldiers, on requisition from the board, and lumber supplies will be purchased on similar terms. Horses and cattle are being sold from Government stables, guaranteed safe and sound. Every precaution is being taken to get the settler started right.

The money-loaning end of the Soldier Settlement Board's work is already assuming surprisingly large proportions. In April $1,240,000 was given out on approved loans to soldier-farmers in Alberta, and Manitoba was a close second with $1,055,000. Saskatchewan took something over $500,000, and will greatly exceed that amount in May, since it is now catching up with the other provinces.

Major E. J. Ashton, commissioner of the board, has been doing some figuring as a result of his recent inspection tour of the Western offices. He takes Saskatchewan as an illustration, and on the estimate of the military authorities, who say that there are between 25,000 and 30,000 men still to demobilize in that province, he has been counting up the possible money totals that Canada will be called upon to face before the thing is through. It is said in Saskatchewan that 75 per cent. of the men are expressing a desire to go on the land, and the average loan out of a possible 7,500 is running at about $4,000. At this rate the total loans in one province alone will amount to more than $20,000,000.

The landward tendency of the returned soldiers is, of course, more in evidence in the prairie provinces than elsewhere in Canada, and because Alberta and Saskatchewan are making such giant strides in the money-loaning business is not to say that the Federal Treasury is to be overtaxed in an effort to get the soldiers on the land in the quickest time possible. But just the same the Settlement Board's program of rehabilitation is one of the most humanly interesting and financially tremendous projects that Canada has ever undertaken.

Names of Western Provinces.

The origin of the names of the four Western province of Canada is as follows:

Manitoba—It is derived from the word "Manitu" (the Great Spirit) and "ba" (passing). Thus Manitoba is supposed to mean the "Passing of the Spirit." It is taken from the Cree language. Manitou or Mahito means the Spirit, otherwise God.

Saskatchewan—Saskatch-ewan is a Cree word meaning "Swiftly Flowing River," Anglicized in the word Swift Current.

Alberta—The province takes its name from Her Royal Highness Princess Louise Caroline Alberta, wife of the Marquis of Lorne, afterward the 9th Duke of Argyle. The old provisional district of Alberta, which is now included in the province, was created in 1882, during the Marquis of Lorne's administration as Governor-General of Canada.

British Columbia—Columbia is another name for America, and British was placed before it [illegible]

SILK NAVY, WHITE FOULARD

Summer afternoons require silk dresses for activities and home life. This navy and white foulard, with its pleated edging of val lace is suggested. The skirt is in one straight piece wrapped about the figure.

YOUR SUMMER DANCE FROCK

Rainbow Gown Is Entitled to Claim Honorable Mention Among Things Beautiful.

The summer dance frock is always a problem. It has to endure more beauty-sapping wear and should cost a great deal less than the winter evening gown. Then it must be lovely to the eye and yet lack heavy trimming. Well, here is a suggestion for you if you are trying to solve this problem yourself. It is as charming a bit of apparel as you ever saw and you can make it yourself. The charm of it is its colorfulness and its originality.

The skirt is made by joining bands of chiffon about five inches wide starting at the top in pink, then comes a band of faintest Nile green, and then comes a lovely pale blue. Then the cycle begins all over again with the pink and continues until the skirt is built up to the waistline. You will wonder how these are fastened together so that it does not look like a patchwork quilt. Well, they are fagotted together. The waist is perfectly plain, coming down rather low over the shoulders and has puffed sleeves that end considerably above the elbow. There is a triple sash to go with the triple scheme of the whole dress. Narrow two-toned ribbon is used. Pink, green and blue narrow ribbon—all with silver backs—go about the waist and end on the side in very long loops and ends. They are finished at the waistline with small silver buckles.

This rainbow dance frock is fully entitled to claim honorable mention among things beautiful in every line. No dress you could plan would be more reasonable in price and offer such a charming result. Then just think of the distinction of having a whole handmade dress!

PUT ONE AROUND YOUR HAT

Colorful Hatband Has Power to Re-juvenate Old Headgear Into Unbelievable Newness.

There is a perfect magic to the colorful hatband. It has power to make a stupid hat positively dashing. It can rejuvenate an old hat into unbelievable newness. Just about this time the sport hat that has been on the go since early spring, begs to stop it. Try a bright bit of banding on the weary headpiece, and see if it doesn't take a new interest in life.

Nor need the band be an elaborate one or difficult to make. It might be like this: Two-inch unfigured ribbon of taffeta or satin, grosgrain or velvet, with two rows of stitched squares arranged alternately, checkerboard effect, and worked up with silk or cotton or wool, whichever contrasts most effectively with your ribbon.

Divide the ribbon band in half on the length with a faint penciling. Then mark it off with two-inch squares. Now alternate spaces with over-and-over stitching. If you haven't any harmonious color scheme in mind, what do you think about this ultramodish one: Tea rose on jade? Or you might like to keep to the checkerboard suggestion and try black on red squares. It would be ever so fetching on a black hat.

Net, Wool and Beads.

A new kind of trimming is coarse net run with strands of white wool and with rows of beads sewed on one edge. This fabric is sold at the trimming counters all ready to incorporate in a frock, but it is also possible to make it at home.

This trimming is used in banding outlines of dresses. Of course, when it is finished the net does not show, and therefore the bands are heavy enough to use on white serge, jersey and other summer sport fabrics. [illegible]

MADE GOOD IN THE WAR

MEN WHOSE CHANCE CAME IN KHAKI.

Had Humble Employment In Civil Life But Seized Opportunity In the Army—There Are Also Cases That Have a Distinctly Humorous Aspect.

WHILE the war has badly handicapped many soldiers by decreasing their efficiency for civil life, it has also been the means of promoting ex-soldiers upward many rungs in the ladder of business success.

Scores of thousands of men have "found themselves" while in khaki.

Men who went away with quiet, solid, sound ideas to take what was apportioned them, have returned to civil life confident, sure of themselves, and feeling able to take what they want out of life.

And here and there among them are instances of men who, by gifts of the soldiering genius, or by dint of hard, strenuous work, have raised themselves high in military rank; which has been recognized on their return to civil life, and due promotion made in the normal spheres of life.

Major Cyril Girvan, a sorter in the Toronto General Post Office, enlisted as a private in the 15th Battalion, Highlanders, in August, 1914. Major Girvan is a son of Captain P. Girvan, D.S.O., M.C., Croix de Guerre, led the Highlanders in the farming advance of August, September and October, 1918, to the victorious end of the war.

Doffing his bonnet and kilt on returning to Toronto, Major Girvan reported to the post office for duty. Should he step back into his old position? Mouth fifty five years of very distinguished service count for nothing? Would his very strikingly demonstrated ability to organize and command go unrecognized? Has the Government no service?

Major Girvan was promoted to command of the city night staff at the Central Post Office, assistant to superintendent; a post that is ordinarily reached only after long and devoted labor in the civil service.

Second-class Police Constable Geo. H. Barber enlisted in Toronto as a private in the 3rd Battalion, August, 1914. He had years and years of humble service to put in as a constable before promotion in the Toronto force would come.

But in the army, his experience as a policeman was to his credit, and he was promoted to be provost-sergeant, that is, police sergeant of his battalion. He then obtained a commission with the Imperials, served with distinction in France, Egypt and Mesopotamia, and rose to the rank of major. Again, his police experience profited him, and he was given command of a detention barracks in England, and, later, of a military prison in Egypt.

On his return to Toronto, Major Barber interviewed the police authorities.

Would he return to the "beat"? No. Major Barber was appointed Governor of Toronto Jail.

The Toronto police force has several examples of accelerated civil promotion, due to distinguished military service. Detective Bill Miller enlisted as a private in the 48th Battalion. Major Miller, on being demobilized, was promoted to the rank of detective, a post that in the ordinarily demands a whole lifetime of service in the force.

Scores more comical reversals have occurred. One colonel of a Toronto battalion returned to civil life and couldn't get a job for love or money. Finally he went to the Government's Employment Bureau in Toronto, and on entering the office of the secretary of this bureau, found himself face to face with his former orderly-room lance corporal. Now, for three years, this colonel had led the band over a great deal of ground, hawking his out on many an occasion for little change. As the jobless ex-colonel stood before the snappy business-like ex-corporal, he ran a lot of risks for words.

A former major got a job soliciting advertising. Humbly approaching the owner of a very smart and up-to-date cigar store, he found himself face to face with a former batman of his private, with whom he had had many a pleasant colloquy. The ex-major meekly purchased a package of cigarettes and retired in excellent retirement.

England has greater variety, however, than Canada. In his despatch, Sir Douglas Haig, says:

"Many officers would be quoted of men who from civil or comparatively humble occupations have risen to important commands.

"A schoolmaster, a lawyer, a taxicab driver and an ex-sergeant-major have commanded brigades.

"One editor has commanded a division, and another held successfully the position of major on staff officer in a regular division.

"The under-cook of a Cambridge college, a clerk to the Metropolitan Water Board, an insurance clerk, an architect's assistant and a police inspector became efficient general staff officers.

"A mess sergeant, a railway signalman, a mineral valuer, a market gardener, an assistant secretary of a haberdashery company, a quartermaster sergeant and many private soldiers have risen to command battalions.

"Clerks have commanded batteries; a schoolmaster, a collier, the son of a blacksmith, an iron moulder, an instructor in tailoring, an assistant gas engineer, a grocer's assistant, as well as policemen, clerks and private[illegible] commanded companies.

It takes a joint of beef to make a bottle of Bovril

Bovril contains the goodness of the beef.

THE vital elements that give beef its special place and value as a food are concentrated and stored in Bovril.

Just as the equivalent light of 32 candles is concentrated in one electric lamp, so the vital elements of beef—of many pounds of beef—are concentrated in a single bottle of Bovril.

But Bovril is not merely a precious food in itself; it possesses the peculiar power of enabling you to extract more nourishment from other foods. This gives Bovril its wonderful body-building power, proved by independent experiment to be from 10 to 20 times the amount taken. Bovril, therefore, is the true sense of the word, a Great Food Saver.

Always keep Bovril in the house.

This is NEW. Invented While You Were Overseas

Clever, isn't it?

No one thought it possible to design a cuff that would fold as neat and flat when turned in as when turned out.

But it has been done.

Now when the cuff of your W. G. & R. shirt gets soiled, you turn the other side of the Double Wear Cuff. This enables a man to wear his shirt twice as long before sending it to the laundry. It cuts your laundry bills on shirts clean in two.

It adds months to the life of your shirt, because everyone knows that laundering a shirt is harder on it than wearing it.

And economical—

These shirts cost no more than good shirts should.

Sweet Milk—Sour Milk—Buttermilk—or Water

Use any of these when baking with

EGG-O Baking Powder

It gives you a wider choice of ingredients for cakes and pastry, yet assures you of positive success in your baking.

Egg-O is absolutely pure and efficient—And double acting, that is, its first action occurs in the mixing bowl when cold water or milk in its various forms is added. Allowing the dough to stand for 15 or 20 minutes will give better results. When you put your baking in the oven Egg-O will continue to rise until your cakes are properly baked.

Buying Egg-O in the larger tins is most economical for family use.

FALL STYLES COME

Fashion Authority Tells of the Advance Guard.

American Coat Suits Excel the French Models in Both Style and Beauty.

While it may seem a little early to speak of fashions to come when all of us are still concerned with what is worn at this moment, the fact that the past month has brought so many buyers back from Europe makes the consideration of fall effects not only timely, but interesting as well, observes a fashion authority.

"For the first time in several years many houses have returned to their pre-war custom of sending representatives abroad, and we are told that the Paris shops are so filled with shoppers that one is given a check with a number on it so that one has to wait one's turn to be served.

"However beautiful the French dresses and gowns may be, the fact remains that the American coat suits outstrip them in style and beauty also. Perhaps this is because no other women wear coat suits quite so successfully as do the American. We need not head, therefore, for cut and design of our winter suits, although we may accept the lovely fabrics gratefully.

"It is said that our American makers promise longer skirts and therefore a three-quarter coat to top them. The kimono sleeve is looming up to replace the present tight shoulders and snug skin-tight sleeve. A new collar, saucer shaped, is here, out of which we will lift our chins as we were not able to do with the high straight-around affairs. The saucer collar fits closely around the throat and at the top has a wider piece so made that it stands out and away from the face in saucer fashion. It is often lined with a shade contrasting well with the color of the coat.

"Much embroidery is to be used, we hear, and buttons, too, and fring passals to give length. Indeed, some of these panels are most interesting, for they float away apparently without rhyme or reason from the top of the coat, but are really stolen to throw around the neck and shoulders to give extra warmth. Now and they they are fitted on the underside with pockets of fur for the hands.

"The pocket seems to be the supreme ornament and is often a huge patch of fur or a tiny slit in the side of the skirt or the coat. Whatever the coat, cape wrap or one-piece dress may otherwise be or have, be sure the pocket is there somewhere. The vest will probably disappear, as it has been rather overdone and we have tired of it. In its place I fear we will have an influx of the Russian blouse or Cossack coat since the manufacturers' first showing of models seems all to present the full overhanging waist effect edsily obtained in this style of coat. The belt and sash will, doubtless, because of this trend, play as important a part as the pocket.

WAR MEMORIALS.

Official Announcement Regarding Canadian Plans.

To set at rest misunderstandings which have arisen regarding the erection of Canadian war memorials in France and Belgium, an official statement was issued in London from Argyle House. It is pointed out that all such arrangements must be approved by the British Battle Exploits Memorial Committee, who will decide whether the application will clash with that of any other units. The statement says:

"Certain zealous people may have tried to make arrangements for sites without passing applications through the proper channel, and even had offers made to them personally. Such offers must not be confounded with claims submitted by the Canadian Government through its proper officials. It has been thought in some quarters that the Canadian Government has shown a certain degree of laxity in accepting offers of land. On the contrary, the Canadian Government were the first to submit detailed plans to the British Battle Exploits Memorial Committee, and the plans submitted were the first to receive the approval of the committee in their entirety. The sites approved by the Imperial Committee are: St. Julien, Courcelette, Observatory Ridge (Sanctuary Wood), Vimy (Hill 145), Passchendaele, Caix (between Caix and Le Quesnel), Dury (Dreconrt-Queuant Line), and Bourlon Wood.

"Col. H. T. Hughes, C.M.G., D.S.O., who has the Canadian interests in hand, attended a conference at Ottawa at which Gen. Sir Arthur Currie, Hon. Martin Burell, acting Prime Minister, Sir George Perley and Maj.-Gen. Mewburn were present. It was decided not to fix up on the type or design of memorials until the titles of the property and permission to build have been obtained. Col. Hughes has proceeded to France and Belgium to complete surveys and make arrangements to secure land and obtain the titles. A preliminary estimate of $500,000 was authorized by Parliament for the memorials, and representatives of the War Graves' Commission have been instructed to render assistance to Col. Hughes, and both the War Office and the Foreign Office are giving such assistance as will undoubtedly much facilitate matters. The Belgian Government, with characteristic generosity, have expressed their willingness to do all they can to present the sites required for Canada. It is understood the Imperial authorities have under consideration the erection of a memorial at Menin Gate, Ypres. This will probably take the form of an Imperial memorial as distinct from a Canadian memorial. Letters and articles published from time to time appear to have caused misunderstanding owing to the introduction of the question of the collection of war trophies for Canada. The two

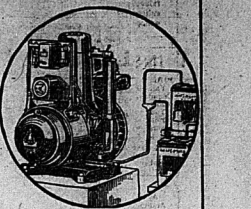
A Business Proposition for Farmers

WE want you to size up Delco-Light as you would a new farm hand before you hired him.

Will Delco-Light do a good day's work on the farm every day? Will it cost much to keep? Will it earn money for you? Will you get along pleasantly with it?

Over 75,000 Delco-Light users have answered these questions for themselves and for you.

Delco-Light gives them all the electric light and power they need.



As a result—

They do chores before daylight or after dark, because house and barns are well lighted.

They have stopped working small machines by hand—milking machine, churn, separator, grind-stone, washing machine, fanning mill, water-pump. They have running water wherever it is needed. They no longer hamper themselves with a lamp or lantern while working. There are no lamps to clean and fill. The ironing is done by electricity.

All this means time saved for every member of the farm family. It means money saved—time spent at money-making work. On some farms it means driving away with hired help.

And the money now paid for coal oil will operate Delco-Light. Four times as much light from a gallon of coal oil is the record of Delco-Light over oil lamps. A few cents a day for all the electric light and power you can use.

Where there is a boy on the farm he looks after Delco-Light. A few minutes each week is all the attention it needs. Note these exclusive features of Delco-Light construction. They insure care-free, long-lasting service for you.

It is direct-connected. There are no belts to slip, break or replace.

It is self-cranking. Pressing down on a lever starts the engine and it stops automatically when the batteries are charged.

It is air-cooled. There is no water to carry, to freeze, or to boil away.

There is only one place to put oil. There are no greasc cups.

A simple lighting valve regulates the fuel supply. There is no complicated carburetor.

Ball bbg roller bearings cut down friction and increase efficiency.

Thick-plate batteries are long lasting.

You can see that on every point Delco-Light is a good business proposition—that it pays for itself. It does a lot of work for you. It saves you time. It gives you time for money-making work. It costs little to operate. It is easy to look after.

BESIDE ALL THIS, Delco-Light gives you the wonderful comfort and pleasure of electric light in the home. Floods of clear, bright light at the pressing of a button. No matches; no danger. Lots of light. Pleasant evenings; happy mother and children. You can't know the untold benefits of electricity until you try it.

Delco-Light users know all these things. They have written us letters telling us. We quote from some of these letters. We have printed some of them in a little folder, illustrated with photographs. We want you to get this book and read it. It will open your eyes to the possibilities for greater profit and greater comfort on the farm. Write your nearest distributor for a free copy.

(a) DELCO-LIGHT has made it possible for us to do without one hired man, whose wages and board amounted to $50.00—he would cost us more now.

By operating the above mentioned appliances Mrs. Tea has been relieved from her ordinary household duties that she is able to spend a great deal of her time helping to care for the milk, and we are now able to do all of our own work, which has solved the hired help problem for us, and securing help nowadays is the farmers' greatest problem.

(b) Delco-Light saves us every day about one hour doing the chores around the farm—this would mean 5 days a year, and 5 days 730 hours a year at 30c. per hour, which is, figuring very low, about $219.00 saved.

(c) The time and labor saved every week over the old way is as follows:

Cream Separator	0 hours
Washing Machine	5 "
Flat-iron	3 "
Pumping water	6 "
Vacuum Cleaner	4 "
Power Saved on Fan Mill and various things	2 "
Total	25 " per week

(d) I save about 2 hours a week on the washing, and 7 hours a week on separating. It saves one man about 4 hours to clip my team. On churning it saves my wife 3 hours a week. It saves about 30 minutes on grinding our sausage per hundred pounds.

(e) We figure that it has saved us in way of labor for pumping and milking not less than $1,700.00 during the two years. The plant requires very little attention and only about $2.00 per month for fuel. We could almost afford to buy a new one each year and still be ahead on labor and satisfaction, aside from the advantages of having the lights, of which we have 50 in the house and barns.

(f) I light my residence, a house of fourteen rooms and one of five, my garage, two barns and a workshop. I operate an automatic water pump, maintaining a pressure of 40 pounds for the entire water supply of the place, including hose for watering the garden. We have a 16-hose power Delco-Light Power Stand, which is used for churning and working the butter, turning the grindstone and running the washing machine. I expect to attach it later to the cream separator.

(g) This plant is paying for itself in several different ways. The fuel saving alone amounts to about $460.00 per year, as follows:

Where we formerly used 55 gallons of gasoline per week, at 25c. per gallon ($13.75) to operate the milking machine and pump alone, we now use 35 gallons of kerosene per week at 16c. per gallon ($4.90), which is a net saving of $8.85 per week, or $460.20 per year.

Also, in addition to this, we are lighting four houses, four barns and cow barn and doing the washing and ironing.

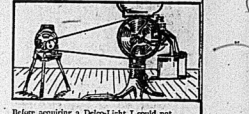
Another instance of saving is that we save the time of one man (5 hours a day) handling lanterns alone in our cow barn. We figure this a saving of 30c. per hour, making $1.20 per day, $30.00 per month, or $432.00 per year.

(h) "I consider my purchase of a Delco-Light plant one of the best improvements I have made on my farm."

DUNCAN MARSHALL,
Minister of Agriculture, Alberta, Canada

(i) The plant has not given us a bit of trouble, there had been no repairs to date and the operating cost has been less than $2.00 per month.

(j) Any child can run it and it beats any of your coal-oil lamps for light and safety.



Before acquiring a Delco-Light I could not rest good at night for fear of children lighting a match and thereby possibly setting fire to something. Now I sleep like a log because all that is necessary for the children to do is to press the button and the light is there, and a most excellent light at that. It is much cheaper than Coal-oil and no danger of upsetting a lamp.

"Look here," said the city editor to the cub reporter, "you should write everything as briefly as possible. Instead of saying 'the middle-aged baldheaded performer in the hired aggregation of followers of Orpheus who nightly provide the harmony at one of our leading temples of mirth, seated his trombone firmly in his hands, placed his feverish lips to the mouthpiece and sounded thereon an unearthly bleat like the wailing of a lost soul on the main street of Inferno'—now shorten that up."

So the reporter meekly wrote: "The slip horn player in the orchestra blew a helva note."

SKIRTS TO ANKLE

American Ideas Have Won Over Those of Paris.

English Leaders of Fashion Refuse to Wear the Excessively Short Designs Sent From France—Now-nat Sleeves and Shoes.

It's the most amusing thing in the world to watch what is happening in the fashion world in London. A few weeks ago word came that in New York women were wearing long tubular skirts, way down to their ankles and as tight as a pipe. At the very same minute in Paris the skirts only ventured a miserable half dozen inches below the knees. What was to be done? London hesitated a week or so. Paquin and Lanvin brought over staggering creations that looked as if they were intended for children's fancy dress parties and so skimp and short that no well-developed British female could possibly get inside. So just naturally the English turned to our New York mode and now it's the rarest possible thing to see a dress in Bond street or in the park that is cut above ankle length.

French dressmakers are astonished, indeed they will not acknowledge that American fashion is actually competing with French. They shrug their shoulders and adjust their dresses to suit their patrons over there and pretend that they invented the idea themselves.

But the French have their way in Paris, for one thing it's a nice way at all, for there aren't any. On the street, in the house in the evening you certainly can't tell by the sleeves what sort of a dress you are looking at. The only garment that has sleeves is a negligee or a tea frock, and these have long wings that trail along the floor. It's a great pity, too, the lack of sleeves, because it's not one woman in a hundred that can boast a dimpled elbow, and the sights of red and unlovely arms that are exposed every day are getting on people's nerves.

Everybody wears brocaded shoes. Colors match the dress or suit and stockings are usually a very pale shade of the same color, or fresh, and so thin that they look like nothing at all. There is hardly any point to the latest shoes, really they are sandals with a tiny strap and a beaded or jeweled buckle to clasp.

Cool, summery gown of soft autumn leaf brown georgette crepe, suitable for afternoon wear. The Girdle frock. It is called. The beading is very unusual, and the girdle of old blue satin strikes a bright note.

CONVENIENT HAT-STAND

Hats are always difficult to dispose of, especially when a closet is very shallow without much shelf space. So, to solve the problem, a little wooden stand can be constructed to hold four hat boxes. This stand is built like a table with two shelves underneath—any kind of wood will do that can be painted or enameled. Each shelf holds two hat boxes, and these are bands more attractive and durable by covering them with either a light-weight flowered chintz or cretonne, or with flowered wall paper. To be very practical the fronts of the boxes should be hinged by means of strips of linen so that the front can drop, and the hats be put in without taking the boxes from the shelves.

CHOICE IN FALL MILLINERY

Duvetyn Pretty Sure to Be Popular, Though Many Other Materials May Be Selected.

Duvetyn is one of the biggest factors in the advance fall models that are now being shown in local millinery circles. Manufacturers are unanimous in the belief that it is going to exceed the popularity it enjoyed last year. Beaver strip is also well thought of in some parts of the trade, but there is no material for this that is more flattering to a woman than beaver. Embroidered effects are being shown for the new season in a large way. Heavy wool, silk floss, chenille and gold thread embroideries are used extensively. Hackle is a big factor, especially the domestic pasted variety of this plumage. Pasted feather breasts are being used in combination with heavy ribbons to good advantage. Flower trims are seen in heavily padded wool and chenille effects. Chenille grapes also are used as trimmings.

Used by the French.

The French designers are sponsors for all sorts of embroidery on midsummer and autumn blouses. Floss, chenille worsted, beads and ribbonsize embroidery all are being used by them.

ball, but the cartridge twice failed to explode, and when he was pulling the weapon a third time he was overpowered.

FASHION IN NEW BLOUSES

Probability That the Smartest Will Reach Well Below Normal Waistline—As to Sleeves.

Designers of blouses appear to have finally decided that the model reaching well below the normal waistline is quite the smartest thing. The question of sleeve length is now being bandied about. French-designed blouses brought over this season generally show very short sleeves—in fact, some are entirely sleeveless. American women have never favored the very short sleeves for daytime wear, most emphatically not for street wear, but the three-quarter-length sleeve has always been a favorite whether in dresses or blouses. Indications are that the smartest blouses for next season will have three-quarter-length sleeves.

Handsome laces are used to make blouses for wear with separate skirts of satin, net or chiffon. In this way an unusual and interesting costume may be developed, and as the waist of a dress made of one of the very sheer materials usually worn before the skirt shows any signs of wear, the separate dressy blouse of allover lace is an excellent investment. It enables a woman who is economically inclined to utilize every bit of available material and wear each frock until it is wholly worn out.

Put blouses of georgette, chiffon or crepe de chine is a favorite trimming. Artificial flowers are also effectively used.

AN ISLAND OF TRAGEDY.

Java Is Constantly Rocked by Earthquakes.

Official advices received report that the recent eruption of the Klot (or Kalut) volcano in Java cost 40,000 native lives, destroyed 20,000 acres of crops, principally rice, by its flow of hot mud, and did millions of dollars' damage by the falling ashes in regions outside of the devasted districts.

Volcano made in the first place, and constantly being remade by them, Java has more volcanoes than any area of its size in the world. Institutes of the active and extinct craters range from 100 to 150. Everywhere in Java, in the huge crater lakes in fissure that run for miles, in beds, even in ancient temples, half-drained when interrupted by some fiery convulsion, are evidences of prehistoric forces at work, turbulent forces as now are in continuous hysteria in the Valley of the Ten Thousand Smokes in Alaska and breathe their crusted surface cage intermittently.

The "treacherous Klot," as the natives call it, and which buried the town of Britar, but even its devastation, as reported, was mild compared to the violent upheaval of Krakatoa in 1883. The Mother Nature turned anarchist and planned a Gargantuan infernal machine on the coastwise of Java. Krakatoa is a little island in the Sunda Strait, between Sumatra and Java. Austra-lilans, as far from the explosion as New York is from Paris, felt, from the terrific detonation, more than half the island was blotted out, parts of it being hurled aloft three miles as high as the world's highest mountain, and to touch bottom below the water's surface, where most of the island had been, henceforth required a plumb line twice as long as the height of the Washington Monument. Skyscraper waves flooded adjacent islands and rolled half way around the earth. Every human ear drum heard, though it may not have registered, the air waves as they vibrated three or four times around the earth.

Krakatoa levied a smaller toll in human life than Klot because of its

SHE withstood everything in the field and above all was, and still is, the last and only car to survive until the cessation of hostilities"—Extract from letter received by Ford Motor Company from a British Soldier, in Africa.

Over shell-torn roads, through water soaked fields, second only to the tanks in its power to climb debris and crater holes, the Ford car made a world famous record in the fighting area of the great war. TIMES HAVE CHANGED.

The Trips of Columbus and the R-34 Contrasted.

They had to bribe men in the earnest and timorous days of Columbus to ship for the first Atlantic trip. Sailing towards the edge of a presently flat earth did no particular charms, even for criminals and "broken men" who were offered indemnity if they would go. Life imprisonment, in short, seemed better than high adventure terminated at any moment by a sudden, cataclysmic death.

That was 427 years ago. Now there is no need to call for criminals to man the first Atlantic trips in the air. They had to turn men, well free from the crew of the R-34, on the first voyage by lighter-than-air machine, and even then one stowaway got himself aboard and made the trip. What he was to keep the tremendous dirigible as light as possible, and so, all this aggression for flying, the R-34's crew was smaller than the crew of the Santa Maria, which consisted of 52 ignorant and fearful men, who had no idea just why they went, or where. On the three ships together, the Encyclopedia Britannica says, there were 93 men, 53 on the sailing ship Santa Maria, which Columbus commanded himself, and 18 apiece on the caravels Pinta and Nina.

It took that small, bobbing Spanish fleet just twenty days to make its trip, and the R-34 only one hour and a half; and one might suppose that the longer would have been more tedious, and the shorter, flying men, more interested and lively. But, if the diaries of two individuals can be taken as at all representative, there was no wonder in the flight of the dirigible to compare with that which one passed on every part of the Santa Maria, the Pinta and the Nina. Columbus wrote the one diary, abstracted by Las Casas, and Lieut. C. G. Shotter, the master officer of the R-34 kept the other. And the impression gleaned from the latter one is that transatlantic crossings in the air will be too utterly boring to be endowed with some unusual and diverting form of recreation be thought up for blase travellers. Even the ocean itself can hardly be seen, says he, and it's a weary life above the fog and clouds. There was a wonderful sunrise one morning though with cloud reflections of a surprising kind. "This would at least be a little distraction from the cloudy monotony for prospective passengers on transatlantic voyages," says he, with a gleam of hope.

It was different, and very wonderful, at least for Columbus himself, who had an eye out for the round arms of the earth, from August 3 to October 12, in 1492. Even the recurrent disappointments of the sighted and days of the almost uncanny strangeness of the things which happened to passengers on the R-34 the trouble was, knew that the earth was round. It was not for them a theory to be proved.

On the first night there was the compass to be tried peculiarly—more peculiarly than any one had suspected it would on the simple western way of it. It was September 1 that the "westerly variation of the magnetic needle" was noticed, and by then they were straightly and malcontents could not dull the radiance of that trip. Every second odd and splendid thing occurred. A meteor fell on September 15 over four or five leagues away. Then there were the first plains of sea-weed known as the Sargasso Sea, and the weather was sweet and balmy, like, as Columbus said, "an Andalusian April," with only the song of the nightingale lost from the air to be perfect.

On the 18th there were birds and a low ridge of cloud. But the real signs of land did not come until September 11, when the Pinta picked up a cane, a pole and a stick which seemed to be wrought with a board and a branch covered over with leaves. And with them came all of them breathed and were glad.

There was a demonstration of thankfulness and joy when once they had sighted land on the 12th, and Southern Europe could have staged, planted banners for the Catholic majesties of Castile and of Leon, and for themselves. The R-34 came from Pulham, England, to Mineola, New York, on her kneelings, so far as has been told. Nor were any flags planted. However, the work was well done in Anglo-Saxon way, to relieve his officers of the strain of the wonder which attends this flying above the land.

How odd that men were so afraid of it in those times! Or was it only that of so much wonder; so eager now to fly tediously above the clouds. Fear and wonder must be very much akin. Cook's only regret is that the R-34 was, very soon, to be sold for junk. Fear and kept the wonder, was in the circumstances to feed his diary of his own!

Last of Kin of Great Novelist Dies.

William Dickens, the last kin of the great novelist, Charles Dickens, died recently at his home in Hamilton, Ont. Mr. Dickens was born in Braunston, England, where his father, George Adams Dickens, kept the Admiral Nelson, an old public house. William Dickens came to this country about ten years ago, accompanied by his wife, Emily Dickens, and his young est daughter. Mr. Dickens was seventy-five years of age, and possessed a most interesting character, resembling in some ways his great cousin. When Charles Dickens was passing through the little town of Braunstone he stopped at his cousin's inn, and, noting the little bright-eyed boy, patted him on the back and quaintly told him he grew to be a better man than his father. Mr. Dickens treasured that incident among the fondest memories of his life.

The Love of Home Inspires A Man

The average man's interest in life would cease in time if he were deprived of his home and family. It is not for himself that he is aiming to make a success of life—his home is his inspiration.

Still greater is his enjoyment of home if he has the assurance that even in the event of his death the spot hallowed by a thousand associations would still be maintained. Life insurance alone affords the necessary guarantee.

This Company Exists to Protect Canadian Homes

The Mutual Life of Canada is strictly a people's Company. Nearly 60,000 homes in Canada and Newfoundland are protected by its liberal policies.

Should you be called to undertake "the great adventure" would you have the satisfaction of knowing that the place that to you had been "home, sweet home" need never be alienated from the loved ones left behind?

WHEN TENNIS WAS CRIME.

Heyday the Eighth Passed Law Making It Illegal.

Modern folk are accustomed to regard tennis as an innocent enough sport, likewise bowls and shovehalfpenny, which is still a popular game in the air, but our ancestors even went so far as to pass a law against these idle forms of recreation.

In 1541 the "bowyers, fletchers, stringers and arrow-bad-makers of this realme" petitioned Henry VIII of matrimonial fame, to prohibit "sundrie newe and crafty games as clyckthitche, otherwise called shovegrote, tennys and bowles, practised within this realme to the great hurt and dett of shootinge and acherie."

It appears that the lads of the village preferred to exercise their cunning at "clyckthitche" when, in the opinion of the bow and arrow makers, they would have been better occupied in shooting at the butts on the village green.

However, King Henry granted the petition, moved, no doubt, by a passage mourning the decay of good archers, "who have not only defended this realme against the cruell malice and danger of their enemyes in tyme paste, but also withe little nombers, have done many notable actes and discomfytures of warre against the Indies." The fine old English fighting spirit which rings through this passage must have appealed to bluff King Hal, and an act of Parliament was duly passed making the "newe and crafty" games illegal, and rendering players thereof liable to a penalty for each offence of 6s. 8d.—a considerable sum in those days.

Presumably the "bowyers and fletchers" went on their way rejoicing, all unaware of the danger which threatened their craft from another quarter. They had not reckoned with a certain Friar Bacon, whose discovery of gunpowder was destined to bring about the "decaye of archers' free craft and all.—Answers.

Medical Man Won V.C.

FOR most conspicuous bravery and devotion to duty on September 2, when under most intense shell, machine gun and rifle fire, he went through the Quesnel-Drocourt support line with the battalion. Without hesitation and with utter disregard of personal safety he remained on the field until every wounded man had been attended to. He dressed the wounds of a seriously wounded officer under terrific machine gun and shell fire, and with the assistance of prisoners and of his own men, succeeded in evacuating him to safety, despite the fact that the bearers suffered heavy casualties.

Immediately afterwards he rushed forward in full view of the enemy, under very heavy machine gun and rifle fire, to tend to a wounded sergeant, and having placed him in a shell hole dressed his wounds. Capt. Hutchison performed many similar gallant acts and, by his coolness and devotion to duty, many lives were saved.—Official Record.

From Vis-en-Artois in the valley of the River Sensee, the country climbs slowly eastward to Dury. The slope is studded with little clumps of wood and through it runs the great, national highway from Arras to Cambrai. Cutting the highway almost two miles from Vis and following the line of "the ridge into Dury is a snaken road. A wrinkle, rather, in broad earthern base and tawny-like structure also not quite in front of Dury, before September 2, 1918, but it has vanished from the landscape since then, bombed to a pile of ruins.

September 2 was the date set for the second phase of the Big drive of the Canadians on Cambrai. The objective was the Drocourt-Quesnel line of trenches which followed the high ground and ran through Dury. It was a loop thrown back from the Hindenburg line within the bend broken through the week before. The "jumping-off" trenches for the Fourth Division were in front of Vis-en-Artois. A hard day's work lay before the men as they gathered before dawn in the assembly trenches behind the line. Fire trenches connected with wire had to be crossed. The sunken road was bristling with guns. Every available cover had machine guns in it. The Germans were determined to hold the Drocourt-Quesnel line at all costs.

At five o'clock through a ground fog that lay on the hillside the Fourth Division men started on the day's adventure across No Man's Land. They fought bravely and won the first part of the ascent to the top of he hill. Then later in the morning came the men of the 87th Battalion behind them, passed through their positions and went on through the Drocourt-Quesnel line.

Capt. Bellenden Seymour Hutchison, commander of the 11th Battalion, went over the top with the attacking troops with his stretcher-bearers. The enemy was pouring down a heavy barrage over the hillside which at that time of day was rendered unsafe. Under such fire Capt. Hutchison and his men worked incessantly. The machine guns from the heavy toll of the men attacking, and the gunners were not unmindful about the persons that they shot. Stretcher-bearers were in a great danger as air, although they carried no weapons of self-defence, and many fell. Wounded men were scarce on the hillside. To these Capt. Hutchison ministered unceasingly throughout the long day's fighting. Under direct fire from a machine gun a wounded officer was hurriedly wounded. Capt. Hutchison went to him and dressed his wounds, thus keeping into service another of the prisoners to assist his bearers, and the officer was on his way. Many of the bearers fell on the way. Others on the hillside. To each one Capt. Hutchison ministered unceasingly throughout the long day's fighting. Under direct fire from a machine gun a wounded officer was hurriedly wounded. Capt. Hutchison went to him and dressed his wounds, thus keeping into service another of the prisoners to assist his bearers, and the officer was on his way. Many of the bearers fell on the way. Others on the hillside. To each one Seeing a wounded sergeant lying unattended he crawled to him and dressed him in a shell hole, dressed his wounds. These are only a few of the many acts which he rendered during the long day of service for the wounded during the Drocourt-Quesnel line. The British war authorities have awarded him the highest honor in their gift, the Victoria Cross.

Bellenden Seymour Hutchison was born on Dec. 14, 1885, at Mount Carmel, Ill. He graduated from the Toronto University. Interested before going overseas practiced medicine at Kenora and Fort William, Ont., where his father still lives. Capt. Hutchison went to Toronto in the fall of 1915 to join the army and was first attached to the 87th Battalion. Previous to winning the Victoria Cross, Capt. Hutchison won the Military Cross, the official record for which reads:

"Before the battalion reached its jumping-off position the enemy put down a heavy barrage, and many casualties were sustained. This officer worked unceasingly in attending to and evacuating the wounded under heavy fire in open ground. During the jumping-off of a village he passed through the streets several times, attending to the wounded. He also voluntarily dressed nearly 100 men wounded who had been left behind."

—Says Cornell in Toronto Star Weekly.

Thimble Lore.

Though the thimble is claimed to be a Dutch invention, somebody who knows says that the bad luck in the way back in the days when Harriet Beecher Stowe fashion formed was a like device on their thumbs, which they called them thumb-bells or simply thimbles. Hence the origin of the present word.

You'd never think, would you, that it takes twenty men plus a great deal of expensive machinery to make one little thimble, would you? When John Botting undertook to make one in Holland into England in 1695, he actually introduced a new industry be-

Little Autumn Bride Entertains Sextette

Six Girl Friends Meet for the First Time Since the End of the War.

The September bride was giving a tea to the five girls who had been her best friends for years. The six of them had been known as "The Sextette" and had been inseparable until the war.

The little captain was just back from the war, and Dot had married him as soon as he was discharged.

Of the six, Mary had suffered most heavily as her husband had been killed in action leaving her and her wee baby alone and with few funds.

Dora had completed her training as a nurse and was doing splendid work in one of the big military hospitals. Alice was a "green cut sister" and was turning her knowledge of basketry to good account in the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment.

Kathleen, whose lover had gone overseas early in the war, had been the star-at-home of the crowd.

Anne was a business girl, and came in, her cheeks glowing from her walk in the crisp autumn air.

"Oh, isn't this heavenly," she ejaculated as she sank into a chair. "Dot, you ought to be so glad you have a home so we can all get together again."

"I am," said the September bride, with glowing face. "Not for that reason entirely though."

"What is doing up town?" asked one of the group. "I feel as if I am out of the world when I don't go up town once in a while."

"Well, the town is getting pretty busy," answered Anne. "You know the Victory Loan starts next week, and the hive is humming already."

"Anne ought to know a lot about it as she works in a broker's office," said Dot as she poured the tea into the pretty fragile cups.

"I am finding out a lot about it every day," replied the business girl. "You'd be surprise at how many reasons there are why this loan should be a smashing success."

"I just know one personally," said the little bride. "It is needed to pay for bringing my boy home to me."

"Demobilization," stated Anne. "Exactly. Everyone wanted their boys back as soon as the armistice was signed, and Canada did her best and got them across in marvellously quick time, considering the number there were. Now the expense of it all has to be met."

"I know that the hospitals have to be kept up for a long time yet," said the nursing sister. "The boys that have been wounded and broken in health need much care yet, and they are looking to Canada to give them back their health if possible. The doctors and nurses must be paid, and the hospital equipment maintained, and it all takes money. I should think the Victory Loan of 1919 would be needed for that."

"A second good reason," said Anne. "Obligations to soldiers in hospitals."

"For my part I feel that the boys who are getting better need a lot of attention," said the "green sister." "I find in my work such a lot of them that cannot go back to the old jobs they had on account of a lost leg or arm, and they are worrying about what will happen to them when they get out of hospital."

"True, now you have hit a good reason," Anne remarked. "It is to help these very boys that the loan must go through. Canada is undertaking to train every man that has been crippled or otherwise disabled so he cannot resume his pre-war occupation, so that he can earn his own living. And the department sees to it that he gets a position when his course is completed. We must lend our money to give these boys a chance."

"They lost their limbs for us," said the war widow softly.

"Mary, dear, you are one of the very best reasons why every cent of the loan must be raised," said Anne, giving a loving glance at the black-clad figure. "All the dependents of our glorious dead must be provided for. Think, girls, of all the wives and babies and mothers that are finding it hard now to make ends meet. We must think of them, and lend generously."

"I'm a reason, too," said Kathleen. "Harry wants to go on a farm. You girls can laugh if you like, but I would make a dandy farmer's wife. Harry says the Government will lend him enough money to buy and stock a farm. He will have twenty years to pay for it, and the rate of interest is low. He says there are 25,000 returned men who want to go on the land."

"That's a fine reason," said Alice. "Besides helping the returned soldier to help himself, it is aiding production and that is badly needed all the time."

"Now you have touched a reason that I can talk about," said Anne, the business girl. "You see, girls, Canada depends on selling the surplus products of the farm and the factories to allied countries, especially Great Britain. Well, unless Canada has enough money to give credits to these countries they won't buy from us at all. If England went elsewhere for her food stuffs and her manufactured materials, just think what it would mean. Our factories would close down and men would be out of work."

"Oh, Anne, don't! That is too awful to think about," said the September bride. "I still have two cheques that were wedding gifts, and I am going right down Monday and put them into Victory Bonds."

"That's fine," said Anne. "It will be a sure way to save it, and you'll get such a nice lot of interest. Now I get a Victory Bond for a Christmas present myself."

SWEATER IN FAVOR

Garment Is Delightful Part of Summer Wardrobe.

No Other Piece Can Be So Easily Put on and Adjusted to Becomingness.

The sweater is not in the height of fashion. That we all know. Yet every woman has a sweater in her wardrobe, and most women have several sweaters. We have been told, hence a fashion writer, that sweaters now are worn for warmth. A couple of seasons ago they were worn because they were in vogue. To be sure, sweaters are worn for warmth now-partly. But they are also worn because they are a delightful part of the summer wardrobe. In no other way can a bright dash of color be so effectively procured and no other garment can be so easily put on and adjusted to becomingness.

Therefore it is the day of the sweater, even though to a more limited extent than was the case a year or so ago.

One reason, of course, why women have, some of them, more sweaters this year than they had last is because they have time this summer for knitting. They were too busy making Red Cross sweaters, socks and helmets last summer to find time and needles for sweaters for themselves. Now Red Cross knitting, excepting for the refugee garments, is not needed. And therefore women are knitting for themselves.

Really good hand-knit sweaters of pure wool are expensive when bought ready made. Wool is still high. Labor is high. The same condition holds good of silk sweaters. They also are expensive.

So if you can make your own sweater you can save a great deal on that garment, for you give your labor to yourself and have only the cost of the wool to consider.

One of the new sweaters is that made of the finest sort of Shetland floss, knitted singly into a coat sweater, with long sleeves and a sash. The sash is sometimes quite wide and ties in a loose knot at one side or at the back. These sweaters are knitted on coarse needles and look especially well over the all-white frock.

Winsome Sport Costume.

Another one of the season's new offerings is the tremendously popular filet sweater. It is crocheted instead of knitted, but it is a sweater just the same.

Burgundy at Its Best.

Burgundy wines of 1915 are reported by the most eminent connoisseurs of Paris to be the best since 1895. In fact their verdict is "perfect."

The summer of 1915 was hot, so was the autumn, with light rains now and again at exactly the right intervals. M. Mathieu, celebrated savant on the subject of wines, writes: "Since 1895 there has been no Burgundy like that of 1915 in delicacy or strength. The 1915 vintage is a remarkable synthesis of bouquet, aroma, body and flavor."

But of course all this is of merely academic interest to us.

The Cost of Clothes.

The high cost of clothing is not confined to Canada. Recently a soldier appeared before an English judge against a firm of dyers who had lost a suit of clothes belonging to the plaintiff. The suit cost about $17.50 in 1915, and had been worn only a few times. When the soldier returned from the war his wife sent his garments to the dyers to be cleaned and the suit was lost. The firm offered to pay the original cost, but the judge called in a tailor, who testified that the present cost of the suit would be at least $45. Therefore the judge struck a balance and gave judgment for $25 and costs to the soldier.

Some Garter Fancies.

Some garters of the present day are quite elaborate. They are made of all kinds of silks. Ribbon garters with embroideries and are ornamented with bows. One pair is made of blue silk striped at either side and embroidered in lavender and pink.

CHARMINGLY YOUTHFUL

Pretty little dress of pink organdie with coral velvet ribbons and a dainty frill of lace at the throat; just the thing for a young girl's party dress.

TO PROTECT THE SLEEVES

Most Serviceable Coverings May Be Made From Men's Handkerchiefs of Cheap Materials.

Nearly all business girls wear over-sleeves while at work; but if the sleeves are made of the usual black or dark material, they give a severe look to any dress.

It is a good plan to make the sleeves from men's handkerchiefs; the cheap ones, sold for ten cents, answer the purpose. Perhaps the most serviceable kind is that with a white center and a colored border. A center of solid tint is pretty, and may show the dirt less; but the tint is likely to soon fade, and the goods on which it is used is likely to be more expensive than the white handkerchiefs.

Fold the handkerchiefs diagonally twice, to form a right-angled triangle, four folds in thickness, with the edges of the handkerchief as the hypotenuse. Then cut off one of the corners of acute angle, somewhat on a slant. The wrist of the sleeve should be about five inches before it is bound. All seams must be French ones so that there shall be no roughness.

Gather the wrist slightly, and bind it with a bias strip from one of the pieces that were cut off. It should be from three and three-fourths to four and one-quarter inches across when finished, or just large enough to slip the hand through easily. A narrow edging of lace may be added; it gives the sleeves a more finished appearance. Folding twice, of course, gives a pair of sleeves from one handkerchief.

When the sleeves are in use, the seam comes on the inside of the arm, and the point is pinned on the outside, just above the elbow. That will hold the sleeve comfortably in place, and the strain being on the bias of the cloth, it gives with every motion of the arm, and fits more closely than a sleeve made on the straight would.

Such a sleeve can also be worn by any housekeeper, when she is at her work. They can be made and laundered so easily that they command themselves to the practical girl.

Dominion Plebiscite on Prohibition.

The Dominion plebiscite on prohibition of the liquor traffic was taken September 25, 1919, and the votes polled gave the following results:—

	For.	Against.
Ontario	154,498	115,784
Quebec	28,433	122,760
Nova Scotia	34,678	5,370
New Brunswick	26,319	9,575
Prince Edward Is.	9,461	1,146
Manitoba	12,419	3,978
British Columbia	5,731	4,756
N. W. Territories	6,235	3,524
Total	275,380	264,693

In 1902 the Ontario Legislature passed Premier Ross' bill for prohibition, but made its going into operation upon a ratifying vote of the provincial electors. The vote was taken December 4, 1902, with the following result:—

For new law	199,749
Against	103,548
Majority for	96,201

But the law required that 212,723 votes should be recorded in its favor, which number was equal to a majority of the votes cast at the preceding provincial general election; hence the law failed to be ratified.

Wheel-Mounted Sled.

Snow and ice are not perpetual in Alaska, popular belief to the contrary, and while dog sleds are commonly used during the colder months, they are of no value in the summer, when the ground lacks its covering of white, says Popular Mechanics. This latter fact led a resident of the territory to invent a conveyance to be drawn by his dog team during the warm months. A sled of Indian design was mounted on four small bicycle wheels, and a steering column and wheel from an automobile were connected to the front axle. The dogs, hitched in the usual manner, draw the wheel-mounted sled.

UNDREAMED-OF RICHES COME TO MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN IN WONDERFUL OIL FIELDS IN LONE STAR STATE.

BY Charles W. Barton.
Assistant Publisher of The Morning Telegraph.

When I boarded the train for Texas a month ago I was somewhat skeptical about the reports of the fabulous wealth which was coming to oil investors in Texas. I was prepared to meet a lot of smooth-talking, silvery-tongued oil stock salesmen. To say the least, I expected that the oil men that I was to meet would show me the bright side of the oil business and put their best foot forward. Thus I was prepared to discount about 100 per cent. of what they told me and take what I saw with a grain of salt.

After having spent this month in going over the oil fields, my greatest worry is that if I tell the actual truth—the bare, cold facts—I will be considered a candidate for the presidency of the Ananias Club, or, speaking in the vernacular, the best liar east of the Mississippi.

I am told that in the town of Ranger a year ago there was hardly a man in the town who had a bank account of $5,000. Today there are probably twenty-five who have a bank account of $5,000,000. Millionaires are so common that nobody thinks anything about them.

Everybody seems to have plenty of money, even drillers making $12 and $15 per day.

Men and women have gone to sleep at night only to awake in the morning to find themselves multi-millionaires, because they have struck oil.

With modern machinery consuming an ever increasing amount of oil, and with England, France and Italy and all foreign nations calling upon us for more and more oil, the demand is sure to exceed the supply for a long time to come. Texas is the Aladdin of the world and opportunities there are greates than ever before.

Frankly, I must confess, that I expected to find a lot of crooks in the oil business. All my early training had taught me to shun an oil investment as I would a snake.

However, I must say that in my opinion the great majority of Western companies are absolutely on the level. I never met a finer class of people in my life than the men who are putting out these Western companies. There is no need for an oil company to be crooked. There is an inexhaustible supply of oil in Texas and there is so much money to be made by simply being fair and square that it is not worth while to be dishonest.

Jump on a train and go down and see for yourself, as I did, the wonderful opportunities which are open in every line of business in Texas towns set joining the oil fields. Talk with the hotel boy of a month ago, who today is a multi-millionaire. Talk with the ingrate who invested $300 and today is worth over a million and owns her own oil well and is getting richer every minute.

A man goes out and buys a lease in territory in which geologists have told him he should strike oil. He needs twenty-five to fifty thousand dollars to erect a derrick and drill a well, depending on the depth to which he must dig before he strikes oil. In some sections the oil lies in shallow fields, and in other sections he must dig much deeper. Barring accidents, such as drilling a crooked hole and having a gusher destroy the derrick, delay in getting materials because of lack of transportation, within about thirty to sixty days he knows whether he strikes oil or has a dry hole. It doesn't take much brains to drill a well right next to another which is a producer, and strike oil; and if the company's holdings are in a producing territory where geologists state there is oil, the investor has more than an even chance to make a fortune. From the New York Telegraph.

FACTS AND FIGURES, WHAT THE DRILLING RECORDS SHOW.

When an oil man decides to change operations into a field that is new to him, the first thing he does is to study the drilling records, the averages as applied to the new field. When you put your money into the oil business you should know the drilling records, what the percentages of the business are—for and against you.

Records for the month of March, show that there were 2584 wells drilled. Only 417 were dry. In April there were 2200 drilled—only 467 were dry. In the Mid-Continent fields, including Kansas, Oklahoma and North Texas, month of May, 1994 wells were drilled—229 only were dry. In June 1417 were drilled, with only 262 dry. In North Central Texas alone, 401 wells were drilled, in the month of June. Of these 70 were dry. In May there were 283 wells drilled in North Texas with only 57 dry holes. Do you call that a gamble? Yet one good oil well will pay for a dozen dry holes What matter if you do get one dry hole to every four oil wells?

50 Per Cent. FOR DIVIDENDS

Royal Oil Wells, Limited, is permanently pledged to the policy of substantial dividends—not 3% or 4% or 10%, but a full half—50% of every dollar's worth of oil produced. Do you realize what this means to you? Oil companies frequently earn a full 50% on capital invested in the short period of 30 days, many of them have earned 100% in 30 days. But the stockholder don't get it. Royal Oil Wells, Limited, will be conducted on different lines. It is going to get what is earned it is going to keep it, and give it to you promptly. Thirty days after a well is drilled you will begin receiving dividends from the oil produced. If our first well is a thousand barrel well 500 barrels a day or $1,000 a day will go to our stockholders.

There will be no set dividend rate. The earnings of each month will be split 50-50. 50% for dividends—50% for expenses and additional wells.

On the basis of one-half of our stock outstanding a daily production of 1,000 barrels would net you approximately 12% monthly, 36% quarterly or 144% a year on every dollar invested. We can't guarantee you that you will make a million dollars over night, but we can, and do, guarantee you that you will get every penny to which you are honestly entitled, and that every possible net dollar invested by you will go directly into oil operations—the purchase and drilling of the very choicest drilling locations to be had IN THE HEART OF THE PROVEN, PRODUCING OIL FIELDS OF TEXAS AND OKLAHOMA.

FORTUNES IN OIL.

There is an inclination on the part of a certain class to question the fabulous fortune reports that are constantly coming to light. However, no one will question the fact that Mr. Charles W. Barton, who is one of the most respected and able journalists in the newspaper business.

As a matter of fact this page could be filled with condensed accounts of the unbelievable fortunes made in oil. Such stories come to light every hour of the day and yet not the half of them have been told. It is said of Tulsa, Oklahoma, that every member of the Chamber of Commerce is an oil millionaire, and that there are more than one hundred millionaires whose fortunes were made entirely through oil.

The oil business alone is open to the small investor as a possible fortune on a few hundred invested. It has been for years, and is today, the poor man's chance to accumulate large sums through moderate investments.

I take full personal responsibility for Royal Oil Wells, Limited, and tender you my personal guarantee that we will produce oil and pay dividends.

KINGSTON-SOLDIERS CLAIM MANY WERE LEFT OFF LISTS

KINGSTON, Oct. 23—The Kingston branches o ne G. W. V. A. and A. and X. veterans claim that five hundred soldiers and two hundred wives of soldiers, were unable to vote on the referendum here Monday as a result of their names not appearing on the registration lists. It is also claimed the soldiers who were ill in bed and unable to look after themselves when the registration was taking place, were overlooked by the enumerators. With the concurrence of the G. W. V. A. and X. veterans have sent the following telegram to Sir Wm. Hearst: "We strongly condemn the method by which the referendum was conducted in Kingston Monday and for your fallacy to put in force here for the soldier's proxy privilege made in Guelph. Hundreds of soldiers and their wives were robbed of their vote here, and we demand an immediate investigation."

PRINCE HAS CLEAR CARRYING VOICE

Everyone who has heard him has remarkable voice. It is clear, with great carrying powers, the enunciation is distinct. Every word is well defined. Very few public men possess a voice of such splendid speaking qualities. Without apparent effort he can make himself heard four and five hundred yards away.

The keenest critics of voice qualities, the soldiers who have listened to commands and speeches expressed through the medium of all sorts of voices of princes of the blood on days of high ceremony, are loud with emphasis in speaking ability of the Prince of Wales.

And further the Prince has a happy aptitude for choosing words of concise, direct and attractive meaning.

What phrase could be better than this "The Victory Loan is the bridge between war and peace."

The Prince of Wales has graciously consented to the use of his coat of arms, on a flag, which is to be the prize of honor for districts winning their quota in the loan. A flag will also be given to organizations of fifty or more employees.

"I hope every city and district will win my flag," says the Prince.

Fresh, northeast winds, probably increasing to strong by Tuesday, cool, with occasional rain to-day and on Tuesday.

LET THERE BE HARMONY IN THINGS ESSENTIAL—LIBERTY IN THINGS NOT ESSENTIAL—CHARITY IN ALL.

BELLEVILLE ONTARIO, MONDAY, OCTOBER 27, 1919.

Bells And Whistles Open Victory Loan Campaign

CHURCH BELLS AND FACTORY WHISTLES ANNOUNCE OPENING OF VICTORY LOAN DRIVE—G. W. V. A. FIRST TO SUBSCRIBE FOR CLEARING UP WAR'S OBLIGATIONS.

Bong, Bong, Bong, Bong, went the bells of the City Hall and Bridge Street Methodist Church, at 9 o'clock this morning to the accompaniment of railroad and factory whistles.

Mr. and Mrs. Belleville with Master and Miss Belleville poked their heads out of doors and decided to ring up central on the phone to find out if the town was burning down.

"The Victory Loan, I'm on," assured Central and they knew that at last their opportunity had arrived to do their duty to our returned soldiers and at the same time to help make Canada prosperous.

Immediately on the sound of the gong, as it were, forty-seven energetic canvassers buttoned up their coat collars and sallied forth into the drizzling rain. The splendid organization of the Hastings County Victory Loan, 1919 was in operation throughout the 1098 miles, length and 20 miles breadth of one of the largest and most patriotic counties of Old Ontario. Hastings, settled by United Empire Loyalists and hardy pioneers of the British Isles was again being called upon to do its part on a great national issue. Early indications show that, as before, it will not be found wanting.

By a strange paradox, the first to subscribe to this Loan by which returned soldiers are to be given a chance to re-establish their personal careers, were the returned soldiers themselves.

VETERANS SUBSCRIBED $2000

Just as the City Hall bell had finished tolling, Lieut. W. H. Finkle formerly of the 33rd Battery, C. F. A., a Belleville canvasser, walked into Victory Loan headquarters at 194 Front street, with Major R. D. Ponton, President of Belleville branch of the G. W. V. A.

"The Belleville veterans wish to subscribe $2,000 to the Loan," said Major Ponton.

Knowing that they could find no better investment in the world with such an attractive yield, local veterans voted that their funds be put into the Loan.

VERDICT ASSURED

Later in the day reports from all parts of the County indicated that the campaign is away to a good start and if the present rate is kept, Hastings County will exceed its last year's record of nearly $2,700,000. Although the day was wet and consequently bad for the country districts, returns show that farmers have been quietly waiting for the Loan and results are above expectations. This bear out the predictions of the county officials that although there is not the excitement of former campaigns, people have been saying little but—have been quietly getting ready to subscribe.

The same applies everywhere through out Canada. Early in the day, Mr. W. B. Evans, County Organizer, received a telegram from Mr. J. H. Gundy, Chairman of the Ontario Special Subscriptions Committee as follows:

"Verdict already in. Loan adjudged a great buy. Increases everywhere. First returns subscriptions at headquarters twenty-five million and last year only twelve million. Advances continue and thirty-six and a half million subscribed by the end of business hour year only eighteen million. Promises received ahead of campaign indicate remarkable response from Country. Up to you to increase subscriptions all along line to keep in the race."

BIG RALLY TO-NIGHT

Tonight the big mass meeting in the City Hall is something no one can afford to miss. The most interesting details of the country's financial condition and national plans will be set forth by speakers of note. The best entertainment to be had is being given by performers of theatrical fame. Speakers, entertainers and the City Hall are being given free. Admission is free. The meeting starts at 8 o'clock.

Similar meetings are being held at all centres throughout the County where different canvassing districts are making a friendly rivalry of it, in order to be the first to win the Prince of Wales Honor Flag which is awarded to canvassing districts when they attain their objective.

On every morning of the campaign bulletins showing daily results are to be posted up over the town which will give everyone a chance to see how the different districts are getting along.

Three Lives Lost In Storm On St. Lawrence

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

QUEBEC, Oct. 27.—Three men lost their lives in a storm on the St. Lawrence River, twenty-five miles from Quebec harbor, during the night of Friday and Saturday, and a fourth victim was rescued unconscious after being lashed to the mast of the vessel for the entire night.

Pierre Dion, aged seventy, an old navigator, was taking his schooner down from Quebec to the Island of Orleans. He had with him his two nephews. The old man was at the rudder, and near a point off Lauzon a squall suddenly sprang up and the boat went down. The crew took to the life boat, but huge waves struck the rowboat and broke her into kindling. The younger sailor managed to reach the schooner again and was rescued next morning.

Cow Caused Wreck Young Man Killed

KINGSTON, Oct. 25.—One young man, James Anderson, 18 years old, of Mud Lake, was killed and an older man, A. D. Rocheford, of Smith's Falls was seriously injured as a result of a peculiar accident on the C. P. R. at Mud Lake on Thursday.

The men were riding in some empty cars on the east bound way freight, these cars being ahead of the engine. When about half a mile west of Crow Lake station the train hit a cow that was crossing the track with the result that the empty cars piled up on the engine.

Young Anderson and Mr. Rocheford—the latter a brakesman—were in one of the empty cars at the time, and the former was buried completely under the ruins of the car. Rocheford escaped with serious injuries and was immediately removed to Smith's Falls. He has a wife and two children. The dead youth had a sister, Gladys, in Perth.

Baptists Welcome Times Challenge In Christian Life

OTTAWA, Oct. 27.—"Our worship here is full, sane, reverent, but irreverent. It lacks pep, and awe and power," declared Rev. Dr. W. T. Graham, of Toronto, addressing the Baptist convention here in a message to Twentieth Century Christians.

"There is too much hustle and bustle of the mob," he continued. Dr. Graham. "Our worship lacks dignity and strength and never will be right until we get the right conception of God. We want to educate our people to see the Lord, God, high and lifted up. If we impress the holiness of Him the people will be pushed into awe."

Dr. Graham declared the great need is often today was a message to the conscience. Only by such a message could man be crippled and held.

Need Organization Clubs.

The task of the Church required above all organization clubs. Boxing gloves and bun feeds, declared Dr. Graham, would not do. These must be placed carefully in their right places. It was the little things that left the Baptist people divided. Were the Church to undertake big things, which had priority over selfishness, there would be greater harmony.

"You can bring in any motion you like," said Dr. Graham, "and if it is something small and insignificant the people will divide; if it's something big and really great the people will unite."

Drawing an inspiring word picture of Canada's manhood rising to heroic heights in the hour of national peril, Dr. Graham asked: "Why could not we have captured that great manhood for Christ?" He answered the question by saying that we were not appealing to the heroic; we were not doing the big things that unite people."

British Press On Labour Situation

LONDON, Oct. 2.—Morning newspapers give a large amount of space to the American labor crisis and parallels are drawn with the present situation here. The Atlantic and industrial events in Britain since the first of the year.

The general resemblance is remarked, says the Chronicle which suggests some profound underlying rythm in cessation of labor unrest. We fear President Wilson's illness will make it extremely difficult for him to meet the demands of the situation.

The Daily News remarks upon the coincidence of the strike in the American bituminous field which was announced on the same day that the British miners began their campaign for the nationalisation of mines at a meeting held at Manchester.

As far as American workers are aiming at reasonable improvement in the standard of living this coincidence is a satisfactory one says the newspaper. The imminence of the labor conference at Washington has a direct effect upon this object as conference will be able to recognize the urgency of the problem and evolve some policy tending to its solution.

The labor organ Herald says "The second industrial revolution is now taking place, the first deposing a man of his individuality and sends him part of a machine to manufacture profits; the second is an organized co-operative movement to restore individuality and insure a man the results of his own labor and of his master's machine, that is the explanation of the American unrest and of a similar unrest in our country.

Beck Is Unlikely To Be Selected As U.F.O. Premier

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

TORONTO, Oct. 27.—The number of men left in the running for the Premiership of the United Farmers and the Premiership of Ontario was five when the Farmers' conference broke up on Thursday night, to be resumed next Wednesday. Of the five, all were farmers, but one. That one was Sir Adam Beck, the Hydro knight.

The indications are that the choice is narrowing down to three as the result of eliminating two of the Farmers. That leaves Beck and two Farmers, neither of whom is a member of the House or a man of parliamentary experience, as the possible leader of the U. F. O. Government. It would not be surprising if the next step in the process of elimination would be the dropping of the name of Beck and a final decision between the two Farmers one of whom is E. C. Drury and the other man a "dark horse," who has not been mentioned in the newspapers as a possible leader, but who is regarded as having to a marked degree the qualities making for sane and safe leadership.

The stable boys at Epsom racecourse England, struck on Saturday for a minimum pay of 50 shillings weekly.

President Wilson's Cabinet has decided to call a new conference to continue the efforts to establish industrial peace.

Six Sinn Feiners including two members of the House of Commons have escaped from Strangeway Jail at Manchester.

Representatives of fifteen Toronto and Ontario firms waited all last night at the Toronto offices of the Victory Loan Committee to present their claims this morning to the Prince of Wales' honor flags.

It is, of course, impossible to set aside the conveyance from Ketcheson. So far as the action affects that issue, it is absolutely without foundation. It may be added that neither Simpson nor Mrs. Butland at any time did or act which would constitute either an executor de son tort of deceased. OTTAWA, Oct. 27.—Eyes of Ministers and Members of Parliament are turned today in the direction of five federal constituencies where by-elections are in progress. From the stand-point of the Government chief interest naturally centres in the contest at Victoria, B.C., where Hon. Mr. Tolmie, Minister of Agriculture, is seeking re-election, and is opposed by a returned soldier running under labor auspices. Advices from the Coast have been to the effect that the fight has been a warm one with the chances somewhat in favor of the new minister.

The election in Assiniboia where the Grain Growers candidate is being opposed by W. R. Motherwell, is being watched with interest and with the expectation that while Mother well may poll a big vote his opponent will win the contest with a considerable margin.

In view of the result in the County of Glengarry at the recent Provincial elections, when the U. F. O. candidate was elected by a large majority in a constituency here is to pick Wilfrid Kennedy, the farmer candidate, as favorite over Colonel Harvey Unionist. In Glengarry and Stormont, the Federal constituency is larger than the provincial and included the town of Cornwall and this may help the Unionist candidate in to-day's contest.

In Quebec East, the election of Mr. Ernest Lapointe, the Liberal candidate over F. Gadbois, his Liberal-Labis opponent, is regarded as practically certain. His defeat would occasion considerable surprise here.

The contest in Carleton, N.B., is extremely close between Colonel Melville, Unionist, and James Caldwell, United Farmer. The latter entered the field early and has the back of Liberal support, while Col. Melville entered the contest just previous to nomination day. Both sides have probably been considerably improved by the presence in the constituency during the week-end of Hon. Arthur Meighen, Hon. G. D. Robertson and Hon. F. E. Blondin.

In North Ontario where voting was to have taken place to-day voting has been postponed because of the death of Mr. James Cowan, Unionist candidate.

Captain Cooke Feels Fine, Now

Veteran Conductor Praises Tanlac For Overcoming His Troubles

"A few bottles of Tanlac has made me feel just like a new man," was the statement made by Capt. F. M. Cooke, residing at 144 East Winnifred St., St. Paul Man., recently. Captain Cooke has been a conductor on the Great Northern Railroad for fifteen years, and is one of the most popular men in the service of the Company.

"For years," continued Captain Cooke, "I suffered from stomach trouble and had scarcely any appetite and what little I ate disagreed with me so that I would become terribly nauseated. Gas would form on my stomach and affect my heart so I would hardly breathe. I had terrible headaches that would last for two or three weeks at a time and nearly drive me wild, and I would become so dizzy at times that I would have to grab hold of something to keep from falling. My nerves got in such bad shape I could sleep very little, and I would get up in the morning feeling dull and heavy and all run down.

"Nothing I tried seemed to do me any good, and I kept getting worse all the time. A few weeks ago some one suggested that I try Tanlac and I got a bottle and began taking it, and after taking two bottles I felt a great deal better. I have a fine appetite now, and what I eat agrees with me perfectly. Gas has quit forming in my stomach and I am not troubled with shortness of breath. I never have any more headaches or dizzy spells and can sleep fine, and get up in the morning feeling full of life and energy. I never felt better in my life, and feel at least ten years younger. I am truly grateful for what this Tanlac has done for me."

Tanlac is sold in Belleville by Strom's Drug Store, in Trenton by J. H. Dickey, in Deseronto, by W. J. Maller, in Stirling by J. S. Morton, in Madoc by J. Will Vicars, in Marysville by T. J. McAlpine, in Ormsby by Jas. Campbell, and in Thomasburg by J. H. Blakley.

Called By Death

JOHN H. WILMOT

SPOKANE, Wash., Oct. 25.—John H. Wilmot, a native of Belleville, Ontario, and a pioneer resident of Spokane, is dead here. He came to the Power City in 1890 after completing a term of service in the Royal Northwest Mounted Police and was the medal of the 1885 campaign. His troop captured Louis Riel, leader of the rebellion.

The late Mr. Wilmot engaged in business in Spokane and won and gave away several fortunes. With the free-handed generosity characteristic of the best west of the day he staked prospectors, aided friends, donated largely to public enterprises of every description, was prominent in lodge life and in general was numbered among the leading residents of the city. He also grew from a town of 20,000 to a modern city of 135,000. He had been a member of the Elks order for 25 years and the obsequies were under the auspices of this fraternity.

FRANCIS SCANTLEBURY

There passed peacefully away at his home on College Hill at 8.30 this a.m. an old and honored resident in the person of Francis Scantlebury. He was a brother arrived in Belleville on June 3rd, 1857, having since that time constantly resided in Belleville. Mr. Scantlebury was a Cornishman, born and reared in the valley of the Tamer River, about four miles from the City of Plymouth. He was a builder, having constructed many homes in Belleville. He retired about twenty-five years ago. He has passed to the ripe age of nineteen years, leaving to mourn his widow, and one son, Mr. C. B. Scantlebury. Mrs. Scantlebury is one of the old time honored residents of this city, and he leaves many loving friends.

Death Notice

SCANTLEBURY.—On Monday, Oct. 27th, at 8.30 a.m., at his late residence, College Hill, Francis B. Scantlebury, aged 91 years, 9 months.

Funeral Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 29th. Service at residence, College Hill, 2 o'clock. Interment at Belleville Cemetery.

TIMES HAVE CHANGED.

The Trips of Columbus and the R-34 Contrasted.

They had to bribe men in the early and adventurous days of Columbus to ship for the first Atlantic trip. Sailing towards the edge of a perfectly flat earth had no particular charms, even for criminals and "broken men" who were offered immunity if they would go. Life imprisonment, or solitary confinement had less than high adventure terminated at any moment by a sudden, cataclysmic finish.

That was 427 years ago. Now there is no need to bid for criminals to man the first Atlantic trips in the air. They had to turn men away from the crew of the R-34, on the first voyage by lighter-than-air machine, and even then one runaway got himself aboard and made the trip. The idea was to keep the tremendous dirigible as light as possible. And so, with all this eagerness for flying, the R-34's crew was smaller than the crew of the Santa Maria, which consisted of 53 ignorant and superstitious people.

Why they went, when on the three ships together, the Encyclopedia Britannica says, there were 88 men, 52 on the sailing ship Santa Maria, with Columbus commanded himself, and 18 apiece on the two little Pinta and Nina.

It took that small, bobbing Spanish fleet just seventy days to make its trip and the R-34's took only two and a half; and one might suppose that the crew of Columbus had been more tedious, and the shorter, flying one, more ridiculous and joyful. But the diaries of two individuals, one on each, as at all representative, there was no leader in the flight of the dirigible to compare with that which stood about on every side on the Santa Maria, the Pinta and the Nina. Columbus wrote in the one dictated by Las Casas, and Lieut. J. G. Shotter, the engineer officer of the R-34 kept the other. And the impression gleaned from the latter one is that tremendous crossings in the air will be too utterly boring to be endured unless some unusual and diverting form of recreation be brought by. Of Lilas reminiscences of the ocean itself can hardly be seen, says he, and it is a weary life above the fog and clouds. There was a wonderful sunrise one morning, though with cloud reflections of a surprising kind. "This would at least be a little distraction from the cloudy monotony for prospective passengers on transatlantic voyages," says he, with a gleam of hope.

It was different, and very wonderful, at least for Columbus himself, who had an eye out for the roundness of the earth, from August 3 to October 12, in 1492. Even the recurrent disappointments about land, even those multiswearing sailors (for whom the leader went so great pains to amount to fear) could not dispel the awe and wonderment of the nights and days or the "almost" human brightness of the things which happened. Extraordinary things, as the trouble was, before that the earth was flat. Even the compass, in Columbus's theory to be proved.

In the first place there was the compass. It acted peculiarly—more peculiarly than any one had supposed it would on the simple voyage out to Asia. It was on September 13 that the Pinta reported that "the magnetic needle" was noticed, and "from then on it went northwest, and the malcontents could not dull the radiance of that thing. Next day some odd and splendid thing occurred. A meteor fell on September 15 and only four or five leagues away. Then there were the vast plains of seaweed which the Sargasso. And the weather was sweet and balmy, like, of October said, "an Andalusian April," with only the song of the nightingale absent to make the day perfect.

On the 28th there were birds and a low ridge of cloud. But the real cries of land did not come until October 7, when the Pinta picked up a cane, a pole and a stick which seemed to be carved with a knife, a board and a branch covered over with berries. The Pinta picked up all of them breathed and were glad.

There was a demonstration of thankfulness and joy when once they got to land which only men of Southern Europe could have staged. They went and there prayed and planted banners for the Catholic monarchs of Castile and of Leon, and for themselves. The R-34 came from Britain to America, where were no roars nor knockings, so far as has been told. Nor were any flags planted. However, the work was well done in Anglo-Saxon way, to relieve the monotony and the bore, was done which attends this flying above the fog.

How odd that men were so afraid in those timorous days to take a trip of so much wonder; so eager now to go tediously above the clouds. Fear and wonder gone from the human skin. One's only regret is that the diaries of two individuals, one in fear and kept the wonder, was in circumstances to keep a diary of his own!

Little Autumn Bride Entertains Sextette

Six Girl Friends Meet for the First Time Since the End of the War.

The September bride was giving a tea to the five girls who had been her best friends for years. The six of them had been known as "The Sextette" and had been inseparable until the war.

The little captain was just back from the war, and Dot had married him as soon as he was discharged.

Of the six, Mary had suffered most heavily as her husband had been killed in action leaving her and her little baby alone and with few cares.

Dora had completed her training as a nurse and was doing splendid work in one of the big military hospitals. Alive was a "green sister" and was turning her knowledge of basketry to good account in the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment.

Kathleen, whose lover had gone overseas as early in the war, had been the stay-at-home of the crowd.

Anne was a business girl, and came in, her eyes sparkling from her walk in the crisp autumn air.

"Oh, isn't this heavenly," she ejaculated as she sunk into a chair. "Dot, you ought to be so glad you have a home so we can all get together again."

"I am," said the September bride, with glowing face. "Not for that reason entirely though."

"What is doing up town?" asked one of the group. "I feel as if I am out of the world when I don't go up town once in a while."

"Well, the town is getting pretty busy," answered Anne. "You know the Victory Loan starts next week, and the hive is humming already."

"Anne ought to know a lot about it as she works in a broker's office," said Dot as she poured out the tea into the pretty fragile cups.

"I am finding out a lot about it every day," replied the business girl. "You'd be surprise at how many reasons there are why this loan should be a smashing success."

"I just know one personally," said the little bride. "It is needed to pay for bringing my boy home to me."

"Demobilization," stated Anne. "Exactly. Everyone wants the boys back as soon as the armistice was signed, and Canada did her best and got them across in marvellously quick time, considering the number there were. Now the expense of it all has to be met."

"I know that the hospitals have to be kept up for a long time yet," said the nursing sister. "I know that have been wounded and broken in health even much care and that they are looking to Canada to give them back their health if possible."

The doctors and nurses must be paid, and the hospital equipment maintained, and it all takes money. I should think the Victory Loan of 1919 would be needed for that."

"A second good reason," said Anne. "Consider the soldiers in hospitals."

"For my part I feel that the boys who are getting better need a lot of attention," said the "green sister," "and I'm sure such a lot can be done for them that cannot go back to the old life that they had on account of a leg or arm, and they are worrying about what will happen to them when they get out of hospital."

"True, now you have hit a good reason," Anne smiled. "It is to help these very boys that the loan is to go through, Canada is undertaking to train every man that has been crippled or otherwise disabled so he cannot resume his pre-war occupation, so that he can earn his own living. And the department says that it that he gets a position when his training is completed. We must help our money to give these boys a chance."

"They lost their limbs for us," said the war widow softly.

"Mary, dear, you are one of the very best reasons why every cent of the loan must be raised," said Anne, giving a loving glance at the black-clad figure. "All the dependents of our glorious dead must be provided for. Think, girls, all the wives and babies and mothers that are finding it hard to make ends of meet. We must think of them, and help them, too, secularly."

"It's a reason, too," said Kathleen. "Harry wants to go on a farm. You should see him laugh if you think he would make a dandy farmer's wife, but he says the Government will help him enough money to buy and stock a farm. He will have twenty years to pay for it, and the rate of interest is low. He says there are 25,000 returned men who want to go on the land."

"That's a fine reason," said Alice. "Besides helping the returned soldiers it will help to establish a big production and that is badly needed all the time."

"Now you have touched a reason that I can talk about," said Anne, the business girl. "You see, girls, Canada depends on selling the surplus products of the farm and also the factories to allied countries, especially Great Britain. Now, unless Canada has enough money to give credit to these countries they won't buy from us at all. If England gives credit to her for food stuffs and her manufactured materials, just what we have it would mean. Our factories would close down and men would be out of work—"

"Oh, Anne, don't! That is too awful to think about," said the bridal bereaved bride. "I still have two cheques that were wedding gifts, and I am going right down Monday and put them into Victory Bonds."

"That's fine," said Anne. "It will be a sure way to get it back, and you'll get such a nice lot of interest. I hope I get a Victory Bond for a Christmas present myself."

When a Doctor Goes Wooing.

"I think she loves me," said the young doctor.

"I see she lets you hold her hand," said the friend, "and when I do her pulse seems considerably accelerated."

IMPROVES APPETITE.

A Study of Weather and Business Has Many Surprises.

Watch what you eat the next time it rains or snows. Perhaps you think the weather takes away your appetite. It doesn't. It makes you eat more. The American Magazine explains what weather does to the restaurant business. The writer says:—

"A study of the weather and business has its surprises. For instance, restaurant men know that appetites are not the same on a dark, gloomy day as on a day that is bright and cheerful. Natural enough. The surprising fact is that they eat most on the day that is dark and dismal.

"'On a cloudy day,' an old restaurant man tells me, 'people just sit and eat. There is nothing else to do. On a nice day they eat less and hasten out into the open. But the less they eat the more particular they are about the quality.

"Not so long ago a young woman opened a good little restaurant over the Department of Agriculture, in Washington. Most of her customers are employes of that department. She does a big business every day, but the rush is greatest when the day is the stormiest. On a fine day her trade is near-by buildings with its restaurants farther away, just for the exercise.

"No one knows just how much business is affected by the subtle influence of weather on human temperament. Dentists find that patients are inclined to be slow to make appointments and quick to break them on cloudy days. A cloudy day is depressing to many persons, and they lack the nerve to face the ordeal of having their teeth cobbled. Then, again, there is the fact that dentists' trade helps the trade of doctors. A lot of people whose spirits are dampened by the weather think that if they go to a doctor and purchase an expensive prescription they will feel a great deal better."

In Memoriam

STAPLEY—In loving and constant memory of my dear husband and our loving father, Robert Stapley, who left us one year ago today:

Gently the stars are shining down on his silent grave,
Where lies our dear loved one sleeping,the one we loved but could not save.
We often sit and think of him when we are all alone,
For memory is the only thing that brief can call its own.
More and more each day we miss him,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow that lies within our hearts concealed.

Memorial Service For Fallen Heroes

Handsome Memorial Shield Unveiled in St. Andrew's Church.

At St. Andrew's Church on Sunday afternoon a memorial service was held the object being to unveil a Memorial Shield in memory of the brave boys of that church who gave their lives for King and Country during the war.

The body of the shield is hardwood and the face is adorned with twelve bronze maple leaves which bear the names of those who made the supreme sacrifice. Across the top of the shield is a plate bearing these words:

"Our Church, Sunday School, War Memorial, Our Country."

Below are the maple leaves bearing the following names:

Captain W. H. Hudson.
Captain E. Hyman.
Private F. E. Mallory.
" A. Mallory.
" W. Craig.
" J. McGlashon.
" G. Matthews.
" P. Matthews.
" J. Miller.
" W. J. Gibson.
" J. C. Gibson.
" A. Templeton.

Rev. A. S. Kerr, pastor of the church presided and associated with him in the pulpit was Rev. Dr. Wilson, janitor of Chalmers' Presbyterian Church, Kingston, and Mr. Wm. McIntosh, superintendent of the Sunday School. The scholars of the school occupied the front pews of the church. Hymns, two of which were given out by Mr. McIntosh, were in keeping with the service.

After the singing of two hymns, prayer, and the reading of the lesson, Mr. W. J. Campbell, clerk of the Church Session, came forward and unveiled the tablet which was draped with a Union Jack. The dedicatory prayer was as follows:

"In the name of the Session and Sunday School of St. Andrew's Church we dedicate this shield to the glory of God and the memory of these who gave their lives for the sacred cause of liberty."

Miss Anna Ponton then sang in her usual sweet voice "In Flanders' Field."

Rev. A. S. Kerr in his remarks referred to the shield as representing the Sunday School and individuals who gave for the same. The names of the twelve young men engraven there. O. candidate in Grenville riding, P. gave their lives for King and country and the shield was to commemorate their deeds.

Rev. Dr. Wilson, of Kingston, gave a most appropriate and instructive address. The tragedy of the war, he said, was well known. In Flanders field the epitaphs might read "For your tomorrow we gave our today." None ever went for a more just, a nobler or a higher ideal than did the brave boys who enlisted. It was for the sake of tomorrow, for a better country and a nobler nation they went forth and made the sacrifice, for something that ought to be, not what is. The object they aimed for was not accomplished without pain and loss. In a critical hour they did their duty. The Canada they went from is not the same as when they left. They did much to change it in many respects. They fought for Canada, and 60,000 sleep in Flanders' fields. There is a new idealism in Canada today. It is the bringing of the gospel of the first century to bear on the lives of the twentieth century. There is a demand for a new sense of reality. It is a day that demands that a man must be whole man. There was something in the hearts of the boys that told them they must be soldiers. They went into the war and endured hardships, for what? For a better country. The boys did not know much about co-operation, they believing that their battalion was the only battalion. But they learned soon that the war had to be won by co-operation, by the co-operation of infantry, batteries, and other branches of warfare, including the medical corps and nurses. From the war we learn that co-operation is an element necessary to success. They had a clear cut objective and they ultimately reached it. The church must learn to have an objective, as the army had. Have co-operation and we shall achieve what the army achieved —a glorious victory. As the boys were loyal to their commanders, so must the church be loyal to the captain of our salvation. They were in earnest and in the church we should not be afraid to be in earnest. The boys played the game. Let the church follow their example. We do our duty in the church too often in a mathematical manner. Let us catch the vision of co-operation and go forward to service and sacrifice.

The service closed by the singing of hymn, and the benediction pronounced by Rev. Dr. Wilson.

APPLIES FOR RECOUNT

Brockville, Ont., Oct. 27.—An application for the Arthur Payne, the U. F. candidate in Grenville riding, P. for a recount. Hon. G. Howard Ferguson has been declared elected by a majority of 105. It transpires that 250 ballots from the riding as a whole were returned unmarked. The date of the recount has not been fixed but will probably be next Wednesday, Judge Dowsley, senior county judge in Prescott fixing the date.

CONVICT WOMAN OF MURDER

Leland, Mich., Oct. 27.—Mrs. Stanislaw Lypchinski charged with the slaying twelve years ago at Lardner near here, of Sister Mary Jorn, a Polician nun, was convicted of murder in the first degree by a jury in Circuit Court here this morning.

Reconstruction and Telephone Service.

After-war conditions, and the telephone

TELEPHONE service, like other public services, undoubtedly suffered through the war.

Hundreds of skilled telephone workers went overseas. Many trained operators sought temporary positions in munition plants. There was a world shortage of the materials that go to build a telephone system. Our reserves of plant and equipment were drawn upon until they were practically exhausted. Necessary repairs and maintenance work had to wait.

Then came the armistice. The business world sprang into intense activity. The demand for new installations all over our system was enormous.

Now comes the task of getting back to normal—restoring our reserve plant, overtaking arrears of maintenance and repairs, hurrying new construction of local and long distance equipment to meet pressing demands for service.

Our plans for this year involve an outlay for extensions and replacements of over $7,000,000. We are giving intensive training in our operators' schools to hundreds of young women to prepare them for central office positions.

Our chief concern is that our subscribers should get the best possible service under all conditions. Skilled workers, adequate equipment, a resolve to do our best, while realizing that we are all servants of the public—these are the factors which, we hope, will result in the maintenance of the pre-war standard of telephone service.

And we ask the kindly co-operation of all telephone users in—

Making sure of the number by consulting the directory before calling;

Speaking distinctly, directly into the mouthpiece;

Answering promptly when the bell sings.

U. F. O. PLATFORM.

The platform of the U. F. O., which they used to get in on, and may use to "carry on" in, is largely based on the principle of economical government. Some of the planks are highly controversial and would meet strong opposition in any Legislature. However, here is the condensed platform of the Farmers' party:

1. To cut out all expenditures that are not absolutely essential.

2. To abolish the system of party patronage.

To limit Governmental activity respecting commercial co-operation to legislation facilitating co-operative effort, to the keeping of accurate records, and to general education along co-operative lines.

4. To provide equal educational opportunities for all the children of all people by greatly extending and improving educational facilities in the rural districts.

5. To substitute for the policy of expensive Provincial Highways a policy of organized continuous road maintenance, and of making good roads for all rather than high-grade roads for a few, the cost of road construction and maintenance being equitably distributed between city and country.

6. To promote a system of forestry which will maintain and increase the public revenues from this source, protect and perpetuate our forest resources, reforest the waste places of Old Ontario, and encourage municipalities to engage in forestation enterprises.

7. To encourage and cheapen hydro-electric development and maintain effective public control over it.

8. To enact and enforce such prohibitory legislation against the liquor traffic as the people may sanction and as lies within the power of the Province. Prohibition is an integral part of the Farmer's platform, and the United Farmers will use its influence in that direction.

9. To extend the policy and practice of direct legislation through the initiative and the referendum.

10. To apply the principle of proportional representation to our electoral methods.

OTTAWA ECHOES OF ONTARIO ELECTION.

The political earthquake in Ontario has produced tremors even on Parliament Hill at Ottawa, according to Tom King, who records the doings and saying of the nation's representatives at the capital for the Toronto World. Says he:

When Louis XVI. learned that an aroused people had taken the Bastile he spoke of the affair as a "revolt," but a later man standing near repelled, "Sire, it is a revolution." When the news first came of the Ontario election, the statesmen on Parliament Hill were inclined to treat it as a local affair, a temporary disaster; they are now beginning to fear that it portends a political revolution. Many of them are like a shipwrecked crow on a lonely island. Sooner or later they must make some sort of a raft and trust themselves to the mercy of a treacherous sea. Sooner or later, and probably sooner than some suspect, they will be brought face to face with a general election.

Liberals and Conservatives alike are aghast at the growing power of the farm and labor parties. These new stars on the political stage are chasing the old performers to the wings. It is significant that in the six by-elections to be held three old parties nowhere face each other in combat. It is farmers, not the Liberals, who oppose the government in Glengarry, North Ontario and Carlton, N.B. It is a labor candidate, not a government candidate that is contesting the election of Ernest Lapointe in East Quebec, and a farmer candidate, not a government candidate who opposes Mr. Motherwell in Assiniboia. Finally, in Victoria, B.C., the Minister of Agriculture finds himself opposed, not by the Liberal party, but by a labor candidate.

GREAT VICTORY LOAN DRIVE.

Early this morning an army of canvassers stretching from the Atlantic to the Pacific set out to battle. They were the great Canadian Victory Loan troops and they had the big objective "three hundred million dollars" to take. In the taking of this strategic amount depends to a great extent the continued prosperity of the Dominion of Canada. Every citizen in the country can do more than just wait—but one can assist in the victory, can aid this army to go "over the top."

Canadians never lost a gun, and never failed to take an objective. That was in France. Will Canadians in Canada not measure up to the standard set over there?

The Minister of Finance of the Dominion of Canada offers for sale $50,000,000 in gold bonds. These bonds are in four denominations—$50, $100, $500, $1000, and are offered at par. The interest, which is at the rate of 5½ per cent., is payable every six months without charge at any chartered bank. The bonds are issued in two maturities of 5 years and 15 years just as the subscriber prefers. Payment may be made in full at the time of application or in instalments at any chartered bank. The instalments are as follows: 10 per cent. at the time of application, 20 per cent. on December 9, 1919, 20 per cent. on January 9, 1920, 20 per cent. on February 10, 1920, and 31.21 per cent. on March 9. This last payment is made up of the balance of the principal and interest at 5½ per cent. from November 1 on the instalments. The first interest will be paid on May 1 when a full half year's interest will be forthcoming to all.

The outstanding feature of this Victory Loan is that "every dollar will be spent in Canada." The fact that none of the money will go out of the country will be a welcome bit of news to all, for this assures Canada a continuance of the splendid prosperity she has enjoyed for some time.

The money from the Victory Loan is to be used to finish defraying the expenses of demobilization, to keep up the military hospitals, to re-establish soldiers in civil life and to establish credits with overseas countries so that they may purchase Canada's goods. The Victory Loan is the connecting link between the war and the peace that is to remain, let's hoped, forever.

NOT AFRAID OF U. F. O.

The Toronto Mail and Empire (Conservative) discusses the duties and responsibilities of the U.F.O. as a governing force frankly as follows:

"The public know nothing of the proceedings at the meeting of the United Farmers of Ontario this week, and are awaiting with interest the announcement of the name of the man who is to be the U. F. O. leader in the House. It is possible a leader has been already settled upon and that time has been given to him to consider the matter. At any rate it looks as if the Farmer members are going about the business of selecting a leader very carefully. A great deal depends upon the choice that is made. In the interests of the U. F. O., in the interests of agriculture and in the interests of the province, we hope the choice will be a good one. Attention to the welfare of one industry is certainly a good qualification for political service in Ontario. Except in the case of the narrow-minded man it cannot disqualify anyone for doing justice to the other economic interests of the province and forwarding the well-being of the people generally. In this agricultural province there is no reason why a good farmer might not prove himself the equal of the men who have distinguished themselves in the administration of our public affairs. The U. F. O. have our best wishes for success in the selection, and we hope they will have a leader who will give them the right kind of guidance. So far the elected Farmers carry the honors of victory modestly. They have kept out of the limelight, they have done no boasting and have not been self-assertive. In their ranks there has been no such exposure of lack of self-control as the Liberal leader showed when he in effect demanded that the Lieutenant-Governor hasten to call upon him to form a Government. This leader of 26 members elect ignored the 44 members composing the U. F. O. contingent or he had the effrontery to speak as if they were pretty sure to come to his heel.

"The U. F. O. members have so far borne themselves as if they had a full sense of their responsibility and saw the need of properly organizing themselves to grapple with that responsibility. In some quarters apprehension was, perhaps not unnaturally, expressed lest the preponderance of a class party in the Assembly might mean class policy in the conduct of Government.

"We believe the Farmers are broad-minded enough to carry on in office as citizens and not simply as farmers. Assuredly the holding of power will have a tendency to enlarge the views of men who may have been rather vocational than civic in their outlook.

"The task of holding office and increasing familiarity with the public business of the Province and with the diverse objects of public policy will have an expanding effect upon the minds of men of any calling, and the farmer is not more insular in his habits of thought than is the typical citizen of any other occupation."

Where It Belongs.

By the election on Monday of W. H. Ireland, Mayor of Trenton, to the Ontario Legislature, the honor comes back to Trenton, where it rightly belongs. This fact was generously recognized by many people in Belleville who supported the candidature from Trenton in preference to their own fellow-citizen. Mr. Ireland's, opponent was, it is true, given a good majority in Belleville, but that was not unexpected. Trenton rolled up a magnificent majority for its popular citizen. That majority would have been larger had not a number of prohibitionists voted for the "Four Noes" man, ignoring the fact that his leader, H. H. Dewart, had the support of the great majority of those people of the province most strongly opposed to prohibition, while on the other hand Sir William Hearst, who goes down to defeat because of such inconsistent voting, has done the cause of prohibition greater harm than any other Canadian statesman.

No better testimonial than lives in the town of Trenton than W. H. Ireland. His attitude on the prohibition question should have left no doubt in the minds of the men and women of West Hastings as to advocating prohibition. Yet not a few preferred to pin their faith on the promises of his opponent rather than the actual performances of Ontario's prohibition Premier who lost many votes among his own party, and power as Prime Minister of the Dominion, since he has proved himself too few W. H. Irelands in the Legislature to support him in progressive legislation.

In Praise of Patriotism.

(London Morning Post)

Patriotism is the instinct of survival in association. It is necessary to the existence of the nation—and not only to the existence of the nation but the existence of the individuals who compose it. It is an instinct—probably the strongest instinct in the world. For the instinct of patriotism drove men to face certain risk of death, not in single spies, but in battalions, in droves, in myriads. Yet this instinct, as it lies asleep in the heart in normal times, is unsuspected by our modern philosophers who would have us believe that the dominant motives of life are those of philanthropy, altruism. Yet such true, strong in peace, broke like flax in the fire before the instinct which drove men out to fight for the survival of their nation—the organised community in which, and by which, they lived.

Pulling Apart.

H. S. Arkell, Dominion Live Stock Commissioner, says our only security for the holding of the British market for bacon is in producing hogs to the limit. Then this man O'Connor comes along and threatens to prohibit the export of hog products altogether. Work Discovered.

The great railway strike may prove a blessing in disguise. It has brought to the high waier mark of post-war labor troubles in Great Britain as the Winnipeg strike did in Canada. Here there is evidence that men's minds are turning to work as a necessary and even a desirable thing.

DAUGHTER OF THE PHILISTINES

By LEONARD MERRICK

CHAPTER IX

As chapter by chapter, the novel grew under his hand, Kent saw, from the little back-window the snow disappear—and the bare trees grow green, till at last a fire was no longer necessary in the room and the waving fields that he overlooked were yellow with buttercups.

He rose at six now, and accomplished about three hours' work before Cynthia went down. Then they breakfasted, and, with an effort to throw some interest into her voice, she would inquire how he had been getting on. He probably felt that he had not been 'getting on' at all, and his response was not encouraging. Afterwards he would make an attempt to 'read the newspaper,' with his thoughts wandering back to his manuscript, and Cynthia had an interview with Ann. This interview ordinarily concluded before he returned to his desk, was generally reopened as soon as he took his seat, and for some unexplained reason the sequel usually occurred on the stairs. "Oh, what from the grocer's, ma'am." "So said so and so and so." "Yes, ma'am." "Oh, and—Ann!" "What do you say, ma'am" More instructions, interrupted by a prolonged summons at the tradesman's door, and the girl's rush to open it. "What is it, Ann?" "The fishmonger, ma'am." "Nothing this morning." "Nothing this morning," echoed by Ann; the boy's departing whistle. "Ann!" "Yes, ma'am." "Ask him how much a pound the salmon is to-day." "Hi! how much a pound's the salmon?" While Kent beat his fists on the desk, and swore. Once he had pitched his pen at the wall in a frenzy and dashed on to the landing to remonstrate; but he felt such a brute when Cynthia cried, and declared he had insulted her before the servant, and it had wasted so much of his morning, kissing her into serenity again that he decided it would hinder him less on the whole to bear the nuisance without complaint.

The ink-splashes on the wall paper testified to his having raged in private more than one occasion, however, and the superior person's feet appeared to him to grow heavier every week. The domestic machinery was in his ears from morning till nightfall—from the time she began to bang about the house for cleaning purposes to the hour that heard her rattle the last of the dinner things in the scullery and go to bed. It often seemed to him that it could not take much longer washing the plates and dishes supplied for a Lord Mayor's banquet than Ann took to wash those used for his and Cynthia's simple meals, and when, like the report of a cannon, she slammed the oven door, he yearned for his relinquished apartment in Soho as for a lost paradise.

Nor was this all. His wife was less companionable to him daily. Fifty times he had registered a mental oath that he would abandon his hope of cultivating her, and resign himself to her remaining what she was; but he had too much affection for her to succeed in doing it yet, and with every fresh endeavor and failure that he made his dissatisfaction was intensified. He burned to talk about his work, about other men's work to speak of his ambitions to laugh with someone over a witty article; instead their conversation was of Caesar, whose debut had been postponed till the autumn; of the engagement of Dolly Brown, whom he did not know, to young Styles, of Norwood, whom he had not met; of the laundress, who had formerly charged fourpence for a blouse, and who now asked five pence. When he pretended to be entertained she spoke of those things with animation. When he dropped the mask, her manner as well as her topics were dull, for she was as sensitive as she was uninteresting. Her wistful question, whether she had proved a disappointment frequently recurred to him, and his wounding her affected good spirits more often than he yawned; but the strain was awful and when he escaped from it as from a prison into a chair alone it was with the sense of exhaustion one feels after having been saddled for an afternoon with a talkative child. The cases in his desert were Turquand's visits but Turquand never came without a definite invitation. Streatham was a long distance from Soho, and there was always the risk of finding that they had gone to the Walfords'. It was necessary to book to Streatham Hill, besides, from the West End, and the service was appalling, with the delays at the stations and the stoppages between them, especially on the return journey, when the train staggered to a standstill at almost very hundred yards.

One evening when he dined them, Humphrey gave him some sheets of his manuscripts to read. He did not expect eulogies from Turquand, but he would rather have had to listen to intelligent disapproval than refrain from discussing the book any longer, and when the other praised the work he was delighted.

"You really think it good?" he asked. "Better than the last? You don't think they'll say I haven't fulfilled my promise? Honest Injun, you know."

"Seems very strong," said Turquand sucking his pipe. "No, I don't think you need tremble if these pages aren't the top strawberries. Rather Meredithian, that line about her eyes in the pause, isn't it? You remember the one I mean, of course?"

Kent laughed gaily.

"It came like that," he said. "Fact! Does it look like a deliberate imitation? Would you alter it? Oh, I say, talking of lines, I'm ill with envy. Occasionally a girl kissed from behind as she stretched to reach a honeysuckle, rent with a scream the sickly-colored, airless evening." The "sickly colored, airless evening." Isn't it admirable? What do you think of that for atmosphere? And he's got it with two adjectives. But the "honeysuckle" —the "honeysuckle" in conjunction with that "sickly-colored, airless"—it's perfect!"

"Whose?"

"Moore's. I opened the book the other day, and it was the first thing I saw. I had been hammering out a lane and a summer evening paragraph myself, and when I read that I knew there wasn't an "impression" in all my two hundred words."

"You shouldn't allow him to read, Mrs. Kent, while he has work on the stocks," said the journalist, "I know this sort of phase in your husband of old."

"Yes and you used to be very rude" put in Kent perfunctorily. "My wife isn't. I can be depressed now without being abused."

Cynthia laughed. She was very pretty where she lay back in the rocker by the window. Her face was drawn a trifle now, but she looked girlish and graceful still. She looked a wife whom any man might be proud to possess.

"You didn't mention it," she said I didn't know. But I don't see anything wonderful in what you quoted. I must say. Do you, Mr. Turquand I'm sure "sickly colored" doesn't mean anything at all."

"It means a good deal to me," answered Kent. "I'd give a fiver to have found that line."

Cherubic Youth Was 'Robber Gang'

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—A 17-year-old boy in the uniform of the United States navy consulted his carefully kept notebook in the War Risk police court. Then he told the judge, how on fifteen occasions enumerated there in since October 5, he had held up persons in Central Park at the point of a little .22 calibre revolver.

Of his victims—eleven men and four women—the only one who had inspired him with fear, he said, was a young lady who drew a hatpin and pursued him in a desperate half-mile chase among the ices and shrubs. His "gross earnings" in the "hold-up business" totalled no more than $33.25—and "the 25 cents was a war-savings stamp."

The magistrate pronounced the case the most astonishing he had ever heard, and informed the youth, Chas. Almeninger, that he looked more like a church choir boy than a highwayman. The boy blamed his downfall to the fact that he had been brought up in an orphan asylum.

Half a score of detectives have been searching Central Park for the footpads who have been holding up people there in unusual numbers since October 5, it was learned, when Almendinger was brought into court. Comparison of his notebook with the police records showed that he was "the robbers."

A few months ago he came back from Farnce, and later received 20 days' shore leave, which time, he said, he devoted to learning the art of highway robbery. He was held for a further hearing.

"The Tobacco with a heart"

Music and Drama

(What the Press Agents Say)

A real red-blooded story of ranch life in Arizona and New Mexico it abounds in thrilling situations, in suspenseful moments and affords the star a splendid opportunity for fast riding, shooting and roping. Such is "Bill" Hart's new picture "Wagon Tracks" which is on view at Griffin's to-night and Tuesday night. Forty-eight people, including a lot of real punchers from the ranges of the West, appear in the scenes. Besides the above offering, "Trent 'em Rough" a funny Sact Mack Sennett comedy, Gaumont News Topics of the Day and other plays will also be show .

WILLIAM FOX EXTRAVAGANZA

The Palace theatre management promises its patrons an unusual treat to-night and Tuesday, matinee and night, when it will present for the first time the $300,000 William Fox extravaganza, "Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves." The story of Ali Baba is one of the most interesting in that famous old Persian classic, the Arabian nights. The very fact that this tale has held its popularity for over a thousand years and has been translated into every known language is a guarantee that it has entertainment value enough to interest any audience The compelling story, however, was not sufficient for the producer of this extraordinary photoplay. He has surrounded it with all the oriental splendor of the original court and the city of the great Caliph, Naromin-al-Rashid whose magnificence was remarkable even in those days of extravagance. The 5th chapter of the thrill packed serial "Perils of Thunder Mountain" and a good comedy are also announced for exhibition.

NONE SO POPULAR AS MUTT AND JEFF

This year that best of all roaring, mirsel farce spectacles, "Mutt and Jeff's Dream," comes to Griffin's this Wednesday night with everything rearranged, sparkling and rejuvenated, Mr. Hill has replaced everything heretofore used with entirely new up-to-date material and the consequence is a brand new and thoroughly finished farce comedy, spectacular review of the latest fads and funny things of the day. "Mutt and Jeff" has long since earned the top-notch position among extravagant farces, and the idea of remodeling the scenic environment and reconstructing the piece generally has been an annual occurrence but this season an extra effort has been made in the way of renewing the funny situations and a decidedly and prettily costumed chorus of youthful-maidens assist in the attractively arranged ensembles and the modern popular music leaves nothing to be decided in a musical way. A wealth of money has been expended this season to costume it beyond the fondest dreams of the indulgent public.

Adulteration Of Bran And Shorts Fatal To Cattle

OTTAWA, Oct. 27.—The adulteration of bran and shorts by Canadian millers is costing farmers and dairymen of Canada large sums annually in loss of cattle from the effects of poisonous seeds in bran and shorts, the standing committee on agriculture was told by Donald Sutherland, South Oxford. Millers he said, had been adulterating their by-products for years by the addition of screenings and weed seeds and no prosecution had ever been made.

Mr. Sutherland said that referring the act back to the agricultural committee after being given second reading was an unusual procedure. There should have been no hesitation in passing the bill and there was no need for recalling the millers. They had asked to be heard, but could not reach Ottawa before Friday. The chairman, Mr. R. C. Henders, suggested that the committee have a general discussion and then adjourn.

When Mr. Sutherland began to outline the evils of the present act, the chairman asked the committee if he was to allow a general resume of the situation at this time.

Mr. Sutherland wanted a full hearing. He objected to bringing millers here again when they had already been heard There was, an attempt he thought to delay this bill and let the millers continue robbing the people.

Several members protested against halting Mr. Sutherland, and John Best, Dufferin threatened to walk out of the committee if Mr. Sutherland was not allowed to proceed. The chairman ruled that Mr. Sutherland be heard.

DIRT SOLD TO FARMERS

Mr. Sexsmith and Mr. Best supported the passage to the amendment. There was highway robbery of the farmers, said Mr. Sexsmith and the dust and dirt of the mills was sold to them. Fear of losing the dust at Port Colborne elevator had led to the closing of windows which was the real cause of the explosion and endangering of lives. In 1908, said Mr. Sexsmith, one firm in Canada had been allowed to grind up peat turf and muck mix it with molasses and sell it as dairy feed.

George Boyce, Carleton, said the dairymen often found a whole bag of dirt in a shipment of bran.

Mr. Sutherland said the amendment as provided was a guard against adulteration, which was killing thousands of live stock annually. Farmers were being discouraged, yet they must feed this stuff. The Government must make it pure for them. The amendment simply provided that nothing could be added to the bran and shorts after milling.

Mr. Clark, head of the seed branch of the Department of Agriculture, said the Adulteration Act, had been referred to as "a patchwork quilt," and actions were being redrafted. Canada is the dumping ground for feeding stuffs that cannot be sold in other countries. He advised that the amendment now before the committee should be passed as soon as possible. The law should then be enforced.

RESOLUTION CARRIED

Mr. Sutherland, seconded by Mr Sexsmith, moved the following resolution, which carried:

"That in view of the serious results arising from the adulteration of bran and shorts by the flour milling companies of Canada, annually resulting in the death of many farm animals and serious injury to the health of others, the committee would respectively recommend that immediate steps be taken to pass and put into effect Bill No. 7, an Act to amend the Adulteration Act."

POISON LIKE UNTO Venom of Snakes

Professor H. Strauss, M. D., of the Royal Charity Hospital, says: "The cause for an attack of gout, rheumatism, lumbago, is supplied by the increase of uric acid in the blood serum, the result of various causes, the most frequent of which is renal. Before an attack, one suffers sometimes from headache, vertigo, twinges of pain here and there."

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead, when the back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; when you suffer with sick headache, or dizzy spells, acid stomach; or you have rheumatic pains or lumbago, gout, sciatica when the weather is bad, do not neglect the warning, but try simple means. Take a dose of eight glasses of water during the day, then obtain at your nearest drug store ¼oz. of Anuric (anti-uric acid).

This is the discovery of Dr. Pierce of the Iroquois Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y. "Anuric" is an antidote for this uric acid poisoning and dissolves uric acid in the body much as hot coffee dissolves sugar. "Anuric" will penetrate into the joints and muscles, relieve the inflammation and accumulations. It will stamp out torpid liver. Send 10 cents to Dr. Pierce's Iroquois Hotel, Buffalo, N. SEVEN BOX CARS LEAVE TRACK

On Saturday night as a west bound G. T. R. freight train was leaving the yard here, something occurred to cause seven laden box cars to leave the rails and be thrown promiscuously about the track. The auxiliary was called out and was engaged for some time in clearing up the wreckage. Owing to there being a number of tracks where the spill occurred traffic was not held up. Although not definitely known it is thought the breaking of a brake beam caused the wreck. No person was injured, but considerable damage was done to rolling stock.

CREW FOR ROYAL TRAIN

Conductor R. Norton, of Toronto, had charge of the Royal train over the Grand Trunk Railway today. Engineer James Reed, of Belleville, formerly of Brockville, was at the throttle of engine 1610, while Trainmen Cotter and Thomas were on the train. Orders were issued giving the royal train running rights over all other trains.

In addition to this, in order that the greatest care may be taken of Sir Arthur Currie, a pilot engine, No. 1509, was sent ahead over the line, keeping two flag stations in advance of the special. All switch points and turnovers were spiked.

PINNED BENEATH CAR

At an early hour this morning an auto accident occurred on the Front Road near Col. Ponton's residence, resulting in rather severe injuries to Miss Ada James a teacher at the Ontario School for the Deaf. It appears that Miss James had been down from the city and returned here at 5 o'clock. The train which reaches here about 4 o'clock. She was met at the station by Mr. Edward Payne, who is also employed at the O.S.D. He had a Ford car and was near Col. Ponton's residence when it is alleged some thing went wrong with the steering gear, resulting in the car going off to the side of the road and turning turtle. Mr. Payne escaped with slight injuries, but Miss James was pinned beneath the car. As soon as possible the young lady was released when it was ascertained she was seriously injured. She was taken into Col. Ponton's residence and medical aid from the city was summoned.

CASE DISPOSED OF

The case of a young man named Seiter, who a week ago pleaded guilty to the theft of a bicycle the property of Mr. Blake Waterhouse of this city, was this morning disposed of by Magistrate Masson. He allowed Seiter to go on a suspended sentence and gave him three weeks in which to pay the costs, amounting to $12.50.

SCHOONER BEING SALVAGED.

The schooner Bertha Cauldron, which foundered a few days ago off Kingston, while en route to this port with a cargo of coal for the Schuster Company, is being salved by the Donnelly Wrecking Company of Kingston. The owners of the cargo have abandoned claims for it.

DECORATED BY PRINCE

Carlyle C. Brown, son of Mrs. (Rev.) J. Brown of this city, was decorated at Vancouver recently by His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, who pinned on the Distinguished Conduct Medal to his coat and complimented him upon his distinguished services to the Empire, as betokened by the D. C. M. Carlyle Campbell Brown, D. C. M., enlisted at Calgary with the 82nd Canadian Rifles a sister regiment of the Princess Pats, but on account of his knowledge of first aid work was transferred to the Army Medical Corps where he rendered splendid service and by his untiring devotion to duty saved many a soldier from death. At the battle of Cambrai the work of the A.M.C. was particularly strenuous and for many hours the brave boys braved the hottest of enemy fire to carry the wounded to the dressing stations. At Cambrai Carlyle threw himself directly distinguished himself and here it was that he won the cross which shall only be awarded to those officers or men who have stood up in the presence of the enemy, and shall have performed some signal act of valor or devotion to their country."

Fire in Airships.

Although, recently, the Under-Secretary of the Air Ministry, assures us that it is now safer to travel in the air than by train, the surprise is soon regards the danger of fire as one of the greatest drawbacks so far raised by airship.

Not only is the hydrogen gas with which airship envelopes are filled extremely inflammable, but it forms a highly explosive substance when mixed with even a large proportion of air.

It is proposed, however, to use a mixture for hydrogen—known as helium — which will make airships fireproof and reduce danger of explosion to an absolute minimum.

Helium is a new discovery, Sir Norman Lockyer told us in 1895, about 18 50 years ago; but hitherto it has been far too costly to use for airships. Until recently it could only be produced at a cost of from £1,000 per cubic foot, and as hundreds of thousands of cubic feet are required for a large airship it will be readily understood that an army of millionaires would have been required to defray the cost of a squadron of helium-gas-bags.

Certain discoveries have now been made, however, in connection with the natural gases of Kansas and Texas which have been utilized in such success that it is hoped, within a very short time, to produce helium at a cost of about ten cents a foot.

We may, therefore, anticipate in the near future airships of types which will change the whole aspect of aerial traffic.—Tit-Bits.

Ten Lives Lost In Wreck Of Passenger Steamer

CITY OF MUSKEGON DASHED TO PIECES WHEN ENDEAVORING TO MAKE HARBOR AT MUSKEGON, MICHIGAN, IN GALE—THREE PASSENGERS DROWNED AND SEVEN OF CREW.

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

MUSKEGON, Mich., Oct. 28.—Ten persons lost their lives this morning when the Crosby liner, City of Muskegon, formerly the City of Holland, while trying to make the harbor here, struck the south pier at Muskegon channel and was smashed to pieces, sinking in four minutes.

Three of the victims were passengers, the remainder being members of the crew. There were about twenty-five passengers aboard, but the vessel lay against the pier so that most of them were able to make their way to safety.

The City of Muskegon left Milwaukee in clear weather last evening, but was caught in a raging north-west storm that struck Lake Michigan early this morning. Riding the storm well, Capt. Miller decided it was safer to attempt to make harbor than to turn about. Just as the bows of the vessel came into the channel a big wave caught it and smashed the craft against the end of the pier.

Pope Condemns Immoral Dress

ROME, Oct. 28.—"On the domestic hearth woman is queen," said Pope Benedict in answering an address presented to him by the women's unions.

The Pontiff added that "changed times had given woman function and rights she did not possess in former ages and enlarged the field of her activities, but that no alteration in man's opinion or no novelty of things or of events could separate woman, conscious of her high mission, from the family, which was her natural centre.

Pope Benedict praised the growing determination of the Catholic woman to dedicate herself to the education of youth and the betterment of the family schools."

"The Catholic woman," said the Pontiff, "desires feeling it her duty to be virtuous, must feel it her duty to appear such in the fashion of her clothes repudiates those exaggerations of fashion which show the corruption of those who designed them and bring in an evil contribution to the general corruption of manners—fashions contrary to that modesty which should be the fairest ornament of the Christian woman."

The Pontiff strongly urged the formation of a league of Catholic women to fight what he termed the indecency of fashion, not only in their own clothes, but also in that of persons or families who approach them.

SUICIDE VIA DYNAMITE

St. Catharie's, Oct. 28.—The body of sixty-year-old Thomas Gray was found in his little shack at Port Welland. He had evidently killed himself by sticking a dynamite cartridge in his right ear, attaching a fuse to it, lighting the fuse and lying down on the floor to wait for the explosion. The cartridge was found sticking in his head, which was partly blown off.

Gray was working on the Welland Ship Canal and yesterday he told some of the men he felt bad and intended to blow himself up. He explained that he used to look after mules down South and when they had to be killed they put a dynamic cartridge in their ear and attached a fuse to it.

It has been decided to stop all supplies to the war factions in Russia. It is not expected that Yudenitch will cap ture Petrograd before winter sets in.

Jamaican To Hang For Killing Wife

Execution of Frederick Fountain to Take Place in December.

BRIDGEBURG, Ont., Oct. 27.—The first hanging in Welland county in 25 years will be that on December 16, when Frederick Fountain, Jamaican, who was found guilty at the recent special supreme court sessions held before Justice Mr. A. Logie, of the murder of his wife and two children, will meet the sentence imposed.

Fountain's case has attracted much attention. It was following a party at the Fountain home at the Falls that he, in a fit of jealousy calmly wrote letters to his mother in Jamaica and a friend at the Falls, stating his intentions, and asking that funeral arrangements be made, because, he declared, his wife no longer loved him, and had plainly showed her disregard by kissing another man at the party. He then slashed the throats of his wife and children, and then tried to kill himself in the same way, but failed.

At first it was planned to enter a plea of insanity in his defence, but this plan was abandoned, owing to the fact that other evidence showed there was nothing seriously wrong with his sanity, other than that he was intensely jealous of his pretty young English wife.

From his cell in the county jail, Fountain has written a letter to the Salvation Army, in which he declares that his soul is now at peace; that he is ready to pay the penalty, and believes that he will now found God. He also expresses the belief that he will meet the souls of his wife and two young children in Heaven, declaring that he killed them when he was under the influence of a great rage, and had taken the pistol to the following morning he did not realize what he had done.

Constantin Gunmaro, who was sentenced to death by hanging in July, escaped the penalty by using bed-clothing to commit suicide.

Political Revolt On Alien Bill

LONDON, Oct. 27.—Political expects and editorial utterances in the morning's papers express the view that no one expects the Government to resign as a result of the adverse vote in the House of Commons, and that the circumstances of the defeat of the pilots amendment in no wise need entail such a step. The incident, however, is regarded on all sides as one which has given the Administration a severe shock, a repetition of which it could hardly survive.

Against Dictation

The vote is generally described as an assertion of the independence of the House of Commons and a revolt against the attempted dictation of Ministerialists committed to evacuate the supremacy which the Commons surrendered to the Cabinet during the war.

More than one hundred supporters of the coalition strong whom Sir Edward Carson was conspicuous voted against the Government. These represented the intense anti-alien feeling prevailing among the Conservative constituencies, and the fear that the Government is trying in the present stage of the bill to annul amendments which were hostile to aliens secured in the committee stage. Some surprise is expressed that the Labor members and the so-called Free Liberals joined in the vote against the Government on this issue, thereby identifying themselves with the anti-alien feeling contrary to the avowed principles of their leaders.

It is believed in some quarters that the Government on Monday will ask the House to reconsider the vote, and in view of certain circumstances, it is regarded as possible that the House may comply.

Anglo-French Convention

These circumstances concern the convention entered into between Great Britain and France in 1913, in which it was agreed that French pilots might bring French ships into certain English ports and that English pilots should be granted a reciprocal privilege in French ports. It is contended that unless the House of Commons reverses yesterday's vote the Government will be compelled to denounce the convention, and incur the reproach of treating the compact as a "scrap of paper."

To this the antialien reply is that the convention was concluded secretly, and that information about it was only dragged from a reluctant Government during yesterday's debate.

Baptists Welcome Times Challenge In Christian Life

OTTAWA, Oct. 28.—The thirty-fist annual meeting of the Baptist convention of Ontario and Quebec opened here in the First Baptist church Friday afternoon with sixty of five hundred delegates in attendance.

The address of Rev. Dr. F. W. Patterson, of Winnipeg, on "Today's challenge to the Baptists of Canada," was the feature of the opening day.

Baptists, not less, but more than others, cannot rest on the achievements of their ancestors," declared Mr. Patterson. "Their very principles turn their faces toward the future. The church or institution that is distinguished chiefly by pride of ancestry has scant hope of posterity."

Further challenges to the Baptists of to-day is the challenge of undiscovered truth, the challenge of a democracy demanded by the new social situation, the challenge of inadequate leadership, the challenge of unutilized resources, the challenge of unevangelized peoples, and the challenge of untrained youth. The challenge must be accepted by the church if she is to be more than a figurehead in the life of to-day.

The controversy over the question of the inspiration and inerrancy of the Scriptures will in all probability come up Wednesday, when the publication accounts will be dealt with.

The dispute has arisen through the passing of a resolution at the convention of the Whitby-London Baptist Association on Tuesday last. The resolution then passed was as follows:

That this gathering, representative of the Whitby-London Association of Baptists, reaffirm its adherence to the Baptist view with reference to the inspiration inerrancy and inspiration of the Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments, and expresses itself as being unalterably opposed to the ordaining of any man to the Baptist Ministry, who cannot unequivocally and unreservedly subscribe to that position."

The resolution was printed in the Baptist Examiner, official organ of the Baptist Church, and was replied to and criticised by Rev Edgar. Wallace of Brantford, who declared it as being "reactionary, arbitrary and superfluous."

Rev. Mr. Wallace on a general discussion in which Rev. T. T. Shields, pastor of Jarvis Street Church, Toronto, joined Later, the Examiner in which it published an editorial relating to the subject which is now the bone of contention.

Rev. O. C. S. Wallace is presiding over the convention.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Protests against smoking by women caused an uproar at the international conference of women physicians Friday. An elderly German physician declared that smoking was an industrial disease and that the conference should pass a resolution in favor of abolition of the use of tobacco. The dissent was prompt, vigorous and in a variety of languages simultaneously. During its height the "Amt" left the room

Police Hold Nine In Murder Case

Mystery of Dead Messenger and Missing Bonds is Solved.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The mystery of a $178,000 bond robbery and the murder of the broker's messenger who had them was apparently solved. The police announced that $50,000 of the bonds had been recovered and that nine arrests had been made in connection with the murder. Benjamin H. Blakewitz, the messenger, vanished on August 12. A body found a week later at Milford, Conn., was identified as his. The names of those arrested were not made public. Detectives working on the case claim Sinkowitz planned the robbery with a gang of thugs and ex-convicts, who later murdered him for possession of the bonds

Brantford Woman Slain By Negro

BRANTFORD, Oct. 27.—A brutal murder was committed on Market Street here this evening at 4.45 when George Jones, colored, dashed to death Mrs. Arthur Giles, an English woman, resident at 117 Market Street. The fatal affray followed attentions by the negro to Mrs. Giles, and it is also alleged by the police an elopement which took place six weeks ago. Men, women and children on the car on another They may take their seats before protogtio which now cannot take place this week on account of the Liberal opposition to the G. T. R. Purchase Bill.

The murder was a most vicious one. Jones first went, about 4.30, to the boarding-house at 117 Market Street, of Mrs. Giles and family, went upstairs and there threatened in the presence of the daughter to take the life of the mother. The daughter, aged 16 years, showed fight. In the meantime Mrs. Giles made her escape and ran across the road. She was closely followed by Jones, who ran with an eight-inch knife outstretched, and reaching his victim on the sidewalk, stabbed her several times. Death was almost instantaneous and the body was left on the sidewalk pending the arrival of the coroner, Dr. Emmette.

Beat Negro Insensible.

Roy Thornton, a local traveler, was the first witness to the whole affair and taking his umbrella he beat Jones into insensibility, then the police arrived and Jones was taken to the County Jail and placed in the hospital ward, his injuries having been severe.

The police tonight, fearing trouble, would not comment on the arrest that had been taken, merely stating that he was in safe custody.

The victim was an English woman about 38 years of age. She had three children and her husband was employed at the Waterous Engine Works. He stated tonight that Jones had given his family a lot of trouble, while the police announced that a warrant was issued about six weeks ago for the arrest of Jones, who was alleged to have run away with Mrs. Giles. Mrs. Giles had also been often threatened to shoot her, and the husband fearing trouble, had commenced to save sufficient money to take his family away from Brantford. In two weeks, he said, he would have been able to do so.

Approach Of Winter Helps Bolsheviki

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Winter moving southwest from the Arctic regions, is helping the aid of Bolshevik troops in Petrograd, and the ability of Gen. Yudenitch to capture the former Russian capital before cold weather puts an end to his campaign seems doubtful. The Soviet forces are fighting desperately against the infantry, artillery and cavalry and have succeeded in recapturing Tsarskoye-Selo and Pavlovsk, south of Petrograd and appear to be in a position to prolong the defence of the city for an indefinite period.

The Prince spent a busy hour in Brockville en route to Montreal from Ottawa and was given a great reception in the city.

James Lamalo, an employee of the Canadian Yale and Towne plant at St. Catharines, was instantly killed by a street car.

ROCHESTER MAN MURDERED HIS WIFE—MOTIVE THOUGHT TO HAVE BEEN JEALOUSY—TURNED REVOLVER ON POLICEMAN, BUT MECHANISM OF WEAPON FAILED

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

ROCHESTER, Oct. 28.—Joseph Perry, night clerk in the Postal Telegraph Co. main office, shot and killed his wife, Grace Perry, night chief operator in the Stone exchange of the Rochester Telephone Co., at their home in the outskirts of the city at midnight. Jealousy is believed to have been the motive. Perry turned his revolver on the policeman who attempted to arrest him, but the mechanism failed. He was arrested on a charge of murder in the first degree.

Farmer Group In The Commons

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press Limited

OTTAWA, Oct. 28.—The election of three farmer members to the Federal House yesterday will give farmers a small but compact group on the opposite benches of the House of Commons, four in all with their leader, Hon. T. A. Crerar. It is expected that they will not always vote against the government but will be found sometimes on the one side and sometimes on another. They may take their seats before prorogtio which now cannot take place this week on account of the Liberal opposition to the G. T. R. Purchase Bill.

Farmers Party Seeing Leadership

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

TORONTO, Oct. 28.—Having practically exhausted the list of eligibles for the leadership of the proposed U. F. O. Independent Coalition and Premiership of Ontario, the political prophets here today refrained from naming any more probabilities and confined their attention to the farmers' committee of nine who went into session early this morning to formulate their relation of leadership and plan of campaign their conference with labor men at Hamilton on Saturday. Upon adjournment at noon, members of committee gave out the slightest intimation of their progress or decision.

Two Unionists, Two Opposition

And Three Farmers, Net Result of Seven By-Elections.

OTTAWA, Oct. 28.—Two Unionists, two Opposition Liberals, and three candidates of Farmers' organizations have been returned to Parliament at the seven by-elections which culminated in polling in five constituencies yesterday, and which were the first appeals to the people since the general election of December, 1917. The Government held Kingston, where Sir Henry Drayton, the new Minister of Finance, was returned by acclamation a week ago, and Victoria, B.C., where Hon. Dr. Tolmie, the new Minister of Agriculture, triumphed over his opponent at the polls. The Opposition was credited with one acclamation, when Hon. Wm. Mackenzie King, its new leader, was returned last week in Prince, P. E. I., and carried Quebec East, which for more than 40 years sent Sir Wilfrid Laurier the late Liberal leader, to the House of Commons. Quebec East was carried by Ernest Lapointe, who resigned his seat as member for Kamouraska to contest the by-election, and who is a leading light among the Quebec representation. Candidates of Farmers' organizations succeeded in winning Glengarry and Stormont, Carleton, N. B., and Assiniboia, Sask.

U.F.O. And Labour Party To Form A Coalition

HAMILTON, Oct. 28.—The text of the official statement from the Independent Labor party, meeting here yesterday, was given out by W. Robins, Oshawa:

"This meeting of the elected and defeated candidates of the Independent Labor party, with the Provincial Executive of the L. P. in the Provincial Legislature, and to that end it was decided to appoint a committee of seven elected L. P. candidates, Mayor M. M. MacBride of Brantford and Walter Rollo of Hamilton, to confer with the committee of nine appointed by the U. F. O.

"The object of such conference is to draft a program of legislative action agreeable to both the L. P. and U.F.O. members. The program agreed upon by the joint committee will be submitted to the elected and defeated candidates of the Labor and U. F. O. groups at Toronto on Wednesday, October 29th, for their consideration, after which the program will be submitted to a joint meeting of elected L. P. and U. F. O. candidates at the headquarters of the United Farmers, 139 King street east, Toronto, at 2 p.m."

"A U. F. O.-Labor coalition is a fact. Its policy, as soon as the Government has been formed and the Legislature can meet, will be to introduce progressive legislation and force Liberal and Conservative alike to toe the mark and show where they stand."

Such was the announcement made yesterday by Mr. Joseph T. Marks, Provincial organizer of the Independent Labor party, at a meeting in the Labor Temple. The assembly hall was well filled by delegates and advertisement that Mr. Walter Rollo of Hamilton, Leader of the Labor group, would speak. Mr. Rollo's announcement was greeted with cheers.

Says They Can Work Together

"It is an actual fact that Labor is taking part in the formation of a Government.

"There is much talk about the Farmer and Labor man not being able to work together. However, you notice that this opinion does not come from our side of the House. If you could see the broad spirit exhibited by the committee from the U. F. O. you could see the determination that we can work well together. When this Government is formed, Grit and Tory alike will have to toe the mark and show where they stand."

Mr. Marks said that the U. F. O. did not expect that they would elect as many representatives as they did, or be in a position to take over the reins of government. They had decided, however, that they are big enough to take over the government. Made a Fair and Square Proposition.

"When we met them," proceeded Mr. Marks, "they made us a fair and square proposition. They were progressive and liberal in every way. They declared that the only party with which they could enter into an agreement was the Labor party. They declared that they regarded Labor as a part of their movement and expressed the opinion that if given an opportunity the coalition would earn for itself the good will of the electors.

Great Success Of First Day Beat Most Optimistic Hopes

HASTINGS COUNTY SUBSCRIBES NEARLY TWICE AS MUCH AS ON FIRST DAY LAST YEAR—DELORO LEADS RACE.

All doubts as to the success of the Victory Loan 1919 has been dispelled in the first day of the campaign, Hastings County having subscribed altogether $45,750 while on the first day last year, only $24,450 came in. Reports from all over Canada indicate greater success than workers had dared to hope for. Late reports last night from far away districts in the County bring a total for the day's subscriptions considerably higher than the official total reported to headquarters of $45,750.

The leading team for yesterday's canvass in Hastings County was for Deloro, Messrs. Norman Laing and Arthur Yates, two returned officers, having brought in 12.60 per cent. of their objective. This amount is $2,850 a total of 16 subscriptions. Mr. H. W. Ketcham, a Belleville canvasser, brought in the greatest amount secured by any one canvasser, his total being $7,100 in five subscriptions.

Yesterday's results were considerably brought down, it is believed, owing to the bad weather which made it difficult for canvasers in rural districts to get around. This only adds to the success of the day's results and it is expected that a few days of good weather will produce totals even better in comparison, than last year.

Reports from headquarters in Toronto are jubilant. Mr. C. H. Burgess of the Ontario Special Subscriptions Committee wires:

"All Conservative feeling about this Loan seems gone. Campaign has opened with the smash of success. Returns so far amazing. First fifteen special subscriptions reported total sixty-four million and show one-third increase over last year. Early hours of campaign Waterloo, Peel, Dufferin, Dundas, Stormont and Gelngarry and entire Lake Huron division has exceeded objectives. No doubt number of specials promised which will force some units over top in few hours."

Mr. Arthur D. W. Finch, vice-chairman of the Ontario Employees' Committee in a telegram also says:

"They are off and away to a good start. Twenty-one firms in Ontario before noon leading were displaying their honour banners. Hope all establishments in Hastings will be in the same class real soon."

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—War-time prohibition will be brought to an end by presidential proclamation, immediately after the Senate ratifies the German peace treaty, it was said today at the White House. If the Senate re-passes the enforcement bill over the President's veto, the country will be dry until the issuance of a presidential decree fixing the end of the war-time emergency. After the President issues such a decree the country will be wet until the constitutional amendment goes into effect on January 16th next.

C.P.R. Takes Twenty Million In Victory Loan

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

TORONTO, Oct. 28.—It is announced today that the C. P. R. has taken twenty million dollars of this year's Victory Loan which is three millions more than last year. Employees of the C. P. R. will also take another 1½ millions. Reports from all over the province indicate that canvassers are working well, and turning in subscriptions that augur well for the success of the campaign.

HIGH SCHOOL LOST

BY ONE POINT

Belleville High School rugby team had hard luck at Peterboro, Saturday last, losing the game by one point, after a gruelling contest in rain and mud. The Peterboro Review reports the game as follows:

Revenge is sweet. So state the Collegiate rugby players who defiled the Belleville High School boys at Nichol's Oval Saturday afternoon by the score of 7 to 6. Although the rain was falling in torrents throughout the whole time of play, neither the players, referees, or spectators appeared to notice this or their excitement.

It was a battle royal from the first kick-off until the whistle blew for the final. It was a fast, clean game all through, with very few casualties or injuries of either a minor or more serious character.

The first quarter went scoreless with nobody breaking away and the respective captains contenting themselves chiefly with line-plunging. There were several nice gains on the wing and half-line backs on both sides but neither team became dangerous in this quarter.

But in the second period the local boys started off at a tremendous clip that threatened to overthrow everything in their way. First of all, by some nice kicking, Green put one over the opponents' line for a rouge. Very shortly after the kick-off from quarter, Sunter grabbed the ball and by a splendid speedy, circular run, went all the way over the line for a touch down, giving the locals a lead of six points.

Then before the game had nicely settled down, Weir, the speedy half-back of the Belleville outfit and former shortstop for the Ontario baseball champions, broke away and after a long run succeeded in going over for a touch. Score at half time was Peterborough 6, Belleville 5.

After the rest things looked rather dark for the local boys as the visitors started pushing them gradually back. Belleville lost the ball on the Peterborough touch line and when the signal was given for Green to kick the ball out, the line failed to hold and he was brought down behind his own line, tying to score.

Then the locals started kicking; but Green, who, before this had been having difficulty getting hold of the wet ball, opened up with a few long punts that sent the Bay of Quinte aggregation back into their own territory. At last he succeeded, shortly after the final quarter commenced, in booting one over for the winning point.

The local lost a beautiful chance to score a touch in the last minute of play, when Sloan, who had been making some extensive gains on the wing back, was brought down actually on the Belleville touch line. The visitors, however, did not prove dangerous at this stage and the locals remained victors.

There was heavy trading on the New York Exchange, with firmness in the morning, reaction at midday, and a spotty recovery in the afternoon.

EDISON'S VOICE IN RECORDS

Inventor of Phonograph, for the First Time, Makes Short Speech Which Will Be Preserved.

Thomas A. Edison, who invented the phonograph 42 years ago, has for the first time consented to have his own voice recorded on a phonograph record. The reproduction, which is on the back of a record containing the national anthems of our allies, was heard recently for the first time in the Edison laboratory at Orange, N. J.

Mr. Edison celebrated his 72nd birthday on February 11. The talk, which is Mr. Edison's first comment about the war since America entered the fight, follows:

"Our boys made good in France. The word 'American' has a new meaning in Europe. Our soldiers have made it mean courage, generosity, self-restraint and modesty. We are proud of the North American boys who staked their lives for the liberty of the world, but we must not forget, and we must, not permit demagogues to belittle the part played by our gallant allies. Their casualty lists tell the story.

"However proud we may be of our own achievements, let us remember always that the war could not have been won if the Belgians, British, French and Italians had not fought like bulldogs in the face of overwhelming odds. The great war will live vividly in the minds of Americans for the next 100 years. I hope that when we do reverence to the memory of our brave boys who fell in France we shall not forget their brothers in arms who wore the uniforms of our allies.

"I believe that the national airs of France, Great Britain, Italy and Belgium should for all time to come be as familiar to us as our own 'Star-Spangled Banner.'"

BRIDAL FLOWERS HERE AGAIN

That Orange Blossoms are in the Market is a Sure Harbinger of World Peace.

One interesting sign of the coming of peace has been the reappearance of real orange blossoms at weddings. During the war they were difficult to obtain, owing to the fact that they come a rule from France. Nearly all the orange flowers which are used in the summertime in London and Paris are grown in the sheltered valleys of the Alpe Maritimes behind the Riviera.

Here there are orchards of orange trees scattered over the sunny slopes, and the local peasantry devote most of their time to growing the beautiful flowers. No attempt is made to get the fruit, seeing that the orange trees are solely cultivated for the sake of the glistening blooms.

A large part of the floral crop finds its way to the perfume factories of Grasse, but the choicest sprays are picked for the London and Paris markets. Orange flowers keep fresh for a considerable time, and they stand the journey to England very well, arriving in perfect condition.—London News.

SCIENTIST TELLS OF TRIUMPH

Professor Claims to Have Perfected System for Underground and Submarine Messages.

Speaking recently of his work for the navy, Prof. James Hamilton, the inventor of a wireless system for underground and submarine transmission, stated: "Six or seven years ago, I began experiments with the transmission of electric impulses by the ground. They were renewed during the war with the audion bulb, which renders the receiving apparatus more sensitive. I first established contact with nearby points and before long received with perfect distinctness impulses sent from Europe. I placed my antennae in trenches emitting from a center and pointing by the compass toward the distant station from which I wished to receive. I determined to the navy department that eight operators may receive at once from eight separate wires. My system was installed at New Orleans, the Great Lakes station, and Belmar, N. J., and is now used at the principal wireless stations in the United States. I have found the best results with my wires buried six feet below the surface in damp ground. Some of my experiments were conducted in water 30 to 50 feet deep."—Scientific American.

MUTT AND JEFF IN NEW GUISE

After eight seasons of veritable triumph, Gus Hill will come back for a ninth season with his perennial success "Mutt and Jeff" in an extra new dress "Mutt and Jeff's Dream", which will form a background for Bud Fisher's inimitable characters which easily assume the credit of the greatest and most durable success of the cartoon world. The new production is an innovation foreboding about all of the real "meat" of standard amusements the thrill of melodrama, the side splitting situations of farce comedy and the harmonious art of musical comedy. The story, music, costumes, lyrics and scenic equipment are absolutely new and the company is one of the best yet offered. All in all, "Mutt and Jeff's Dream," will live up to the title of one of the hits of the show world. "Mutt and Jeff" will be the attraction at Griffin's to-morrow night.

WILLIAM S. HART AT GRIFFIN'S

There are many fixed stars in the firmament of filmland. One of these is William S. Hart, but he is more—he is a star whose brilliancy is of the first order and which never has been dimmed; never will be, while he occupies a place in the galaxy. In "Wagon Tracks" presented at Griffin's last night, Mr. Hart represents once more the living spirit of the far West; the West of gunmen, ranchers, buckaroos Indians and Mexicans, the West where one shoot quickly and straight; where honesty is the best of policy and where its opposite usually means a quick jump into eternity. The picture is one of "Bill" Hart's best, which anyone will admit is saying a great deal. A funny Jack Sennett comedy "Treat 'em Rough" with a splendid cast of Sennett funsters, and "Teddy" the wonderfully trained Griffin canine smashing a leading part, is also being offered on the same program along with Pathe Review, "Dynamite"(a thrilling 2-act drama, and Gaumont News with its budget of interesting news events.

GORGEOUS PICTURIZATION OF FAMOUS FAIRY TALE.

A gorgeous picturization of the Orient through which was woven a delightful story of the Arabian nights was presented at the Palace yesterday when the 1919 Extravaganza, "Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves," was given its first local showing. The story is familiar to all, but it was the stupendous that made this photoplay one of well worth seeing. Those who were fortunate in seeing the previous William Fox extravaganzas, "Black and the Beautiful" and "Alladin" will find that "Ali Baba" outdoes even the splendor and interest of those successes. There seems to be no limit to the capacities of the clever cast to portray in the most interesting and vivid manner the emotions and the characters of the romantic heroes of ancient Persia. "Ye Gods Why" is a funny Lube comedy, and an interesting chapter of the popular serial "Perils of Thunder Mountain" are also being shown on the same program.

WHEN OTHERS FAIL

Zam-Buk cures the most stubborn skin diseases and sores. This is because Zam-Buk's method of healing is entirely different and superior to that of ordinary ointments!

When Zam-Buk is applied it does not remain on the surface skin, as an ordinary ointment would. Because of its unusual refinement it penetrates to the underlying tissues. This is where all skin troubles have their origin. The germicidal properties of Zam-Buk then destroy all germs and thoroughly cleanse the diseased parts. Having done this, the healing essences contained in Zam-Buk go to stimulate the tissues that new, healthy skin is quickly produced. The result is a complete and permanent cure of the sore or injury.

Zam-Buk is best for eczema, ringworm, scalp sores, boils, pimples, festering rash, ulcers, abscesses, running sores, "barber's rash," blood-poisoning and piles. As a first-aid, too, Zam-Buk is indispensable. It stops bleeding, eases pain, draws out soreness and inflammation, prevents blood-poisoning and heals quickly. All dealers 50c. box.

Advantages Of V.L. Bonds Pointed Out By Speakers

CITIZENS GATHER IN CITY HALL TO HEAR VICTORY LOAN EXPLAINED — INTERESTING ADDRESSES—MUSICAL PROGRAMME FAILS FOR LACK OF PIANO.

The Victory Loan meeting held in the City Hall last evening was fairly well attended and the three addresses given in support of the loan, were attentively listened to. As expressed by Mr. W. B. Deacon, chairman, regret was felt that the speeches could not be interspersed with vocal selections owing to the non-arrival of a piano. A number of young ladies who took a prominent part in "The Winning Girl" production were present to entertain the audience, but were unable to do so, for lack of music.

CHAIRMAN'S ADDRESS

Mr. W. B. Deacon, as chairman of the meeting, stated that this was in reality a victory loan. The soldiers have done their part and practically all of them have returned home. The Victory Bonds are ours and the people of Canada must pay it. There are thousands of soldiers who have to be restored to civil life and employment must be secured for them. A sum of $300,000,000 was needed.

COL. O'FLYNN

Col. O'Flynn spoke in support of the fund and stated that there should not be a necessity of coaxing people to subscribe to the victory fund. It was a good investment, realizing 5½ per cent. interest. The security is good edge. The G. W. V. A. of this city had $2,000 in trust and it was thought best to invest it in victory bonds. A fair percentage of this loan has already been spent. The money, is needed for the assisting and protecting of the soldiers. This country has also been asked to loan to other countries and it will come back. The investor and all should support this loan.

W. S. HERRINGTON

Mr. W. S. Herrington, K.C., of Napanee, received a hearty reception This matter of the Victory Loan was a most important was his opening remark. The Government of the Dominion of Canada is a large Shareholders Corporation. There is no politics in the loan.

Wedding Bells

CLAYDON—RAY

A Vancouver paper gives the following account of a wedding in that city which is of local interest, the bride being a niece of Mr. Alexander Ray and having a number of friends in the city

"A pretty wedding took place at the home of the bride's mother, Saturday evening when Edith Alberta, youngest daughter of the late Mr. S. S. Ray and Mrs. Ray of 2265 Cambridge street, was united in marriage to Dr. Alfred John Claydon of Hood River, Oregon. The ceremony was performed by Rev. John Pringle of Central Presbyterian Church in the presence of a number of relatives and friends. The bride, who was given away by her brother, Mr. Stanley Ray, looked charming in a gown of white crepe de chine with overdress of georgette crepe and trimmings of satin and pearl beads with which also a veil of embroidered tulle wreathed with orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Jennie Miles, niece of the bride, was bridesmaid and wore a dress of rose crepe de chine and georgette and carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations. The groom was supported by Mr. George Nichol. Miss Myrtle Ray presided at the piano. Mr. The groom's gift to the bride was a diamond lavaliere, to the bridesmaid an amethyst ring, to the groomsman, a sterling silver cigarette case and to the pianist a pair of gloves.

"The house was artistically decorated with autumn leaves and pink and white asters. After the ceremony a buffet supper was served in the dining-room which was prettily decorated with ivy and pink and white carnations. Assisting in serving were Miss Estella Abbott Miss Nellie Miller ad Miss Vera Hampton, Mrs. R. T. Miles and Mrs. Fairbairn presided at the tea-table while Mrs. J. Hampton, Mrs. A. J. Clarke and Mrs. P. Ray served the ices.

"The bridegroom served overseas with the 8th Battalion, C.E., and is also a veteran of the Boer War. The groomsman also saw service in France The happy couple were the recipients of many handsome and useful presents. Mr. and Mrs. Claydon left on the evening boat amid showers of confetti and good wishes for Victoria, Seattle and Portland, the bride travelling in a suit of bronze broadcloth, with black picture hat trimmed with pink ostrich feathers. They will later make their home at Hood River, Ore. —

FITZPATRICK—McAULEY

At St. Michael's Church at 7.30 this morning Rev. Father Killeen united in marriage Mrs. George W. Fitzpatrick and Miss Catherine McAuley, both of this city. The bridal party, Miss Teresa McAuley, while Mr. T. McAuley, jr., did honors for the groom.

At the conclusion of the ceremony the wedding party repaired to the home of the bride on Jones Street, where a wedding breakfast was partaken of. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts. The young couple have many friends in Belleville who will wish for them years of happiness and prosperity.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 28—A motor truck loaded with 100 cases of whiskey, thought to have been smuggled into the state from Canada, valued at $6,000, was seized by the sheriff of Onondaga county The whiskey, which it is said was intended to break the drought in Syracuse, was trailed for more than twenty miles by the sheriff's party and was not seized until shots had been fired to compel the driver of the truck to halt. The driver denied knowledge of where the whiskey was to have been delivered.

WHAT GOOD ROADS HAVE DONE FOR NEW YORK.

An analysis of highway-work in the State of New York during twenty-one years ending with 1919, made by H. Eltinge Breed, formerly first deputy commissioner of highways, and printed in "The Engineering News-Record" (New York), concludes with a statement of what the work has meant for the development of the State. New York spent during the period in question nearly one hundred and thirty millions on highways. Some of this was wasted; much was spent in costly experiment, but Mr. Breed is of opinion that on the whole the State has had its money's worth. Where success has been achieved, says Mr. Breed, it has been through zeal for public welfare and the good-roads movement, through hard work, honesty and efficiency, and application to the science of each to every detail. Failures have occurred sometimes through errors of judgment; often through shortness of vision in anticipating needs of the future. Where fraud, extravagance and superficiality have been deliberate there is less occasion to pilfory the offenders, he believes, than to blame the public conscience which condones the offenses. Just so long as the public permits its great works to be a matter of partizan politics, just so long will it have to tolerate methods and results that would be scorned by any reputable private enterprise. Whatever blame falls is not upon administrations, but upon the public conscience back of them. To quote his concluding passage:

"It would be unjust and misleading to formulate in dollars the worth of what we have today, strong as is the temptation to do so. Too many undetermined factors enter into such an appraisal to justify its validity. This much, however is definite: For our $130,000,000 we have only 1,092 miles of durable pavement. The average life of the semi-durable or non-durable types which comprise more than 5,830 of our remaining miles is not more than five years, at nominal maintenance. Most of these roads have already passed that age, and are kept in service only through excessive maintenance. That is a poor criterion for our investment. We can, and must, get far better results from future expenditures. But the depreciation must not blind us to the benefits we have gained. Highways are means and not ends, not ends in themselves; although built at exorbitant cost, they have served their purposes well.

"They have given to people and products greater freedom of movement. Hour by hour, the element in life, liberty, and the pursuit of prosperity can be faintly surmised from the howl that goes up whenever a mile of road is shut off for repairs. It can not be estimated in dollar values.

"The highways have enhanced land values wherever they have been built. Farm-lands contiguous to improved roads have increased in value from ten dollars an acre to thirty dollars an acre. In New York State, between 1890 and 1900, the decrease in farm values was approximately eighty million dollars. The United States census shows that between 1900 and 1910 there was an increase along improved roads in New York State of $381,758,000 when only $36,200,000 had been spent for improvement. This pertains only to rural districts. The increase in value of land adjacent to cities and towns is apparent as soon as highways are improved. In some parts of Westchester County, which is just outside of New York City, land values along improved roads have gone up two hundred per cent. within a year after the road was built.

"They have encouraged travel. The census of foreign cars, those from other states, entering New York State in August, 1917, shows 1,055 foreign tars in and out of our state daily on four routes. This average would hold up through July, August and September,—i.e., many days, which, multiplied, by 978 cars (one-half of those in and out) would give 88,000 cars during the season on these four connections. Allowing an average of four passengers to a car this would mean 352,080 persons coming into the state, at an expenditure of $5 a day apiece—too little, as any tourist knows—that would mean a yearly gross income to the state of $7,041,600 for an average stay of four days. Two-thirds of nineteen other routes, all bringing tourists. The income from this source shows partly why good roads pay.

"Advantages to the farming community have been expatiated upon—better market facilities, lower freight rates, no idle teams, and so forth and so forth. Certain it is that the banks show a large balance to the credit of New York State farmers. How much of this is due to improved highways makes interesting speculation.

"We might have had more and better highways for our money in many cases and we should have had them. Yet our investment has probably added proportionately as much to the welfare of the state and its people as any other amount expended hitherto upon public works."

PARTY SYSTEM NOT SCRAPPED.

The two-party system will not be scrapped because of the temporary triumph of class politics. The set-back experienced at the polls by both leading political parties in Ontario may have a good effect in ameliorating to some extent the disease of class representation, although extreme type of party fealty which can see no good in the other party, which in their eyes is altogether evil, incompetent and incapable of any good legislation—the type which glorified the rotten Ross Government and vilified the honest Hearst Government. The Hearst Government was accidentally wrecked mainly because of the over-confidence of its friends and the desire of the farmers for a stronger representation, not for power.

The danger of the present situation is in the possibility of a marked cleavage and ill-feeling between city, town and village and the farming population. If the country people are determined to be represented by farmers only, advocating legislation of interest to farmers only, the town and city folk may decide to unite temporarily, regardless of party, upon representatives whose interests are identified entirely with the cities and towns. Then would ensue a class war, town against country, which would retard progress and prosperity, and the end would be a return to the two-party system.

Theorists may weave a very pretty design of government for the people, by the people, with the party system left out, but there is no reason to believe such a Government would last long enough to get even a good laugh.

People can be interested in the party system and their interest held and intensified, but group systems have their day—short at the longest—and the elector always comes back to the ranks of one of the old parties, which has an attraction hallowed by history and tradition.

The party system may be lacking in some things which make for high ideals, but it is the best system in sight as yet, and the safest.

CO-OPERATIVE BENEFITS.

A heavy subscription to the 1919 Victory Loan will mean co-operative benefits in which the whole Canadian people will participate. That is the clear and demonstrable history of the Victory Loans of 1917 and 1918. They helped to win the war—a great and expensive task which no Canadian regrets since it assured freedom to the world and to ourselves. They have helped and are helping to support and re-establish in civil life Canada's soldiers and make them an asset to the nations. But they have done a great deal more. They have rendered possible the great expansion of trade, especially in agricultural products which has enabled Canada to face tremendous obligations, and which has brought prosperity to every Canadian farmer, and to everyone who deals with the farmer, directly or indirectly. These loans have provided Canada with the necessary capital to carry on war, handle the problems of demobilization, and above all to carry on a credit business with Great Britain and Europe which has created enormous trade expansion. It is to make it's expansion permanent, as well as to discharge the obligations of war that the Victory Loan 1919 will be applied. Every producer has a definite, practical interest in the success of the Loan.

CRISP COMMENT

Mr. Rollo, Labor member for West Hamilton, and Mr. Halcrow, Labor member for East Hamilton, have both expressed a desire for modification of the O. T. A. in favor of lighs beer and wine, notwithstanding the referendum. This shows how important it is for prohibitionists to maintain their organization—Toronto Globe.

The more one studies the provincial election returns the more difficult is it to understand how it all happened. It is as though some political volcano had erupted and covered up all the old ground and nearly all the old leaders had been buried and their bones there. It is full of food for many evidences of the great unrest in the land.—Kingston Standard.

There is objection raised to admitting women to the priesthood of the Church of England based upon St. Paul's dictum that "women must keep silent in the church." However, since they are permitted to sing there, it must be concluded that the ancient prohibition has lost force.—Mail and Empire.

Mr. Hartley Dewart is nothing if not modest. Though with only 22 followers in the new Legislature he apparently thinks he should be the Queen of the Chosens. If nerve would get Mr. Dewart anywhere he would be King of England.—Kingston Standard.

Mr. Dewart calls himself the "successful leader of the Liberal party." Mr. Dewart led a small minority in the last legislature, and he will have fewer followers in the new Legislature than he had in the old one. If that is success, what is failure?—Hamilton Herald.

The Telegram is slowly recovering consciousness. By this time next week it will probably have pulled itself into the belief that it was the originator of the whole U. F. Christopher Columbus discovered America on October 11, 1492. What would Columbus in his little caravel think if he could be here today and see a swarm of ships of the air flying across the Atlantic, the richness only of which he was fated to view? And what would his astonishment be to learn that the Atlantic had fewer terrors for the navigators by air than it had for his sailors, who despaired of ever seeing land again?—Montreal Gazette.

Sir William Hearst is the most conspicuous of "the Lord's anointed" upon whose neck defeat has placed its heel. The defeated Premier of Ontario is the biggest and the most heroic Methodist who ever lifted a petition in protest the preachings of his church. The Methodist church allowed W. H. Hearst to be thrown to the wolves of anti-prohibition fury. The fate of W. H. Hearst marks the denominational boundary of Methodist loyalty—a burden greater than any party can carry in the future. W. H. Hearst is gone. W. Rowell is going. It will be many a long day before the Conservative party again accepts a Methodist leader in Toronto or looks for Methodist alliances at Ottawa. The actual fate of W. H. Hearst and the impending fate of Hon. Wesley Rowell indicates that the only Methodists who thrive in Canadian politics are such denominational ornaments as Sir Clifford Sifton, Hartley Dewart, K.C., and Hon. F. B. Carroll.—Toronto Telegram.

A Laugh or Two

It Was His Family.

The man was taking his family to the Tarsen pierrots. He walked a little in front, and his wife and all the children straggled behind.

Suddenly a policeman laid a heavy hand on the man's shoulder.

"You come along o' me," he said, and in spite of all protests led him away.

At the police-station the man made a last effort to get an explanation.

"What have you taken me up for?" he asked.

"Blowed if I know," said the policeman, "but when you looked up I'll go back and find out why the crowd was following yer!"

Remembered Him.

"Did your rich uncle remember you in his will?"

"Yes, personally. But he endowed a home for the indigent. I fancy he expected me to collect my share that way."

A Hot Comeback.

Cathbert—"Do you sell dog biscuits in this dirty little shop?"

Offended Shopkeeper—"Yes, sir, will you take them away or will you eat them here?"

Woman's Way.

He entered from the dining room window and slunk stealthily toward the shadowy corner. Then Envy remarked the shadows. "Get 'er jools!" "No," replied Envy. "Where d'you look?" "In 'er jewel case—and bin bevvy drawer in 'er bureau." "Lord, man, yer don't 'ev nothink about the ways of women. Why didn't yer look in the bat' room? You'd a-found the ole misomin' lot where she left 'em on the wash basin."

"Everything's frightfully high, my dear. Better go in for literature for a while and pretend to be superior to the fashions."

The Poet's Corner

COATS OFF!
(Harold Begbie)

For England's faith and future a thousand years go hid!
Who doubts our strength to conquer,
who says our heart will fail?
So far we've marched in honor, so shine we stood to-day!
Who says that we shall perish by our own hands at last?

Four hundred millions starving?—a world of bankrupt states?
Europe as debtors' prison?—Red ruin
at the gates?
Out on your tale of terror! Strip off the coward's mask!
The more ingents British courage the harder is the task.

We'll set our engines roaring, we'll show the world again
What pride is in our women, what wonder in our men:
We'll pile the ruins sky-high, and,
swing rich wealth aboard,
We'll break the back of Hunger as we broke the Prussian sword;

And break the back of traitors, with blows that save the world,
For it's England's truest calling,
it's her fine still unfurl'd,
It's England's life and ways' handling, and hard our blows shall fall
On the Seeker of the poor man, and the traitor of us all.

Get hence, you bloated Spider, with profits God shall reck,
Get hence, you hooded Hushes, the noose is at your neck;
No man shall be exempt us henceforth for evermore
Who does not live for England, true
English to the core.

A famished world is pleading. Come,
comrades, let us toil
Our weight, the weight of England, till each lander's gulf
No famine, and no business shall shake the world anymore
If England's free be flying from the drop of England's heart.

Now let the false man tremble, now let the true man smile!
The World's Need comes to suit us,
with our chins behind the veil;
The true man, kind and selfless, the brave man, strong and just,
Shall stand like rocks when treason has crumpled into dust.

We'll make a greater England in saying all the words aright
For it's England's trumpet calling, it's her fine still unfurl'd,
A nobler, gladder England, in body,
soul and mind,
Cast off, decrepit, we, and steady, for the sake of all mankind.

CHAPTER IX—Continued

"Cousin's wouldn't give you any more for your book if you had," said Turquand. "Put money in thy purse! I suppose you'll stick to Cousins?"

"Why not? Life's too short to find a publisher who'll pay you what you think you're worth; and they were affable. Affability covers a multitude of sins, and there's a lot of compensation in a compliment. Cousins senior told me I'd a "great gift." "

"Perhaps he was referring to his hundred pounds."

"He was referring to my talent, though I say it as shouldn't. That was your turn, Cynthia!"

"Yes," said Turquand; "a wife's very valuable at those moments, isn't she Mrs. Kent?"

"How do you mean?" said Cynthia, who found the conversational pace inconveniently rapid.

"I shall send it to Cousins," pursued Humphrey hastily; "and I want two hundred and fifty this time."

"They won't give it you."

"Why not?"

"Partly because you'll accept less.

LOOK OUT FOR 'FLU

Don't Trifle With a Cold.

Influenza was not stamped out last winter. It has appeared again. Many cases are reported.

You can't afford to neglect a cold. With the nose, throat and bronchial tubes inflamed and the system weakened you simply invite the germs of Influenza to attack.

Break up the cold with DOMINION C. B. Q. (Dominion Cascara, Bromide and Quinine Tablets) in the red box.

In a few hours, after taking these tablets, the head will clear; the stuffy feeling and headache will disappear. You should keep DOMINION C. B. Q. always in the house through the winter. No telling when you will need this reliable remedy. All druggists have DOMINION C. B. Q. in the red box. This is one of the standard preparations of the National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited. 14

And you haven't got into a second edition, remember."

"Look at the reviews!"

"Cousins's will look at the sale. The thing will have to be precious good for you to get as much as that."

"It will be precious good," said Kent seriously. "I'm doing all I know! You shall wade right through it when it's finished, if you will, and tell me your honest opinion. I won't say it's going to "live"; or any rot like that; but it's the best work it is in me to do, and it will be an advance on the other, that I'll swear."

"Mrs. St. Julian's last goes into a fourth edition next week," observed Turquand grimly, "if that is any encouragement to you."

"Good Lord," said Kent, "it only came out in January! Is that a fact?"

"One of Life's Little Ironies! Here is the kind of stuff to sell my boy! The largest public don't want nature and style; they want a pooty story and virtue rewarded. The poor "companion" rambles in the moonlight and book-muslin, and has love passages in the grounds at midnight, which wouldn't be respectable, only she's so innocent. The heiress sighs for a title and an establishment in Park Lane and the poor "companion" says, "Give me a cottage, with the man I love," making eyes at the biggest catch in the room, no doubt, though the writer doesn't tell you that, and hooks him. Blessed is the "companion" whose situation is in a lady-novelist's story, for she shall be called the wife of the lord. Sonny, the first mission of a novel is to be a pecuniary success—you are an idiot! Excuse me, Mrs. Kent."

"You may give him all the good advice you can," she responded. "I've said before that I like Mrs. St. Julian's stories, but Humphrey has made up his mind not to. That's firmness, I suppose, as he is a man."

She laughed.

"Mr. Turquand scarcely implied that he liked them either," replied Kent. "Isn't it painful, though, to think of the following a woman like that can command. What a world to write for—it breaks one's heart!"

"It's an overrated place," said Turquand; "it's a fat-headed, misguided, beast of a world!"

"It isn't the world," said Cynthia brightly "it's the people in it!"

A ghastly silence followed her comment, a pause in which the journalist stared at the stove ornament, affecting not to have heard her, and Kent felt the sickness of death in his soul. Shame that his wife should show her self so stupid in Turquand's presence paralyzed his tongue, and the latter, pitying his embarrassment, turned to the girl with an inquiry about her relatives. Humphrey had taken him to The Hawthorns, as requested, and Turquand, with characteristic perversity, professed to have discovered a congenial spirit in Miss Wix. It was about Miss Wix that he asked now.

Cynthia laughed again.

"Yes, your favorite is quite well," she answered—"as cheerful as ever."

"Fate hasn't been kind to Miss Wix" said Turquand; "she's been chastened and chidden too much. Under other circumstances——"

"Skittles!" said Humphrey.

"Under other circumstances, she might have been sweeter and less amusing. Personally, I am grateful that there were not other circumstance. I like Miss Wix as she is; she refreshes me."

"I wish she had that effect on me," said Kent, as the other rose to go, and he reflected gloomily that he would hear nothing refreshing until the next time they met. He begged him to remain a little longer, and, when Turquand withstood his persuasions, insisted on accompanying him to the station and parted from him on the platform with almost sentimental regret.

Only his interest in his book sustained him. He had got deep enough into it to feel the fascination of it to him now, and, though there were still days when he did not produce more than a single page, there were others on which composition was spontaneous and delightful, and happy sentences seemed to fall off his pen's point of their own accord. He wrote under difficulties when the summer came, for Cynthia required more and more attention; but while he often devoted whole mornings or afternoons to her, he made up for it by working on the next half through the night. More than once he worked through it entirely, merely forsaking his desk to splash in a bath before joining her at breakfast. On such occasions, he was in very good humor, and to have completed his felicity, it was only necessary for him to have breakfasted with a woman to whom he could have reported his progress, and cried, "I've come to such a point!" or, "That difficulty we foresaw you know, is overcome—a grand idea!" His exhilaration speedily evaporated at breakfast, and he returned to his room an hour later he did so feeling far less fresh than when he had left it.

Yes, Cynthia demanded many attentions through the summer months; she was petulant, capricious and dissolved in tears at the smallest provocation. There was much for Kent to consider besides the novel, and also there were anticipations in which they momentarily united, and he felt her to be so much his, as she was about. But these moments could not make a life; this had no complaint to make against him if marriage was not altogether the whole, but he was bored at weary. His feeling for her was the affection of a man for a child, tinged more or less consciously by compassion, since he saw that she would sob her heart out if she suspected how tedious she appeared to him. Though she would have been a happier woman with a different man the cost of the mistake they had made was far more heavy to him than to her. He realized what a mistake it had been, while she was unconscious of it, and for this, at least, he was glad.

and despite the fact that the date when their child was expected to be born was rapidly approaching, he was living more and more within himself.... Cynthia had no complaint to make against

Buy Victory Bonds Through the Banks on the Instalment Plan

CANADA'S banks will make it possible for every Canadian man and woman to buy all the Victory Bonds they can pay for in ten months.

The Finance Minister has made arrangements with the bank managers throughout the Dominion to give every co-operation to enable you to buy all the Victory Bonds you can possibly pay for on the instalment plan.

You do not need to be a customer of a bank to buy bonds under this instalment plan—it is open to everyone.

Put every dollar you can gather together into Victory Bonds—and then go to any bank and buy on the instalment plan all the Victory Bonds you can pay for during the next ten months.

Under this plan you pay ten per cent. on or before November 15th, and ten per cent. each month till August 16, 1920, when you will get your bond. The interest charged you by the bank is balanced by the interest you get on your Victory Bonds.

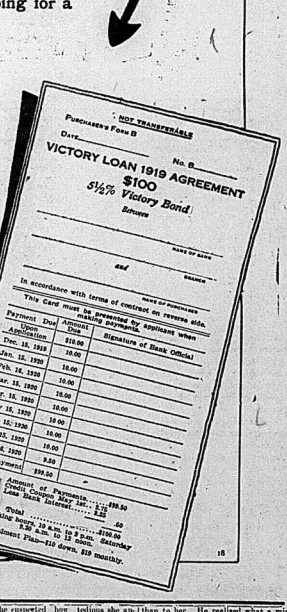
Any branch of any bank will store the Victory Bonds of small investors for safe keeping for a year without charge.

Buy all the Victory Bonds you can pay for — then buy more on the instalment plan. The banks will help you.

Employers' Credits—The banks have decided to make loans to employers of labour covering the subscriptions of their employees — the rate of interest to be the same as the yield of the bonds—5½%—the loans to be made for 90 per cent. of the amount subscribed—and to be paid off in monthly instalments. The banks have unanimously agreed that these loans will not be considered as impairing the amounts of credits for other purposes.

Advances to Investors—The banks have agreed also to grant reasonable credits to subscribers to the Loan at the rate of 5½% per annum, on loans to be repaid within one year. The amount loaned will be 90 per cent. of the subscription.

Issued by Canada's Victory Loan Committee in co-operation with the Minister of Finance of the Dominion of Canada.



Lord Charles Beresford Was an Energetic Fighter For His Naval Proposals

BARON BERESFORD, better known as Lord Charles Beresford, was a doughty fighter in the navy and a doughty fighter for the navy. In command of the Condor he showed himself ready to take chances, and in command of the Channel Squadron, the Channel Fleet, and the Mediterranean Squadron he was an untiring worker for naval efficiency. In the House of Commons, as well as later in the House of Lords, he gladly contended on all occasions that presented themselves for what he deemed the welfare of the navy. And with his pen he was quite ready, as with his tongue to promote that cause. In 1912 he published his "Great Betrayal," which was a plain-spoken work, but less sensational in its contents than its title, the most explosive matter in it having previously appeared as a letter to the London Times. Its influence was less than might have been expected from a man of his reputation as a naval authority.

Before this book appeared Lord Fisher, the First Sea Lord, had resigned. Of his policy Lord Charles Beresford was an unsparing critic. Lord Charles was opposed to the keeping of the navy concentrated in the North Sea, leaving the stations in other parts of the Empire shamefully denied and open to attack by any power that should suddenly become an enemy. The event has proved that Lord Fisher was right. Had not the greater part of Britain's naval strength been collected in the North Sea and had not that navy been mobilized ready for action when war was declared, the German navy might have done some damage at the outset. Fortunately Prince Louis of Battenberg, who was then First Sea Lord, wisely refrained from dispersing the navy to its several bases after the naval manoeuvres for which the ships had been assembled. Lord Charles Beresford had also his own ideas about the dreadnoughts. His view was that mobility counted for more than fortress-like strength afloat. He maintained that the great essential was the keeping of the sea routes open by means of fast cruisers armed with long-range guns.

Another British admiral who had sharply criticised an order of Beresford's in the manoeuvres, so much so indeed as to lead to talk of a breach of friendly relations between the two men, was Sir Percy Scott. Sir Percy was also a believer as to the value of the dreadnoughts. A few months before the war he wrote a letter to the London Times in which he said in effect, that the dreadnoughts were rendered obsolete by the development of the submarine. When the war began, Lord Fisher was recalled to office as First Sea Lord. As the man who had carried out the scheme for concentrating the navy where the danger seemed greatest, and with a strong advocate of great battleships, his selection by Mr. Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, seemed to be natural. Admiral Fisher was largely the author and promoter of the policies of the Government then in office.

In office Lord Fisher was not given to policies. Enough he himself was the target for unsparing attacks, especially on the part of Lord Charles Beresford in the Commons, where Mr. Winston Churchill often winced under the genial-mannered but none the less blistering criticism from the same quarter. But, just when Lord Beresford's carefully career closes Lord Fisher begins to fling about him, as a critic of the navy, half of which he believes to be ripe for scrapping. Ships quickly become old in these times of rapid advance in scientific construction and armament. Readers of Lord Fisher's remarks on the subject and of his survey of his own career as a seaman cannot but be struck with his leaning to a Billy Sunday way of expressing himself. He seems to have as much delight in iconoclastic criticism as had Lord Beresford himself. Personal prowess is a quality for which as a only Lord Beresford himself but his family as a whole is distinguished. But bravery in the British navy is common to all. Lord Charles had the bent for dash and heroic action. He was considerate of the men under him. Though a thorough disciplinarian he was not so much of a martinet as some older famous seamen.

TRIBUTE IS PAID TO SIR HENRY WILSON.

Premier David Lloyd George Tell How the Former Chief of the Imperial General Staff Fuvsaved the Great German Campaign of 1918—He Was Also Instrumental In Carrying Through Vital War Arrangements.

BRAVERY is known by the general public of the great services performed in the war by Sir Henry Wilson, Chief of the Imperial General Staff, recently made a field marshal, and therefore on this account the tribute paid to him by the British Prime Minister on the occasion of a dinner in his honor a short time ago will be interesting. Mr. Lloyd George said:—

"We meet to-night to do honor to a great soldier. He rendered essential service to his country at the most critical moment in its great story, and rendered greater service to his country than is generally known, for among his defects is one of excessive modesty. The first time I ever met Sir Henry Wilson was, I think, in 1911, at the Committee of Imperial Defence. Owing to the arrogance and the arbitrary action of the German Government the peace of Europe was being menaced and the Committee of Imperial Defence was suddenly summoned to consider the situation. Under the direction of Lord Haldane he made arrangement with Marshal Foch (then Gen. Foch) for the Expeditionary Force that the Government decided to send in 1914. Those arrangements came into operation as the result of the work done by Sir Henry Wilson, and they came into operation in a way which was very characteristic of him. There was no noise, there was no fuss, there was no advertisement about it. There was no hitch. No one knew that it was done until it had been done, and no one knew that it had been done by him. It was sent with expedition, it was sent with promptitude, and was the most perfect piece of machinery I have seen at work in the course of the war and it was his task.

"I will give you the second service, a service of no mean order, that he rendered, and that those of us who have been working behind know the value of even more than the general public—because it was one of the things that you did not wish to bring to the notice of the general public—and that was the work he did in smoothing difficulties between allies.

"When you come to the different races, different nationalities, fundamental differences of temperament and outlook, it is exceedingly difficult to get combined action, to remove suspicions which are always lurking about, and which you always get people prepared to foster. We were unable to marshal the whole of our overwhelming forces and often to concentrate them at one point because we were dealing with one great nation and not because we had four or five different nationalities and nations to deal with. It was one of the most difficult tasks that a man did more to overcome those difficulties, to weld it into one force, to promote good feeling by his tactics, by his tactfulness, by his good temper, by his good humor—no man did more than Sir Henry Wilson.

"Now I come to the third great service—the part he took in formulating, the strategy that led to defeating and getting something like unity of command. Of course he had a part in that. The setting up of the great Council of Versailles for the coordination of the strategy of the allies was due in the very largest to his inspiration. He was the very soul of the British section there. He set about the task with a good deal of his characteristic ingenuity. He split the whole business there into a British section and a German section. The German section was to devise all sorts of diabolical schemes for the destruction of the Allies; the British section was to do its best to counter all these machinations. By that scheme was in an attempt to project yourself into the mind of the enemy and see what it was most likely to do next. I give you an inkling of the way in which Sir Henry got

President Vetoes Prohibition Bill

Within Three Hours the House Repassed It Over His Veto.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—President Wilson unexpectedly vetoed the prohibition enforcement bill yesterday and within three hours the House had re-passed it over his veto by a vote of 176 to 55. The total vote was nearly two-thirds a majority of the entire membership.

Dry leaders in the Senate immediately began laying plans to repass the bill there. They expect to ask unanimous consent for its consideration, clashing dough votes to put it through. They expect to act on it by Wednesday at the latest.

The President refused to sign the bill because it included the enforcement of war-time prohibition.

Objects Achieved

The objects of war-time prohibition, the President in his veto said "had been satisfied, and "sound public policy makes for the reason and necessity for its repeal."

Sinn Feiners Shoot Cleric In Cold Blood

DUBLIN, Oct. 28.—The Rev. E. A. Foy, rector of Lisnadill, a lonely country district near Armagh, was shot by masked men Saturday night, and is in a critical condition in the Armagh infirmary.

The masked men called at the house on the pretense of borrowing a motor jack, and escaped after the shooting.

Mr. Foy's two sons joined the British army in Canada early in the war, one of them gained a commission in an Ulster regiment.

Charged With Causing Death Of Women By Furious Driving

Unusual interest was taken yesterday in the trial of Reginald Magee, at Stirling, before Justice of the Peace Morden Bird, on a charge of wanton and furious driving on the Highway causing the death of Mrs. Franklin, of Marmora Township, in September last. Owing to the accused being under the age of 16 years, the public were excluded from the Court which caused great disappointment but many of them waited outside until the verdict was given.

From the evidence it appears that the accused boy was driving north on the Marmora gravel road near the 6th Concession of Rawdon and overtook a buggy going the same direction, the accused stayed behind the buggy for about half a mile until both carriages had crossed the bridge at Squire's Creek where the travelled part of the road widens; the boy then turned out to the left to pass the buggy and as he came up level with the leading buggy, saw it was a woman driving. The lady immediately hit her horse three or four times with the whip and Magee's horse became frightened and both horses apparently became out of control. The lady's horse took the lead and was leading Magee about three horses' length when Cranston Corner was reached. Mrs. Franklin's horse turned the corner, the carriage taking the corner on two wheels, the boy who should have taken the corner to go home, realized that an accident would follow if he turned the corner at the speed the horse was going and steered the horse north on the gravel road he succeeded in stopping his horse about a quarter of a mile north from Cranston's Corner, where Mrs. Franklin had turned. On returning to Cranston's Corner to proceed home, he found Mrs. Franklin's carriage upset against a telephone pole and found Mrs. Franklin lying in a ditch near a stone fence unconscious about forty feet west from the Marmora Gravel Road.

The evidence showed that the boy did everything possible to obtain help and gave a full account of the accident to Dr. Alger on the day of the accident. After hearing the evidence of twelve witnesses called by the Crown and the boy's story and the argument of Counsel, the charge was dismissed and the boy honourably acquitted. Major R. D. Ponton defended the accused, W. Carnew, represented the Crown.

The Right Cow In The Wrong Place

An interesting case was decided at Napanee, yesterday, which involved the question of liability at an auction sale. A sale was held by the Whelan estate of the farm stock and implements of the deceased William Whelan, and one Felix Cournyea bid upon a cow which was designated as Cow No. 7 on the list, and the same was knocked down to him at $75.00. Benyea with costs. W. S. Herrington, he secured one Thomas and Andrew Kilty to take his place, and they went to the auctioneer's clerk and had Cournyea's name erased from the books, and Thomas Kilty's name substituted as the purchaser. McGrath was also a bidder at the sale, and when he came to get what he thought was the cow he purchased he found that Kilty had driven away the same and claimed it was Cow No. 7.

McGrath brought an action against Kilty for the conversion of cow purchased by him, and Kilty appeared and defended the action, and applied to the court and obtained an order adding Felix Cournyea of Hungerford and the Whelan Estate as third parties, setting out the fact that if the cow really belonged to McGrattie that Cournyea and the Whelan Estate were liable to the defendants.

There were some fifteen witnesses examined as to the cow known as No. 7, and the evidence was very conflicting in regard to its identification.

Judge Lavell, who tried the case, found that Kilty had obtained the cow bought by McGrath and adjudged him liable in damages to the extent of $100 and costs.

He also found that there was no justification whatever in adding the Whelan Estate third parties, and that there was complete novation in reference to Cournyea, and that as fraud had not been charged nor proved, Cournyea was not liable, and consequently dismissed the action as against the Whelan Estate and Cournyea was out only thirteen minutes.

K.C., appeared for the plaintiff; J. E. Madden, Napanee, for the defendant Kilty; E. J. Butler for third party; A. B. Collins for the Whelan estate.

Steam Barge Sank Eight Drowned

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Oct. 29.—The finding at daybreak today of two bodies on the shore of Lake Ontario wearing life preservers bearing the name of the steam barge Homer Warren, of Toronto, revealed the total loss of that vessel with her crew of eight. The shore was strewn with wreckage. The Warren in charge of Capt. Scalles, a Toronto, left Oswego homeward bound yesterday morning with five hundred tons of coal. She was last seen off Pultneyville, 35 miles east of here, at 11 a.m. yesterday while the gale was raging fiercely. She is believed, therefore to have gone down during the night. The bodies were not identified.

Liberals Make Proposition To U.F.O

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

TORONTO, Oct. 29—With E. C. Drury, of Simcoe, the well known agriculturist leader, again apparently the most likely possibility for Government leadership and the post of Premier of Ontario, a committee of the U. F. O. and Independent Labor party agreed here today to settle the matter.

Added interest is given to the situation today by the report that the Liberals have now officially approached the Farmers with a proposition for entering the proposed Farmer-Labor coalition, on the understanding it is said, that one or two portfolios in the new cabinet will go to their members.

Former Belleville Vocalist To Marry Baronet's Heir

MISS BEATRICE LILLIE, OF COBOURG, WHO FORMERLY SANG IN THE PALACE THEATRE, BELLEVILLE, MADE A GREAT HIT IN LONDON AND WILL MARRY INTO NOBILITY.

A cable despatch from England states that Robert Peel, son and heir of Sir Robert Peel, baronet "desires to announce that shortly after the Christmas holidays he will marry Miss Beatrice Lillie, of Cobourg, Ont."

This announcement is of unusual interest to Belleville theatre patrons as Miss Lillie at one time was the soloist in the Palace Theatre here, and has many friends in this city.

Miss Lillie went to England and evidently made a great hit in the metropolis, according to a cable despatch, which says:

"Miss Lillie is the most popular revue artist, now in London. She is a winsomely pretty brunette, who came on here just before the war and quickly enraptured the hearts of Londoners by her naive manner and delightful singing. Canadian and American soldiers claimed her as their own, and whenever she appeared in London she was always assured of a rousing reception.

FUEL SITUATION IN CANADA

The fuel situation in Canada is one which must be faced in an effort to overcome the annual threatened shortage and the constantly rising price of coal.

Canada possesses immense coal reserves. Unfortunately much of it is unsuitable for locomotive purposes, owing to its tendency to spoil, also refusing to its high moisture content, it rapidly disintegrates on exposure to the atmosphere. Again, at the mines, both below and above ground, in mining the coal and in handling it, a vast amount of slack is created, which up to the present has been considered as waste.

A process for utilizing this slack coal, as well as run-of-mine coal, has for some time been under development. By this method the coal is pulverized until approximately 85 per cent will pass through a 200-mesh screen and 95 per cent through a 100-mesh screen. After the coal has been pulverized, it is fed from the bins by screw conveyors and blown into the furnace.

Good results have been secured by several plants, by the metallurgical industries and on locomotives. In the heating of large buildings the use of pulverized coal has proved an economical fuel.

The Commission of Conservation, Ottawa, has issued a report on "Pulverized Fuel; its Use and Possibilities" by W. J. Dick, M. Sc., which explains in detail the use of pulverized coal and its advantages.

HAVE TO LIVE UP TO TESTIMONIALS

A man to man who was unexpectedly thrown out of a job not long ago and plans at once to securing another position and in this connection turned to the testimonials from various former employers covering a long period. He read them over with considerable satisfaction. They showed that he was honest, energetic and able; that no could be relied upon to do the right thing at the right time and do it well.

"I'm going to have some little difficulty, perhaps, in living up to these testimonials," he soliloquized, "but by ginger I can do it. It's up to me to keep on making the grade. I have the goods."

Canada has to make the grade in the Victory Loan drive which started on Monday. She has the goods. She also has the testimonials gained in previous Victory Loan campaigns and she must live up to them. The Loan must be obtained to the largest possible extent in order that the prosperous conditions prevailing in Canada may be maintained. The agricultural and industrial life of Canada are dependent on the success of this Victory Loan. The need must be fully realized. None must falter in the effort to help the loan into the same fame as that enjoyed by its predecessors. Canada can do it, and will do it. It is everybody's drive for the benefit of each man, woman and child in Canada. Get into it with a will.

$121,150 In First Two Days Is Almost Double Last Year

Last night's splendid total of $121,150 resulting from the first two days canvass of the Victory Loan must be credited to the lower part of Hastings County for, as was expected, it is taking a little longer for the northern districts to get under way, this being only natural to places somewhat isolated. In spite of this fact the results nearly double those corresponding for last year which were only $51,000. Canvassers in the north are working hard and their returns will without doubt make up for the delay when they commence to come in.

Splendid tribute to the security of the Loan is the number of public institutions who are entrusting their funds in it. In addition to the Belleville branch G. W. V. A. whose subscription of $3000 was the first in the campaign, the Marmora and Deloro branch have put $200 into Victory Bonds. St. Paul's Church, Marmora, have also subscribed $300.

RACE FOR FLAG

An exciting race for the first Prince of Wales' Flag in Hastings County is rapidly developing and the contending teams are exerting every effort to win this coveted honor. Messrs. Norman Laing and Arthur Yates canvassers for Deloro, still lead with a percentage of 22.41 of their objective while Messrs. J. F. Hinchey and G. P. Spafford in Tyendinaga Township, are close behind with 19.33. Both teams have vowed to win. Early morning and late at night trips speak for the keenness of the contest. The brand new runabout which the Tyendinaga team are burning up the roads with is sadly losing its pristine lustre but little matters except to win. Mr. Laing and Mr. Yates the two young returned officers of Deloro are retorting with energetic publicity. They have held a big public meeting and on Hollowe'en night are holding a fancy dress dance to head the Loan which they term on their invitation, "A Little Jazz" So far the Tyendinaga team has collected $11,500 while Deloro has brought in $5,650.

By stimulating and arousing the circulation with light applications of Absorbine, Jr., rubbed in thoroughly. This invigorating liniment acts quickly and surely. It is fragrant and pleasant to use—leaves no greasy residue on the skin.

As Absorbine, Jr., is a powerful germicide as well as a liniment, it is effective for prophylactic and aseptic uses; it destroys the germs in cuts and sores; it may be diluted and used successfully as an antiseptic and germicide for the mouth and throat.

Athletes will find it efficient for limbering sore, stiff muscles. A good formula for a rubdown is one ounce of Absorbine, Jr., to a quart of water or witch hazel.

It is composed of vegetable extracts and essential oils and is positively harmless. Get a bottle to-day and keep it in your desk, in your traveling bag, in your medicine cabinet or in the side pocket of your automobile. It is health insurance of a high type.

DREDGE SINKS, MAN DROWNED

HAMILTON, Oct. 29.—Government dredge No. 114, which was being towed to Hamilton by a tug, foundered in the lake about eleven miles from the Hamilton Beach, and John McLaughlin, aged 35, went down with it. The tug under Capt. H. I. Mathews Cobourg, left Whitby Sunday evening. The storm caught them about Toronto. In addition to the dredge the tug was towing two scows, which were cut away and saved. Ralph Holbeck, Cobourg, and Arthur Tait, Port Burwell, who were with McLaughlin, and who donned lifebelts, were rescued. They say they did not see McLaughlin after they helped him to cut away the scows.

Excitement Causes Hymn Criticism

OTTAWA, Oct. 29.—Society of wild disorder occurred at Monday night's session of the Ontario and Quebec Baptist Convention. It seemed for a few moments that Rev. J. Henderson of Eglinton Baptist Church, Toronto, would be forcibly ejected. He refused to sit down when told to do so by the President, Rev. Dr. O. S. C. Wallace, and insisted on speaking. He could not be heard, for many of the delegates, including several venerable ministers, rose to their feet and shouted at the top of their voices: "Throw him out!" and "Sit down!" It is very probable that means would have been taken to remove him from the building had not several of his friends gathered around him and induced him to take his seat.

The cause of all the trouble was an address given by E. H. Scammell, Assistant Deputy Minister of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, who is a member of the First Baptist Church, Ottawa. He spoke on "The Church and the Returned Soldier." Intimating that if the Church expected or hoped to get the returned soldier in their midst they would have to change their methods he asked: "How can you expect men who have made the sacrifice of soldiers have made to come to church and sing:

"I'm but a stranger here,
Heaven is my home.

Earth is a desert drear,
Heaven is my home."

BOND INTEREST IS $18,000,000

On November 1, $18,000,000 will be distributed as interest among those who subscribed to the 1918 Victory Loan. A large portion of the amount will go to the holders of small bonds.

Small bonds bring small amounts of interest individually, but taken in the aggregate the interest assumes imposing proportions.

The people who will receive the interest in December will have in their hands a potential Niagara, a Niagara that will help materially in sweeping the Victory Loan, 1919, over the top.

Interest drawn from previous issues of Victory Bonds should be re-invested Because it spends the money. She needs it to clean up the war bill, to see that the soldiers who have come back in their thousands, are fairly dealt with, that the wounded and crippled and the dependents of the fallen do not want, and that the large capital expenditures that are a part of the enormous work or reconstruction that has been undertaken are taken care of.

Put your Victory Bond interest back into more Victory Bonds.

POLICE GET 3,800 BOTTLES OF LIQUOR

TORONTO, Oct. 28.—Inspector Pogue and P. C. Johnson and Parrish visited the C. P. R. freight sheds at Simcoe and Front streets yesterday afternoon and confiscated 3,800 bottles of whiskey. The consignment was contained in packing cases, four boxes to each case, and every case carefully packed with excelsior to prevent the contents from being broken and exposing the contraband. The liquor was apportioned to various parts of the sheds, and was consigned to the following firms: Nerlick and Co., Canadian Conduit Co., and G. Nicholson and Co. The liquor was transferred to the Government vaults.

Three hundred and forty-six Bolsheviks lost their lives when two of their destroyers struck mines and sank.

A despatch from Cardiff says the arrangements have been made under which six million tons of coal will be shipped from the United States to Britain.

CANADA'S FUTURE DEPENDS ON LOAN

Steady Employment and Prosperity Hangs on Victory Loan.

Canada's future prosperity depends to a great extent upon the success of the Victory Loan. No country can exist upon trade within its own boundaries. Canada counts on the trade with Great Britain and other allied countries to keep the food of good times in the country.

The surplus products of the farm and the factory find their way across the seas. The revenue of the farmer and the manufacturer is dependent on this trade relationship being sustained. The employment of many hands depends on the orders that come to the firm. The pay envelope only comes with steady employment.

Great Britain and overseas countries are still desirous of continuing trade relations, but, overwhelmed with war expenses, they must be given credits for the time being. The farmer and the manufacturer must be paid for their products and manufactured articles in cash. Therefore, Canada must finance the proposition to keep the tide of commerce coming this way. But in order to have the money on hand to do this great thing, Canada must borrow from her people.

The Victory Loan offers bonds to subscribers paying 5½ per cent. interest. The assets behind the bonds makes them an absolutely safe investment. Victory Bonds are accepted as collateral at any bank, and can easily be turned into money at a profit. It is then to the interests of every Canadian to subscribe for all the Victory Bonds he can, for it is profitable, it is patriotic, and it is necessary for the continued prosperity of the country.

CANADA NEEDS MONEY

War Expenditures Still to be Met From Proceeds of Victory Loan.

The war is over and won; but Canada's main expenditure for war will not be complete until well on into 1920. The $210,000,000 raised last year has all been spent, $400,000,000 having been largely devoted to soldiers—to maintaining them, bringing them home, providing the necessary medical services, training them. Most of the balance of the loan was lent to Great Britain to enable her to buy our surplus products. And money is still necessary — for soldiers, for providing markets, for our surplus products, for the needs of reconstruction. And that is why another Victory Loan is necessary. Canada still needs money, and needs it badly.

A Good Investment.

Speculation is one thing. Investment is another. The majority of citizens want an investment, not a speculation. And they want a safe investment. Victory Bonds fill that requirement as does no other investment. Because behind the bond there is the national wealth of Canada—a wealth so great that it staggers the imagination.

Canadian Bank Clearings.

That Canada is well able to support the Victory Loan is clearly shown by the Canadian bank clearings for the current year. They indicate that this year's total will exceed $15,000,000,000 compared with $13,776,000,000 in 1918. And the years total clearings should be three times those of 1909.

Must Subscribe More

Dividing the people of Canada into three classes — the comparatively poor, the moderately wealthy, and the very wealthy — it would seem that if contributions to the Victory Loans constitute service to the nation, the moderately wealthy class is hardly doing its share. Of the money subscribed to the Victory Loan 1918, two hundred and seventy-one million dollars were in bonds of $5,000 and under, ninety-four millions in bonds of between $5,000 and $25,000, and three hundred and one millions in bonds of $25,000 and over.

Be true to yourself. Buy Victory Bonds.

You did it before. You can do it again. Buy Victory Bonds.

Canada pledged her last man and her last dollar. Redeem that pledge in Victory Bonds.

If the fighting were still raging, you wouldn't hesitate to buy Victory Bonds.

To make the Victory Loan a success is a national obligation. It may be that you are the deciding factor.

If you are concerned about the future welfare of Canada, buy a Victory Bond and make it a sure thing.

Don't forget the future of your children. Lay a good foundation with a Victory Bond.

Would you lend a soldier $50 if you knew it would save his life? Buy Victory Bonds and keep the military hospitals up.

If you appreciate a good investment you will buy a Victory Bond.

You deceive no one but yourself when you say you can't afford a Victory Bond.

Air Speeds.

Every airplane has a minimum air speed at which it must be thrust through the air if it is to be maintained aloft, and a maximum air speed in excess of which it cannot safely be nose-dived, for the various components will not stand the strain beyond a certain given point.

At Toronto Friday evening Frankie Coulin of Buffalo dropped Jack Crompton of Toronto in the last round of their six-round set-to with a hard right to the jaw, supplemented by a left hook as the Torontonian was going down. Crompton took the count of nine and was willing to continue, but Referee Lou Scholes wisely stopped the bout. Crompton had a shade in points on his adversary up to the delivery of the haymaker that won for Coulin.

THE HARRIER.

Cruel Hawk is Enemy of the Wild Duck.

The cruel marsh harrier, first to come when ice disappears, last to leave Canadian shores in autumn; in size, next to his brother the fish hawk, with plumage not brilliant but beautiful—tracings on tail and wings of russet brown to grey and white intermixing in hidden parts on breast and legs—very strong talons, large spread of wings, with light body, a graceful flyer, is a true hawk in every detail. The marsh is his home during his stay with us. He is on guard at all daylight times. The edible frog and field mice which stay near the shore are his menu while awaiting his choicer prey to develop, viz., the wild duck and its offspring. His patrol begins with our open season, September, when the sportsman is about. By nature taught to keep away from the report of guns, he does not leave the marsh but keeps at a safe distance from danger, fully aware of what he is doing. Any change of location by the hunter brings the bird to where the execution has been done. Then woe betide the stray duck with a broken wing that has eluded the shooter by getting into the marsh. The harrier will fly low, hovering and looking with his piercing eye. He very soon locates the wounded duck, and pitching it up, does not fly high with it, but just skims the tall marsh foliage till he finds a dry muskrat house or log, frees the meal commences. Choosing the breast only to tear and eat, he is soon away for another, his appetite, like the weasel's, never satisfied.

I have seen eight ducks treated this way by the harrier in one afternoon. After a big shoot in a preserve many ducks escape wounded. By anyone returning at daylight the ungathered game can be easily located by watching the harrier at work.

This is kept up till frost comes. Then the great feast takes place, as the ducks stranded and unable to fly are doomed to die. When winter sets in and ice forms the living wounded are easily caught by Indians and others.

The nesting of the duck is not a harvest for the harrier. The parent bird can often outwit him. When the young leave the shell the parent leads them to the water. They can dive and elude their enemies and pursuers. The harrier cannot dive. So, early in life, the mother duck instructs her young to fear the shadow of the harrier. In one second all duck life disappear beneath the water. To assist this pirate in his work of destruction on the wounded, his autumn feathers agree exactly with the faded marsh cat-tail rushes and tall grass. Certainly to a kindly heart the laws and habits of nature seem to be misplaced in some instances. The black and king birds—in fact, all birds that breed in or near marshes—array themselves in battle formation at times to fight the harrier, and will chase him for miles away from their sanctuary.

Settlers Coming from England.

Plans for the emigration of ex-Imperial service men, who, he expects, will avail themselves in large numbers of provisions in the Dominion Land Settlement Act, are being completed by Lieut.-Col. W. Obed Smith, Canadian Immigration Commissioner in London, Eng. "In view of the fact that the Military Service Act passed by the British Government has practically made every able-bodied man an ex-service man, we anticipate a large percentage of such men anxious to take advantage of the provisions of the act, which offers them free transportation to a port of landing in Canada," said Col. Smith. "With a view to ensuring that only such men as are likely to succeed as settlers on the land are selected, a special qualifying committee of farmers will be appointed by the Ministry of Colonization and Emigration, and will arrive in England shortly for that purpose.

"Generally speaking, the conditions of settlement for such men will be the same as for the Canadian veterans except that they will be required to put down 20 per cent. instead of 10 per cent. of the purchase price of their land."

As to the future general immigration propaganda of the department, Col. Smith stated they would maintain the same attitude and policy as before the war, that only workers on the land and household workers should be encouraged to emigrate. Neither ex-service men nor women would obtain free transportation until their application had been passed and approved by his department. In this way the Canadian Government would admit only those approved by its representatives in London.

"Already," said the commissioner, "we have sent over a few Dutch and Belgian farmers, and we expect to continue with this class of emigrant, including Scandinavian farmers, but we are not allowing any emigration from Central and Southeastern Europe. Another development in connection with the work in Europe under my supervision will be taking charge of all Dominion Government exhibitions, and it is hoped to greatly stimulate tourist travel to many beauty spots in Canada through the agency of such exhibitions."

Killing Wild Ducks.

Thousands of wild ducks and other waterfowl die each year from lead poisoning, incurred by eating stray shot picked out of the mud about popular shooting grounds. Many ducks recover from the malady it is true, but even these are permanently injured. Females mated with affected females lay infertile eggs, mingled with others which produce puny young. The affection is, of course, a result of the fowls' habit of swallowing small, hard objects to furnish grit for the gizzard. Here the little lead pellets are ground away, to pass into the intestines, where they produce progressive paralysis, and, usually, death.—Popular

NATURE'S MIRROR

When a woman is well and healthy—there's a sparkle in her eyes, a rose tint in her cheeks, and she has rich red blood. There's elasticity in every movement and a spring in her step. Love comes to every woman who has bounding health—but when she is pallid, dull eyed, languid, she has no magnetism nor does she appeal to any man.

Such a change in feelings and looks!

After suffering pain, feeling nervous, dizzy, weak and dragged down by weaknesses of her sex—with eyes sunken, black circles and pale cheeks—such a woman is quickly restoged to health by the Favorite Prescription of Dr. Pierce. Changed, too, in looks, for after taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription the skin becomes clear, the eyes brighter, the cheeks plump. It is purely vegetable, contains no alcohol.

Druggists sell it in tablets or liquid. Send Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N.Y., 10c for trial package.

Toronto's objective in the forthcoming Victory Loan drive has been set at $90,000,000.

CITY DWELLERS NEED HAVE NO FEAR.

"There is no need for the urban population throughout the Province to be alarmed and apprehensive over the uprising of the rural citizenship," says the Farmer's Sun. "The farmers simply feel that their interests have been neglected and have made that feeling manifest. The farmers are of the opinion also that the majority of city-dwellers have considerable cause for complaint and that there is common ground upon which the consumer and the producer can get together for mutual good.

"The whole movement is a purely democratic one, financed by the people themselves, and not for self-seeking interests, said the editor of the Sun. There is going to be no 'seething revolution', and when the next Legislature concludes its business, I look for nothing but commendation for the work which will have been initiated and accomplished."

SPLENDID AUGURY FOR LOAN.

Canada's Minister of Finance must have been filled with elation when he read the financial pages of the daily press on October 16th and learned that on the previous day Victory Bond sales had created a new record on the Montreal Stock exchange; and that on Toronto and other changes they had been extremely active. The trading was of course in Victory Bond issues of the past two years. At Montreal $1,514,600 of bonds maturing in 1933 were sold at a premium of nearly four per cent. Other sales including large transactions in 1937 bonds at a premium of nearly five per cent. brought the sales up to nearly $2,255,000. Coming as the eve of the new 1919 Victory Loan this trading furnishes the most extraordinary proof of the confidence of the bond-buying public in Canadian bonds.

Ordinarily it would be supposed that the imminence of a new bond-issue would tend to depress the market in some slight degree, but it is obvious that the unshakable nature of the security, and the handsome return, places them above ordinary currents in the stock markets. Such activity furnishes abundant proof that financial men are convinced that Canada is still well within the limits of safety and security in her borrowings.

ONTARIO'S NEW ADMINISTRATION.

Great interest is being taken in the proposed U. F. O.-Labor coalition which purposes to undertake the administration of public affairs in Ontario. The farmers organization and the labor people are the premier position in provincial politics, but finding themselves with a majority in the Legislature they propose to accept the responsibility and give the task a try-out, in conjunction with the Labor members. The general attitude of press and public seems one of "watchful waiting" to developments. It is not expected that the new Government will attempt any radical legislation or in the interests of the people of Ontario as a whole and good, strong, conservative administration is given there could be no objection from any class. The Toronto Globe discusses editorially the question of farm and city representation as follows:

It is unlikely that a Farmers Government will propose class legislation or abuse its power in such a way as to antagonize the people in towns and cities. Fair play and self-interest combine against such a course. The shrewd tacticians of the movement know that the U. F. O. group cannot stand alone in the Legislature, and that it represents a minority in the province. The Ontario Bureau of Industries reports a population of 995,228 in the townships in 1918, and 1,582,949 in the cities, towns and incorporated villages. The rural population has a representation in the House beyond its numbers by reason of the distribution of seats. It is the rule everywhere to give rural constituencies a smaller representation than urban cities. The Ottawa Journal points out that the city of Ottawa, with 110,000 population, would have five members in the Legislature instead of two, if it had the same proportionate representation as the county of Carleton, a farming constituency which has a population of 20,000, and elects one member. On the same basis the city of Toronto would elect 24 members, instead of its present allotment of ten. The Journal says:

"The total population of the Province is at present probably about 2,800,000. This is allowing for a considerable increase since the Dominion census was taken and reported a population of 2,523,274. The Ontario Legislature has 111 members. Dividing 2,800,000 by 111 gives a unit of population of a little over 25,000. Each member of the Legislature, but inasmuch as the cities with their big populations return only a comparatively few members, the rural unit of population per member is, as we have said, only about 20,000."

"The Journal's estimate of the total population is higher than that of the Provincial Bureau, but it does not alter the fact that there is a wide disparity between rural and urban representation. This state of things, which is not peculiar to Ontario, has been defended on several grounds. The daily newspapers, the universities, and the headquarters of various large institutions and organizations are concentrated in the cities, which are supposed, because of these advantages, to have relatively greater influence on legislation and public opinion. It has been assumed also, that the rural or semi-rural constituencies draw largely on the cities for their public representatives—a custom more prevalent in the past than today. Perhaps there is also a territorial argument for this arrangement. The cities do not compare in area with the farming districts, which have therefore geography on their side if not population. In a political contest, in which the farmers were sharply separated from other groups—an unlikely and deplorable contingency—it is improbable that the former could elect a Legislature of their own, even under present conditions. Such a conflict would invite reprisals by the anti-agrarians, who might, if they had the power, redistribute the seats so as to give the cities a larger share. It would be a reflection on the common sense of the U. F. O. leaders if they were not credited with a sincere desire to avoid class or sectional strife, and to make their present generality acceptable and free from suspicion of self-seeking.

CRISP COMMENT.

You can now get an excellent five-cent cigar for a quarter, remarks the Wall Street Journal.

An airplane, says an Ottawa paper, is now regularly engaged in carrying liquor from Montreal to the capital. Its capacity is a hundred gallons a trip. Such a load should be conducive to pose, dives, dips and sidles, but it goes to show that bootlegging is rising to a higher plane.

After all the statesman has a hard lot. It is easy enough to pick the right side, but so very difficult to pick the side that will hold the most votes, says the Toledo News-Bee. Good pickers among Canadian statesmen will pick out a nice farm and settle down to cultivate the rural vote.

Formation of Old-Clothes League is announced from the United States to make the wearing of patched and darned garments honorable and fashionable. Unofficially we have belonged to that league for some considerable time.

There is a general disposition among Ontario city people to wish the U. F. O. leaders a fair chance to make good in the government of the Province. One thing about the change that is generally approved is that the farmers are essentially economical and thrifty, and believe in work and plenty of it. That is what Ontario wants.—Mail and Empire.

Toronto reports over 20,000 spoiled ballots in that city, and estimates 50,000 for the province on the election alone. Might be a good thing for the Department of Education to drop some of the non-essential fads and frills and begin with the Entrance course to teach the rudiments of reading, writeable, how to mark ballots. It's not at all complimentary to the system to say that otherwise intelligent people understand so little about the methods of electing governments. The marking of the ballot could be made as simple to all as the commonest thing in every one's life.—Guelph Mercury.

A GHURKA WARRIOR.

Young Man From India Will Live In Canada.

A Ghurka, one of those sturdy Indian fighters whose name has spread terror among the enemies of Britain for nearly a century, has been visiting prominent Canadian cities and towns during the past few months, and attracting much attention by his unusual bearing.

Little more than a lad in age Kamel Singh has seen across a year or two of many campaigns. Following the custom of the Ghurkas he joined the military school when he was a boy. He entered the 2nd Ghurkas and war broke out he was a fully trained soldier.

With his seven brothers Pte. Khan served in the Imperial army, following the traditions of their father, who had been a soldier of Queen Victoria. Before the Great War he was service in the hill-fighting against the Afridis. "There is always fighting there," he explained. When the war broke out he enlisted with the 1st Ghurkas. Regiment at Thul, India. From Singapore he went to Cawnpore, later he trained, and then went straight to France.

He was transferred to the 42nd Ghurka Regiment, with which he went into action. He fought in France until May, 1915, when he was first wounded. He then went to Egypt and in November, 1915, he was wounded a second time. In the following March he was wounded a third time, in December, 1916. Following this he was sent to Mesopotamia, and was wounded, in 1918, and was wounded again at the battle of Cambrai.

During the Great War Kamel succeeded in winning the Military Medal and the St. George's Cross, an Indian decoration. As he desires to see this country he has enlisted in the Royal Canadian Highlanders and expects to serve in Canada for a number of years.

He is a crack shot and carries the treasured kukri. While his favorite weapon is the kukri, the national weapon of the Ghurka, and which they do terrible execution. He carries this curved knife in his belt, having received special permission to do so. She his guards jealously and will not allow anyone to handle it.

"There is no question about his being a warrior," his solo answer to conversation is fighting. He talked incessantly about it as a boy would talk about his play. "Ghurka fight my time, all the time," he said. "Two o'clock in the morning, good time, but fight all night and all day.

"Canadians good fighters, but not Ghurkas," was a tribute he paid. "Canadians take prisoners, should. Ghurka never take prisoners."

He laughed gaily as he recounted the various "killings" he had participated in. Fighting the hillsmen on the northern frontiers, the Turks in the Gallipoli or the Germans in France, all had resulted in the same ending. A wild charge, the flashing, bloody kukri, and then the return with the noses and ears of his adversaries in his pocket to show as "souvenirs."

Pointing to a scar on his forehead he explained that it was inflicted by a Turkish bayonet as he was entering a dugout, after serving in the Egyptian campaign. He then entered the dugout single-handed and killed the seventeen occupants. This was the occasion for which he received the bar to his Military Medal.

On going into battle it was his custom to tie a white cloth or bandage about his neck and use them for mopping purposes. He is somewhat reticent about his exploits in the war, but he is very proud of his record.

Following knives as he somewhat, he claimed that he could cut a German's throat with one hand at yards every time. Kamel Khan is a slightly built young man, twenty-four years old. His complexion is swarthy, but by no means dark, and his features are good. He speaks English well, and has the intention of attending school while in Canada in order to complete his education.

Raising Queen Bees.

Queen bees are highly important members of honey-gathering swarms, and the rearing of these by queenless females is a highly specialized branch of bee-culture. Two methods are usually employed. A Canadian bee-keeper has devised a new system for safeguarding the lives of queens, and for protecting the young bees against the attacks of their winged lives. When a larva is one day old, it is removed from the comb by a cylindrical cutting instrument, forced outward, and pushed into a short protective tube. The latter is then replaced in the ordinary variety of comb and the work completed. A finished cell can be made in this way. The scientific method is to place the larva, and placed in a cylindrical cage of wire gauze, in which the bees hatches and remains until full grown. The cage is then placed in the bottom of the cage permit a feeding.—Popular Mechanics.

A New Variety of Flax.

Inspired by the pleas of French artists for an all the world and dull their pictures, a noted American horticulturist has succeeded in cultivating a new flax of unusual quality. The stalk of the plant is slender, and almost twice the size of those of the ordinary variety, and is bright green in color, and yield about 12 per cent. more oil. The experimenter started with a few seeds of this beautiful Indian flax, which for several years he reserved for dark shading but from this unpromising source was finally developed a plant as valuable as productive as the old, and with the other advantages. The work of experimenting to Canadians as the industry has been prospering in this country in recent years.

Hate Stiff Linen.

Wearied of the starched collar, the stiff shirt, the immobile tie and big laundry bills, demobilized army officers are seconding the efforts of fashion to make the soft collar, the soft throat and open shirt. "Our stiff-necked fathers," they remark, "were the rag-bag," writes one. The new fashion has met with marked support of the medical specialists.

TO PROTECT THE SLEEVES

Most Serviceable Coverings May Be Made From Men's Handkerchiefs of Cheap Materials.

Nearly all business girls wear overdresses of some sort, and the sleeves are made of the usual black or dark material, they give a severe look to the dress.

It is a good plan to make the sleeves of cheap handkerchiefs; the cheap ones, sold for ten cents, answer the purpose. Perhaps the most serviceable kind is the one with a white center and a colored border. A center that is pretty, and may show the dirt less than a white one, can be soon fade, and the goods on which it is used be kept in the sleeves experience then the white handkerchiefs.

Fold the handkerchiefs diagonally twice, to form a right-angled triangle; four folds in thickness, with the edges of the handkerchief as the hypotenuse. Then cut off one of the corners at an acute angle, somewhat on a slant. The wrist of the sleeve should be about five inches before it is bound. All seams must be French ones so that there shall be no raw edges.

Gather the wrist slightly, and bind it with a band strip from one of the pieces that were cut off. It should be from three and three-fourths to four and one-quarter inches across when finished, or just large enough to slip the hand through easily. A narrow edging of lace may be sewed to the edge of the sleeves a more finished appearance. Rolling the sleeves, gives a pair of sleeves from one handkerchief.

When the sleeves are in use, the seam comes on the inside of the arm, and the point is pinned on the outside, just above the elbow. This will hold the sleeve comfortably in place, and the strain being on the bias of the cloth, it gives with every motion of the arm, and fits more closely than a sleeve made on the straight would.

Such a sleeve can also be worn by any housekeeper when she is at her work. They can be made and laundered so easily that they commend themselves to the practical girl.

GinPills FOR THE KIDNEYS

Canada's Frontier College

THE United States has grown tired of being a "melting pot," she has decided to use modern methods, turn on the electric-welding devices, and make everybody in America Canadian.

The States are now seething with activity towards the Americanization of the foreign-born. Classes for adult foreigners are being held in factories, camps, and railway sidings. The Government has created an "Americanization branch" in the Bureau of Education.

Now, for nineteen years, a little institution known as the Reading Camp Association has been quietly and effectively carrying on in Canada this very work that the United States has just undertaken. With practically no official backing, supported only by such far-sighted citizens as could personally be interested in the work, the Reading Camp Association has been teaching citizenship to strangers in the land, in cities, mines, and lumber camps.

And now, because at last the work has proved itself, the foreign-speaking nations are awakening to the need which the Reading Camps met since 1900, the Reading Camp Association has been granted a charter by Ontario under the name of the Frontier College, and Alfred Fitzpatrick, the founder and director of the movement for nineteen years, has been adopted as principal.

Canada has many distinguished universities. It is the only country to charter a college to reach the people of her civilization. The Frontier College is the only college of "sitten." It has no foes. It has many friends in all parts of the land. Its staff are young men, mostly undergraduates and undergraduates.

The Frontier College has no equipment but the simple texts and learning matter that the young "professors" carry in their pockets over wilderness trails.

The first idea originated was as follows: Alfred Fitzpatrick, on returning from Queen's University was sent on mission work to the lumber camp in the redwoods of California. There he labored as a young minister for a long season. But he found out, impossible, to confine himself and the lumbermen he was to work among.

Most of them were foreigners. There was the gulf of language. They were of European and Asiatic religion. They had no point of view that could be reached by ordinary, western ideas and ideals.

And right there Mr. Fitzpatrick decided that before the foreign immigrant could be reached by the higher ideals of church and school, that gulf had to be bridged.

He returned to Canada and in 1900 gave up the ministry and launched the reading camp idea. He opened with three lumber camps in Algoma, and he aimed to "reach" citizens and the rudiments of citizenship and the higher ideals to the foreigner. And to the credit of Canada, as he directed good reading, the three "r's" and history at citizenship. To back him, he had a few interested lumbermen, and a government grant. Year by year, his work spread. From Algoma it went to Cobalt, and carried his idea to the Rockies and to Labrador, in mines, camps, railway sidings and lumber camps.

From two young helpers he rose to a company of forty workers, and as young varsity men who donned shoe-packs and mackinaws, and toiled with picks and sledge-hammers.

The Government to secure Government aid raised the magnificent donation of twenty-five dollars. Now the grant is $1,500, and Ross raised this to $5000, and in allow annual grants of $5,000. Private grant of $7,500 from the Ontario Government. Premier Hearst has asked the Minister of Education to double this amount annually.

The Frontier College has been forty-five instructors working from five years of academic work, more will be seventy. The nearest branches to Belleville are Cobalt and Timmins, are at a railway extra-gang at Orono, and two-gang at work on a power canal at Niagara. There are seven instructors working among the foreigners there. These instructors dig ditches by day and teach English and citizenship in the evening.

There has been no attempt to carry the work into the cities, for the cities have better facilities for Canadianizing the foreigner than the camps and railways. But during the war, one class was formed of Toronto Russians. Since the outbreak of the war, cast a score of them in jail, where one died, and since then the Russians have avoided Torontonization.

The only recognized institution the Frontier College has no doubt flourish. It is urging the universities to establish extra-mural courses, by which a student, after doing two years of academic work, may secure his remaining two years as an instructor on Canada's frontier, attending the university only to write his exams.

A Sad Plight.

At a club this story was found in the complaint book: "The hot water in the lavatory to-day was quite cold and there was none at all."

Water vs. Steam.

One pint of water converted into steam fills more than that latter would require as much space as 1,700 pints of water.

Mummies as Medicine.

In the seventeen and eighteenth centuries there was a profounded belief in powdered mummies as internal stimulant on Canada's frontier, attending the university only to write his exams.

Honors.

Cardinal Mercier is now an honorary citizen of New York and the same day that he was so honored the Prince of Wales became the big little chief of a tribe of Canadian Indians. North American hospitality is not to be outdone.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, Oct. 28.—With 6709 cattle on the market yesterday, there was a good trade for any cattle showing quality and fat, and that class realized good prices, and more good butchers would have sold at steady prices had they been there on sale.

Altogether we had an active market yesterday, and the prospects are favorable for steady prices. There appears, as stated before, to be a marked scarcity of finished butcher cattle. There is a fair clean-up, notwithstanding this.

There was a heavy run of sheep and lambs, according to late arrivals on the Board. The lamb market was lower, choice lambs selling at from 13c to 14c (a few only at the latter price). The feeling was inclined to drag, the bad weather of the last day or two militating against trade. At the close good sheep were held over.

Sheep held steady.

There was a big run of hogs—4091, to be exact—and the price ran all the way from 17¼c to 19c per lb. fed and watered. For yesterday's loading the packers are talking 50c more off.

Victory Loan 1919 Is Bridge Between War and Peace.

Agricultural and Industrial Prosperity of Canada Depends on Success of the Loan.

Why is it necessary to have another Victory Loan? Have you heard this query? Or have you asked it?

The Victory Loan of this year stands out as the bridge between war and peace. The war is over. Our troops won that. The reconstruction period is dawning and we at home must win that.

Much of the money that Canada is asking for will be needed to clear up the war debt. The expenses of demobilization were heavy, and there is still much of it unpaid. Some of our men are back, let it not be said that we repudiated the debt for bringing them back.

The sick and wounded soldiers still in hospitals are expecting that Canada will care for them and their dependents until they have been returned to health and strength. The hospital services must be maintained at full strength as long as there are returned men needing attention.

Many men through disability are unable to return to their pre-war occupations. The Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment is doing a fine work in re-establishing soldiers in trades and professions that they can earn a living at, and is following up their training and seeing that they obtain permanent employment. The maintaining of this branch of reconstructive service calls for more funds, and the Victory Loan will be used to pay for it as well as the other purposes.

Under the Soldiers' Land Settlement Act, enough money is lent to returned soldiers to enable them to get and stock a farm. Large sums will be repaid at a low rate of interest. The soldier is thus given a chance to re-instate himself in civil life, and production is given a boost. Of the land amount of the Victory coming loan, $24,000,000 has been apportioned to finance these soldier-farmers.

Pensions to the disabled and dependents of our glorious dead, as well as the authorized gratuities will be paid from the Victory Loan moneys. These are some of the obligations that the returned soldier will meet is now in health.

The maintaining of Canada's prosperity is an important reason why the Victory Loan should be a smashing success. The money is needed to finance the credits to overseas countries so that they may continue their trade relations with us. If Canada cannot finance these countries other countries will, and then Canada will lose all that grows out of that. And that has been the mainstay of our agricultural and industrial life for so long.

As an investment Victory Bonds are eminent. Paying 5½ per cent., selling at short par on the open market and guaranteed by the Dominion—what finer security could you have for hesitating? The Victory Loan bonds will be even more attractive and all right-thinking citizens will do their utmost to see that such a result is obtained.

TO CARE FOR WOUNDED

Money from Victory Loan Will Be Used to Re-establish Soldiers.

Our soldiers in France faced perils other than those of shell and gas and machine gun fire. There was the peril of tuberculosis. Up to August 1st, 1919, 3,000 soldiers suffering from this disease had been repatriated to Canada. These were placed in sanatoria under the direction of the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment. Canada is one of the departments of that branch that has established a farm colony under the head of capital war outlay.

Of these men and some 20,000 others, discharged ill, will be looked after with money raised through the Victory Loan. It is the duty and privilege of Canadians that the money is forthcoming.

Credits Must Be Established for Sale of Surplus Products.

Success of Victory Loan 1919 Will Insure Steady Markets Throughout Canada.

It takes some six bushels of wheat to feed the average person in Canada annually. Roughly, therefore, the eight million people here consume about forty-eight million bushels.

But even in a poor year the crop is always more than that amount, and the surplus must be sold if the farmers are to get a return for their time and labor. The sale of the crop must be financed. Great Britain, our greatest customer, just now has not the ready cash; and so Canada must find means of raising the money. Hence the Victory Loan 1919, and the fact that the prosperity of the Dominion is dependent to a considerable extent upon the sale of her cereals and grain the necessity of the money being forthcoming is patent.

Your dollar may be the last straw that sweeps the Victory Loan over the top. Would you take the chance of making it a failure?

Lend your money that your pay envelope may be always filled, as will follow the success of the Victory Loan.

Victory Bonds are the fodder that keeps the machinery of Canada's industrial world running at full speed.

FOUNDER OF INDIANA

ONE OF THE MANY NOTABLE SONS OF MONTREAL

After a Lengthy Discussion It Has Been Established That Francois Marie Bissot, de Vincennes Was Born In the Ancient Canadian City on the Banks of the St. Lawrence River.

MONTREAL can be called the mother of the Canadian and American West, for men who were born in that city or were closely connected with its rise and progress have bequeathed their names to the history or nomenclature of many localities on this continent; to wit, starting with Jacques Cartier, who (1535) discovered the Montreal island and district, erstwhile called the Kingdom of Hochelaga, and gave the mountain its name of Mont Royal or Montreal; Samuel de Champlain, who after discovering Lake Champlain (1609), founded in 1611 the first trading post of Montreal and called it Place Royale, giving the adjacent island, St. Helen, its name in honor of his young wife. Who can also forget that it was from this trading station at the head of navigation Champlain discovered (in 1615) the Ottawa river, the Lakes Huron, Ontario and Nipissing and the near west? Then there is the Chevalier Perrot, who founded Boucherville or Maisonneuve, who organized the first permanent settlement and colony at Ville Marie (1642). Nor must we forget the discovery of the Iroquois missionaries such as Chaumonot (with Brebeuf), discoverer of Lake Huron (1640), Isaac Jogues, discoverer, who, with Raimbault first explored Lake Superior (1641) and who named (1646) Lake Ste. Sacrament (Georges Lake Canada) and Queen (1646), the finder of Lake St. John above the river Saguenay; Albanel, who first visited Hudson Bay by the overland route from Quebec. Then there are La Salle (of Lachine), who founded Cataracoui (now Kingston) for Frontenac (1673); and afterwards (1682) explored the mysteries of the Mississippi to the sea; the task left undone by Joliet and Marquette, in 1672. La Mothe Cadillac, the founder of Michilimackinac and afterwards the founder of Detroit (1701), and Duluth (1678-1710) (one of whose loggings was hard by the Notre Dame Church) the founder of the city of that name. Then his brother, Le Moyne de Bienville, founded Mobile (1701) and New Orleans (1718), and the Sulpician, Pierquet, who founded (1745) La Presentation (now Ogdensburg).

Montreal can also claim some share in the discovery (1743) of the Rocky Mountains by La Verendrye, of Three Rivers, for Montreal merchants financed his expedition and indirectly Montreal may make a similar claim for the discovery of Fort Bourbon (Lake Winnipeg) Fort Dauphin (Lake Manitoba) Fort Poutinpe at the mouth of the Saskatchewan by La Varendrye's sons.

Montreal, through its most distinguished son, Pierre Le Moyne d'Iberville, the brother of the two Le Moyne de Longueuil mentioned, founded, under the French regime, governed to a degree as a sort of vice-governor of that city, the notorious Perrot (or Isle Perrot fame) to Ile Perrot (Cape Rouge), Le Moyne de Chateauguay, to Canada, Louis d'Ailleboust, first director de Coulonge and Phillipe de Rizaud, Marquis (1) de Vaudreuil-Cavagnal, Governor Charles Le Moyne de Longueuil, Baron de Longueuil, Marquis (II) de Vaudreuil-Cavanal, formerly governor of Louisiana. This reminds us that Montreal proclaimed itself (1760) as a country of France by La Salle, who had discovered the Mississippi and in America, was supplied for its first expedition by the sons born in Montreal or its district, viz., the brothers d'Iberville and de Vieuville (II). This latter Jean Baptiste Le Moyne de Sieur de Bienville (II) was born in 1680 and died in 1758. A trading company with his brother d'Iberville (in 1699) he discovered the mouths of the Mississippi by sea, a joy missed through all the land trail. In his illfated expedition ships from France (1684) shortly before his slaughter by his mutinous companions, it is this Bienville who ruled as Governor of Louisiana for forty years.

Of a later period, the British regime, what memorial of Montreal exploration from Montreal are but conjured up by the names of Sir Alexander Mackenzie, David Thompson of Columbia river fame, Sir George Simpson, the Henrys, the Frasers and all of the Scotch ilk of the Hudson Bay and Northwest Companies as well as those of the magnates of the Canadian Pacific railway era, too well known to be recited here.

Another name of the French regime has now to be added to Montreal's roll of honor, that of Francois-Marie Bissot de Vincennes, the founder of Indiana. This claim has recently been established without a doubt and the documentary evidence, compiled from the archives not only of this province, has been collected by the indefatigable rechercheur in "La petite Histoire," Pierre Georges Roy of Quebec, the editor of Le Bulletin des Recherches Historiques, in a volume recently published and entitled "Le Sieur de Vincennes Fondateur de L'Indiana et se Famille."

He, Roy tells us that for a long time American historians were in disaccord in acknowledging that a certain Sieur de Vincenne "had the distinction of opening out Indiana to civilization," and, in the past, founders of Indiana the children are told the story of the heroic death of the founder of their state, at the hands of the savage Indians once peopling the forests of Vincennes.

Little else was known. Who was this de Vincennes? Was he a Frenchman from France or from Canada? This question has long puzzled the historians and the geologists of this continent. Many tried to solve the mystery. Archbishop Spalding and Rev. M. Alerding, on the authority of Bishop Brute and Hallandriere of the diocese of Vincennes, were of the view of Irish extraction, identifying him with one Frenchman Bissot, a Sieur de Vincennes, and they had written to Judge Law and the historian Dillon. It is now clear that every one came from one of de Vincennes' names sake descendants, but unlike Morgan in utterance.

M. Roy, with shoe, Tanguay, Suite and Canthorn, previously identified de Vincennes as a Canadian, living his family and career in Canada, but he erred in making the hero into his uncle's father—Jean Baptiste Bissot de Vincennes.

In 1897 Major Edmond Mallet, born in the United States, but a Canadian author published a study in English and French on de Vincennes, which, while being a summary of the controversy, was an appeal for bid and for a more serious study, so as to obtain a definite solution of the identification of the founder of Indiana. But proof was absolute proof was forthcoming.

In 1917 Mr. Merrill Moorse, an Indiana deputy in the United States Congress and a serious student of the history of Indiana, made a journey to Quebec, sparing no time or money, to ascertain if, after all, the mystery whether or not he could find justification for the statement of a previous of Quebec for his suspicion that the mysterious founder of his state was a Canadian.

There at Quebec he met M. Pierre Georges Roy, the archivist of the Provincial Department of the Dominion Archives, who, during the past after two years' intensive search among their records accumulated during three centuries, he had established his collection of proofs, which seem to end the controversy, establishing the enigmatical Sieur de Vincennes, Montreal-born founder, beautiful to this Quebec man of letters. For the founder of Indiana, not other than Francois Marie Bissot de Vincennes, grandson of Francois Bissot de la Riviere, and son of Jean Vincennes.

He was born in Montreal on June 17, 1700, of the marriage of Jean Baptiste Bissot de Vincennes, an army in the army, and of Marguerite Poitiers. He was baptized the same day by M. l'Abbe Breslay, his godfather being his cousin, Francois Marzac de Lavaltrie, also an army officer.

The "Morgan" theory is thus now disposed of. In afterwards signing himself "Marzac de Vincennes" Francois-Marie Bissot but followed the apparently common among French-Canadians under the French regime, as it is to-day, of using the godfather's name by preference to that given in baptism.

From his christenth birthday, our hero served with his soldier father among the Canadian troops. Later he was given the command of a military post on the Wabash river in the Illinois country, according to tradition, this was situated in the neighborhood of Vincennes on the actual site of the important town of Vincennes, the first capital city of Indiana. In this district he remained for 20 years, there, upholding the good name of France.

In the want of success of the first campaign by Sieur de Bienville, Governor of Louisiana, against the Chickasaw Indians, he prompted a second by him in 1736. By way of reverse, the real intention of humiliating the Chickasaw tribe.

This second attempt was also futile, although all the commandants of the posts on the Mississippi ordered by the King of France to put their forces under the order of Bienville. One of the latter was the Sieur de Vincennes, then commanding the fort of the Pouguichtas.

In the course of the campaign de Vincennes perished, in 1736, fighting with his companions and their Jesuit chaplain, Antoine Senat, who after being been stripped naked, inhumanely mutilated and tortured to death, was finally thrown on two blazing funeral piles on the hill of the enemy's bourg.

This was on Palm Sunday, March 25, 1736. It is difficult to ascertain the exact site where this distinguished son of Canada met his death, but all the evidences are of one accord in placing it on the Yazoo Chickasaw near Fulton, in the county of Pontotoc, Mississippi, United States.

One word more. Major Mallet in his appeal of 1897 expressed the hope that every effort to find the de Vincennes should have been historically, but this hope has been realized and perpetuated by a memorial in the midst of Indiana's capital, which may the statue in bronze of Francois-Marie Bissot de Vincennes of Montreal, grace a public place in Canada at Vincennes, the ancient capital of the province of Quebec, and the metropolis, the present capital of the state!

Height a Bird Will Fly.

As a rule, birds do not fly at a greater height than 1,000 feet. Eagles have been known to fly to a height of 6,000 feet. A lark will rise to the same height, and so will crows.

He Wished.

"Did you follow up the old apprentice and make a wish when you saw that load of hay?" "I sure did," said Farmer Cornstead, "I wished I owned it."

NERVE PRESSURE IS DANGEROUS

Chiropractic teaches that the majority of so-called disease is caused by nerve pressure, which, in its turn is caused by a subluxation or misplacement of the vertebrae (small bones of the spine). This pressure causes an interruption of the vital force of the various organs of the body. The Chiropactor with his bare hands only, by means of CHIROPRACTIC NERVE-RAL ADJUSTMENTS, puts the displaced vertebrae back in place, relieves the nerve pressure and vital force flows freely. The result is HEALTH. It is the simplicity of this method that places the Chiropractor at the top. Any ailment because he knows how and where to find where the pressure exists, and how to relieve it in the simple way. Investigate this work positive, simple and conclusive without the use of any of the older methods such as drugs, surgery or osteopathy.

DAUGHTER OF THE PHILISTINES

By LEONARD MERRICK

CHAPTER X

She was very ill after her confinement and for several weeks it was doubtful if she would recover. The boy throve, but the mother seemed sinking. The local doctor came three times a day, and a physician was summoned for consultation, and then, after consultations were held between the physician and a specialist and it appeared to Kent that he was never remembered by Mrs. Walford or the nurse during this period, excepting when he was required to write a check. "You shall see her for a moment," he said-by," one or the other of them would say; "she is to be kept very quiet this afternoon. Yes, yes, now you're not to worry; go and work, and you shall be sent for later on." Then he would wander around the neglected little sitting room and, not drearily and without its striking him he might attend to them, that the ferns in the dusty majolica pots were dying for want of water, or go to his desk and compose by a dogged effort, at the rate of a word a minute asking himself more anxiously than he had done hitherto what sum he might safely expect from Messrs. Cousins. His banking account was diminishing rapidly under the demands made upon it at this period, and he found it almost as hard to write a chapter of a novel now as a man who had never attempted such a thing before. He returned thanks to Heaven that he was not a journalist, to whom the necessity for covering a certain number of pages by a stated hour daily was unavoidable and wished himself a mechanic or a petty tradesman, whose avocations, he presumed could be fulfilled independently of their moods.

It was not until the crisis was past, and Cynthia was downstairs again in a wrapper on the sofa, that he began to feel he was within measurable distance of the conclusion. The nine months in which he had anticipated completing the task had long gone by, but that it would have been him a year did not trouble him, for he knew the work to be good. He told her so on an afternoon when they were alone together again, she with her couch drawn to the fire and he sitting at the edge, holding her hand.

"I'm satisfied," he declared. "When I say "satisfied" you know what I mean of course; it's as well done as I expected to do it. Another week, darling, will see it finished."

She patted his arm.

"Poor old boy! it hasn't been a happy time for him either, has it?"

"I've known jollier. But you're all right again now, thank God! and I'm going to pack you off to Bournemouth or somewhere soon, to bring your color back. I was speaking to Dr. Roberts about it this morning. He said it was just what you needed."

"I've been very expensive, Humphrey," she said wistfully. "How much? We didn't think it would cost as much as it has, did we? You should have married a big, strong woman, Humphrey——"

"Or what?"

"Or nobody," she answered.

The eyes she fixed upon the fire glittered. He squeezed her hand, and laughed constrainedly.

"I'm quite contented, thank you," he said, in as light a tone as he could manage. "What are you crying for? Your nurse will look daggers at me, and think I've been bullying you. Tell me—you were down in the dumps—I've been haunted by the idea she was treating you badly and you were too frightened of her to let anyone know. You're such a kid, little woman, in some things—such an awful kid."

"Not such a kid as you imagine," she said. "I've been thinking; I've thought of many things since baby was born. Often when they believed I was asleep, I used to lie and think, and think, till I was wretched."

"What did you think of?" asked Kent indulgently.

"You mustn't be vexed with me if I tell you. I've thought that, perhaps, although you don't feel it yet—though you don't suppose you ever will feel it—that it might have been best for you seriously and really, if you had married nobody, Humphrey; if you had had nothing to interfere with your work, and had lived on with Mr. Turquand just as you were. There, now you are vexed. Bend down, and let me smooth that frown away."

"Whatever put such a stupid idea into your head?" said Kent, wishing piteously that he had not felt it quite so often. "don't be a goose, sweetheart! What nonsense! I should be perfectly lost without you."

"I think I suit you better than any other woman would," she said, with pathetic confidence; "but if you had kept single—that's what I've doubted: I you wouldn't've been off without wife at all. Oh, you should hear some of the stories nurse has told me of places she has been in! I didn't think there could be such awfulness in the world. And in the first confinement, too! It makes one fear that no woman can ever expect to understand any man."

"Hang your nurse!" he responded. "Cackling old fool! I suppose in every situation she is in she talks scandal and where there wasn't any she makes it up. When does she go?"

"She can't leave baby until we get another, you know. At least, I hope she won't have to."

"Another?" said Kent.

"Another nurse. Mamma is going to advertise in the Morning Post for us at once. We want a thoroughly experienced woman, don't we, dear? We don't know anything about babies ourselves, and——"

"Oh, a experienced one by all means," he answered. "Poor little soul we owe him as much as that. Life is the cost of the parents' pleasure defrayed by the child. We'll make the world as desirable to him as we can."

ERNEST LAPOINTE.

The Future Leader of Liberal French-Canadians.

When the Liberals went out of office in 1911 Ernest Lapointe, B.A., LL.D., was an obscure member of the back benches, a big, jovial, youthful French-Canadian, scarcely able to read or write, or even to speak in English. To-day he is conceded to be one of the foremost orators in the House of Commons, speaking with weight and authority and standing easily among the first half dozen figures in the Parliamentary life of the nation. When Sir Wilfrid Laurier returned to Parliament in 1917 Lapointe with a number of other comparatively unknown members moved up to the front benches. Almost at once the House became conscious of the presence of a formidable personality. The shy, unobtrusive, almost diffident French-Canadian suddenly revealed himself as a brilliant political lieutenant, eloquent and aggressive. His speeches, though few, came to be regarded as models of eloquence and lucidity, and though the new House, mostly embittered against Quebec, was little in sympathy with his doctrines, men of all parties paid tribute to his talents and sincerity. To Sir Wilfrid, with his following decimated intellectually as well as numerically, he was as the shadow of a rock in a weary land, and in the last year of his life no voice was more potent in influencing the "Old Chief's" course of action than that of this newly arisen star in the Quebec political firmament.

Since the passing of Laurier, Lapointe's stature has steadily grown greater. At the National Liberal Convention he was an outstanding figure.

Without Lapointe the convention might have turned out a disastrous failure. Smarting under the realization that no Roman Catholic or French-Canadian was eligible for the party leadership, a number of the delegates representing from Quebec fought hard to have the French-Canadian delegates withdraw from the convention altogether. The question came to a head on the second day of the convention, when, in a secret caucus of the Quebec representatives, Mr. O. David (now a member of the Quebec Government) made an impassioned protest against the position which French-Canadians occupied in the convention, and formally announced that they withdrew with-

How strange the old-time pictures of sport would look today—baseball teams boasting at least half-a-dozen sets of whiskers—full-bearded cricketers—champions of the scull with their chins concealed.

Today the athlete knows the importance of the well-shaven chin. He is conscious that he is most keen when he is well-groomed—just as is the business man and the soldier.

For men who love outdoor life and sports, men of virile minds and active bodies, we have designed a Gillette Safety Razor with an extra stocky handle—the "Bulldog" Gillette, shown to the left.

Not that the Gillette needs a sturdy grasp. A light touch, with the angle stroke, removes the most stubborn beard with surprising comfort.

But there is a certain appeal in the thicker handle of the "Bulldog". Ask to see this special set and appreciate the point for yourself.

The case, you will notice, is almost as compact as the famous Pocket Edition Gillettes, and the price is the same, $5.00.

Sold by all dealers catering to men's needs.

The "BULLDOG" Set includes oval Morocco Case with two blade boxes to match, and 12 double-edged blades.

After-war conditions, and the telephone

Keeping Abreast of Progress

THE farmer cannot go back to the scythe or the cradle. He must keep abreast of progress by using binder and tractor for the economical handling of his crop.

So it is with the telephone. It is an important part of the business and social life of the community. We must keep our entire system, local and long distance, in the highest state of efficiency. Old apparatus and old methods must continually give way to new. Extensions must keep abreast of the needs of the business community.

Public services everywhere ran behind during the war. Skilled men and material were scarce. Necessary maintenance and repairs had to wait the return of normal times. Reserves of plant and material were exhausted.

The task of overtaking these postponed repairs, of restoring the margin of reserve plant while keeping service up to the highest standard, is now engaging our earnest efforts. New buildings are being built, new long distance lines, new underground and aerial cable, new switchboards—all in order that the telephone may continue to do its part throughout the difficult period of reconstruction. Our 1919 programme calls for an expenditure of $7,000,000.

Telephone workers everywhere appreciate the kindly co-operation of subscribers in their honest efforts to give an adequate and efficient service.

AERIAL BOOZE BOAT

A despatch from Ottawa says that an aeroplane has been making regular trips between Montreal and Gatineau Point carrying liquor for a bootlegging distribution headquarters at the place. One hundred gallons of alcohol are brought each trip and that means over three hundred gallons per moonshine after manipulation by the bootleggers. Publicity will likely spoil the aerial trade, as far as Gatineau Point is concerned at least.

A SUCCESSFUL TEA

At the Tabernacle Church last evening a tea meeting was held which proved to be a most successful affair in every respect. In the basement of the church supper was served and the ladies of the congregation certainly provided a most tempting repast. A large number were present and thoroughly enjoyed the spread. After supper a platform meeting was held in the auditorium of the church, presided over by the pastor, Rev. W. Elliott. An excellent programme was carried out consisting of an address by the chairman, and Rev. Geo. Brown, also solos and readings. Solos were rendered by Miss Grant, Mrs. McKenna, Miss S. Walton, Mrs. Singer, Prof. Anglis, Prof. Staples and Mr. Yamadoo. Both Miss Bishop and Mrs. Alyea gave readings.

Wedding Bells

FITZPATRICK—McCAULEY.

A very pretty wedding took place yesterday morning at St. Michael's Church at 7.30 when Miss Catharine McCauley was united in the holy bonds of Matrimony to William George Fitzpatrick of this city. The bride, who was given away by her father, was attired in a navy blue serge suit and peacock blue hat with ostrich feather and white fox fur, carrying a bouquet of pink and white roses.

Miss Theresa McCauley, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, wearing a navy blue serge suit and grey velvet hat, carrying a bouquet of pink and white carnations. The groom was assisted by Mr. Leo McCauley.

The groom's gift to the bride was a pearl necklace; to the bridesmaid, a pearl pendant and to the groomsman, a pair of cuff links.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, the wedding party repaired to the home of the bride on Jones street, where a wedding breakfast was partaken of.

The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Fitzpatrick left on the "fiver" amid showers of confetti and good wishes for Toronto and Buffalo. On their return the young couple will reside in Belleville.

BIRTHS

To Mr. and Mrs. James Scott, 66 St. Charles St., a daughter on October 27th.

Story of Robin Adair.

Is the famous old song, "Robin Adair," which we have sung from childhood's earliest years? Scotia undoubtedly will be the general cry. What interesting history accrues to point otherwise.

It was in the great hallway of the present mansion of Sir Robert Meddens, at Hollybrook Estate, Co Wicklow, where Robin lived, that the song verses, in his harp, while attached to a small building nearby, is a brass plate bearing the inscription:

Here Robin sat, and sang, and quaffed the bowl,
Dependable dials! how fifteen th ancient line!
How sentence bids ascending water roll,
And fountains gush, where once flowed genial wine.

Robin, according to the latest research, was a successful wine merchant in Dublin. He was however, Scottish ancestral connections influence the question. He it was who built Hollycrook, where he entertained lavishly, the original song of Robin Adair, which goes back to the year 1730, being written to commemorate a visit he paid to some sporting friends at Puckstown, not far from Dublin, Ireland, which reads:

"You're welcome to Puckstown, Robin Adair."

Robin, in spite of his convivial habits, lived to a great old age, and his harp, two of his wine glasses, and in addition to his harp, two of his wine glasses, which held a drop of wine each, are still preserved.—Tit-Bits.

Thimble Lore.

Though the thimble is claimed to be a Dutch invention, somebody who knows says that they had them all the way back in the days when Herodotus was. Egyptians formerly wore a like device on their thumbs, and they called them thumb-bolts or simply thimbles. Hence the origin of the present word.

You'd never think, would you, that it takes twenty men plus a great deal of expensive machinery to make one little thimble, would you? When John Safting introduced them from Holland into England in 1695, he virtually introduced a new industry besides.

President To End War Dry Measure

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29—Following President Wilson's unexpected action in vetoing the legislation enforcing war-time and constitutional prohibition yesterday, it was learned at the White House yesterday that war-time prohibition will be brought to an end by Presidential proclamation immediately after the German treaty is ratified by the Senate. In the meantime the Senate is expected to follow the example of the House and repeal the enforcement Act despite Mr. Wilson's veto. If the Senate takes this action the country will be dry until the Presidential decree is issued, after which date it will be wet again until the constitutional amendment goes into effect on January 16, next.

Railway Strike Now Threatened

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—Chicago members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen have placed wage demands in the hands of their national officers who are empowered to call a strike if it is deemed necessary. President W. G. Lee, of the B. R. T., will confer Thursday with members of the Chicago Union and District Heads of the Railway Administration.

The Chicago union met secretly Sunday night; it was learned, to take their strike vote. They represent 12,000 men in the Chicago district. The demand is a minimum of $150 monthly.

It was claimed here that other locals throughout the country are ready to take similar action.

I Know Now Why People Praise It

St. Paul Woman After Suffering 22 Years Gains 14 Pounds By Taking Tanlac

"I have taken only two bottles of Tanlac but they have entirely stopped my thirty-two years of suffering and almost made a new woman of me," said Mrs. Julius Hanshaese, of 460 Clinton Ave., St. Paul, Minn., recently.

"For thirty-two years I suffered from stomach trouble and chronic indigestion," she continued, "and at times even the pressure of my clothes against my stomach would hurt me. I had to be very careful about what I ate and even then it was hard for me to retain anything on my stomach and sometimes I was so nauseated I would have to give up and go to bed before I could get relief. I suffered to end of misery from gas, and many odd many a night I slept hardly a wink because of the pain. In my stomach. For months at a time I was off in weight as much as ten pounds and if I gained it back I didn't gain in strength but felt as weak and dragty as ever, if not more so. I spent hundreds of dollars and used all kinds of medicines but got no relief. And I was beginning to think I would have to go on through life and never get rid of my old trouble.

"But a good friend of mine who knew what I had gone through heard about Tanlac and suggested that I try it, and to-day I feel thankful to that friend and even more thankful to Tanlac. My stomach is in fine condition now and no matter what I eat it digests and I don't suffer any more after eating. I'm gaining in weight and strength right along in fact, I've gained fourteen pounds already and weigh more than I ever did in my life. I sleep fine every night and I've gone back to doing all my housework by myself and I don't feel a bit overtired after I get through, either. Since I've taken Tanlac and it has helped me so wonderfully I can understand why so many people are coming out and saying it is the finest thing they have ever seen."

Tanlac is sold in Belleville by Ostrom's Drug Store, in Thomas by J. H. Dickey, in Deseronto, by W. J. Malley, in Stirling by J. J. Morris, in Madoc by J. Will Wilson, in Marysville by T. J. McAlpine, in Ormsby by Jas Campbell, and in Thomasburg by J. H. Blakley.

DOUBLE FEATURE BILL

AT PALACE TO-NIGHT

A double feature program is being offered at the Palace, when "Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves," William A. Extravaganza, and Wm. S. Hart in "Wagon Tracks" will be offered on the same program. Dependable acting and dazzling splendour that is a reflection of the gorgeous days of the most lavish of all oriental monarchs, together with the uniform cleverness of the large cast, the greatest photoplay spectacles of the year. Besides the above offerings the pick of the two programs have been shown in both Griffin theatres the first two days of this week and will also be shown, thus insuring local photplay lovers, who attend the Palace to-night, a guaranteed all quality varied bill.

PAULINE FREDERICK REVEALS NEW GIFTS

Pauline Frederick's finest cinema achievement is found in her new picture, "The Fear Woman," which is to be shown at Griffin's to-morrow to Saturday with a matinee Saturday. This picture is a brilliant example of the new order of art photoplay production. Not only is the play vivid, absorbing, compelling—a human document of remarkable fidelity to life—but Pauline Frederick herself declares that never before has she been enabled so fully to express tragic emotions, nor to so freely herself with such gratifying results on the screen. She is essentially a new Pauline Frederick. Besides narrating an appealing story which steadily mounts to a tremendous climax, "The Fear Woman" abounds in pictorial beauty. No less than thirty-two separate interior settings are enjoyed in the course of the drama and the star is seen in twenty-three distinct changes of costume. Photographically the photoplay sets a new standard in Goldwyn pictures and these merits, coupled with the artistry of a faultless supporting cast headed by Milton Sills, all promise unusual enjoyment to Pauline Frederick's many Belleville admirers.

BRYANT WASHBURN COMING TO PALACE

Bryant Washburn is appearing at the Palace to-morrow to Saturday, matinee daily in a delightful 5-act comedy 50-Yard Dare Biggers, titled "Love Insurance." Besides the above offering the closing chapter of the "Lure of the Circus" serial and other plays will also be shown.

Don't Neglect Your Breakfast

The Fear of Indigestion Often Prompts One to Start the Day Wrong—Eat What You Like, Take a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet And You're Safe.

Breakfast offers many of the most savory dishes of all the things we eat. And yet more people than otherwise go without breakfast save a roll and cup of coffee for fear of indigestion. If you like a fried egg, or some buckwheat or sausage for breakfast, go to it and follow with a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet. You'll have no trouble. The average person who neglects breakfast will be hungry before noon. Most men manage to kill the appetite, or much on something to carry on till lunch time. An empty stomach under these conditions is not storing up energy, but on the contrary is susceptible to those influences that may work hardship for the next meal.

It is advisable to eat three good meals a day and digest them. If the stomach seems to be weak, to help it or give it assistance is the rational thing to do. Try a good breakfast and follow it with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and you'll soon learn that regularity of meals follows a natural inundator, not an acquired one. You can find Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets on sale in almost all drug stores throughout the United States and Canada.

What are YOU going to do about it?

It really shouldn't be necessary at this stage to educate, argue or persuade the people of Belleville into buying Victory Bonds.

If you haven't any ready money, arrange with your employer or with any bank to buy on the instalment plan.

You will be able to meet the instalments all right, and a few months hence you will be glad you arranged to do so.

For reasons of patriotism, of thanksgiving, and of good business, the people of Belleville are going over the top to achieve their allotted quota and to secure the much-prized Prince of Wales' Honor Flag.

So go now and BUY VICTORY BONDS

Canada's Trade

Figures Must So Altered to Restore Value of Dollar.

Canadian trade statistics for the first half of the calendar year appear to indicate that while the schedule name in trade with the United States is still unfortunately large conditions in this respect are at any rate better than they were in the corresponding period of 1918. That is, Canada has been selling a greater value of goods to the United States, and importing a less value. There has been a marked falling off in exports as well as imports since March, however, the decline in imports being perhaps due to the high rate of exchange, which has led to the cancellation of many orders. The figures from Ottawa follow:—

	IMPORTS. 1918.	1919.
January	$47,834,700	$59,431,483
February	41,185,814	52,255,909
March	70,570,794	56,557,492
April	66,324,076	47,971,212
May	78,264,822	58,083,040
June	70,597,825	61,236,510
	$375,179,041	$335,635,646

	EXPORTS. 1918.	1919.
January	$26,681,092	$28,836,256
February	32,795,702	32,357,038
March	37,111,492	37,096,026
April	46,459,118	23,625,006
May	38,784,057	35,179,057
June	39,854,233	29,383,559
	$189,665,691	$196,467,038

From these figures it will be seen that the adverse balance of trade against Canada the first half of 1918 was $185,513,350, while for the corresponding period of this year it was $134,168,608. The balance must be still further reduced if the value of the Canadian dollar is to be restored. The discouraging feature of this year's trade is the falling off in exports since March. Canada must produce more—not only enough to supply her own people, but to afford a larger sum for sale abroad.

WHEN I GET MARRIED.

Small Boys Give Their Ideas of Wedded Life.

Tit-Bits tells of a schoolmaster, who told his class of boys, from seven to fourteen years of age, to write a composition on the subject "When I Get Married." The results are amusing. One eleven-year-old lad wrote:

"I shall depend upon my wife to get the dinner and tea ready for me when I come home. If my wife has got the tea ready for me, when I come home there'll be a barny. I wonder if my wife will be soft enough to let me be the master of the house and the children. I wonder if she will always be going to the pictures and leaving me to mind the children. If she is going to do that way, I shall take my ration books and leave home."

One boy has very definite ideas as to the duties and pleasures of married life.

"When I get married," he says, which I shall not do until I can pay for a good home and the necessaries for the life of my wife and myself, I should go and see that no water ran through the roof and dropped on the beds. I should not like the walls to be damp. When we had been married for a bit, with a kiddie or two toddling about the house, I should soon get them to grow older, so that I should not be awakened in the middle of the night by their screams. I should be a teetotaller, shave twice a week, and smoke two ounces of thick twist a week."

Another boy sees it in very simply: "I will say own master in some things, but in other things I'll let my wife have her own way. My wife and I will have a night off every fortnight. Of course, we shall have some children."

One little fellow does not believe in heiresses. "I shan't get married to a rich lady," he says, "because she will be always wanting dresses that cost a lot of money, and if her wealth grows less and less till she is poor, then I shall have to work very hard to please her. I shall marry a lady that can do housework and requires no servants—a lady who will agree to everything I say."

The palm, however, goes to a twelve-year-old who promises to have a husband worth courting. He writes: "When I get married I shall, I hope, agree with my wife. I shall keep trying to get more knowledge at my work, then I should get better positions in my trade, and that means more money. I think that the more money you get the better it will be for the wife. If I had any children I should try to cultivate a hobby for them. I should give them a money box each, and allow them something per week to put in their boxes. When they had got enough they could buy what they wanted, provided it was something, such as a camera, fretwork, or foreign stamps, or any other hobby. I should build a shed and let them a punch-ball and a few other things in, and make it like a little gym for them. Then I would put a hammock in one end of it, for my wife to lie in and watch her little sonnies learn to play the game."

"If I had any girls I should bring them up with the boys. They could go with them on their madcap adventures, but still I should like them to be taught that quiet dignity so characteristic of real ladies."

Foretelling the Weather.

As a weather prophet the crow has no equal. Should rain be imminent these birds will rise from their nests or resting places, wheel about seven times in the air, and then return to the place whence they arose. Should it be their intention to be absent, then the rain will not be long delayed. If they continue flying overhead for a considerable time, then the downpour may not be immediate, but the cessation may be prolonged when it does appear. Should the birds, in addition to remaining long on the wing, indulge in a loud clamor, then the disturbance in the weather conditions is likely to be severe.

The peacock is credited with much discernment as regards the weather. His proud, high-strut vanishes when and he gives vent to shrill, ear-splitting screams when rain is approaching.

Swallows are unerring in their indications. If they fly low, then, like a macintosh is not an immediate necessity. But if, when they are in search of their food, they skim along the surface of the water, it is safe to prophesy a downfall at no great period. The long-distance flyers, such as gulls and ducks, are also worth attention. They are not only weather-wise, but wise in common sense. They never venture far from home when dirty weather is brewing.

In the English Channel, an east wind is certain to follow the advent of the curlew on dark nights; while the appearance of the seamew presages a storm from the south-west winds. If you observe the sea gulls leaving the coast, making for inland and settling on the fields, then you may safely look for a storm from the southeast.—T'it-Bits.

Wheel-Mounted Sled.

Snow and ice are not perpetual to Alaska, popular belief to the contrary notwithstanding, and while dog sleds are commonly used during the colder months, they are of no value in the summer, when the ground lacks its covering of white, says Popular Mechanics. This latter fact led a resident of the territory to invent a conveyance to be drawn by his dog team during the warm season. A sled of Indian design was made on four small bicycle wheels, and a steering column and wheel from an automobile were connected to the front pair. Five dogs, hitched in the usual manner, draw the wheel-mounted sled.

BRED GREAT MEN

Italian City of Florence May Claim High Honor.

Birthplace of Many of Those Who Rank, in Intellectual Ability and Achievement, Far Above the Rest of Mankind.

At first thought one would be apt to claim for London, the great metropolis, the honor of having given birth to the greatest number of the world's geniuses.

Among other great Londoners the following might be cited: Francis Bacon, philosopher and essayist; Spenser, Addison, Milton and Keats, world-known and honored poets; Hogarth, Turner, Watts, Millais and Holman Hunt, artists whose achievements are acclaimed by all the world of taste; Pepys, Evelyn and Boswell, statesmen who have influenced the building of empire; Daniel Defoe, the novelist; Wren, architect and scientist, Newton, sage and many others. All these would stand in the very first ranks of great-ness, some of them, like Milton and Bacon, towering above their fellow men like mountain peaks among molehills.

The Frenchman would undoubtedly stand by the claims of Paris, including a long list of poets and painters and novelists and statesmen to justify his boast.

The Italian would probably put the question: "Have you ever been to Italy?" and then: "Have you ever been in this quest? For if ancient Rome is to be added to the record of the more modern city, where will you find her equal?"

Then Athens would lift up her classic voice in protest, and quote a long list of her sons who have formed the models of all subsequent men in the lady that can do housework and requires no servants—a lady who will agree to everything I say."

The palm, however, goes to a twelve-year-old who promises to have a husband worth courting. He writes: "When I get married I shall, I hope, agree with my wife. I shall keep trying to get more knowledge at my work, then I should get better positions in my trade, and that means more money. I think that the more money you get the better it will be for the wife. If I had any children I should try to cultivate a hobby for them. I should give them a money box each, and allow them something per week to put in their boxes. When they had got enough they could buy what they wanted, provided it was something, such as a camera, fretwork, or foreign stamps, or any other hobby. I should build a shed and let them a punch-ball and a few other things in, and make it like a little gym for them. Then I would put a hammock in one end of it, for my wife to lie in and watch her little sonnies learn to play the game."

"If I had any girls I should bring them up with the boys. They could go with them on their madcap adventures, but still I should like them to be taught that quiet dignity so characteristic of real ladies."

Foretelling the Weather.

As a weather prophet the crow has no equal. Should rain be imminent these birds will rise from their nests or resting places, wheel about seven times in the air, and then return to the place whence they arose. Should it be their intention to be absent, then the rain will not be long delayed. If they continue flying overhead for a considerable time, then the downpour may not be immediate, but the cessation may be prolonged when it does appear. Should the birds, in addition to remaining long on the wing, indulge in a loud clamor, then the disturbance in the weather conditions is likely to be severe.

The peacock is credited with much discernment as regards the weather. His proud, high-strut vanishes when and he gives vent to shrill, ear-splitting screams when rain is approaching.

Swallows are unerring in their indications. If they fly low, then, like a macintosh is not an immediate necessity. But if, when they are in search of their food, they skim along the surface of the water, it is safe to prophesy a downfall at no great period. The long-distance flyers, such as gulls and ducks, are also worth attention. They are not only weather-wise, but wise in common sense. They never venture far from home when dirty weather is brewing.

In the English Channel, an east wind is certain to follow the advent of the curlew on dark nights; while the appearance of the seamew presages storms from the south-west winds. If you observe the sea gulls leaving the coast, making for inland and settling on the fields, then you may safely look for a storm from the southeast.—T'it-Bits.

Wheel-Mounted Sled.

Snow and ice are not perpetual to Alaska, popular belief to the contrary notwithstanding, and while dog sleds are commonly used during the colder months, they are of no value in the summer, when the ground lacks its covering of white, says Popular Mechanics. This latter fact led a resident of the territory to invent a conveyance to be drawn by his dog team during the warm season. A sled of Indian design was made on four small bicycle wheels, and a steering column and wheel from an automobile were connected to the front pair. Five dogs, hitched in the usual manner, draw the wheel-mounted sled.

He Ditched the Tripod.

Passchendaele is generally acknowledged to have been the hottest and toughest place the Canadian Corps was ever in. Its combination of incident and discomfort dwelled chiefly in the rain and cold and mud in which he had to live for twenty-four hours a day will never be forgotten by the soldiers.

It was during the Third Division's second trip to Passchendaele that this incident happened. Bill had just come out of the line for a rest. Information to replace the casualties had arrived and the first trip on the front, and I suppose it was on account of the large number of new men in that Bill, although a new man, was detailed to carry a Vickers' machine gun tripod into the line. You can imagine it. To have made the first trip in the line in a place like Passchendaele was bad enough, but in addition to that to have to carry in the heavy tripod, along those miles and miles of duckboards, with mudholes alongside them deep enough in many instances to drink a horse or a mule, was not by any means a joke.

Poor Bill, who had been told all the usual yarns in Blighty about how he'd fought in France and how he threw away anything they didn't want at the time as he only could easily get more later on when they did want it, just started up for about half an hour and a half of the duckwalk, and then, so fed up and disgusted was his mind with lugging a weight to anyone he calmly pitched the tripod of his shoulder and let it crash in a shell-hole.

The O.C.O. in charge of the crew didn't notice this and the crew went steadily on their way to the front position, which was about four miles further. When they got there and started to set up the gun, there was no tripod to mount it on, and old Bill's surprise and disgust when he was told to go back and bring up the tripod he had ditched was great.

Bill enjoys the joke now just as much as his mates did then, but the shock he received when he realized that he had to walk those four miles back, and then up to the position again with the tripod, must have made him feel like murdering some one.

SMYRNA.

The Place in Asia Where the Rugs Come From.

Turks are making vigorous protest against the unanimous interest to Greece over Smyrna. Smyrna, too often known only to the white peoples, as "the place where the rugs come from," though they do not, in fact, grow Smyrnas in the vilaet is being the oldest city of the world. One of the seven cities of the Christian Church in Asia Minor, it also is among the seven cities that obtain Homer. You will recall the lines:

"Seven wealthy towns contend from Homer dead
Through which the living Homer begged his bread."

It has passed through all the cycles of the average city's history time and time again, at one period attaining a prominence which suggests that of the Russian Soviets, and it has survived earthquake, fire, plague and destructive wars.

Its known history runs back to a thousand years B.C., and it may have flourished in the unrecorded ages before that, and time for all that written history connotes. The Aeolians preceded the Greeks, who made it an Eastern centre of their early culture. It had declined and all but fallen when Alexander, after taking Sardis, released it from the yoke of the Persians. It became a real question said to have come to him in a dream, and Smyrna followed. It also fell under Roman, Moogol and, finally, Turkish dominion.

It was under the Lydians that the more proud city was split into a pair of communities, which effectively ticd its political and military hands, so that this once powerful Aeolian cities cut little figure in the golden era of Hellenic culture.

The new Smyrna, as rebuilt by Alexander, was moved about three miles south to the northeast of the landlocked gulf of the same name. Nestling between the "muddy greenfurrers of the Hermus" on the succession of hills behind it, Smyrna always was a city beautiful, a fact which was extolled upon coins.

Ancient coins also bore the likeness of Homer, whose identity with the older Smyrna seems fairly well founded because the Meles river, on its cave nearby that formed the Homeric "cave" and "study," flowed by all past the ancient city, though its course has now been diverted to another and disputed channels.

Smyrna's present port, despite the Turkish disinclination to modernize its harbor facilities, Smyrna is a considerable port for commercial activity. The reason for the less flattering appellation is summed up by Charles Dudley Warner, who said, "One of the most ancient cities on the globe, it has no appearance of antiquity; containing all nationalities, it has no nationality; it is an Asiatic city with a European face; it produces nothing, it exchanges everything."

Among its heaviest exports, before the world war, when nearly 8,000 ships visited there yearly, were figs, tobacco, silk, raisins and carpets. The rugs known by Smyrna's name might be cited in support of Mr. Warner's last contention, for they come from the far interior although Smyrna is scarcely more than 200 miles southwest of Constantinople in an air line, though either a land or water journey becomes a much longer and a detious route.

How Much Tobacco Will My Heart Stand

A Question Vital to Every Man Who Smokes or Chews

IT MAY COST A PRECIOUS LIFE TO FIND OUT BY EXPERIMENT.

The heart of every user of tobacco bears a double burden. It does its allotted task and then lights whatever for it has to do for the man who uses the weed. How much of nicotine you pass through many stages of decline and decay and suffer many pangs. Hearts are as varied as faces, and no two are alike in capacity; therefore some hearts will stand more tobacco than others, but there is a limit to the amount any heart will stand. The man who puts the additional burden of tobacco upon his heart, be it by smoking cigarettes, a pipe or cigars, or by chewing, is taking a long chance. Nicotine is a slow poison, but a sure one, and nothing to win but the chance that he may not lose them. He is indulging in a costly habit at the expense of precious health, and he will be money poorer and he will tell you that today tobacco is injurious and that it is far better to quit the habit than to continue to find how much tobacco your heart will stand before it lets you down.

The danger limit in nicotine is so pleasant to meet that—even to those who know that tobacco injures—they find to really quit takes more will-power than they have, and rather than suffering what they can voluntarily endure. To quit the habit make it easy for yourself by selling Nicotol tablets and taking them according to directions. Nicotol will help to overcome the craving for tobacco and to lessen indulgence.

If you want to know how much easier it is to quit the habit with Nicotol than without it, make the test. Buy a box of Nicotol tablets and note what an effect it exerts on you; then begin using it as usual and take Nicotol tablets. At the end of a week discontinue smoking or chewing for the same length of time that you used Nicotol and note what an effort it costs

Medical Man Won V.C.

FOR most conspicuous bravery and devotion to duty on September 2, when under the intense shell, machine gun and rifle fire, he went through the Quant-Drocourt support line with the battalion. Without hesitation and with utter disregard of personal safety he remained on the field until every wounded man had been attended to. He dressed the wounds of a seriously wounded officer under terrific machine gun and shell fire, and with the assistance of prisoners and of his own men, succeeded in evacuating him to safety, despite the fact that the bearers suffered heavy casualties.

Immediately afterwards he rushed forward in full view of the enemy, under very heavy machine gun and rifle fire, to tend to a wounded sergeant, and having placed him in a shell hole dressed his wounds. Capt. Hutcheson performed many similar gallant acts and, by his coolness and devotion to duty, many lives were saved.—Official Record.

From Vis-en-Artois in the valley of the River Sensee, the country climbs slowly eastward to Dury. The slope is studded with little clumps of wood and through it runs the great national highway from Arras to Cambrai. Cutting the highway almost two miles from Vis and following the line of the ridge into Dury is a sunken road. A windmill with its broad northern base and tower-like structure above stood in front of Dury, before September 2, 1918, but it has vanished from the landscape since then, bombed to a pile of ruins.

September 2 was the date set for the second phase of the big drive of the Canadians on Cambrai. The objective was the Drocourt-Quenat line of trenches which followed the high ground and ran through Dury. It was a loop thrown back from the Hindenburg line which had been broken through the week before. The "jumping-off" trenches for the Fourth Division were in front of Vis-en-Artois. A hard day's work lay before the men as they gathered before dawn in the assembly trenches behind the line. Five trenches protected with wire had to be crossed. The sunken road was bristling with guns. Every available cover had machine guns in it. The Germans were determined to hold the Drocourt-Quenat line at all costs.

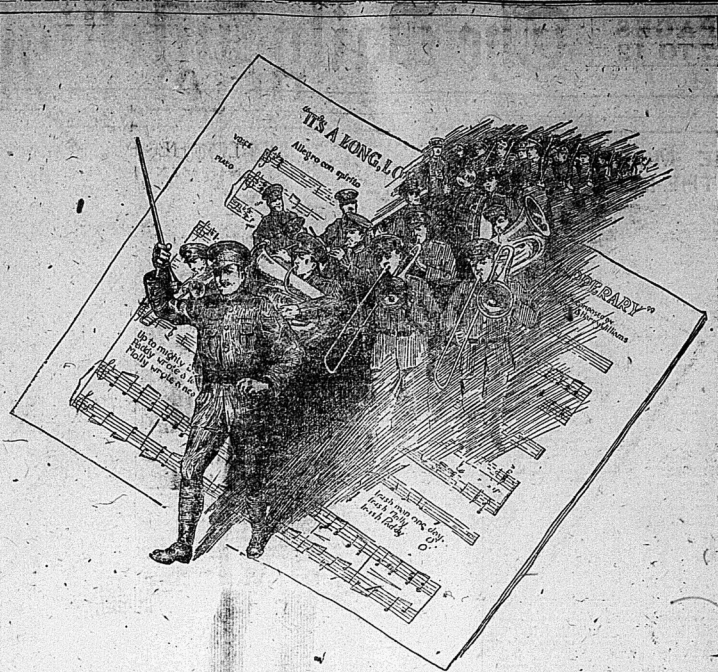
At five o'clock through a ground fog that lay on the hillside the Fourth Division men started on the day's adventure across No Man's Land. They fought bravely and won the first part of the ascent to the top of he hill. Then later in the morning came the men of the 75th battalion behind them, passed through their positions and went on through the Drocourt-Quenat line.

Capt. Bellenden Seymour Hutcheson, medical officer of the 75th Battalion, went over the top with the attacking troops with his stretcher-bearers. The enemy was pouring down a heavy barrage over the hillside, which at that time of day was flooded with sunshine. Under the fire Capt. Hutcheson and his men worked incessantly. The machine gun took a heavy toll of the men attacking, and the gunners were not particular about the persons that they shot. Stretcher-bearers were in no great danger as any, although they carried no weapon of self-defence, and many fell. Wounded men were strewn on the hillside. To these Capt. Hutcheson ministered incessantly through the long day's fighting.

Under direct fire from a machine gun a wounded officer was severely wounded. Capt. Hutcheson went to him and dressed his wounds, thus pleasing him. Carrying some of the prisoners to assist his bearers, he got the officer away in safety. Many of the bearers fell on the way. But the doctor's work was not done. Seeing a wounded sergeant lying under fire he rushed to him and placing him in a shell hole dressed his wounds. These are only a few of the gallant acts of this gallant officer in a long day of service for the wounded before the Drocourt-Quenat line. The British war authorities awarded him the highest honor in their gift, the Victoria Cross.

Bellenden Seymour Hutcheson was born in Montreal in 1884. At Mount Carmel, Ill. He graduated from the Chicago Medical College. Chicago and before going overseas practiced as a physician and surgeon at Mound City, Ill., where his father still lives. Capt. Hutcheson went to Toronto in the fall of 1915 to join the army and was first attached to the 97th Battalion. Previous to winning the Victoria Cross, Capt. Hutcheson won the Military Cross, the official record for which reads:

"Before the battalion reached its jumping-off position the enemy put down a heavy barrage, and many casualties were sustained. This officer worked unceasingly in attending to and dressing the wounded under heavy fire in open ground. During the mopping-up of a village he passed through the streets several times, attending to the wounded. He also voluntarily dressed over 100 enemy wounded who had been left behind."—Carolyn Cornell in Toronto Star Weekly.



When They Went Away Singing "Tipperary"

In those brave days of '14 and '15, they were indeed the idols of the Nation. To their support Canada brought all that the weight of money could bring.

And when they came to the furnace of their testing, we acclaimed them proudly as of no common clay.

"Tipperary" is forgotten, swept like a butterfly caught in a tornado or a catch of song in the throat of death. But Ypres, St. Eloi, Vimy, Hill 70, Passchaendale, Cambrai and Mons have placed its singers among the Immortals.

In these brave days—that to some of us are still but of yesterday—Canada proclaimed herself in the fight to the last man and to the last dollar.

Well has man played his fighting part. It is our Dollar that must now redeem the pledge.

To make the Victory Loan a success is a National obligation.

If the fighting were still raging you wouldn't hesitate to invest.

Be thankful then that it is ended, and be glad that your part now is but to lend money to pay the Debts of Honour.

The spirit that moved you to buy Victory Bonds one year ago and two years ago should impel you to buy them again.

But even if you suppress that spirit—grant that you may not—the material advantage of the investment cannot fail to appeal to your good common sense.

Think of it. The peerless security of a mighty nation—a nation at peace—the great uncertainty of war past—and 5½% interest. Where can you find its equal?

Whichever way you look at it, if you are true to yourself you must

Tinsel Cloth Turbans.

Among the various styles of turban offered to the trade is one in which tinsel cloth is used. The best model in this line, according to the bulletin of the Retail Millinery Association of America, is the Hindu draped one made of this fabric. The drapings appear in a variety of arrangements on the pill box or elongated toque lines. Old gold, light blue, pink and steel are the colors used in this material. Various pretty trims are used—tinsel roses, ball, tassels, pearl hat pins and beaded flowers. Large models have this material in the form of folds and semi-transparent effect on the brim and draped on the crown.

Engine Drivers.

Men Who Have Travelled Some Millions of Miles.

The city man who journeys thirty miles a day to and from his office would probably be astounded to learn that a single year's travelling would take him far as Calcutta, and that every three years he covers a distance greater than that around the earth at the equator, says London Answers.

And yet he is a "stay-at-home" compared with hundreds of men who seldom give a thought to their performances. Many an engine driver and guard has a mileage running into seven figures. When Benjamin Jeans stepped down for the last time from his footplate on the London and Birkenhead express, he could look back that he had travelled 1,000,000 miles, having reeled off his "world records" at the rate of approximately three a year for fifty-four years. Another express driver on the L. & N.W. Railway, Thomas Hall, had completed a record of 1,091,040 miles when he retired.

When that fine old skipper, Captain Greenstreet, turned his back on the sea a few years ago, he had crossed the equator 76 times and the Cape of Good Hope 25 times. He had made 92 voyages to and from Australasia and had left behind him 4,300,000 miles of sea-roaming.

And even that wonderful achievement was eclipsed by H. Stevens, a steward on board Cunard liners, whose record of Atlantic crossings totted up a total of 2,400,000 miles.

Compared with such astounding feats of globe-trotting, pedestrian records seem insignificant. But there are several men living to-day whose walking has covered hundreds of thousands of miles. Among them, Mr. Moyes, a letter carrier, walked 276,000 miles in thirty-two years over Yorkshire roads, and Richard Williams, in six years more, placed the enormous journey of 416,000 miles to his record as a Shropshire postman.

Those Movie Stars!

Irene Elvidge, moving picture star, is being sued for divorce. Her husband is Lieut. Frank C. Bodger, R.F.C., of Ottawa, Canada. The marriage of Miss Elvidge to the Canadian officer took place in November, 1918, one of the romances of the war. Another war hero of Canada's army is also mentioned as the man who has come between the actress and her soldier husband. He is merely styled "Jack" in Lieut. Badgley's complaint. "Jack" is said to be a first lieutenant in the Canadian army and has won the Military Cross.

Mrs. Badgley has made a vigorous denial that at any time has she been guilty of the conduct attributed to her by Lieut. Badgley, with either "Jack" or any other man.

Lieut. Badgley was a member of the "First Canadian Expeditionary Force." He won the Military Cross at the battle of Courcelette in 1916, and after being wounded, shell-shocked and gassed, was invalided home.

Miss Elvidge began her theatrical career in 1914. She had been a chorus girl only two months when she was made an understudy for the prima donna. Soon after she had an offer to appear in a "straight" play, since has been a star on the screen.

Modest Hero.

My heroic action was this: We were lying close up to their defences, and for four days had not been able to climb over, as they like reptiles. There was not a dry spot; one could not get accustomed to it. And N—, the ensign, had been caught on the wire when we had started to attack. At first he asked for help, called on the men by name; but one could not show one's nose without being shot. Then he only groaned and breathed heavily. That went on for four days, and he still lived. It is a sin to grumble at God, but there one says: "Why be careful of one's soul?" I couldn't endure it further, leapt on the wire; but I got wounded. Then these was no attack, and our men captured the post.—London Opinion.

Woman's Way.

He entered from the dining room window and slunk stealthily toward the shadows. "Hello, Enery!" remarked the shadows. "Get 'er jools!" "No," replied Enery. "Where d'you look?" "Yer jewel case and pin bevery drawer in 'er bureau." "Lord, ole miloomin' lot where she left 'em on the wash basin."

A Hot Comeback.

Cuthbert—"Do you sell dog biscuits in this dirty little shop?"

Offended Shopkeeper—"Yes, sir, will you take them away or will you eat them here?"

A MATHEMATICAL FENIAR.

Person Knows Multiplication Tables Up to a Million.

Have you ever heard of any person who is able to say his multiplication tables up to 1,000,000?

William Strong, a farmer of Washington, Ill., claims the distinction of being the only person in the world who can solve, mentally without pen, pencil or paper any problem given to him in addition, subtraction, multiplication, division, fraction, cube and square root.

Bankers, auditors and public accountants who are familiar with startling figures which run into the millions have for the past few years tried in vain to originate some problem which will stump the Illinois farmer.

Not long ago a half dozen bankers, auditors and expert accountants got together and decided to stump Strong with mathematical problems such a thing was possible.

These experts carefully compiled and computed the answers to 100 problems, including problems in addition, fractions and cube and square root. When the work was complete Strong was asked to appear.

The experts had prepared for a long session. They had taken most of one day to originate and compute the answers to the problems.

The first question was something like this. Add the following:

142,387
216,339
457,856
367,932

Scarcely had the expert accountant added 392 of the last number when Strong gave him the answer. Strong's answer tallied with the experts.

The next question was something like this: Subtract $1,448,967,232 from $9,453,778,999. Strong flashed the answer immediately, and again it was correct.

The next question was in multiplication. The experts asked him to multiply 456,999 by 999,999. Without any apparent effort the answer came instantly, and it was correct.

The accountants then shot one at Strong, confidently expecting him to fail, admitting that the problem was difficult one to figure, even with paper and pencil.

"Strong," the accountant said, "tell us how much 1,243,677,999 2-5 times 999,998,766 is in." Strong didn't even hesitate and gave them the answer almost instantly. Again it was correct.

It took less than ten minutes for Strong to solve the hundred problems and every answer given by him was found to be correct. He asked neither pencil nor paper, the calculating all being done mentally.

"How about higher mathematics?" Strong was asked. "Nothing doing in my line above cube root," Strong replied.

Holland's Oyster Industry.

In the industry represented by oyster cultivation, Holland is the most systematic in its operations and employs more elaborate methods than any other country in the world. The numerous sounds that indent the coast of Holland, particularly in the region of the River Scheldt, afford excellent facilities for the propagation of the oyster, and enable the country to conduct the most successful oyster industry in Europe. Public dredging is not permitted, as the result of that system was the threatened exhaustion of the fisheries, and the beds have been carefully surveyed, and specific tracts are leased to individuals and companies who are thus enabled to conduct the propagation of the oyster in a systematic manner that ensures the best results from the territory available. Many oysters lease several tracts in different localities, and adapted to different purposes, which facilitates the various operations, as the oysters may be shifted from one place to another, according to the season and the stage of development. A few of the oystermen plant shells on the banks, as is done in many places in this country, but the largest and most successful propagators are equipped with their own tanks and ponds, located in convenient shallow bays, in which they carry on the culture.—Family Herald.

Most Misquoted of All Books.

No book has contributed more to the general stock of misquotations than the Bible. No book exists in such a multitude of forms, which may account for some of the popular departures from the wording of the King James version. But it is not safe to supply reasons for most people's habit of saying "In the sweat of thy brow," when the text reads "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread." Why "the parting of the ways" instead of the "parting of the way"? "Bone of my bone," instead of "bone of my bones and flesh of my flesh" may be due to the desire for perfect parallelism. And no same explanation may hold for "thus far shalt thou come, but no further," instead of "Hitherto shalt thou come." But why the general preference for "better part," when we are expressly told that "Mary hath chosen that good part"? The Vulgate, for whatever reason, says "the best part"—optimam partem—often cited in the Middle Ages in proof of the superiority of the contemplative life, as represented by Mary, over the active life, typified by Martha, but apparently no such contrast was originally intended. Why, again "a thing of nought" of Acts? Perhaps there is no other reason save that the tongue is an unruly member; such at least the world agrees in calling it, though the Biblical text describes it as "an unruly evil."—Harry Ayres in the Review.

Quick Work.

A man who was wanted by the police had been photographed in six different positions, and the pictures sent to the chief of police of a provincial town, where it was thought likely the fugitive was in hiding. After the lapse of a few days the following reply reached headquarters: "Sir: I duly received the portraits of the six miscreants whose capture is desired. I have arrested five of them, and the sixth is under observation and will be secured shortly."

TIMES HAVE CHANGED.

The Trips of Columbus and the R-34 Contrasted.

They had to bribe men in the earliest and timorous days of Columbus to ship for his first Atlantic trip. Sailing towards the edge of a perfectly flat earth had no particular charms, even for criminals and broken men who were offered impunity if they would go. Life imprisonment, in safety, seemed better than high adventure terminated at any moment by a sudden, cataclysmic death.

That was 427 years ago. Now there is no need to call for criminals to man the first Atlantic trips in the air. They had to turn men away from the crew of the R.34, on the first voyage by lighter-than-air machine, and even then one stowaway got himself aboard and made the trip. The idea was to keep the tremendous dirigible as light as possible. And so, with all this eagerness for flying, the R-34's crew was smaller than the crew of the Santa Maria, which consisted of 52 ignorant and fearful men, who had no idea just why they went, or where. On the three ships together, the Encyclopedia Britannica says, there were 88 men, 52 on the sailing ship Santa Maria, which Columbus commanded himself, and 18 apiece on the caravels Pinta and Nina.

It took that small, bobbing Spanish fleet just seventy days to make its trip, and the R-34 took only four and a half; and one might suppose that the longer would have been more tedious, and the shorter, flying one, more miraculous and joyful. But if the diaries of two individuals can be taken as at all representative, there was no wonder in the flight of the dirigible to compare with that which compassed about on every side the Sana Maria, the Pinta and the Nina. Columbus wrote the one diary, abstracted by Las Casas, and Lieut. J. C. Shotter, the engineer officer of the R-34 kept the other. And the impression gleaned from the latter one is that transatlantic crossings in the air will be too utterly boring to be endured unless some unusual and diverting form of recreation is thought up for blase travellers. Even the ocean itself can hardly be seen, says he, and it's a weary life above the fog and clouds. There was a wonderful sunrise one morning, though with cloud reddenings of a surprising kind. "This would at least be a little distraction from the cloudy monotony for prospective passengers on transatlantic voyages," says he, with a gleam of hope.

It was different, and very wonderful, at least for Columbus himself, who had an eye out for the roundness of the earth, from August 3 to October 12, in 1492. Even the recurrent disappointments about land, even those mutinezing sailors (for whom the wonder was so great as to amount to fear) could not dispel the rare magnificence of the nights and days or the almost uncanny strangeness of the things which happened. The passengers on the R-34, the trouble was, knew that the earth is round. It was not for them a theory to be proved.

In the first place there was the compass. It still persisted—more peculiarly than any one had supposed it would on the ships' western way to Asia. It was on September 13 that the "westerly variation of the magnetic needle" was noticed, and from then on even the stupidity of malcontents could not dull the radiance of that trip. Every day some odd and splendid thing occurred. A meteor fell on September 15 only four or five leagues away. Then there were the vast plains of seaweed known as the Sargasso Sea. And the weather was sweet and balmy, like, so Columbus said, "an Andalusian April," with only the song of the nightingale not there to make it perfect.

On the 18th there were birds and a low ridge of cloud. But the real signs of land did not come until October 11, when the Pinta picked up a cane, a pole and a stick which seemed to be wrought with iron, a board and a branch covered over with berries. "And with these signs all of them breathed and were glad."

There was a demonstration of thankfulness and joy when once they got to land which only men of Southern Europe could have staged. They wept and knelt and prayed and planted banners for the Catholic majesties of Castile and of Leon, and for themselves. The R-34 came from Northern Europe and there were no tears nor kneelings, so far as has been told. Nor were any flags planted. However, there was a reception, done in Anglo-Saxon way, to relieve the officers and crew of all the boredom which attends this flying above the fog.

How odd that men were so afraid in those timorous days to take a trip of so much wonder; so eager now to fly tediously above the clouds. Fear and wonder must be very much akin. One's only regret is that the stowaway, who seems to have lost no fear and kept the wonder, was in no circumstances to keep a diary of his own!

Tom Thumb.

Tom Thumb, whose real name was Charles Sherwood Stratton, died in Middleboro, Mass., July 15, 1883. He was born at Bridgeport, Conn., in January, 1838, and was 14 years old when first engaged by P. T. Barnum, the showman, who dubbed him Gen. Tom Thumb. At that time Stratton was less than two feet high and weighed 16 pounds. In 1863 Lavinia Warren (also a dwarf, was married to Stratton. Mrs. Tom Thumb is still alive; she is known in private life as the Countess Magri, having been married three years after the death of Stratton to Count Magri, an Italian by birth and also a midget.

Ancient Botany.

The oldest botanical work in the world is sculptured on the walls of a room in the great temple of Karnak at Thebes, in Egypt. It represents foreign plants brought home by an Egyptian sovereign, Thotmes III on his return from a campaign in Arabia. The sculptures show not only the plant or tree, but the leaves, fruit and seed pods separately, after the fashion of modern botanical treatises.

AN INTERESTING WAR RECORD

The latest addition to the great fleet of C. P. O. S. Steamships which ply between Canada and practically all the important ports of call in the world is the "Empress of France," before the war popularly known as the S.S. "Alsatian" and one of the ocean grey hounds between Canada and Liverpool. The vessel has been reconditioned since the war ceased and recently completed her maiden trip to Quebec under her new name. The photographs here reproduced give an adequate description of her interior arrangements and fittings, and will compare favorably with the great Leviathans in this respect. The "Empress of France" has a length of 600 ft.; beam 73 ft.; depth (to D. deck) 54 ft. 6 in.; and a tonnage of 18,000 gross. A striking peculiarity is the cruiser's stern, which imparts a warlike appearance to the vessel. Her war record is one to be proud of.

The "Empress of France" as the S.S. "Alsatian" was requisitioned for war purposes under Royal Proclamation immediately on her arrival at the Port of Liverpool, midnight on the 6th August 1914. After completion of discharge, the entire removal of all passenger accommodation and other woodwork, she was armed with 8-6 in. guns, commissioned and manned by a naval crew under the command of Captain V. Phillimore, D.S.O., and was attached to the 10th Cruiser Squadron on northern patrol duty, sailing from Liverpool on August 15th, at which port she has been based during the entire period of her Commission.

From August to December 1914, she remained as above stated, but in December she was made Flag Ship of the Squadron to which she was attached, and Vice-Admiral Sir Dudley R. S. De Chair, K.C.B., M.V.O., hoisted his flag, which flew up to March 1916, when he was succeeded by Admiral Sir Reginald G. Tupper, K.C.B., C.V.O., who was succeeded in November 1918 by Rear-Admiral C. W. Leighley Peach, under whose flag she terminated her commission as an Armed Cruiser.

The Squadron to which she was attached, and later became Flagship of, consisted of 24 vessels, the majority of which were Armed Mercantile Cruisers. The duties of the Squadron consisted of the stopping of vessels, boarding them and examining their papers, and should on examination they prove to be at all of a suspicious nature, a Naval Officer was placed in charge and they were taken into a United Kingdom port for closer examination. This similarly applied to any members of the passengers or crew, as each and everyone had to give a satisfactory explanation as to their nationality and business. Available records show that in all the Squadron intercepted some 16,000 vessels, but it is impossible to state how many of these proved to be engaged in work hostile to the Allies interests.

In the early part of 1916, circumstances permitted of the 10th Cruiser Squadron being considerably reduced in numbers, and vessels so engaged being allocated to Convoy Protection Duty, the "Alsatian" figuring amongst the number and being stationed on the North Atlantic route in such capacity. While so engaged she escorted nine convoys of about 20 vessels each, carrying an estimated number of troops per convoy of 20,000, principally Americans.

While engaged on Convoy Escort duties the "Alsatian" also carried troops and cargo, the number of former per voyage being about 600, and the weight of cargo per voyage between 2,000 and 3,000 tons. She made her last voyage on Governmental Service in November 1918, sailing from Liverpool on the 14th, and reached at that port on December 11th 1918, having steamed a total distance on Government Service of 256,241 miles and consumed 150,571 tons of coal.

On January 17th 1919, she left for Glasgow, having been placed in the hands of her Builders—Messrs. Fairfields & Co.—by the Admiralty for reconditioning, before restoration to the C. P. O. S. at the Port of Liverpool, on Thursday, September 25th, and sailed for Quebec on Friday, September 26th.

Captain Gunner, her Commander, after the broad-pennant was given the rank of Commander R.N.R., and acted in that capacity, while in charge of the Squadron during both Vice-Admiral Sir Dudley R. S. De Chair, K.C.B., M.V.O., and Admiral Sir Reginald G. Tupper, K.C.B., C.V.O., and was granted the D.S.O. for services rendered. Being succeeded by Captain Cook at the same time as Admiral Tupper was succeeded by Rear-Admiral C. W. Leighley Peach. Captain Cook, who appointed Flag Captain, and created a commander as Captain R. N. R., and is in command the vessel.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 30, 1919.

Ernest Charles Drury U.F.O. And Labour Leader

SIMCOE COUNTY FARMER MAY BE NEXT PREMIER OF ONTARIO—EXPERT FARMER, GOOD SPEAKER, AND SOME POLITICIAN—SELECTION OF CABINET MEMBERS SECRET.

TORONTO, Oct. 30.—Ernest Charles Drury was unanimously elected leader of the United Farmers and Independent Labor party late yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Drury's election came at the end of about five minutes' discussion of the leadership question, and his name as leader was hailed with prolonged cheers by the U. F. O. members present.

LABOR MEN APPROVE CHOICE OF LEADER.

While the Labor wing of the new combination were not represented at the meeting in which Mr. Drury was chosen leader, a resolution, moved by P. Heenan, member-elect in Kenora on the Labor ticket, and seconded by R. A. Hughes of Toronto, treasurer of the Independent Labor party, left no doubt that the Labor men approve the choice.

This resolution read: "As representative of the workers from the most westerly point in this Province, I take great pleasure in moving that this joint session heartily endorse Mr. E. C. Drury as the leader of the Farmer-Labor-ite party, and that we have full confidence in him." This resolution came at the joint meeting of the two groups last night.

As leader of the Farmer-Labor party, Mr. Drury stated last night that he was prepared to answer any call from the Lieutenant-Governor to form a Government. This call, he thought, might come at any time, although he intended going back to his farm near Barrie for the next few days.

"Have you made any selection of a Cabinet?" he was asked.

"Yes," was the reply. He went on to state that the men who were to form the Cabinet had been discussed, and that the personnel had been decided upon, but that this was not for publication. However, he was now quite ready to take up office, and the resignation of the Hearst Cabinet and a call from Lieutenant-Governor Hendrie was the next move on the political chessboard.

MAY GO OUTSIDE FOR CABINET MEMBERS.

Mr. Drury was questioned in regard to the earlier declaration made by the United Farmers that they were prepared to take in outsiders willing to support their policy.

"Will you go outside your members for the Cabinet?" he was asked.

"Yes; I might say that we possibly will," said the new leader.

"To another party?" inquired the interviewer.

"We are not prepared to say that," replied Mr. Drury.

Afterward other members of the party hinted that this might be done, and that names of men outside either Labor or the U. F. O. had been mentioned.

Discussion of the Cabinet took place last night, and incidentally caused the first rift in the front of the new political combination.

While the Cabinet discussion was under way Mayor M. M. MacBride, member-elect for Brantford, and one of the leaders in the Labor wing, arose and left the caucus. Just what caused the trouble did not come to light at the time.

The fear is expressed that his defection is permanent, although neither wing of the party voiced any belief that it will have any bearing on the coalition.

TWO SEATS OFFERED.

The new party leader is as yet unprovided with a seat in the House. While this would not prevent him from accepting office, plans were made last night to secure a constituency for Mr. Drury. Two seats were offered him last night: E. G. Machell's seat in Centre Simcoe, and North Brant, where H. C. Nixon is sitting member. Mr. Drury was unprepared to state just which offer he would accept, but was inclined to favor Centre Simcoe, that seat being close to his own home riding. His decision will be made during the next few days at home on his farm.

WAR HEROES ARE FITTED FOR WORK

A Sacred Obligation To Be Met From Proceeds of the Victory Loan

Fitting her famous fighting men for useful and profitable civil occupation is one of the great tasks upon which Canada is now engaged.

Erstwhile warriors are becoming efficient workers in many branches of activity through the adequate nation. The splendid constructive mission of the Department of Soldiers Civil Reestablishment is meeting with most encouraging results.

This same necessary work must be maintained just as long as there is need for it. The expense involved runs into a considerable amount of money. Its continuance must be provided for from the proceeds of the Victory Loan 1919. Among the many after-the-war obligations facing Canada, none is more sacred than this. As far as humanely possible every disabled man must be fitted with a vocation which will enable him to earn for himself an adequate and independent living.

The people of Canada will cheerfully lend their money for the payment of this debt of honor. Incidentally they will be subscribing to Victory Loan 1919, secure a lucrative and safe investment that will reflect benefits upon everyone in the Dominion.

Alliance Protest Is Due For Rejection

OTTAWA, Oct. 30.—Prohibition will hold the centre of the stage in the House of Commons just as soon as the Grand Trunk Bill has been sent to the Senate. Already a certain opposition has developed toward the two bills from the outside. Members, were in receipt of a leaflet from Rev. Ben Spence of the Dominion Alliance on which was printed an editorial, dealing with the measures. The Alliance through its secretary, opposes the legislation on the ground that it simply passes responsibility to the Province which the Federal Government should shoulder itself.

This communication denounces the two bills as "pussy-footing compromises and tricky evasions."

It declares that it is in the competence of the Federal authorities to frame bone-dry measures, which will prevent importation and manufacture without the cumbersome preliminaries of Provincial plebiscites. And it states, emphatically that there should be no "wet interim" between the expiry of the present war time restrictions on the manufacture of peace and the taking of such plebiscites in any case. In other words, the Alliance desires that the Government perpetuate the prohibiting restrictions by Federal legislation.

There is no indication that the Government has any intention of doing as the Alliance asks. In fact, the Government seems to resent the opposition of the temperance people to the two bills now before Parliament. They say that Dominion Alliance's course is going to make it all the harder for the present legislation through. As for these bills, it is understood that the Dominion Prohibition Committee approved of the principle underlying them and a prohibition member of the Cabinet, when they were introduced, spoke ethusiastically about them, saying they represented the biggest temperance advance yet made in Canada.

Having the material sent them by Hon Ben ment's legislation is that Provinces should be called to go dry to whatever extent they themselves may decide.

Members seemed surprised at reality fifty members. These men have been Speaker, All the talk down here so far has been that the bills went too far, rather than not far enough. The Government has been greatly embarassed by the strong opposition of an unusually large group of its members, a group said by some to include forty or forty members. These men have been in "woe" that the Government has had to be careful about proceeding with the two bills at present before Parliament. The attitude of these members now may be imagined when they see the temperance forces attacking the very bills for which they themselves were objecting, but from a different standpoint.

Leaders Sustain Coal Strike Order

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 30.—The strike order of the United Mine Workers, effective Friday midnight, August 15, after two days discussion, the conference here, officials of the big union it was announced, had no idea of modifying the call for a cessation of work. President Wilson's pronouncement on the threatened industrial war had no defender in the conference, it was stated.

As explained by Ellis Searles, editor of the union's magazine and official spokesman for the conference, the statement will set before the American people the exact situation from the miners' standpoint. It will probably be long, he said, and will cover all aspects of the problem. He brought out that it will not be specifically an answer to the President, but will discuss the chief executive's stand as one of the incidents of the strike situation.

N. R. Station. A gang of workmen started this morning and the work will be rushed to completion. When completed it is estimated that the rink will be the finest between Toronto and Montreal.

Provincial Municipal Board Meets Here

Objections to an Asphaltic Concrete Pavement on Murray Hill Heard—Judgment Reserved.

A few weeks ago the City Council of Belleville gave notice through the papers of its intention of placing down on Murrey's Hill an asphaltic concrete pavement. This style of pavement was objected to by residents of the hill and the result was that the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board was asked to hold a sitting here relative to the matter. This meeting was held yesterday afternoon presided over by Mr. D. M. McIlroy, K.C., chairman of the Board. Mr. Cook secretary of the Board was also present.

The petitioners against the pavement were represented by Mr. E. J. Butler and Mr. Wm. Carnew, while Mr. S. Masson, City Solicitor was present on behalf of the city.

At the opening of the meeting, Mr. Butler, said that in view of the grade of the hill, the petitioners consider it to be dangerous to build such a pavement as is proposed. If a rock mac or water bound macadam pavement was made there would be no objection.

Mr. Carnew stated that he appeared on behalf of the Murney estate which was much interested in this matter. Mr. Hall had recently built on the hill, and the property in question was made inaccessible. He would request that the pavement proposed be not laid. It was also desired that the Council should make approaches or lower the walk to conform with the cutting down of the hill.

Mr. S. Masson, City Solicitor, in speaking on behalf of the city said that the proposed pavement was considered to be the best. Plans of the hill were put in to show the grades, etc.

Mr. H. F. Ketcheson being examined, stated that he was Mayor of Belleville for two years and in 1916 was City Engineer. Experience in engineering Department was in the city and advised that if Murney's hill was paved it should be either water bound macadam or rock macadam pavement.

Ald. Woolley testified that he was chairman of Public Works and knew that the hill was a badly graded hill and the Council decided to cut it down. The walk will be graded to conform with the grading of the hill. The pavement proposed was not doing anything detrimental to the residents of that section.

Mr. Butler—The Council did not confer with the engineer of the Provincial highway.

To Mr. Carnew—There was nothing definite as to the lowering of the walks leading to the road but the Council intend to lower the grade to conform with the cutting down of the hill.

Mr. Mill, City Engineer—Before Murney's hill was cut down, the grade ranged from 11 to 12 per cent and now it is 5-8 decimal 2 per cent.—In his opinion the pavement proposed would be the most suitable. There is much better than a brick pavement as there would be no grip for horses in certain seasons of the year if brick was used.

Mr. Butler—Would not a creasote block pavement be better?

Mr. Mill—That would be more expensive than the proposed pavement.

Mr. Bruce Aldrich of Toronto, testified that he was a chemical engineer and director of the Asphalt Association. In regard to the pavement proposed to be put down on the hill in question, asphaltic macadam is the best in certain weather especially where horses have to haul loads. He had built it where there was 8 per cent. It was a durable pavement and safe for horses. There is a pliability of this pavement.

Mr. J. J. Gunn of Belleville testified that he was a civil engineer and whilst City Engineer here, had occasion to examine the hill. It was a steep hill, also cutting the hill down. He felt confident that an asphaltic concrete was the best pavement for a grade above 6 per cent. of a hill. He would favor a rock mac or an entirely water bound macadam. Creasote block should be the best for that section.

To Mr. Masson—Witness was City Engineer when the rock mac pavement was done on the portion opposite and it was wearing fairly satisfactory.

Mr. L. C. Yeomans testified that he was one of the petitioners against the proposed pavement to be put down on Murney's Hill. The residents thought the pavement was not suitable and expensive as an experiment. They would like a water bound macadam.

Mr. McIntyre—Water bound macadam is not in reality a pavement.

Mr. Yeomans continuing said that the coal men claimed that they could not use the hill if it was paved as proposed.

Mr. Charles Whelan testified that he was chairman of Public Works of the city for some time and it was then proposed to cut down Murney Hill and pave it. He considered rock mac or water bound macadam would be more suitable as a permanent roadway.

Mr. Aldrich recalled, said that creasoted block would cost $5.50 per square yard on a concrete base making it a much more expensive pavement. Rock mac is not available in Canada at present and what is procured has to be brought in from the U. S.

Mr. Ingram—The general consensus of opinion of those speaking had to be done in the matter of a pavement and the question was which was the best. He would consult with the Engineer of the Board before taking any definite action in the matter.

Government May Give City More Members

REDISTRIBUTION BILL IS EXPECTED BEFORE NEXT GENERAL ELECTION AND AN ATTEMPT MAY BE MADE TO LESSEN NUMBER OF RURAL MEMBERS PERMITTED IN COMMONS AND INCREASE CITY REPRESENTATION.

OTTAWA, Oct. 30—Election results of the past week or so have set Ottawa politicans cogitating as to the next census and redistribution, and to the next election law.

Under existing conditions it is realized that neither of the existing parties have much chance of forming a Government after the next election.

But the next election will not be held before important changes have been made in the representation of the Dominion. The usual decennial census will no doubt be taken next year, and following that there will be a redistribution of seats throughout the Dominion. In this latter respect the only fixing provision in the British North America Act is that Quebec, with a fixed representation of 65 seats shall through her population provide the representation unit.

For instance, placing the population of Quebec at 2,300,000 the unit of representation for the Dominion is the quotient gained by dividing 65 into that total, or 35,000. In the past there have been many advocates of representation by population, but it has always been felt that the cities are not entitled to the number of representatives which, under that system strict by applied, they would secure. So that small rural counties have been accorded representation on a unit of representation far below that of the cities. For instance, Ottawa with 110,000 people has but two members, while thirteen county adjoining it with only 30,000 has one.

Country to Dominate

It is obvious that under these conditions the rural electorate throughout the Dominion will dominate any election which is held. Among the suggestions being made by the men in the corridor, therefore, is that at the next redistribution the cities be given representation more nearly in proportion to their population.

Strictly adopted the application of the unit of representation to the cities would mean that Ottawa, instead of having two members, would have five that Toronto's representation would be more than doubled, and that in Quebec, where the number of seats is fixed, Montreal, Quebec City, Sherbrooke, Hull, Three Rivers, Ste. Hyacinthe, and the other cities would send about half the representation of the whole province to the Hall. In other words the urban representation would be very much increased.

Principle Is Expected

That the principle may not be applied strictly is certain, but that the representation of the cities at the next election will be considerably larger than at present is very likely, indeed.

Another suggestion which is being made is that the principle of proportional representation be applied to the larger districts.

The success of any scheme for effecting the inevitable heavy inroads which the farmers will make at the next election, is however, threatened by the fact that the farmers and labor appear to be on the eve of alliance. Nevertheless the question of a new scheme of representation is occupying the minds of the Ottawa legislators.

$50,000 Subscription From Canada Cement Boosts Total

DELORO CO. ALSO PROMISES DOLLAR FOR DOLLAR OF EMPLOYEE'S PURCHASE—LATEST COUNTY RETURNS $217,600.

From the Canada Cement Company on behalf of their plant at Point Ann has increased Hastings Countys total up to date for the Victory Loan to $167,600. Mr. A. A. Huck, representative of the Company sailed at County Headquarters yesterday afternoon and signed the application.

A further generous subscription will probably come from the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company. Mr. S. H. Wright, Superintendent, having announced that the Company will subscribe dollar for dollar of the amount of bonds bought by their employees. It is hoped that the splendid action of this Company will be followed by other concerns.

Hastings County's special subscription objective of $160,000 is thus half attained by the Canada Cement contribution. Further negotiations are under way which will probably exceed it before long.

Still leading the race for the Prince of Wales' flag is the Deloro canvassing team, Messrs. Norman Laing and Arthur Yates. They now have a percentage of 36.22, a total of $8,150. The Huntingdon team, Messrs. A. Herrity and W. J. Jeffrey, have forged ahead of Tyendinaga, in second place, they now having 22 per cent, amounting to $5,500. It is believed, however, that Messrs. Hinchey and Spafford of Tyendinaga, have something on hand which will help them well up again.

Although it is too early in the campaign to properly judge, Hastings County's total is fairly low in comparison with the other three counties in the Bay of Quinte Division to which it belongs. Prince Edward leads with 24.64 per cent, Lennox and Addington second with 12.41 per cent, Hastings third with 9.31 per cent and Frontenac last with 5.09 per cent. In former campaigns some of the counties held back large subscriptions to a late date in order to make a quick jump in their standing and it is believed that this is the case with Frontenac this year. Hastings must therefore exert every effort in order to keep up in the race.

Several Front street merchants are patriotically decoding window space to Victory Loan advertising. Ritchie's are putting in a Victory Loan window shortly as is the local Hydro-Electric Office. Nearly all who cannot do this are displaying prominently in their windows Victory Loan posters besides those in their advertising space in the newspapers.

KINGSTON MAID BADLY BURNED BY GAS STOVE

KINGSTON, Oct. 30—A terrible accident occurred at eleven o'clock yesterday, when Miss Annie McDermott, maid at the home of James Swift, 122 King Street, was nearly burned to death. The first information of the accident was when she was seen running from the house. She was all in flames and screaming loudly. Two young fellows who were passing, A. C. McAllister and D. N. Dunford, both of Kansas City, rushed to her assistance and rolled her on the ground until the flames were extinguished. She was then conveyed back to the house and an ambulance summoned and she was taken to the hospital where she lies in a very serious condition. Her clothes caught fire when she was standing beside a small gas stove.

FINES OF $3,000.

Timmins, Oct. 30.—For breaches of the O.T.A. three persons including bootleggers were imposed by the magistrate here and at South Porcupine on the occasion of his regular weekly visit to this camp. The penalties ranged from the minimum, $200 and costs to $500.

Those Movie Stars!

June Elvidge, moving picture star, is suing for divorce. Her husband is Lieut. Frank C. Bodger, M.C., of Ottawa, Canada. The marriage of Miss Elvidge to the Canadian army officer in November, 1918, was one of the romances of the war. As other war hero of Canada's army is now mentioned as the man who has become between the actress and her husband. He is named only as red "Jack" in Lieut. Badgley's complaint. "Jack" is said to be a first Lieutenant in the Canadian army and has won the Military Cross.

Mrs. Badgley has made a vigorous denial that at any time has she been guilty of the conduct attributed to her by Lieut. Badgley, with either "Jack" or any other man.

Lieut. Badgley was a member of the First Canadian Expeditionary Force. He won the Military Cross at the battle of Courcelette in 1916, and after being wounded, shell-shocked and gassed, was invalided home.

Miss Elvidge began her theatrical career in 1914. She had been a chorus girl only two months when she was made an understudy for the prima donna. Soon after she had an offer to appear in moving pictures and ever since has been a star on the screen.

Wheel-Mounted Sled.

Snow and ice are not perpetual to Alaska, popular belief to the contrary, and while dog sleds are commonly used during the colder months, they are of no value in the summer, when the ground lacks its covering of white, says Popular Mechanics. This latter fact led a resident of the territory to invent a conveyance to be drawn by his dog team during the warm season. A sled of inding the sign was mounted on four small bicycle wheels, and a steering column and wheel from an automobile were connected to the front pair. Five dogs, hitched in the usual manner, draw the wheel-mounted sled.

Immigrants Coming to Canada.

Immigration, reduced materially during the war, is increasing again. It is stated that more than twice as many immigrants entered this country between April and June as entered during the same months last year. During that time 40,325 prospective citizens entered the Dominion as compared with 19,747 for the same period in 1918. It is claimed that more than half of these arrived from the other side of the boundary, while 16,377 were from the British Isles. From the countries more foreign as to race the number was only little more than 2,000. Naturally most of these arrivals are seeking farm homes and have in great measure settled on the prairie lands of the Northwest. So far Canada seems to have recovered its status as to the migration sooner and in greater degree than they have in the United States. Indeed, there is a question, if the corresponding emigrants in the United States have not outnumbered the arriving immigrants for the latter part of the last year.

A MATHEMATICAL FREAK.

Farmer Knows Multiplication Tables Up to a Million.

Have you ever heard of any person who is able to say his multiplication tables up to 1,000,000?

William Strong, a farmer of Washington, Ill., claims the distinction of being the only person in the world who can solve, mentally without pen, pencil or paper, any problem given to him in addition, subtraction, multiplication, division, fraction, cube and square root.

Bankers, auditors and public accountants who are familiar with handling figures which run into the millions have for the past five years tried in vain to originate some problem which will stump the Illinois farmer.

Not long ago a half dozen bankers, auditors and expert accountants got together and decided to stump Strong with mathematical problems of such a thing was possible.

These experts carefully compiled and computed the answers to 100 problems, including problems in addition, fractions and cube and square root. When the work was complete Strong was asked to appear.

The experts had prepared for a long session. They had taken most of one day to originate and compute the answers to the problems.

The first question was something like this. Add the following:

142,987
215,335
457,356
35,432

Scarcely had the expert accountant finished $92 of the last number when Strong gave him the answer. Strong's answer tallied with the experts.

The second question was something like this: Subtract $1,425,867,232 from $9,457,778,993. Strong finished the answer immediately, and again it was correct.

The next question was in multiplication. The experts asked him to multiply 476,893 by 999,999. When out any apparent effort the answer was forthcoming. It was correct.

The accountants then shot one at Strong, confidently expecting him to fail, admitting that this problem was a difficult one to figure, even with pencil and paper.

"Strong," the accountant said, "tell us how much $43,457,893 2-3 times 999,988,766 ½ is." Strong didn't even ask for a pencil to figure the answer almost instantly. Again it was correct.

He took less than ten minutes for Strong to solve the hundred problems and every answer given by him was found to be correct. He asked neither pencil nor paper, the calculating all being done mentally.

"How about higher mathematics?" Strong was asked by the experts.

"Nothing doing in my line above cube root," Strong replied.

Holland's Oyster Industry.

In the industry represented by oyster cultivation, Holland is the world's champion in its operations and employs more elaborate methods than any other country in the world. The numerous ponds that indent the coast of Holland, particularly in the region of the River Scheldt, afford excellent facilities for the propagation of the oyster, and enable the country to conduct the most successful oyster industry in Europe. Public dredging is not permitted, as the result of that system was the threatened exhaustion of the fisheries, and the beds have been carefully surveyed and specific rights granted to individuals and companies who are in view of conserving the proper production of the oyster in a systematic manner. Enemies in the best sense are kept from the territory available. Many growers lease several tracts in different localities and adapted to different purposes, which facilitates the shifting of young oysters as they can be shifted from one place to another according to the season or the stage of development. A few of the oystermen plant shells on the beds, as is done in many parts of this country, but the largest and most successful propagators are equipped with their own tanks and ponds, located in favorable places, and by which they carry on the culture.—Family Herald.

Civilization Not a Blessing.

Mene, the Eskimo boy whom Admiral Peary brought back from the North Pole some ago, died of pneumonia in a logging camp, says an exchange. He certainly was a blessing, though meant as one, for Peary to take him away from his native snow and ice.

A man of the old stone age could not have left a more modern exhibition of civilization; or perhaps in the case of the Cro-Magnons, who drew pictures in colors on the walls of the caves of Spanish caves 20,000 years ago, drawings that still survive, civilization does not amount to much when one considers the street cars, automobiles, flailing airplanes, influenza and the attitudes of the human race is greater than were those from the subconscious tiger or the woolly rhinoceros in their day.

No Eskimo has ever flourished in the temperate zone. The scenery of Greenland and Baffin may be monotonous, but they have a certain uniform whiteness that tires the eye, and fresh air is abundant and inspiring. It is not poisoned by soft-coal smoke, and it suits the natives lungs.

BROKE SPIRIT OF MEN.

Canadian Soldier Got Into American Prison Camp by Mistake.

One of the great scandals of the American army has been connected with the treatment of the men in the prison camps and among the worst offenders is an officer named "Hard-boiled" Smith. It will interest Canadians to know that one man from this country fell into Smith's hands and was given reason to feel thankful for his Canadian citizenship.

Appearing before a special board of inquiry, which is taking data for the Congressional Committee at Washington, who is to hear the latest evidence here, Charles A. Mannering, of Robert street, Toronto, told his own story of the systematic and brutal attitude of "Hard-boiled" Smith at prison farm No. 1, near Paris, where Smith was in charge. Mannering was originally in the Canadian army, and transferred in 1917. He completely lost control of himself toward the end of his recital, so intense were his feelings.

Speaking of his initial arrival in camp Mannering stated:

"They searched me and took out my brother's picture, tore it up and threw it into a waste basket. I said, 'That's my brother's picture,' and they said, 'You can buy a bum's picture for a couple of francs and it will look just as good,'" Mannering asserted.

I saw them search another machine gunner and take off his revolver," he writes, "A machine gunner did it at the man's heart and pulled the trigger, saying, 'If there are any bullets in it you are going to get the first one.' Fortunately, it was unloaded."

After I was searched a young marine came up to me and marched me in the face and said, 'Get into that room on the double.' He then smash made my nose bleed, and I pulled down my hands to wipe it, whereupon he cracked me with his club. I rushed into the room and stooped inside the door. One of the prisoners grabbed me and pulled me further into the room. 'Don't come on the deadline if you want to leave the room alive,' he said.

"I saw men standing at attention for three hours at a time and every time their muscles gave out under the strain and they sagged they were struck with clubs.

"I saw them drag two sergeants out of the room and make them do torturing exercises for forty minutes. When they could not do them they beat with clubs. One was clubbed so atrociously that they could not bring him to. They dragged him away and we never saw him again. The next day he died.

"We had to sit on the concrete floor all day without rest and without any support. If a man leaned back against the wall and the guards saw him it meant either the hospital or the grave.

"They had two colored men there and when a guard wanted to see how strong he felt he called one of them into the corridor and knocked him down. The job of the two colored men was to scrub soldiers brought in unconscious. They did it with a stiff scrubbing brush and made the flesh raw and bleeding.

A naked confession to explain my ination and told Smith I was a wounded man there by mistake. Smith ignored my explanation, and with the officer men, I was deprived of leggings, given one blanket, and quartered for the night in the racing stable of a Frenchman. The bed was the cobblestone floor of a stall, and I took good care to sleep that night. The weather was cold and raining. The next morning I saw who had the newly arrived at the prison camp were lined up. "Hard-boiled" Smith strutted before us, up and down the line, looking us over. Then he started in on me at us. "Is Hard-boiled Smith, Do you get me. I'm boss of this place. Don't forget it. All the birds are going to soldier here as you never soldiered before. And you can't skip out. There are only two ways to leave this place. One is to come out in a long wooden box feet first, and the other way is straight up to Jesus Christ. I'm assisted in that by the Boche. Yesterday a man brought me home a different way to get out of here, but he was all wrong. He flew yourself," and he pointed to a still form lying under an old army blanket.

New Superspeed Boat.

Technomes of the country will be watching Clifford Cleland's plans for what is promised as the greatest surprise the speed merchants have sprung since the Cleveland disputch says. Local motorboat enthusiasts are preparing to build a speed boat this winter that will develop a speed of 80 miles an hour or so, according to H. L. Wales, manufacturer of parts for Liberty motors.

The new craft, to be called Miss Cleveland, will be launched and tuned up in plenty of time for the national speed classic races of 1920, it is promised. She will get her power from two Liberty motors, according to Walter's plans.

"If she doesn't make at least 75 miles an hour she won't be worth anything to me and she might as well be scrapped," Walker said. "We expect Miss Cleveland will travel at such a mile clip when she's sent against those other speed-boat marvels—Miss Minneapolis, Miss Detroit III and Whip-Po-Will, Jr."

Chinese Calligraphy.

The Chinese, according to a Canton paper, recognize the extreme complexity of their written language. About twenty years ago, in the days of the Empress Dowager, a literary and reformer named Wang Chao, who held the highest obtainable literary degree, conceived the idea of a simplified form of Chinese writing. He invented a phonetic system of symbols, which was promptly branded as revolutionary and suppressed, while its "radical" author was banished. Lately, however, the ban has been reintroduced, and the Government has raised a statue of the same kind, but more complicated, writing much success. Two missionaries of Changsha have been at earlier in an effort to revive Wang Chao's phonetic script, which he found on the test that, although the number of characters is vast, there are only three hundred and eighteen "word-sounds" in the Chinese language.—Family Herals

RIPE OLIVE STOCKS ARE ALL SEIZED

Detroit, Oct. 30.—Seizure of all ripe olives in the stocks of local retail stores was begun because of the deaths of five persons who attended a dinner last week at which the fruit was served. Chemical analysis showed the olives contained poisonous bacilli.

Nine thousand bottles of the ripe fruit were taken in early seizures, and wholesalers were ordered to discontinue the sale of both ripe and green olives, while hotels were advised to strike olives from their menus.

Department of Health physicians decided to ask a ban on the sale of olives throughout Michigan. Samples of other canned and bottled foods are being analyzed.

WHO GETS SALARY OF LEADER OF OPPOSITION?

Toronto, Oct. 30.—Who will get the $5,000 salary of leader of the Opposition in the new House. The question is now being discussed at the Parliament Buildings.

Will it be Hartley Dewart, Liberal leader, Hon. Ferguson, Conservative chieftain, or will it be divided between the two, and if the latter is there a chance that one or more of the independents will get one or more of the index of the stakes. When in the dying days of last session, the Government made provision for a salary for the Opposition leader, there were sceptics, who intimated that it was but feathering its own nest, against the possibility of a reverse at the polls. But if two, three or more claimants come forward what's the answer?

KIND OF BUBBLES THAT DON'T BURST

"I'm forever blowing bubbles," sing the happy youngsters. Let them keep on blowing them. Most of us blow bubbles ourselves some time or another looking on the bright side of things never hurt nobody yet. It is nice to think that the good things of the earth will eventually come our way. A ward To Widow Reduced By $10,000

Court of Appeal Gives Her $2,025 for Death of Husband.

MONTREAL, Oct. 30.—The biggest change made in any one of the twenty-eight judgments pronounced upon by the Court of Appeals was in reducing from $12,025 to $2,025 the amount the Grand Trunk Railway Company must now pay to Dame Philisono Beauchemin, widow of Adelard Deuville, section foreman, who was accidentally killed by a freight train while engaged in his work on the railway near St. Basile station, on January 21.

Mr. Justice Pelletier stated that in the opinion of a majority of the Court Douville had been guilty of inexcusable fault in ignoring the operating rules of the railway and neglecting to avail himself of the protection which was available at the time the fatal accident happened. Moreover the engineer of the I. C. R. train, which killed Douville, committed an inexcusable fault in failing to obey the stop signal at St. Basile. No explanation was given why the engineer blundered.

TWO FALLS CONTRASTED

Our Own Niagara and the Victoria of Zambesi.

While Niagara Falls will continue to hold their own as a mecca for honeymooners and other travelers, they must henceforth submit to comparison with another natural wonder, the Victoria Falls of the Zambesi, as Africa becomes frequented by tourists. From being a place of mystery, so feared that Livingstone, who discovered the falls in 1855, had great difficulty in persuading his followers to accompany him, the falls now are visible from a train, by way that crosses the river half a mile below them, and they lie under the proposed route of the Cape to Cairo aerial service, which is to be established this autumn.

Louis Livingston Seaman describes a visit to Victoria Falls and contrasts them with Niagara, as follows:

"Our approach was made by rail from the Indian Ocean at Beira, near the mouth of the Zambesi (that hotbed of micro-organisms, described by James Bryce as the most deadly in Africa), and across the narrow belt of swamp and jungle forming the coast; hence up the gradual slope to the volcanic plateau that forms the real continent of Africa.

"By morning an altitude of nearly 6,000 feet was reached, and a transition from the excessive heat and moisture of the lowlands was experienced that was most grateful and exhilarating.

"This section still abounds with antelope, elephants, lions and other large game, which find excellent cover in the tall elephant grass or the dense forests and jungles, while in the river hippos still gambol and flounder in ungainly herds amid the floating islands of rank vegetation of Nile reeds and papyrus.

"With the altitude, however, came another and less grateful change. The forests were no longer in evidence, but in their stead were vast arid, birdless plains, with parched hungry vegetation, whose anaemic and stunted growth bears witness to the scarcity of moisture that so severely affects Rhodesia and the great stretches of veldt far away to the Transvaal.

"Early in the morning of the third day we were suddenly awakened by the guard and treated to a scene of beauty never to be forgotten. Some ten miles distant five enormous columns of vapor were shooting their rosy-tinted shafts hundreds of feet heavenward, while the faint roar of the falls told us the Mosioa-Tunya — the smoke that sounds — was no longer a mystery.

"Each moment increased the beauty and vividness of the scene. With the first rays of the rising sun came a picture of color of wondrous loveliness. Delicate tints of violet, crimson—and beryl played through the booming spray as it shot higher and higher, ultimately disappearing as virgin clouds in heaven, while the ever-increasing thunders of the waters lent an added solemnity to the view.

"Hardly could we wait to reach our destination, so great was our enthusiasm. But our hopes were doomed to momentary disappointment; only to be more than realised after a study of the environment; for, notwithstanding their magnitude, the first view of Victoria Falls is decidedly disappointing.

"Although nearly a mile in width and 400 feet in height, the grandeur of their proportions is eclipsed by the sudden disappearance of the river, as it lunges into a narrow, rocky fissure extending across its entire width. Only at a single central point is there a breach in this fissure through which the falls can be seen and appreciated in their full proportions, where the converging waters rush madly to the signal canyon below. So restricted is this view that there is an entire absence of that awe-inspiring and almost paralysing effect which strikes the visitor dumb with wonder and amazement when Niagara bursts on his near vision. On first sight of the Victoria Falls one involuntarily exclaims, 'Oh, how beautiful!' but they lack the majesty of our grand Niagara.

"No single visit can reveal the fullness of their charms, but repeated excursions must be made to their islands and precipices, their grottoes and palm gardens, their rain forests and projecting crags, their rainbows and cataracts and many-sided views of their exquisite setting in the emerald framework of tropic forests, whose rich and indescribable beauty can be appreciated. The fascination of discovering new and hidden charms from different points of view grows on the visitor and becomes one of the greatest attractions.

"Had the falls been in America, the Indians would have named them Minnehaha, Laughing Waters; for like a true maiden are they fascinations, half concealing, half betraying their beauties, and requiring much wooing before revealing all their loveliness of hidden treasures and charm."

Gets V. C. After Five Years.

The gallant behavior which cost the late Lieut. William Archer Money-Kyrle his life nearly five years ago has just been rewarded with the bestowal of the Victoria Cross. Bruce was a junior officer of the regular Indian army, 59th Scinde Rifles, when he recently commanded by his father, and was a nephew of Edward Hay, former general manager of the Imperial Bank of Canada. The young soldier displayed great bravery. Directly on the night of December 19, 1914, leading a party against a hostile trench, and afterwards, though severely wounded, walking up and down encouraging his men to hold out against the overwhelming numbers of the enemy. The morale of the field grey hordes later swept over this little outpost of the "Old Contemptibles," and most of those not among the slain were taken prisoner. Consequently it was impossibly that the story of Lieut. Bruce's gallantry became known.

East Meets West

THOUSANDS of young Canadians, sons and daughters, grandsons and granddaughters of Ontario men and women, are out building up Western Canada. They are pioneering in the West as their parents or grandparents pioneered in Ontario. Many are helping to build up thriving community centres, on the prairies, the foothills, and in the fruit districts of British Columbia.

The Globe is the newspaper which pays special attention to drawing the East and the West together.

The Globe has always appreciated the close family ties existing between East and the West. It has always advocated unity and accord as the only means of great national development.

For years its own representatives, writers of note and distinction, have travelled through Western Canada at frequent intervals during the year, sending back information about what Ontario Sons and Daughters are doing in the West. They report events and comment upon development in the Great Land beyond the Great Lakes.

Back in the early 60's of the last century, J. H. Ashdown chanced to read an article in The Globe dwelling on development in the West, that lured him to Winnipeg. Today The J. H. Ashdown Hardware Co., Limited, is one of the great business organizations of Western Canada.

For these reasons, Ontario Men and Women should read The Globe.

Yet this is but one phase of the work accomplished by The Globe. Nothing is overlooked to make The Globe what its founder, George Brown, would have it be—a Great Family Newspaper—a newspaper for all the family in the home—a newspaper for all thoughtful people in every walk of life.

Its discussions of public questions, its great news gathering and news editing organizations, its many features and departments—a department for almost every important phase of human endeavor—give it a peculiar status in the newspaper world, and make it worthy of a place in every Canadian home.

What The Globe has been during 75 years' service to the Canadian people is a surety of what it will be in the days to come.

The Globe to-day stands unique in its facilities and possibilities for service. Its publishers guarantee that these will be employed for the continued enhancement of The Globes' value to its readers.

MUTT AND JEFF

A long line of people, four deep, stretching from Griffin's theatre to Pinnacle street as early as seven o'clock last evening was striking evidence of the popularity of Gus Hill's Mutt and Jeff cartoons, as every visitor at the local play-house. Every seat was occupied when the curtain went up and the audience appeared to get full usual amount of laughter and amusement out of the antics of the elongated Mutt and the abbreviated Jeff as the result of their hectic dream occasioned by "hitting the pipe" in a Chinese "hop joint." A chorus of shapely dames with topical songs assisted the principals with a musical accompaniment to the fun-making. Certain comedies are in a class by themselves and on the class of entertainment provided seems to please the patrons, nothing more need be said.

PAULINE FREDERICK IN "THE FEAR WOMAN" AT GRIFFIN

Pauline Frederick's new picture, "The Fear Woman" is being shown at Griffin's tonight to Saturday, with a matinee Saturday. Written by Izola Forrester, it is described as a drama of purpose and power and the colorful style is easily at her best as Helen Winthrop, a girl who is haunted by a fear which she conquers with splendid dramatic effect. With everything a girl could wish for, she is miserable lest her father's weakness for drink manifest itself in her and destroy both her own happiness and that of the man she is to marry. Tortured beyond endurance, Helen breaks her engagement at the altar, just before the marriage is consummated, and sends Robert Craig (Milton Sills) away from her forever. Subsequent episodes show the big sacrifice she made for her friend Stella Deane, and the curious situation in which Helen finds herself at a fashionable summer hotel. She s amused at the amorous attentions of a laughable boy Percy Farwell (Walter Hiers) and when his parvens mother in alarm sends for her lawyer to save Percy from the clutches of the adventurous she becomes involved in a plot to ruin Helen's name. What the turn affairs will take, for the lawyer is none other than Robert Craig, Stella Deane explains, brings "The Fear Woman" to a startling, unique conclusion. Beside the above there will be five other selections and topicals will also be exhibited.

MORE GLOOM FOR THE GLOBE.

Mackenzie King's appearance in the House of Commons as leader of the Liberal party, and his utterances upon the G. T. R. purchase proposition, makes the Ottawa Journal laugh and the Toronto Globe sad. The Globe intimates that Mackenzie King in opposing the Grand Trunk Railway purchase bill, is playing to the gallery of Quebec opposition to public ownership. Says the Globe:

"But where does Mr. Mackenzie King stand in regard to that sort of public ownership? Does he or does he not believe that Canadian railway rates, properly fed, will work as faithfully and as efficiently for their country as for a private corporation? That is the kernel of the issue at Ottawa. Has official Liberalism no word to say upon the subject?"

Truth is, the Liberal opposition at Ottawa is again "in wrong" in its masked policy of holding up public ownership. When it is remembered that the wild and reckless railway policy of the Liberals while in power created the country with the Grand Trunk Pacific white elephant, the least the Liberal opposition could do now would be to help instruct, rather than hinder the Government in its arduous task of picking the Liberal railway chestnuts out of the fire.

AN ALL-CANADIAN INVESTMENT.

The keenest business minds in the country have grasped quickly the advantage of investment in the Victory Loan of 1919. The Canadian Pacific Railway Company's prompt subscription of twenty million dollars has announced by President E. W. Beatty, is one fine example, of which there are many to hand.

That Canada's credit is excellent, this preliminary barrage-fire of bond-buying proves beyond question. The responsible heads of huge undertakings have given an impressive lead to the public by the unanimity with which they have increased their holdings of Victory Bonds. It remains for the small investor to take note of the utter destruction of lingering doubts and rumors in his path and to press ahead to a personal victory.

The success of the Victory Loan is assured because of the high order of intelligence which characterizes the Canadian people. They are able to see that it is their own loan, necessitated by war obligations past and present duties of immediate future. The rising up of Canadians in acceptance of their country's part in the world's work is a fine spectacle of popular ardor and competence.

A big over-subscription of the Victory Loan of 1919 is the objective to be held in view. Canada's possibilities are vast and she is associated with the mighty undertaking of which this Loan is the final constructive feature by sacrifices still green in the people's memory.

SOLVING WESTERN FUEL PROBLEM.

In one of the most important industrial announcements in the history of Western Canada, Mr. R. A. Ross, chairman of the Lignite Utilization Board, has declared that by August, 1920, the Board hopes to have a $400,000 plant in operation, manufacturing briquettes from the lignite deposits of southeastern Saskatchewan and southwestern Manitoba. It is the intention of the Board to let all the contracts for construction and equipment during the coming winter. When completed the capacity of the plant will be 30,000 tons per year, and Mr. Ross believes that briquettes can be sold to dealers in Winnipeg at approximately $9.40 a ton.

The decision to construct a $400,000 plant is the result of extensive investigations and experiments initiated by the Honorary Council for Scientific and Industrial Research, and later continued by the Lignite Utilization Board, which was appointed jointly by the Dominion Government and the Governments of Saskatchewan and Manitoba to determine the commercial feasibility of utilizing the lignites of the Prairie Provinces as domestic fuel. Mr. Ross is now able to say that "our experiments have now reached the point where we have got a process for carbonizing and briquetting lignite which gives us a commercial product at a commercial price from lignite coal, practically equal in heating value to anthracite coal."

As long ago as June, 1917, a special committee of the Honorary Council for Scientific and Industrial Research reported that the necessary manufacturing processes had been carried out on a super-labratory scale and "their feasibility on an industrial scale remains only to be demonstrated."

"The success of this project," Dr. A. B. Macallum, chairman of the Council, declared, "is to be fraught with results which are to be of more importance than the immediate object of it. It will induce private capital to go into this enterprise, and eventually several plants may be erected which will supply the half a million tons that will be required to replace the anthracite hitherto imported into Manitoba and Saskatchewan from Pennsylvania, thus retaining in the country about five millions of dollars which annually spent abroad for the supply of this fuel. It will blaze the path for the utilization not only of the 37 billions of tons of lignites in Saskatchewan, but also of the vastly great quantity of the better grade of this fuel in Alberta. It will inevitably lead, eventually, to a process of utilization of the vast quantities of the by-products which result, by-products which now are not highly valued, but in the years to come will be the raw materials of great and flourishing industries. Finally it will constitute the first step in the systematic, scientific utilization of the vast stores of energy locked up in the lignites of the two provinces, which are, unlike the other provinces of the Dominion, scantily supplied with water power."

CRISP COMMENT

The U. F. O. carried three seats in the Federal by-elections Monday by large majorities. As they had only three candidates in the field their percentage is rather high.

Scotland will be "dry" next year, says an optimistic prohibition prophet. Hoot mon! What dae ye ken about that? Scotia dry? the home of the best whuskey in all the world, and the people who can carry it without winking!

A policeman soaked to the hide in the pouring rain was noticed marching in from the suburbs one moist day recently. Asked where his slicker was, he said it was worn out, none having been furnished the force for several years. What's the matter with the police committee? How can the policemen be expected to enforce dry laws on wet days in wet suits?

Cheer up! A. U. F. O. government may not be half as bad as some Liberal governments Ontario has had, even if it fails to reach the high record of Conservative administrations which have wisely ruled this province for the past twenty years.—Guelph Herald.

The Kingston Whig is not very optimistic over the success of the present day experiments in making saints of sinners overnight by "thou shalt not" legislation. Says the Whig:

"The member for Peterboro, who wants to prohibit cards, feathers and tobacco, has been asked to add dances and theatres to the list. Doubtless other suggestions will be made. We might just as well wipe out all the sins while we are about it. Meanwhile the Liberty League is going to have its hands decidedly full if it intends to fight all these modern demands. It is said to have a membership of 80,000, and is now applying for a Dominion charter. Why should it stand in the path of progress? Why should it seek to oppose legislation that will make everybody good overnight? Why prevent a man from going to bed a sinner and waking up a saint? If divine laws are disregarded, is there any reason to suppose that those made at Ottawa will be observed? Banish the thought! Banish the Liberty League, too! Never mind the good, old-fashioned home training; away with parental example and control—it's fair too bothersome. Let the State look after the children, while the parents go to the movies. What a beautiful world it is going to be!"

FALL STYLES COME

Fashion Authority Tells of the Advance Guard.

American Dest Suits Excel the French Models in Both Style and Beauty.

While it may seem a little early to speak of fashions to come when all of us are still concerned with what is worn at this moment, the fact that the great month has brought so many buyers back from Europe makes the consideration of fall effects not only timely, but interesting as well, observes a fashion authority.

For the first time in several years many houses have returned to their pre-war custom of sending representatives abroad, and we are told that the Paris shops are so filled with shoppers that one is given a check with a number on it so that one has to wait one's turn to be served.

However beautiful the French dresses and gowns may be, the fact remains that the American coat suit outstrips them in style and beauty also. Perhaps this is because no other women wear coat suits quite so successfully as do American. We need not look abroad, therefore, for cut and design of our winter suits, although we may accept the lovely fabrics gratefully.

It is said that our American makers promise longer skirts and therefore a three-quarter coat to top them. The blouse sleeve is looming up to take place the recent tight shoulders and long straight sleeve. A new collar, saucer shaped, is here, out of which we will lift our chins as we were not able to do with the high stocks around affairs. The saucer collar fits closely around the throat and at the top has a wider piece so made that it stands out and away from the face in soft effect. It is often lined with a shade contrasting well with the color of the coat.

Embroidery is to be used, we hear, and buttons, too, and flying panels to give length. Indeed, some of the models are most interesting, for they float away apparently without rhyme or reason from the top of the coat, but are really stolen to throw around the neck and shoulders to give warmth. Others and these are often are fitted on the underside with pockets of fur for the hands.

Fur promises to be the supreme ornament and is often a huge patch of it. This is placed in the side of the skirt or the coat. Whatever the coat, cape wrap or one-piece dress may otherwise be, be sure the pocket is there somewhere. The vest will probably disappear, as it has been rather overdone and we have tired of it. In its place I fear we will have an influx of Russian blouse and Cossack cost since the manufacturers' first showing of models seems all to present the overhanging waist effect easily obtained in this style of coat. The belt and sash will, doubtless, become a well trend, play as important a part as the pocket.

WHEN TENNIS WAS CRIME.

Henry the Eighth Passed Law Making It Illegal.

Modern folk are accustomed to regard tennis as an innocent enough sport. Likewise bowls and shovegroat, which is still a popular game in the navy, but our ancestors thought even so far as to pass a law against these mild forms of recreation.

In 1541 the "bowyers, fletchers, stringers and arrow-bed-makers of this realme" petitioned Henry VIII. of matrimonial fame, to prohibit "maundre newe and crafty games as shydethrifte, otherwise called shoveboorde, tenaye and bowles, practiced within this realme to the great waste and lett of shootinge and acherie."

It appears that the lads of the village preferred to exercise their cunning at "shydethrifte" once, in the opinion of the bow and arrow makers, they would have been better occupied in shooting at the butts on the village green.

However, King Henry granted the petition, moved, no doubt, by a passage mourning the decay of good archers, "who have not only defended this realme against the cruell malice and danger of their enemyes in tyme paste, but also withe little nombers, have done many notable acte and discomfytures of warre against the infidels." The fans of English fighting spirit, which rings throughout the statute must have appealed to bluff King Hal, and an act of Parliament was duly passed making the "newe and crafty" games illegal, and rendering players liable or liable to a penalty for each offence of 6s. 8d.—a considerable sum in those days.

Presumably the "bowyers and fletchers" went on their way rejoicing, all unaware of the danger which threatened their craft from another quarter. They had not reckoned with a certain Friar Bacon, whose discovery of gunpowder was destined to bring about the "decaye of archerie for ever and all.—Answers.

LUXURY IN EARLY TRAVEL.

"Safety Barges" Instituted for Those Who Feared Hazard of Voyage on Hudson River.

The frequency with which boilers blew up on the early Hudson river boats led to the use of what were known as "safety barges," and these, in their day, were considered the utmost luxury in travel, comparable to the private cars of the magnates of today. The barges were long affairs, main and upper decks and were almost as large as the steamers which towed them. The rabble rode on the steamers, inhaled the smells of the kitchen and the freight hold, endured the noise of the engines, and took the chances of explosions, while on the barges behind the elite traveled in luxurious state. Food was brought from the best kitchen to the barge tables over the connecting bridge between the vessels and was served with great splash under the direction of the barge captain, who was a noble figure in the setting.

The upper deck of the barges were canopied and decked with flowers, with promenades and easy chairs from which to view the scenery. At night the interiors were transformed into sleeping accommodations much the same as a modern Pullman, except that they were more commodious. Not the least attractive feature of these barges, according to a chronicler of their excellence, was "an elegant bar, most sumptuously supplied with all that can be desired by the most fastidious and thirsty."

Recent news dispatches which tell of plans to establish floating cafes on the ocean just outside the three-mile territorial limit when the time comes for dry, indicate that luxurious "floating establishments somewhat similar to these "safety barges" may again come into use.

EDISON'S VOICE IN RECORDS

Inventor of Phonograph, for the First Time, Makes Short Speech Which Will Be Preserved.

Thomas A. Edison, who invented the phonograph 42 years ago, has for the first time consented to have his own voice recorded on a phonographic record. The reproduction, which is on the back of a record containing the national anthem and four other airs, was heard recently for the first time in the Edison laboratory at Orange, N. J.

Mr. Edison celebrated his seventy-second birthday on February 11. The talk, which is Mr. Edison's first comment on any of the war since America entered the fight, follows:

"The boys made good in France. The word 'American' has a new meaning in Europe. Our soldiers have made the Germans respect—not only respect, but we must not forget, and we must not permit disappointing statistics to part played by our gallant allies. Their casualty lists tell the story. Their government we may say of our own achievements, let us remember always that the war could not have been won by the English, French, Belgians and Italians had not fought like bulldogs in the face of overwhelming odds. The great war will live vividly in the minds of Americans for the next 100 years. I hope that we shall do reverence to the memory of our dead boys who fell in France we shall not forget their glorious deeds who wore the uniforms of our allies.

"I believe that the national airs of France, Great Britain, Italy and Belgium should for all time to come be as familiar to us as our own 'Star-Spangled Banner.'"

BRIDAL FLOWERS HERE AGAIN

That Orange Blossoms Are in the Market Is a Sure Harbinger of World Peace.

One interesting sign of the coming of peace has been the reappearance of real orange blossoms at weddings. During the war they were difficult to obtain, owing to the fact that they came as a rule from France. Nearly all the orange flowers which are used at smart marriages in London and Paris are grown in the sheltered valleys of the Alps Maritimes behind the Riviera.

Here there are orchards of orange trees scattered over the sunny slopes, and the local peasantry devote most of their time to growing the beautiful flowers. No attempt is made to get the fruit, seeing that the orange trees are solely cultivated for the sake of the glistening blooms.

A large part of the floral crop finds its way to the perfume factories of Grasse, but the choicest sprays are picked for the London and Paris markets. Orange flowers keep fresh for a considerable time, and they stand the journey to England very well, arriving in perfect condition.—London News.

Oleomargarine to Stay.

Representatives of agricultural constituencies were again in the front when the Government's proposal to permit manufacture and importation of oleomargarine until August 31, 1920, and thereafter until March 1, 1922, was before the House. Manufacture, importation, and sale of margarine has been permitted under an order-in-Council passed under the authority of the War Measures Act. Now that the war is over, it has been proposed to continue the permission by statute for a definite period. Members for rural ridings, including Donald Sutherland, of South Oxford; S. Frank Glass, of Middlesex, and A. B. McCoig, of Kent, objected to the continuation of the right to manufacture, import and sell the butter substitute. They took the ground that to allow production and sale of margarine would be a serious blow to the dairy industry. Dr. J. A. Amyot, M.P., Quebec County, on the other hand, urged the Government to further and foster the development of oleomargarine in Canada under proper supervision for the very purpose of keeping down the price of butter. A vote was necessary before the resolution was adopted, and the bill founded upon it was introduced.

Some War Economies.

There is probably nothing that seems so useless in the eyes of the average person as an Irish potato which has begun to rot, but the department of agriculture is in war-time experiments has discovered that starch can be made from a decayed potato just as well, if not better, than from a good one, and so the surplus stock of the farmer or dealer need no longer be thrown away or wasted.

In like fashion chemists seeking methods to avoid world-wide food shortages have found that sugar can be not only be made from beets, but from sweet potatoes as well. The farmer himself can make good syrup from his sweet potatoes by boiling them until they can be mashed, adding water to thick, mushy liquid. To this ground, malt is added and the result, after properly cooking for about an hour, is a thick syrup, which is strained through a cloth and used for any sort of sweetening.

SCIENTIST TELLS OF TRIUMPH

Professor Claims to Have Perfected System for Underground and Submarine Messages.

Speaking recently of his work for the navy, Prof. James W. Hogue, the inventor of a wireless system for underground and submarine transmission, stated: "Six or seven years ago I began experiments with the transmission of electric impulses by the ground. They were renewed during the war with the sudden bulb, which renders the results demonstrations more sensible. I first established contact with nearby points and then by receiver with perfect distinctness impulses sent from Europe. I placed my antennae in Belgium, from a receiver and pointing by the compass toward the distant station from which I wished to receive. I demonstrated to the navy department that eight operators may receive at once from eight separate wires. My system was installed at the New Orleans, the Great Lakes station, and Belmar, N. Y., and is now used at the principal wireless stations in the United States. I have found the best results with my wires buried six feet below the surface in damp ground. Some of my experiments were conducted in water 25 to 50 feet deep."—Scientific American.

Dolan, the Druggist, for BARGAINS in RUBBER

The Week Beginning Friday is Miller Rubber Week at Dolan's

THE MILLER RUBBER CO., OF AKRON, OHIO, are the largest makers of Druggists' Rubber Goods in America. We have been fortunate in being selected as their local representative and have in stock for your inspection

THE LARGEST SHIPMENT OF RUBBER GOODS EVER BROUGHT INTO BELLEVILLE.

For twenty-seven years Miller made Rubber Goods for surgeons and hospitals only. Then came the insistent demand that they be made for the home also. They enlarged the plant and began supplying the druggist. The superior quality of Miller Surgeons' Grade Rubber Goods was readily recognized by the public, and the demand increased so rapidly that Miller is today the leading Rubber Goods firm on the continent. As an example of the wearing quality of Miller Rubber Goods we may state that the T. Eaton Co. purchased $8,000 worth of Miller Hot Water Bottles and Syringes in 1917 and have had only four pieces returned in bad order. You need no longer claim that you must send to Toronto for the highest quality of Rubber Goods. We have the Best on the market, and for this week offer them at a lower price than quoted in the larger cities.

DAUGHTER OF THE PHILISTINES

By LEONARD MERRICK

CHAPTER X—Continued

He paused for her to comment on his impromptu definition of life, by which he was agreeably conscious he had said something brilliant; but it passed by her unheeded. He reflected that Turquand would either have accorded it approval, or picked it to pieces, and that for it to go unnoticed altogether was hard.

She looked at him tenderly.

"I knew you would say so," she replied. "It doesn't really make much difference to our expenses whether we pay twenty pounds a year or twenty-five, and to the kind of nurse we shall get it makes all the difference on earth. What shall we call him?"

"Him! You're not going to get a man!"

"Baby, you silly! Have you thought of a name? I have."

He was still wishing she had a sense of humor, and occasionally made a witty remark.

"What?" he inquired.

"Yours. I want to call him Humphrey. What do you say to it?"

"What for? It's ugly. You said so the first time you jerked it out. I think we might choose something better than that."

"But it's yours," she persisted. "I want him called by your name—I do, I do!" She held his hand tightly. "If . . . . . if I were ever to lose you, Humphrey, I should like our child to be called by your name. Don't laugh at me; I can't help feeling that. That night when he was born—oh, that night! shall I ever forget it?—and Dr. Roberts looked across me and said, 'Well, you have a little son come to see you, Mrs. Kent,' the first thing I thought was, "We can call him Humphrey." I wanted to say it to you then, but you lay so still, and I couldn't; I was so tired; I thought it instead. When nurse brought him over to me, he cried, or I could see him moving under the blanket in the bassinet, I thought, "There's my other Humphrey"

He kissed her, and sat staring at the fire, his conscience clamorous. He had not realized that he had grown so dear to her, and the discovery mad his own dissatisfaction crueller. He felt a thankless brute, a beast. It seemed to him momentarily that the situation would be much less painful if the disappointment were mutual—if she, too were discontented with the bargain she had made. To listen to her speaking in such a fashion and expect her devotion, knowing how little devotion she inspired in return, stabbed him. He asked himself what he had done that she should love him so fondly. He had not openly neglected her, but secretly he had done it often, and with relief. Had she missed him when he had shut himself in his room, not to write, but to wish he had never met her? His mind awoke him.

The question obtruded itself into his reveries during the following days, but now at least his plea of being busy was always genuine enough and he was writing fiercely. The pile of manuscript to which he added sheet after sheet was hearty and thicker; and then there came a morning when he went to bed at three, and rose at eight, to begin his final chapters, having told the servant he should not go down for luncheon, but that she was to bring a sandwich and a glass of claret into the room. When one o'clock struck, and she entered, tobacco had left him will no appetite and a furred tongue. He drank a thankful cup at her, and remained in the same bent attitude, his pen traversing the paper steadily. He was working with an exultation which rarely seized him, and with which the novelist of fiction is depicted as working all the time. In his aspect he was untidily enough to have served as an admirable model for that personage. He had not shaved for three days and a growth of stubby beard intensified his look of weariness, due to the want of sufficient sleep.

The wind was causing the fire to be more a nuisance than a comfort, and every now and again a gust of smoke shot out of the arrow stove, obscuring the page before him and making him cough and swear. The atmosphere was villainous, but, saving in these moments, he was unconscious of it. He was near the closing lines. His empty pipe was gripped between his teeth and he wanted to refill it, but was averse to take his eyes from the paper while he stretched for his pouch and the matches instinctively he was aware that he should refill it the instant he had written the last words, but now in arrees of uncertainty assailed him, and he could not decide upon them. He stared at the paper without daring to set a sentence down and drew at the empty bowl mechanically, his palate craving for the taste of tobacco while his sight was magnetized by the pen's point horning under his hand. He sat so for a quarter of an hour. Then he wrote with supreme satisfaction what he had thought of first and rejected as impossible. His pen was dropped. He drew a breath of thanksgiving and relief, and lit his pipe. His novel was done.

Unlike the novelist of fiction whom he resembled exteriorly, he did not weep that the characters who had peopled his solitude for the past twelve months and whom he loved, were about to leave him for harsher criticism of the world. He was profoundly glad. He felt exhilaration leap id his jaded veins as he picked up his pen again and added "The End." He felt that he was free of an enormous load, a tremendous responsibility, of which he had acquitted himself well. Every morning, with rare exceptions, for a year he had, so to speak, awakened with this unfinished novel staring him in the face; every night during a year he had gone up the stairs to the bedroom remembering what a lump of writ ing remained to be added to it still. And now it was finished; nor could he do it better. Blessed thought! If he recast it chapter by chapter and phrase by phrase, he could not handle the idea more carefully or strongly than he had handled it in the lolky package that lay in front of him—the story told!

He was anxious to forward it to the publishers, without delay but it appeared had so recently referred to his expectation of reading in the manuscript, that he despatched it to Soho first. 'Send it back quickly,' he begged, and the journalist's answer in returning the parcel reached him on the next evening but one. He showed it to Cynthia delightedly. Turquand wrote very warmly. The manuscript was sent to Messrs. Cousins with a note, requesting them to give it their early consideration; and now Kent was advised constantly by the Walfords if they had written yet and what terms he had obtained. Cynthia had not regained enough strength to care to travel at present and her parents and brother generally spent the evening at No. 61, where, truth to tell, Kent found the interest his wife's parents manifested in the matter rather a nuisance. His father-in-law evidently held that it was derogatory for him to be kept waiting a fortnight for his publishers' offer, and Mrs. Walford made so many foolish inquiries and ridiculous suggestions that he was sometimes in danger of being rude. Caesar alone displayed no curiosity in the matter so frivolous but listened with his superior air, which tried Kent's patience even more. The fat young man's debut had been postponed again. Now he was to appear for certain in the spring, and he explained, in a tone implying that he could, if he might, impart esoteric and extraordinary facts, that the delay had been politic.

"No outsider can have any idea," he said languidly, "what wheels within wheels there are in our world." (He meant the operatic world, into which he was ambitious to squeeze a foot.)

"This last season it would have been madness for a new bass to sing in London; he was doomed before he opened his mouth—doomed!" He looked at the ceiling with a meditative sadness as if dwelling upon curiously amusing circumstances. "Very funny!" he added.

Excepting his master, he did not know a professional singer in England and whenever a benefit concert was to be given, would chase the organizer all over town in lonesome and telegraph him for an appointment "on urgent business" in the hope of prevailing upon him to let him appear at it; but his assurance was so consummate that albeit one was aware he had not yet done anything at all—he almost persuaded one while he talked that he was the pivot round which the musical world revolved. Caesar excepted, Kent had really no grounds for complaint against the Walfords. The others' queries might worry him, but their cordiality was extreme; and they made Cynthia relate Turquand's opinion of the book—for which no pains had been found—again and again. Even the stock-jobber's view that a fortnight's silence was surprising was due to an exaggerated estimate of the author's importance and Mrs. Walford when she refrained from giving him advice, appeared to think him a good deal cleverer now that the manuscript was in Messrs. Cousins' hands than she had done while it was lying on his desk. Indeed, there were moments at this stage when his mother-in-law excited at him with an ardor that reminded him of the early days of his acquaintance with her in Dieppe.

RELIGION AT HOME.

How German Churches View the Peace Treaty.

The Glasgow Herald prints from a special correspondent some interesting information regarding the views of the German churches on the peace treaty.

"What, asks the writer, is the guidance offered by the leaders of the churches to this crisis in the affairs of the nation? We are in no doubt as to its character. In the Kreuz Zeitung recently Dr. Conrad, one of the ex-kaiser's chaplains, wrote a homily on the attitude which religious men should adopt toward the peace which is being "dictated to Germany." He wrote: Possess your souls and do not despair. God in His good time will return our sorrows into joy. In these a German man with the fear of God in his heart who does not realize that this humiliation is but for a time and that before long the drums of new formations of the earth will again strike that time comes Germany will rise supreme from the fire of her trials. It was in 1870-71 that began it; that was the prelude; we are now at the close of the second act. The coming third act will give us our final place, and God will be with us. All I can counsel is this: Be patient. Our hour is coming. Certainly, sign the peace, for this will give us the breathing time we require, and also time for reflection."

In the Kirchen-Anzeiger there is a sermon by Stadt-Pfarrer Brockhaus headed "What Is Now Our Duty?" Then after denouncing "the cruel and incredible terms" of the treaty, goes on: "There is a revenge which is holy and renders all of those who nourish it in their hearts. We cannot sit down under this awful humiliation. But we must wait God's time. We must wait for Him to dictate our course. He who led the German people from weakness to ... He who once blessed our ... to our world mission, is punishing us now for our sins; but He has great work for us yet, and He will see that we yet stand on the necks of our adversaries." All through these sermons dealing with the peace and the present situation generally the German clergy constantly exhort their flocks to be patient, to be steadfast during the days of tribulation. In a perfunctory sort of way they acknowledge that retribution has come upon the people because of their sins and shortcomings, but the sins and shortcomings have nothing to do with guilt of causing the war or with the horrible crimes committed by Germany in the four years of its duration.

CHIROPRACTIC FACTS FOR MEN AND WOMEN WHO DESIRE HEALTH

CHIROPRACTIC is a scientific method of adjusting the cause of disease without the use of drugs or instruments, and is based on a correct knowledge of anatomy. The Chiropractic idea is, that the cause of disease is in the person afflicted, and the adjustment corrects the condition that produces it. The function of every organ in the body is controlled by mental impulses, which are transmitted over nerves. Any impingement, pinching of the nerves) interfering with the transmission of mental impulse results in abnormal function, called disease. This interference is produced by subluxated (displaced) vertebrae (small bones of the spine) pressing upon nerves as they pass out from the spinal cord. The trained Chiropractor is able to locate the point of obstruction or interference, and by means of adjusting the subluxated vertebrae correct the cause and normal condition, or health, is the result.

A CHIROPRACTOR is a person who, after being duly educated in the science of Chiropractic and trained in the proper application of the art, uses his bare hands in contact with the various processes of the vertebrae to effect a peculiar adjusting move to realign the subluxated units and release nerve compression. Such adjustments are practically painless and never do ill effects with the patient.

CHIROPRACTIC IS in harmony with the inherent forces of the body. The human organism is possessed of or endowed with a certain vital force which functionates through impulses received from the brain. It is no disparagement to our system to confess that while we do not know what constitutes the vital force of the body it is a positive fact demonstrated by actual experience upon living subjects, that we are able through Chiropractic adjustments to inhibit or accelerate its action. No other system is so specific for, acting as it does in perfect harmony with natural forces, it is impossible to be productive of anything but good under any circumstances.

CHIROPRACTIC is unlike any other science purporting to relieve the suffering. The Chiropractor does not treat, heal or cure; uses no drugs, surgery, osteopathy, or other therapeutical means or agencies.

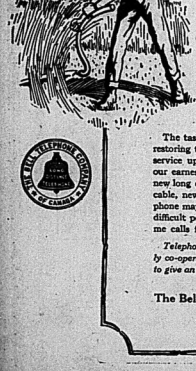
After-war conditions, and the telephone



Keeping Abreast of Progress

THE farmer cannot go back to the scythe or the cradle. He must keep abreast of progress by using binder and tractor for the economical handling of his crop.

So it is with the telephone. It is an important part of the business and social life of the community. We must keep our entire system, local and long distance, in the highest state of efficiency. Old apparatus and old methods must continually give way to new. Extensions must keep abreast of the needs of the business community.

Public services everywhere ran behind during the war. Skilled men and material were scarce. Necessary maintenance and repairs had to wait the return of normal times. Reserves of plant and material were exhausted.

The task of overtaking these postponed repairs, of restoring the margin of reserve plant while keeping service up to the highest standard, is now engaging our earnest efforts. New buildings are being built, new long distance lines, new underground and aerial cable, new switchboards—all in order that the telephone may continue to do its part throughout the difficult period of reconstruction. Our 1919 programme calls for an expenditure of $7,000,000.

Telephone workers everywhere appreciate the kindly co-operation of subscribers in their honest efforts to give an adequate and efficient service.

SKIRTS TO ANKLE

American Ideas Have Won Over Those of Paris.

English Leaders of Fashion Refuse to Wear the Excessively Short Design Sent From France—Newest Sleeves and Shoes.

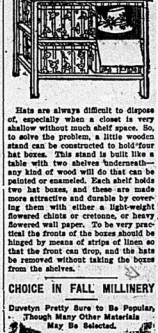
It's the most amusing thing in the world to watch what is happening in the fashion world in London. A few weeks ago word came that in New York women were wearing long tubular skirts, way down to their ankles and as tight as a pipe. At the very same minute in Paris the skirts only ventured a miserable half dozen inches below the knees. What was to be done? London hesitated a week or so. Paris and Lanvin brought over staggering creations that looked as if they were intended for children's fancy dress parties and so skimp and short that no well-developed British female could possibly get inside. So just naturally the English turned to our New York mode and now it's the rarest possible thing to see a dress in Bond street or in the park that is cut above ankle length.

French dressmakers are astonished, indeed they will not acknowledge that American fashion is actually competing with French. They shrug their shoulders and adjust their dresses to suit their patrons over there and pretend that they invented the idea themselves.

But the French have their way in sleeves, for one thing it's no way at all, for there aren't any. On the street, in the house in the evening, you certainly can't tell by the sleeves what sort of a dress you are looking at. The only garment that has sleeves is a negligee or a tea frock, and these have long wings that trail along the floor. It's a startling idea, too, the lack of sleeves, because it's not one woman in a hundred that can boast a dimpled elbow, and the sights of red and unlovely arms that are exposed every day are getting on people's nerves.

Everybody wears brocaded shoes. To match the dress or suit and stockings are usually a very pale shade of the same color, or flesh, and so thin that they look like nothing at all. There is hardly any upper to the latest shoes, which are sandals with a tiny strap and a beaded or jeweled buckle to clasp.

CONVENIENT HAT-STAND



Hats are always difficult to dispose of, especially when a closet is very shallow without much shelf space. So, to solve the problem, a little wooden stand can be constructed to hold four hat boxes. This stand is built like a table with two shelves underneath—any kind of wood will do that can be painted or enameled. Each shelf holds two hat boxes, and these are made more attractive and durable by covering them with either a light-weight flowered chintz or cretonne, or heavy flowered wall paper. To be very practical the fronts of the boxes should be hinged by means of strips of linen so that the front can drop, and the hats be removed without taking the boxes from the shelves.

CHOICE IN FALL MILLINERY

Duvetyn Pretty Sure to Be Popular, Though Many Other Materials May Be Selected.

Duvetyn is one of the biggest factors in the advance fall models that are now being shown in local millinery circles. Manufacturers are unanimous in the belief that it is going to exceed the popularity it enjoyed last year. Beaver strip is also well thought of in some parts of the trade, as there is no material for hats that is more flattering to a woman than beaver. Embroidered effects are being shown for the new season in a large way. Heavy wool, silk floss, chenille and gold thread embroideries are used extensively. Hackle is a big factor, especially the domestic pasted variety of the plumage. Pasted feather breasts are being used in combination with heavy fabrics to good advantage. Flower trims are seen in heavily padded wool and chenille effects. Chenille grapes also are used as trimmings.

Used by the French.

The French designers are sponsors for all sorts of embroidery on midsummer and autumn blouses. Floss, chenille worsted, beads and ribbonzine embroidery all are being used by them.

Feeble Old People

Pick Up Strength Rapidly on Vinol

because it contains the very elements needed to replace weakness with strength, viz: Beef and Cod Liver Peptones, Iron, Manganese Peptonates, Nux Vomica and Hypophosphites. A splendid combination to restore strength, vitality and vigor.

The Wonderful Efficiency of Vinol is proven by these letters

"I am 84 years of age and got into a feeble, weak and nervous condition so I could not sleep. Vinol has not only built up my strength but it has given me a good appetite and I sleep all right now. Without doubt Vinol is the greatest strengthener for old people." New York Lady.

"I am a farmer's wife, 70 years of age, and pneumonia left me in a weak, run-down condition, so I could hardly keep about and do my work. A neighbor brought me Vinol and it has built up my strength so fast that I think it is the best medicine I have ever taken." —From a Virginia Lady.

For all run-down, nervous, anaemic conditions, weak women, overworked men, feeble old people and delicate children, there is no remedy like Vinol.

Your money will be returned if Vinol fails—Leading Druggists.

What are YOU going to do about it?

It really shouldn't be necessary at this stage to educate, argue or persuade the people of Belleville into buying Victory Bonds.

If you haven't any ready money, arrange with your employer or with any bank to buy on the instalment plan.

You will be able to meet the instalments all right, and a few months hence you will be glad you arranged to do so.

For reasons of patriotism, of thanksgiving, and of good business, the people of Belleville are going over the top to achieve their allotted quota and to secure the much-prized Prince of Wales' Honor flag.

We want the good will of every car owner in this town.

We want everyone to say what lots of folks say now—"Willard? That's where you get a square deal and value for every dollar."

We'd rather have your good will than a dollar or two on a repair job.

We'd rather sell you a battery that will give longer and better service than to make a living by repairing poor batteries.

Of course good repair work and batteries cost more, but we believe they make friends and buy good will.

WHY DO WE SLEEP?

There Is Much Yet to Be Known About It.

Some of the most usual things are also the most wonderful, but just because they are familiar it never occurs to us how wonderful they really are.

In all the complex arrangements and inter-workings that go to make up human life, there is, perhaps, none more remarkable than that by which at regular intervals our consciousness is blotted out, the activities of our bodies and minds cease, and sleep possesses us. Yet since that miracle happens in the ordinary course of day of his life, the wonder of it never strikes us. We do not stop to ponder on it and to ask what is it that happens when life is thus almost completely interrupted.

Why do we sleep, and more, why do we wake again?

The most natural phenomena that appear so simple the explanation is hidden from us. The physiologist tells us that sleep is a "symptomatic deviation of neurons." It may be, but we are not much the wiser for that, even if we know both what is a symptom and what happens to it that it is sympathetically dissociated. No, we do not know just what sleep is nor why it happens.

It used to be thought that sleep happened because the circulation of blood through its brain grew so feeble that this, the seat of consciousness, could work no longer and sleep took the place. Many years ago, a dead, a surgeon studying the subject described a failing circulation of the brain through a hole in the skull of a sleeping animal. Yet this is not the effect, not cause. The brain has less blood because it sleeps; it does not sleep because it has less blood.

More recently it has been thought that during the active day we make, by the activity of our muscles, a poison which has the peculiar action of deadening mental action. This gradually accumulates in us till by the time that sleep is due at night, the brain is overpowered. This argument is supported by the familiar

Starting Something.

The household was comparatively quiet when the ten-year-old son looked up from the last page of a recent issue of the News and inquired of both parents sitting near: "What's funny about this here 'Abe Martin?' There's never anything t' eat in a home where th' wife is on an allowance." "The joke, my son," his father replied, "is that instead of spending the allowance for eats, the wife blows it in for clubs, clothes, candy and conventions." "Oh, son," said the mother, "the fact is that the allowance is not large enough to provide the hotel menu, though the men seem to think it is. And that is no joke, either."—Indianapolis News.

Bullet in Brain Twenty Years.

After living for 20 years with a bullet in his brain, Edgar Wilgus, an insurance broker of Trenton, N. J., was killed by a 5-foot fall on the granite steps of a New York hotel. The eminent pranimer, discovering the bullet in the man's brain, thought at first that he had been unaccountably shot, but learned by telephoning to his home town he had carried the bullet in his head.

The Dawn In Belgian Africa.

The time has been when news from Darkest Africa in the Congo region was dark indeed; but the present and future of the tribes that embrace, all told, something like 6,000,000 human beings, scattered over a tropical territory almost as large as Europe, looks full of promise as one reads the report of Mr. Frank, Belgian Minister of the Colonies, covering the period of the war and laying out a program for the future. During the war there has been practically no trouble in the Belgian Congo, probably as a result of the lines adopted by the administration, for any idea of forcing the natives into an uncongenial mold has been abandoned and the country is being governed by adapting methods to local conditions. "Not only must we decentralise our administrative organisation," rung the report, "but we must consimple to study and make the best possible use of native institutions, respecting and developing them in all respects, even if they offend our ideas and moral conceptions, so long as they do not offend against the essential principles of humanity and justice." Economically and industrially, the Congo may reasonably become the granary and prosperous in accordance with those essential fundamentals. One may hope to hear far different and better things from the Congo than one has heard in the past.

Da Vinci Thought of Tank.

Italy has just celebrated the fourth centenary of Leonardo da Vinci's death. His name has often been mentioned during the war and his prophetic genius recalled. It is known that he intended to build airplanes for war purposes, but it is now claimed also that he was the first to think of the tank. In his letters to Il Moro he speaks of armored cars which could shelter the occupants and drive right amongst the enemy troops, slaying and maiming all opposition. It in unfortunate that many of the known of Leonardo's intentions, and of the work in which he proposed to propel his craft. Horses might possibly have been intended, for if a horse could carry less weight than the armored motor, protection in those days was more easily got than now. But it is certainly very singular to read that his cars were to charge ahead while the infantry would follow behind—for this is exactly what happened four hundred years after his death. —Manchester Guardian.

SMYRNA

The Place Is Asia Where the Rugs Come From.

Turks are making vigorous protest against the mandatory intrusted to Greece over Smyrna. Smyrna, often known only to the Western people, as "the place where the rugs come from," though they do not, with Damascus in the citadel is being the oldest city of the world. One of the seven cities of the Christian Church in Asia Minor, it is also among the seven cities that claim Homer as their birthplace. It is the

"hereu wealthy towns contend from Homer dead
Through whose live veins the living Homer begged his bread."

It has passed through all the cycles of the terrace city's history time and time again, at one period having a government which suggests the Five Boroughs, and it has survived earthquakes, plagues and destructive wars.

Its known history runs back to a thousand years B.C. And it may have flourished in the unrecorded ages before that remote time, for all that ethnic history records is that Aeolians preceded the Greeks, who made it the Eastern centre of their early culture. It had declined and all but disappeared when Alexander, after taking Sardis, released it from the yoke of the Lydias and, acting upon a suggestion said to have come to him in a dream, decided to restore it. It, finally, Turkish dominion.

It was under the Lydians that the once proud city was split into a series of disconnected hills, which facilitated its political and military hands, a fact that this clear among Grecian cities cut little figure in the golden era of Hellenic culture.

The new Smyrna, as rebuilt by Alexander, was moved about three miles south of the older site which was to the northeast of the landlocked gulf of the same name, the dwelling between the "muddy green" waters of this gulf and the successive of hills behind it. Smyrna is built "One of the most ancient cities on the globe, it has no appearance of antiquity; containing all nationalities, it has no nationality; it is an Asiatic city with a European face, it produces nothing, it exchanges and obtains."

Among its heaviest exports, before the world war, when nearly 2,000 ships visited there yearly, were figs, licorice, gall raisins, and carpets. The rugs known by Smyrna's name might be cited as a contention that Warner's last contention, for they came from the far interior districts. Smyrna is scarcely more than two miles southwest of Constantinople in a direct line, though either a land or water journey requires a much longer and a devious route.

He Dictated the Tripod.

Francisco Pancho Villa yourself a shade odd to have been about the hottest and toughest place the Canadian Corps was ever in. It was a very short intense and sustained shell-fire with which the enemy greeted the troops he had to live for twenty-four hours in a way never to be forgotten by the soldiers.

It was during the Third Division's second trip into Passchendaele that this incident happened. Bill had just come out of the line about a week and come out to the company as a replacement to replace the casualties we had suffered the first trip on this front, and I suppose I was in the account of the large number of casualties that Bill, although a new man, was detailed to carry a Vickers machine gun tripod into the line. Just before we left To have a little first trip in the line in a place like Passchendaele was bad enough, but in addition to that to have to carry in the heavy tripod, along those duckboards and miles of duckboards, with mudholes alongside them deep enough to swallow a horse, and to carry it on a mule, was not by any means a joke.

Poor Bill, who had been told all the usual yarns in Blighty about how the fellows in France used to throw away anything they didn't need the time as they could easily find more later on when they did want it, after a spell in the front line, and a half of the duckwalk, and Bill, in a fit of disgust with life, he, that without saying a Word to anyone he calmly pitched the tripod off his shoulders and dumped it in a shell-hole.

The N.C.O. in charge of the crew didn't notice this and the crew went steadily on their way to the front position, which was about four miles away. When they got there and started to set up the gun, there was no tripod to mount it on, and Bill's surprise and disgust when he was told to go back and bring up the tripod he had ditched was great. Bill enjoys the joke now just as much as his comrades did then, but the shock he received when he realized that he had to walk those four miles back, and then up to the position again with the tripod, must have made him feel like murdering some one.

GET THE TAR ON FIRE.

Result Was Greatest Shock to London Known for Centuries.

There is a saying in use about setting the Thames on fire," which anyone does anything exceptional, Spare Moments. This actually happened on June 22, 1764, when one of the most disastrous fires in the world's history broke out in Tooley street, near London Bridge, on that (Saturday) evening. A whole street of wharves and warehouses stocked with valuable merchandise was entirely burnt out.

The fire raged for a month and the damage was assessed at many millions of pounds, thousands of chests of tea, barrels of tallow, oil and saltpetre being destroyed. The flames set fire to everything as the falling was thrown timbers over into the river with repeated crashes.

By midnight the scene as witnessed from London Bridge was one of the grandest and most terrible since the Great Fire of 1666, which, curiously enough, started within a stone's throw of the present. Streams of red-hot tallow poured down the river, and an army of lighters unloaded it into barrows, raced off with it and sold it by the pitch load. Scores of large, well-stocked buildings were destroyed with their contents, houses were pulled into ruins and burnt, and firms ruined.

A fortnight later the fire broke out again, and burned as vigorously as before for four days. Thousands before the flames died down again. Hundreds of engines poured on the water failed to extinguish the conflagration. Thousands of men lost their employment and others who were brave enough towenter the blazing warehouses were never found again.

The fire was the biggest loss to insurance companies they had ever known, and the greatest shock to London fowcenturies. It took years to rebuild the street, and the memory of the fire still lives.

ENGINE DRIVERS.

Men Who Have Travelled Some Millions of Miles.

The city man who journeys thirty miles a day to and from his office would probably be astonished to learn that a single year's travelling would take him as far as Calcutta, and that every three years he covers a distance greater than that around the earth at the equator, says London Answers.

And yet he is a "sixty-at-home" compared with hundreds of men who daily drive and give a part in their performances. Many an engine driver and guard has a mileage running into seven figures. When Benjamin Jeffery drew down for the last time from his footplate on the London and Birkenhead express, he had travelled what he had travelled 4,000,000 miles, having reeled off his "world record" at the rate of approximately three a year for fifty-four years. Another veteran driver on the L. & N.W. Railway, Thomas Bech, has a completed record of 2,000,000 miles when he retired.

When that fine old skipper, Captain Grossmeet, turned his back on the sea a few years ago, he had crossed the equator 120 times and the Cape of Good Hope 25 times. He had made 92 voyages to Australia, Australasia and had left behind him 2,000,000 miles of sea-roaming.

But the most remarkable achievement was eclipsed by H. Stevens, a railway man in Northumberland. There, whose record of Atlantic crossings amounts to 4,000,000 miles.

Compared with such astounding feats of endurance the above records seem insignificant. But there are several men living to-day whose tramplngs has covered hundreds of thousands of miles. Among them, Mr. Hawkins, a letter carrier, walked 270,000 miles in thirty-two years over Yorkshire roads, and Richard Williams, in six years more, placed the enormous total of 120,000 miles to his record as a Shropshire postman.

Your dollar may be the last straw that sweeps the Victory Loan over the top. Would you take the chance of making it a failure?

The Webs of Spiders.

"As fine as a spider's web" is rather a misleading comparison, as all spiders' webs are not alike; nor are all the threads of which they are made. These may be dry or sticky, fine and regular, or coarse and rough, according to the will of the spider, and the use he wishes to make of it.

One kind of web is that seen on the grass on dewy mornings. This is merely a level floor on which the spider runs and catches flies. The thread is not sticky, and the web may last, undisturbed, a whole season. Attached to it is a tube of web, in which the spider hides.

Another web is in large meshes, out of indefinite shape. Insects get entangled in it, but are not held and sold by any glutinous nature in the thread.

Then there are some webs, in which the spider runs about to catch the insects which get entangled. In addition, there is the familiar geometrical pattern. In making these the insect first places the radiating lines in position. On these he weaves the circles of sticky thread, which, however, never reach right to the centre. These are the webs which catch insects by their stickiness.

There are, in addition, many varieties of spiders which build no web at all, but capture prey by running after it.—The Web.

The Nujol Treatment as Sickness Prevention

Science, with anti-toxins, serums, and modern sanitation, has done much to prevent dangerous disease; but the disease so checked are comparatively few. On the other hand, 90% of all diseases have one common origin—constipation.

The dangers of constipation are so far-reaching, because the blood receives poisons from an infected mass unfit, and carries them directly to every organ of the body; and because constipation itself keeps the system in a run-down condition so that any infectious germs from sickness readily gain foothold.

Keep clear of constipation and you guard against serious disease. Nujol will remove constipation and prevent its return.

The action of Nujol is entirely different from that of any other constipation remedy. It is not a drug. Nujol softens the food waste and encourages the intestinal muscles to act naturally.

Fame of the Racehorse, Like That of Mankind, Often Ends in Tragedy

THEN says that Wood-Pointer, who won the St. Leger a dozen years ago, is to-day pulling a barge on a Yorkshire canal, recalls the fate of many another famous racehorse whose career has ended in tragedy or eclipse, says ANON.

St. Claude, winner of the Grand Steeplechase at Auteuil in 1890, ended his days at the Pasteur stables, where he was used for the production of serum; and George Frederick, after winning the Derby, proved a hopeless failure at the stud, lost his sight, and spent his closing years on a Canadian farm.

Silvio, winner of the "Blue Riband" in 1877, had the misfortune to break a leg in his sixteenth year, and a merciful bullet put him out of his misery; and Klarikoff, for whom Lord Vincent paid £5,000, in the conviction that he would win the Derby, was returning to his training quarters at Malton when a spark from the engine set fire to his box, and he was burned to death.

Blue Gown, hero of the 1868 Derby, after changing hands for £4,000, was sold for £4,000 to an American owner, and was started on his voyage across the Atlantic. But he never reached the other side, for he died in mid-ocean—a fate which also overtook Kingcraft, winner of the Derby two years later.

Mimery, for a half-share in whom Sir Frederick Johnstone paid £4,000, broke down so badly in a race at Newmarket that he had to be destroyed; and the great Donovan, after winning the enormous sum of £55,-153 in stakes for the Duke of Portland, injured himself so seriously by dashing into a tree while running loose in his paddock that Mr. H. Moore ordered his destruction.

Ambush II., who won the Grand National for the Prince of Wales in 1900, dropped dead after galloping exercise at the Curragh; and Victor Wild, after a career of unexampled popularity, was attacked by paralysis, which compelled his owner to put an end to his sufferings.

But while some race horses thus reach the pinnacle of equine fame, only to end in tragedy and disgrace, there are many others who rise from obscurity to brilliant careers, and close their days with an honourable and honored old age.

Godolphin, ancestor of the famous Eclipse, spent his early years between the shafts of a Paris waggcart; and Flying Childers, the finest horse of his century in the opinion of many, was rescued to fame from the shafts of a country mail-cart, in which he had been doing useful, if obscure, work for years.

Chandler, hero of the Grand National of 1843, was bought from the stable of a small farmer, who was glad to get rid of the "ugly brute" for a few pounds; and Salamander, winner in 1846, was discovered "in a wretched condition in an Irish hovel."

Deadlock, dam of the famous Isinglass, was taken by Capt. Machell from the shafts of a farmer's gig, in exchange for a cart-colt; and Throsilis, who defeated Ladas so sensationally in the St. Leger, was born with a thick film over his eyes; and, after being refused as a free gift by a friend of his owner, Lord Ardleton, was ordered to be shot, a sentence which happily was not carried out.

Teddington, who was destined to win the Derby, was picked up as a three months' foal in a village blacksmith's stable; and Queen of the Roses, before coming into the hands of the Duke of Beaufort, was exchanged in her early years—once for a bag of corn, and again for a rick of hay.

Salamander, who put £30,000 in Mr. Studd's pocket by winning the Grand National, was hawked about to one country fair after another, until at last a purchaser was willing to risk £35 on him; and Sea Witch, the Widow, who romped away with the Cambridgeshire, and won £40,000 in bets for her owner, Mr. Leigh, was so little thought of by her first owner that he made a present of her to his bailiff, who was delighted when he succeeded in exchanging her for a £10-note.

He Obeyed His Wife.

An amusing story is told by a woman who was at Bournemouth on the occasion of the recent visit of the King and Queen, says the "Central Mail and Empire. It happened when Cadbury was showing them round his model village. Mr. Cadbury is not young, and the day was not a very warm one. "Put you hat on, Mr. Cadbury," said the queen, considerate as usual. "I will not, ma'am," said the manufacturer, respectfully, but firmly. Then the queen turned to the king with "Will you please command Mr. Cadbury to put on his hat?" The king at once directed Mr. Cadbury to be covered, adding: "It is a royal command." Still he would not put on his hat. With true feminine resourcefulness then tackled Mrs. Cadbury. "Your husband will not obey a royal command to put on his hat," she said. "Will you tell him to?" Mrs. Cadbury did so, frowned, said Mrs. Cadbury, and on the had went.

A Gentleman's Game.

Two golf fiends—an Englishman and a Scot—were playing a round together. After the first hole the Englishman said: "How many did you take?" "Eight," replied the Scot. "Eight!" said the Scot smiling knowingly: "Na, na, ma man," said he, "it's ma turn the nax frae."

It is hard for some men to say just what they mean, but harder for others to mean what they say.

Worry is the undesirable thought a fellow can't help thinking.

One of the Last of Old-time "Reds."

Tom-o-Wah-Teet, who remembered the first coming of the white man to the Klickitat valley, Washington state, has gone to the happy hunting grounds at the age of at least one hundred and ten. He was known and liked by everyone in the region, and would tell vividly of the events of days when white people invaded the territory of the Yakimas and Klickatats. He was present at the council of Walla Walla plains in 1855, and was a warrior under Kamiakin in the Yakima Indian war that followed. He took part in the block house battle and massacre of white settlers at the Cascades, where Lieut. Philip H. Sheridan was in command of the troops sent from Fort Vancouver to defend the garrison. After the revolt was crushed Tom-o-Wah-Teet was always friendly to the whites, and his many services have been repaid, for since he became nearly blind about five years ago and could no longer support himself and his aged squaw by working on farms, those he once aided have looked after his wants.

Some Desert Reptiles.

Quaint and curious are the ways of some reptiles of the desert, as revealed by the famous naturalist, Mr. C. L. Camp, who has been studying them in the Colorado Desert.

He tells of some reptiles—the burrowing snake somora, the gridiron-tailed lizard, the oscillated sandlizard, and the desert "horned toad"—which actually swim into the loose sand by the strong lateral movements of their heads. The gridiron-tailed lizard is very swift and agile, and when chased, will race over the sand at fifteen miles an hour.

Most of the desert reptiles of the Colofado Desert are colored like their surroundings and are difficult to detect. Others can change their colors to suit their surroundings, while not a few of the desert lizards are able to part with their tails very rapidly when they are seized.

There is humor in the ways of desert lizrtiolen. When one meets another — unless both are males, when a fight invariably takes place — each nods its head rapidly up and down as though in salutation, and sometimes noses are touched as they pass. —Tit-Bits.

Makes Ironing Easy

CARRYING six-pound irons back and forth from a hot stove for hours is something no sensible woman should put up with. Why not banish this by getting

The New Canadian Beauty
Electric Iron

You simply turn on the current and the drudgery is gone. And this iron takes hours out of ironing time.
You don't even have to lift the Canadian Beauty Iron on to a rest-stand. When not in use, just tip the iron up on the handy attached back-stand. It will not fall.
And it does its work to perfection. Its highly nickelled ironing surface glides over the heaviest linen with ease. As the point of the iron strikes the cold, damp material first, the tip of the Canadian Beauty is extra hot.
Remember this, too—the handle is really cool.

Lord Charles Beresford

Was an Energetic Fighter For His Naval Proposals

BARON BERESFORD, better known as Lord Charles Beresford, was a doughty fighter in the navy and a doughty fighter for the navy. In command of the Condor he showed himself ready to take chances, and in command of the Channel squadron, the Channel Fleet and the Mediterranean Squadron he was an untiring worker for naval efficiency. In the House of Commons, as well as later in the House of Lords, he gladly contended on all occasions that presented themselves for what he deemed the welfare of the navy. And with his pen he was as ready as with his tongue to promote that cause. In 1912 he published his "Great Betrayal," which was a plain-spoken work, but less sensational in its contents than in its title, the most explosive matter in it having previously appeared as a letter to the London Times. Its influence was less than might have been expected from a man of his reputation as a naval authority.

Before this book appeared Lord Fisher, the First Sea Lord, had retired. Of his policy Lord Charles Beresford was an unsparing critic. Lord Charles was opposed to the keeping of the navy concentrated in the North Sea, leaving the stations in other parts of the Empire abandoned and open to attack by any power that should suddenly become an enemy. The event has proved that Lord Fisher was right. Had not the greater part of Britain's navy strength been collected in the North Sea and had not that navy been mobilized ready for action when war was declared, the German navy might have done some mischief at the outset. Fortunately Prince Louis of Battenberg, who was then First Sea Lord, wisely refrained from dispersing the navy to its several bases after the naval manoeuvres for which the ships had been assembled. Lord Charles Beresford had also his own ideas about the dreadnoughts. His view was that mobility counted for more than fortress-like strength afloat. He maintained that the great essential was the keeping of the sea routes open by means of fast cruisers armed with long-range guns.

Another British admiral who had sharply criticized an order of Beresford's in the manoeuvres, so much so indeed as to lead to talk of a breach of friendly relations between the two men, was Sir Percy Scott. Sir Percy was also a doubter as to the value of the dreadnoughts. A few months before the war he wrote a letter to the London Times in which he said in effect that the dreadnoughts were rendered obsolete by the development of the submarine. When the war began, Lord Fisher was recalled to office as First Sea Lord. As the man who had carried out the scheme for concentrating the navy where the danger seemed greatest, and as the strong advocate of great battleships, his selection by Mr. Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, seemed to be natural. Admiral Fisher was largely the author and promoter of the policies of the Government then in office.

In office Lord Fisher was not given to polemics, though he himself was the target for unsparing attacks, especially on the part of Lord Charles Beresford in the Commons, where Mr. Winston Churchill often winced under the genial-mannered but none the less blistering criticism from the same quarter. But just when Lord Beresford's earthly career closes Lord Fisher begins to fling about him as a critic of the navy, half of which he believes to be now ripe for scrapping. Ships quickly become old in these times of rapid advance in scientific construction and armament. Readers of Lord Fisher's remarks on the subject and of his survey of his own career as a seaman cannot but be struck with his leaning to a Billy Sunday way of expressing himself. He seems to have as much delight in iconoclastic criticism as had Lord Beresford himself. Personal prowess is a quality for which a family Lord Beresford himself but his family as a whole is distinguished. But bravery in the British navy is common to all. Lord Charles had the bent for dash and heroic action. He was considerate of the men under him. Though a thorough disciplinarian he was not so much of a martinet as some other famous seamen.

Victory Loan 1919 Is Bridge Between War and Peace.

Agricultural and Industrial Prosperity of Canada Depends on Success of the Loan.

Why is it necessary to have another Victory Loan? Have you heard this query? Or have you asked it?

The Victory Loan of this year stands out as the bridge between war and peace. The war is over. Our boys won that. The reconstruction period is dawning and we at home must win that.

Much of the money that Canada is asking for will be needed to clean up the war debt. The expenses of demobilization were heavy, and there is still much of it unpaid. Now that our men are back, let it not be said that we repudiated the debt for helping them back.

The sick and wounded soldiers still in hospitals are expecting that Canada will care for them and their dependents until they have been returned to health and strength. The hospital service must be maintained at full strength as long as there are returned men needing attention.

Many men through disability are unable to return to their pre-war occupations. The Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment is doing a fine work in training returned soldiers in trades and professions that they can earn a living at, and in following up the training by seeing that they obtain remunerative employment. The maintaining of this branch of reconstructive service calls for much funds, and the Victory Loan will be used to pay for it as well as the other purposes.

Under the Soldiers' Land Settlement Act, enough money is lent to returned soldiers to enable them to buy and stock a farm. This money will be repaid at a low rate of interest. The soldier is thus given a chance to reinstate himself in civil life, and production is given a boost. Of the total amount of the forthcoming loan, $24,000,000 has been apportioned to finance these soldier farmers.

Pensions to the disabled and dependents of our glorious dead, as well as the authorized gratuities will be other items on the expense sheet. These are some of the obligations owing to the returned soldier who is now in health.

The maintaining of Canada's prosperity is an important reason why the Victory Loan should be a smashing success. The money is needed to finance the credits to overseas countries so that they may continue their trade relations with us. If Canada cannot give these credits other countries will, and then Canada will lose all the fine overseas trade that has been the mainstay of our agricultural and industrial life for long.

As an investment Victory Bonds are eminent. Paying 5½ per cent., selling above par on the open market, and guaranteed by the Dominion—what more could you have for hesitating? The Victory Loan 1919 ought to be oversubscribed, and all right-thinking citizens will do their utmost to see that such a result is obtained.

TO CARE FOR WOUNDED

Money From Victory Loan Will Be Used to Re-establish Soldiers.

Our soldiers in France faced perils other than those of shell and gas and machine-guns. There was the peril of tuberculosis. Up-to August last 2,909 soldiers suffering from this disease had been returned to Canada. These were placed in sanitoriums under the direction of the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, and they are now on the departments of that branch that must be maintained at all costs under the head of capital war outlay.

All of these men and some 20,000 others, disabled or ill, will be looked after with money raised through the Victory Loan 1919. It is the sacred duty of Canadians that the money is forthcoming.

Credits Must Be Established for Sale of Surplus Products.

Success of Victory Loan 1919 Will Insure Steady Markets for Farmers.

It takes some six bushels of wheat to feed the average person in Canada annually. Roughly, therefore, the eight million people here consume about 50,000,000 bushels each year. But even in a poor year the crop is some five times that amount, and the surplus must be sold if the farmers are to get a return for their time and labor. But the sale of the crop must be financed. Great Britain, which provides our greatest market, has not the ready cash; and so Canadians must find means of raising the money. Hence the Victory Loan 1919, in view of the fact that the prosperity of the Dominion is pledged to a considerable extent upon the sale of her surplus grain is necessity of the money being forthcoming is patent.

Largest In Many Years.

Tobacco Crop Is the Largest In Many Years.

The Ontario tobacco crop has been harvested without damage by frosts. This is the largest and the best crop that has been grown in Ontario since the writer began the annual statistical crop report. In 1911 the production was larger, if tradition is correct, but we have no figures covering that year.

The Tobacco Division began the work of securing the exact acreage devoted to tobacco each year in 1918, and issuing an annual report each fall since that time.

These reports are secured by having a grower in each school section in the tobacco districts of Ontario report the acreage devoted to tobacco in his school section, and also the yield per acre. Township reporters give the same information for the township in which they reside throughout the tobacco-producing area. All figures thus obtained are checked by the tobacco inspector, who, late in the summer and early fall visits every school section, and practically every farm in checking up all reports and estimates.

Despite the remarkable fall for harvesting and curing, too many growers made the mistake of leaving their harvested plants in small piles in the fields for several days, and in many cases rains came and sand and mud covered the leaves. This damaged the quality of the cured article very materially. This is a very poor method of handling, and such tobacco cannot be expected to command the price that the carefully handled article does. Tobacco should never be rained on after it has been cut and thoroughly wilted. Placing in small piles for two or three days starts the yellowing and curing process, but temporary scaffolds in which it is held would be better and leave the plants free of dirt and mud in case rains came before the tobacco could possibly be housed.

The following figures give the acreage and estimated production of the tobacco crop for this year—1919:

Kind Tob.	Acres.	Pounds.
Essex, flue-cured .	1,450	1,380,580
Essex, Burley	3,010	3,612,200
Essex, Havana and seed and dark types	800	942,000
Kent, Burley.	700	952,000
Kent, Burley	2,700	3,210,500
Kent, Zimmer, Snuff, etc.	265	291,500
Welland, Burley ..	8	9,000
Elgin, Burley	1,162	1,381,200
P. Edward, Burley	24	25,000
Lincoln, Connecticut Havana	35	36,300
Brant, Burley....	12	16,500
Norfolk, Burley ..	60	83,000
Total for all types of tobacco ...	9,226	10,709,400

It can be seen that the total acreage for all varieties is all of the tobacco-growing districts of Ontario amounts to 9,226 acres, which, placing the estimate exactly where experience and the crop indicates, will be 10,709,400 pounds. The flue-cured tobacco acreage shows only a slight increase over 1918, the same is true for the Snuff, Havana, Zimmer, Connecticut all types other than the White Burley. The White Burley shows between sixty and eighty per cent. increase over 1911.

The following tabes give the 1918 acreage and production for Ontario:

Kind Tob.	Ac'go.	Produc.
Essex, Flue-cured.	1,256	1,020,000
Essex, Burley	1,176	1,411,200
Essex, Zimmer, Havana, etc.	688	721,400
Peice Is. Burley.	550	605,000
Kent, Burley	1,377	1,756,000
Kent, Zimmer, Snuff, etc.	200	255,000
Welland, Burley ..	11	12,000
Elgin, Burley	12	15,000
Brant, Burley	20	22,000
Lincoln, Connecticut Havana	35	28,000
Total	5,325	7,451,600

Market Outlook—The market outlook was never brighter. The fact that flue-cured tobacco is selling in the Southern States at higher figures than for this period last year, though the crop is considerably larger, indicated in a measure a shortage of tobacco stocks. This year's crop will be a few million pounds short of our home requirements, high prices prevailing in the Southern States and the adverse exchange on Canadian money in American markets all go to increase the demand for our 1919 crop of tobacco.—H. Fraser, tobacco inspector.

Canadian Fair In London.

The organization of a Canadian Fair in London next year is the object of a visit to Canada by H. Greville Montgomery. The British Industries Fair is to be held at London in 1920, and the Canadians are invited to exhibit, but very few have responded. It is thought, however, that if Canada could compete at Lyons Fair the Dominion could have an exhibition of its own in the centre of the British Empire at a time when Canadian manufacturers are so keen to embark in the world export trade.

Mr. Montgomery is a well-known public man, former Liberal M.P. for Bridgewater, and an editor and newspaper proprietor. He revived the Building Trades Exhibition at the Royal Agricultural Hall in 1895, said to be the largest series of trade exhibitions in the world.

How Much One Eats.

It is not easy to estimate the amount of food consumed by each person in a year, but one dietetic expert who kept a record of his meals during twelve months declares that he ate 180 loaves of bread, 180 pounds of meat, drank sixty-one gallons of milk, and ate no fewer than 300 eggs.

It is promised that Helen Keller, Ben Jameson, blind and deaf, and Miss Sullivan, her teacher, will visit Belleville next week.

Business was quiet on the Toronto Stock Exchange, the majority of active securities showing lower prices, while the Montreal Exchange was closed in the afternoon for the Prince of Wales' visit.

MILITARY GENIUS

TRIBUTE IS PAID TO SIR HENRY WILSON.

Premier David Lloyd George Tells How the Former Chief of the Imperial General Staff Planned the Great German Campaign of 1918—He Was Also Instrumental In Carrying Through Vital War Arrangements.

But little is known by the general public of the great services performed in the war by Sir Henry Wilson, Chief of the Imperial General Staff, recently made a field marshal, and therefore on this account the tribute paid to him by the British Prime Minister on the occasion of a dinner in his honor a short time ago will be interesting. Mr. Lloyd George said:—

"We meet to-night to do honor to a great soldier. He rendered essential service to his country at the most critical moment in its great storm, and rendered greater service to his country than is generally known, for among his defects is one of excessive modesty. The first time I ever met Sir Henry Wilson was, I think, in 1911, at the Committee of Imperial Defence. Owing to the arrogance and the arbitrary action of the German Government the peace of Europe was being menaced and the Committee of Imperial Defence was suddenly summoned to consider the situation. Under the direction of Lord Haldane he made arrangement with Marshal Foch (then Gen. Foch) for the Expeditionary Force that the Government decided to send in 1914. Those arrangements came into operation as the result of the work done by Sir Henry Wilson, and they came into operation in a way which was very characteristic of him. There was no noise, there was no fuss, there was no advertisement about it, there was no hitch. No one knew that it was done until it had been done, and no one knew that it had been done by him. It was sent with expedition, it was sent with promptitude, and was the most perfect piece of machinery I have seen at work in the course of the war and it was his task.

"I will give you the second service, a service of no mean order, that he rendered, and that those of us who have been working behind know the value of even more than the general public—because it was one of the things that you did not wish to bring to the notice of the general public—and that was the work he did in smoothing difficulties between allies.

"When you come to the different races, different nationalities, fundamental differences of temperament combined, it is exceedingly difficult to get combined action, to remove suspicions which are always lurking about, and which you always get people prepared to foster. All were unable to marshal the whole of our overwhelming forces and effort to concentrate them at one point because we were dealing with one great Russian and army and because we had four or five different nationalities and nations to deal with. It was one of the essential difficulties, and no man did more to overcome those difficulties, to weld it into one force, to promote good feeling by his tactics, by his adroitness, by his good temper, his good humor—no man did more than Sir Henry Wilson.

"Now I come to the third great service—the part he took in coordinating the strategy of the Allies and getting something like unity of command. He had a great plan in that. That started up at the great Council of Versailles for the coordination of the strategy of the Allies was due very largely to his inspiration. He was put in charge of the British section there. He set about the task with a good deal of his characteristic ingenuity. He split up the sections there into a British section and a German section. The German section was to devise all sorts of diabolical schemes for the destruction of the Allies; the British section was to do its best to counter all these machinations. By that means there was an attempt to protect yourself into the mind of the enemy and find out what he was likely to do next. I gave you an inadequate picture of Sir Henry Wilson's account of the Expeditionary Force in the Asadir days. I can give you another picture. It was in January, 1918, when he unrolled the map—I think Lord Milner was there —in the Hall at Versailles, a map of the great battlefield on the Western front, and he then explained the conclusion he had come to with the aid of very able assistants whom he had there with him, and the view he took of the probable German strategy in 1918. He played what he called a war game, and he showed us how in his judgment the Germans for the first time were going to develop an absolutely new plan of attack. In his judgment they were going to concentrate 100 divisions opposite the British front. They were going to put the whole of their strength into breaking our line on a very wide front in the Cambrai district to the south, in order to sever the French and the British armies. That was his view in January, 1918. Well, it was only too true. There is no greater testimony to the sagacity and to the foresight of the guest of the evening than the fact that he foresaw what would happen upon that occasion. It is one of the most remarkable predictions in the history of military strategy."

Odor.

No substance that refuses to dissolve in water has an odor. It is the substances itself breaking into particles in the air, as in the case of light and sound. The danger of thing is the more powerful the odor it gives off. A pleasant proof of this fact can be had by walking in a garden after rain. It is the vapor of a liquid that smells and not the liquid in the mass itself.

G. T. R. Conductor Edward Armstrong, Bridgeburg, died of pneumonia. Following the amputation of a leg on account of being accidentally shot in the knee by a small boy.

Modest Hero.

My heroic action was this: We were lying close up to their defenses, and for four days had not been able to climb out; we lay like reptiles. There was not a dry spot; one could not get a night and sound. The danger of thing is the more powerful the odor it gives off. A pleasant proof of this fact can be had by walking in a garden after rain. It is the vapor of a liquid that smells and not the liquid in the mass itself.

Admired Roosevelt.

Archibald Tipper, a trapper, whose life has been spent in the sparsely-settled regions of Northern Canada, was among the three thousand or more persons who went to Young's Memorial Cemetery, Oyster Bay, to place flowers beside the grave of Theodore Roosevelt.

"This," Tipper said, "is a tribute to a great man. I am a trapper from the lowly trappers of Northern Canada. They loved him very much."

First of the Kind.

The airplane race from the Canadian National Exhibition to New York and return, featuring the progress of the big Pale in August was the first international event of its kind ever attempted. The idea behind the contest was to demonstrate the commercial feasibility of aerial transportation between Toronto, New York and intermediate points.

Drury Confers With Hearst Gov't Ready To Resign

HEARST GOVERNMENT READY TO STEP OUT AS SOON AS DRURY GOVERNMENT IS READY TO STEP IN—NO JOCKEYING TO RETAIN POWER.

TORONTO, Oct. 31.—Sir William Hearst is expected to place the resignations of himself and the members of his Cabinet in the hands of his Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, Sir John Hendrie, either today or on Saturday.

A meeting of the Cabinet was held yesterday afternoon, when the chief subject of discussion was the date when the Ministers should tender their resignations, in view of the action of the United Farmers and Independent Labor party in choosing as leader Mr. E. C. Drury.

The position taken by the Ministers, it is learned, was that they should get out of office as soon as possible, and that there should be no "jockeying," as one Minister put it. The opinion also prevailed that, while they were willing to retire at once, it would be unwise for them to hasten handing in their resignations if Mr. Drury was not yet prepared to undertake the formation of a Government.

DRURY IN CONFERENCE WITH PREMIER HEARST.

Shortly after the Council meeting adjourned Mr. Drury arrived at the Parliament Buildings, and immediately went into conference with Sir William Hearst. This meeting lasted for between twenty and thirty minutes. Mr. Drury subsequently left on the five o'clock train for his home at Crown Hill, stating that he would return to the city on Monday.

"Mr. Drury came up and we had a chat," said Sir William later in reference to the U.F.O.-Labor leader's visit, "and we came to an understanding with regard to the course that will be pursued." He would make no announcement as to when he would tender the resignation of the Government to the Lieutenant-Governor, but it was learned in official circles that Sir William would hand in his resignation either today or Saturday.

Why Gratuity Could Not Be Granted

OTTAWA, Oct. 31.—In declining to accede to the gratuity proposals of John Harry Flynn and in giving a negative answer to the request of the Great War Veterans' Association for money grants to ex-members of the forces, based upon length and place of service, the special committee of Parliament which dealt with the matter in its report says:

"Parliament freely and unanimously made provisions for the payment of gratuities to every returned man to provide him over from three to six months after his return. It is now ascertained that the total cost of those gratuities will approximate $153,000,000, which, at per cent, involves an annual interest charge of $6,750,000. "No other nation," continues the report, "has treated the returned soldiers so generously in this respect."

The report deals with money advanced for land settlement, the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment and procedure.

"Summing up the whole situation, your committee are convinced that as regards the problem of re-establishment generally, the Canadian people and their representatives in Parliament as well as the Government have always shown an earnest desire to meet any real need that has arisen or may exist. Parliament heretofore has not been parsimonious in voting money whenever and wherever the expenditures were shown to be necessary.

"Frequently, however, the opinion, was expressed in Parliament that the greatest care should be taken to avoid any action that would tend to deprive the soldier from his self-reliance and self-respect. It was thought to be against the best interests of the soldiers themselves that they should rely unduly upon the State in the period following discharge. Your committee concur in these views. After hearing all the evidence they agree that the best policy toward the soldier is to surround him with conditions that will tend to strengthen his self-confidence and self-reliance."

DAY OF 'BACK YARD' AIRPLANE HAS ARRIVED IT IS ANNOUNCED

Dayton, O., Oct. 31.—Announcement from McCook Aviation Field, Wednesday that successful tests have been made with a reversible airplane propeller means, according to officials, that the day of the "back yard" airplane is here. With the new propeller airplanes can land and be brought to a stop within 50 feet, by actual test, officials said. The new device will also increase the climbing speed of an airplane 40 per cent., and permit of high, or altitude flying, 50,000 feet being a possible limit. Seth Hort, of La Fayette, Ind., is the inventor of the propeller.

Offender Fined $1,000 And Costs

Two Thousand Bottles of Whiskey Confiscated by the Crown.

TOPONTO, Oct. 31.—The maximum fine of $1,000 and costs was imposed by Magistrate Brenton in the County Police Court, on David Crawford, who pleaded guilty to having for sale in his home 2,000 bottles of whiskey. Austin Hess, who defended, thought, that, in view of the huge sum the Government would receive from the sale of the liquor by licensed vendors, a lighter penalty should be exacted; but the magistrate held that if such an argument was followed out the Government might some day find itself owing a prisoner something.

Sir Adam Beck Stays With Hydro

TORONTO, Oct. 30.—"This meeting representing 216 municipalities in Ontario, demands that Sir Adam Beck be continued as chairman of the Provincial Hydro-Electric Commission and that the Commission shall consist of three members only, Sir Adam Beck, chairman, the two members to be appointed by the municipalities and one by the Government. In the event of the removal of the municipalities being refused by the Government then a representative on the Commission shall have the right of appeal to Sir Adam Beck. Further, that the terms of office for such Commissioners shall be not less than six years."

The above resolution and another expressing unabated confidence in Sir Adam Beck, the Hydro manager, and pledging unswerving loyalty to him, coupled with the emphatic declaration that Sir Adam must stop on the "job" were passed by unanimous vote at a mass meeting of delegates from all municipalities within the electrical power zone of the Province at the City Hall.

Macbride Breaks Away From Coalition Party

TORONTO, Oct. 30.—While the conference of the U.F.O. and the Labor party were discussing Cabinet positions last night Mayor M. M. MacBride of Brantford picked up his hat and coat and left the room. This sudden action on the part of one of the two men chosen to represent Labor in the preliminary negotiations with the U.F.O. caused a great deal of discussion and comment. In a statement to the press in explanation of his action, Mayor MacBride said:

Reached Critical Situation.

"At Hamilton on Saturday last I was chosen as one of Labor's representatives to confer with the U.F.O. Committee of Nine, looking toward a co-operative effort on the part of the U.F.O. and the I.L.P. to form a Government. From the outset I took the ground that every honest endeavor should be given to effect a broad, democratic working basis, but as the time progressed I felt that the U.F.O. were not meeting us in the same spirit. However I realized the position that the Province was placed because of the peculiar circumstances arising out of the election of four separate parties, none of which are numerically strong enough to form a Government, and I therefore determined that we should not quibble over points upon which our platforms might differ, but that it should be truly a 'get together' effort to give an honest, progressive administration.

Labor Into "Side Room."

"The joint committee met twice on Tuesday, and at the evening session we unanimously agreed to submit our reports to the Labor and Farmer groups separately this morning, after which we were to meet in joint session. In this arrangement Labor kept the faith, but it appears that no report was presented to the Farmer group until this evening's session, and the Labor members were asked to step into a side room while it was being considered. This procedure appeared strange to me, in view of our pledges to present the reports this morning. However, I determined to await developements, and they were not long in coming. First, we were informed that Mr. Drury had been elected leader. Then Mr. Rollo and one or two others spoke, Mr. Rollo making a statement to the effect that in future it would not be one party, but one party, we were asked to speak, and used these words: 'We have entered into the effort of co-operation in a broad, frank manner, and if the Farmers and Labor cannot co-operate it will be the fault of the Farmers, not the fault of Labor, and I expect that you will meet us as we have met you, without quibbling.'

"A Touch of Autocracy."

"Then Mr. Drury took the floor to make his address, and while he 'talked' of co-operation and democracy he negatived his own utterances in toto. He insisted that he as Premier should choose Labor's other representative in the Government.

"We had agreed upon Mr. Rollo as Minister of Labor and all we asked the U.F.O. to do was to name the other Minister to be allotted to Labor and then let Labor choose its man. Then Mr. Drury took this attitude it was quite evident to me that there was an element of autocracy showing itself. I told him quite frankly from the floor that so far as I was concerned I would not be a party to Labor sitting on his or any other party lap or shoestrap. We were there to insist on the same privileges for the two Labor men as the Farmers had taken unto themselves in naming him as Premier.

"In my judgment the Farmers broke faith with Labor today. First, when they held back their report from their morning caucus, and second, when Mr. Drury assumed to be more qualified to select a Labor man than the members of the I.L.P. who had been elected by their pleasure all fall.

"I have no desire to prevent if any way a real co-operative effort, but I am only the servant of the people of Brantford, and while others may do as they choose I will always try to remember that it is my duty to represent the Labor men who elected me, and I am quite sure they would not sanction my delegating to Mr. Drury, or any other individual (whether nominated, elected, permanently exalted) the privilege of saying who Labor's representative in the Cabinet might be.

Independent Labor Man.

"That is a matter that only Labor can deal with intelligently, and my whole position is giving the negative absolutely to every plank on any democratic platform. I left the meeting because the real spirit of co-operation vanished with Mr. Drury's declaration that he be allowed to be Labor's dictator. I shall take my seat in the Legislature as an Independent Labor man, and will continue to do my duty by the people who elected me, without fear or favor."

Macbride After Simpson's Scalp

Ottawa Hears of Round Robin on Government's "Dry" Legislation.

OTTAWA, Oct. 31.—Mayor MacBride, recently elected to the Legislature as Labor member for South Brant, issued the following statement on his return to his home city yesterday morning:

"All I wish to say is this: That when Mr. Drury permits James Simpson to be designated as his mouthpiece, the people may draw their own conclusions.

"My position is this: I went there to represent Brantford Labor and not for all the portfolios in the Dominion of Canada would I betray Labor into such a compact.

"Mr. Simpson is seeking a Labor seat. Mr. Drury also has to find a seat, and according to the Globe it has been offered North Brant. I am prepared to stage a contest in both North and South Brant and we will find out who represents the people. Let Mr. Drury take the North Brant nomination, that is if he has been chosen as a Farmer-Labor leader and if Mr. Simpson wants to test out his desires of some time ago to meet MacBride in Brantford he will be accommodated."

35 Unionists Would Delay Prohibition

Takes Exception to Drury's Decision to Choose Labor Men for Cabinet.

OTTAWA, Oct. 31.—Government members last session voted solidly for the Government's prohibition bill, which however was killed in the Senate. But the Government cannot count upon an unbridled front on the part of its followers in connection with the bills before the House this session.

Strong opposition is developing among member, toward the two measures which the opposition is by no means confirmed to members sitting to the left of Mr. Speaker. It is stated that much has been taken among the Government supporters, and that 35 have already signed it. This measure which it is intended shall be submitted to the Government sets forth that there has been no demand for the legislation in question and that even the temperance forces are opposed to it, as judging by the representations of the Dominion Alliance.

Hon. N. W. Rowell, president of the Privy Council, is absent from the capital. Hon. C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice, has charge of the bill. That they will be brought up again would seem certain, but their fate is doubtful.

Emperor Of Japan Ratifies Treaty

Special Despatch to The Intelligencer, Canadian Press, Limited.

TOKIO, Oct. 31.—The supreme today ratified Versailles peace treaty. Tokio advices received on Thursday announced the ratification of the German peace treaty by Japan. It is clear from the foregoing that the ratification was by virtue of imperial action. It was not preceded by any action by parliament, the constitution of Japan not requiring the assent of the legislative body. Japan's favorable action on the treaty has left the wreckage chiefly by only one of the five great powers signatory to the Versailles convention the United States.

Six Dead In Railway Wreck

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 31.—Six dead and about 120 persons injured, some seriously, was the known casualty list as a result of the wreck of the Southern Pacific railroad's "San Joaquin Valley Flier," late yesterday, at Goshen, a village midway between Acton, a few miles from here, was expected to reveal additional bodies.

Railroad officials said the wreck appeared to be engineer attempting to make too much speed on a grade.

Harmony Is Restored In Ranks Of Baptists

Conference Affirms Faith in Scriptural Inspiration by Unanimous Vote.

OTTAWA, Oct. 31.—Harmony again reigns in the ranks of the Baptists of Ontario and Quebec. They have had their wings clipped—"clipped" on the subject of the inspiration and authority of the Scriptures, and have come through more unified to all appearances than ever. But the debate that took place in the convention here was not the denomination-splitting debate that was expected, for it never, in the four and a half hours of its duration, was more than one-sided on the main question. Not one of the delegates expressed an unorthodox view.

In the resolution proposed by Rev. Dr. T. T. Shields, and passed without a dissenting voice, the old Baptist doctrines of "the divine inspiration of the Old and New Testaments, and their absolute supremacy and sufficiency in matters of faith and practice," and also that "the Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments were given by inspiration of God, and are the only sufficient, certain and authoritative rule of saving knowledge, faith and obedience," were unanimously reaffirmed.

No Expression of "Free" Ideas.

There was no expression of "free" ideas, no attempt to get away from an alleged jaded period of theological thought, or to change plans framed by conservative minister or body of any conscientious preachers. The position of the higher critics or the destructive critics was not touched. The conservation at the outset settled down to discussion wholeheartedly on the assumptions that the scriptures were inspired, that they are the majestic art of God.

Rev. T. T. Shields, of Toronto, who was the chief speaker in the debate, expressed the belief that an effort had been made to flood the conference with the new school of thought expounded by the official Baptist journal.

Hastings Must Work Hard To Beat Last Year's Local Record

OUR PERCENTAGE 16.82 AND IT SHOULD BE 22.22—ONLY FOUR DISTRICTS MAKE GOOD SHOWING—VICTORY LOAN SUNDAY.

In Hastings County to fall down on the effort to beat its last year's Victory record?

Reports for the first day looked promising but the second two days were not good and consequently we are considerably behind returns for the corresponding days last year. Yesterday's returns of $135,150 were above the same day in the previous Loan but even this will have to be beaten every day in order to catch up. Our total is now $352,750 or 16.82 per cent. and it should be 22.22. Our showing is below average for the province. Credit for yesterday's good showing must go to a few districts for only four are up to the position they should be.

Special efforts must be made everywhere or it will be said that we have fallen down like Germany in the last and perhaps most important war effort. It is thought by many that people are not realizing the absolute need for this Loan as a war measure. Our results are being watched all over the province and it would be a sad day indeed for the County, if this, one of the most prosperous and loyal counties in Ontario, failed in this final patriotic effort.

Messrs. C. A. Bleecker and J. C. Bowen, Marmora, was first place yesterday as highest individual canvasser on the day's returns. This honor had been won every day previously by Messrs. Arthur Yates and Norman Laing, Deloro, who in spite of this still lead in the Prince of Wales' flag race with 20.44 per cent. of their objective. The contest is keen between these two teams, both working quite close to each other and having vowed a spirited contest by the end of the campaign. Tyendinaga, Messrs. J. F. Hinchey and G. N. Spafford, have forged ahead again in fourth place in the flag race, they now having 30.80 per cent.

Price Of Pork Will Come Down

TORONTO, Oct. 31.—City packing houses are evidently quite prepared to set their prices to conform with the market conditions established in Chicago at the packing house inquiry here some time ago. These new prices, which reduce the cost of lard, and hog products to the rates obtaining on March 10 of this year are considerably lower than the present price.

R. Peck, K.C., Toronto, Manager of the Wm. Davies Company, was asked last night if the new rates would go into effect on Saturday. "As far as we are concerned they will," he stated. "We are making up our price list in accordance with the board ruling."

It is understood that other big concerns are also making the necessary alterations in their lists, the delay granted the packers to have the board reconsider their ruling failing to alter the finding.

The meeting then adjourned to meet again at the call of the President.

Belleville Curlers Prepare For Season

The annual meeting of the Belleville Curling Club was held last night at the club premises, George Street. That the members took an interest in the meeting was apparent by the large number in attendance and the prospects are that the coming season will be one of the best in the clubs history. Not only did the older members signify their intention of curling but the prospects are that many new members will be added.

Mr. J. W. Davison occupied the chair and called the gathering to order. The minutes of the last annual meeting were read by Mr. J. G. Galloway and were unanimously adopted.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows:

Vice President—Dr. Day.

The appointing of skips for the season was deferred until an adjourned meeting to be called by the President.

Mr. J. A. Kerr, representative of the club at the annual meeting of the Ontario Curling Association recently held at Toronto, gave a report of the meeting and the selecting of groups to play for the various trophies. Belleville curlers were the runners-up in the Governor-General's match and won a shield as a trophy, which he presented to the club on behalf of the

Organizing Men For Church Work

At the Y. M. C. A. building yesterday afternoon and at the Council Chamber, this city, last evening, meetings were held relative to forming in this city a branch of the Christian Brotherhood Federation. In the afternoon a number of the ministers of the city churches and others were present in the auditorium of the Y. M. C. A., when Mr. Thomas Howell gave an address relative to the movement and urging such be gone on with in this city. He spoke of the need of brotherhood in the churches and the of a brotherhood of all churches empractically carried out.

At the evening meeting, owing to the inclement weather the attendance was meagre. Mr. J. Elliott occupied the chair. After some informal discussion it was decided to form a Brotherhood here and the following officers were selected:

President—Mr. J. Elliott.
Vice President—Rev. D. C. Ramsay.
Secretary—Rev. W. H. Elliott.
Treasurer—Rev. W. T. Wallace.

Ex-Controller J. O. McCarthy of Toronto, was the chief speaker, and he minutely outlined the aims and objects of the Brotherhood. This scheme represented at the conference. The next will be a conference held in Kingland in September, 1916, at which 20 nations were represented. The need of a worldwide brotherhood was the prevailing theme and it was decided at that conference that it would be advisable by the various countries for Christian churches to be united. In speaker emphasized the necessity there was at the present time for all Christian churches to be united in the brotherhood for the betterment of the world at large.

It was decided that another conference would be held at the Y. M. C. A. building in this city on November 15th at which each church in the city will be requested to send at least three delegates. At this conference a work of organization will be completed.

How To Kill Dandruff So It Won't Return

That the dandruff germ is responsible for nearly all the diseases and which the scalp is heir, as well as for baldness and premature gray hair, is a well-known fact. We appreciate therefore, the importance of any agent that will destroy its power. It will also almost immediately stop falling hair and in most cases stimulate and produced a new hair-growth after years of partial baldness. This prescription can be made at home, or any druggist will put it up for you—6 ounces Bay Rum, 2 ounces Lavona de Composee, 1 dram Menthol Crystals. Mix thoroughly, and after standing an hour it is ready for use. Apply night and morning, rubbing it in the scalp with the finger tips. If you wish it perfumed, add 1 dracm of your favorite perfume. While this preparation is not a dye it is unequalled for restoring gray hair to its original color.

Called by Death

Two citizens of Belleville whose combined ages total 171 years 7 months, passed away during the night. They were Mr. S. A. Lazier and Mr. John C. Harris. Both were well known, especially the former.

JOHN C. HARRIS.

At the residence of Mr. C. T. Harris, College Hill, his father, Mr. John C. Harris, died last night, after being ill for some time. Deceased was born in Sussex, England, in the year 1834, being thus 85 years of age. Some 13 years ago he came out to this country and had since made his home with his brother. Mr. Harris was a tailor. He was a veteran of the Crimean War. Deceased was a member of Emanuel Reformed Episcopal Church, of this city. Two brothers, Messrs. T. S. Harris and W. J. Harris, of Cornwall, England, survive. Mrs. Thos. George, of Belleville is a brother-in-law, of deceased.

STEPHEN ALLAN LAZIER.

In the death of Mr. Stephen Allan Lazier, which occurred at the family residence, 91 Bleecker street east, at an early hour this morning, there has been removed from our midst one who for many years was an active, industrious and honorable citizen. In the year 1833, nearly 86 years ago, deceased was born in the Township of Tyendinaga, being a son of the late Col. Richard Lazier, who was for some time collector of customs at Shannonville. His mother's maiden name was Miss Anna Appleby, a sister of the late Mr. N. S. Appleby, ex-M.P.P. for East Hastings. Nearly the whole of Mr. Lazier's active life was spent in this locality. In early life deceased was engaged in the contracting business, assisting in building railways in Nova Scotia and other places. He also contracted getting out wood for the use of locomotives on the G. T. R. and other railways. For some time he conducted a general store at Ottawa Hill and Foxboro and for a number of years a grist mill at Milltown and Shannonville. Mr. Lazier at one time carried on a coal business in Belleville and disposed of the same to the late Mr. N. Allen. In the year 1873 he took charge of and conducted what is well known as the Lazier flour and paper mill, situated on the banks of the Moira River on the Canniton road. For a number of years he successfully operated the plant. For the past few years he had lived a retired life. Deceased was always imbued with a military spirit and during the Fenian Raid of 1866 he was on duty at Prescott in the capacity of a captain. In politics Mr. Lazier was a Conservative and for many years took an active interest in political affairs, especially in the riding of East Hastings. Although being urged on several occasions to be the candidate for political honors he refused. He was a great admirer of the late Mr. John White, who for some years represented East Hastings in the House of Commons. To religion Mr. Lazier was a communicant of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, of this city. A widow, four sons and one daughter survive. The sons are Col. Thomas D., of New York, Robert E. and Stephen D., of Belleville, and Dr. D. B., of Nelson, B.C. The daughter, Miss Kathleen, resides at home. Col. S. S. Lazier, Master of Chancery, in this city, is the only surviving member of the original family.

The late Mr. Lazier was a citizen of sterling character and had a large following of friends who will sincerely regret his demise. To the bereaved will be extended the heartfelt sympathy of all citizens.

I kept on using them and today am absolutely free from Rheumatism."

First Showings Here Of Movie Features

Pauline Frederick in "The Fear Woman" at Griffin's—Bryant Washburn at Palace in "Love Insurance."

"The Fear Woman" newest of Pauline Frederick's Goldwyn pictures which was screened at Griffin's last night and serves to reveal anew the extraordinary dramatic equipment of the vivid star as well as to disclose beauty of face and figure that will surprise those who know Pauline Frederick well. As, Helen Winthrop, the girl who grew up the man she loved because of fear lest an hereditary taint overcomes her, Miss Frederick is by turns subtle, amazing, and at all times charming and real. Without doubt her role in the Isola Forrester drama is the most human and appealing of her many cinema characterizations. The most intense moments of the play are found in the magnificent dinner at which Helen Winthrop's engagement is announced and her father plunges down a flight of stairs; the amazing, though quiet marriage ceremony which progresses to the point where Helen refuses to wed the man she loves because of the terror in her heart; the curious love tangle in which she sacrifices her reputation to save the good name of her dearest friend; and of course the steadily mounting climax of the drama at the summer hotel whence Helen goes to seek forgetfulness Th denouncement is a happy one and completely surprising. Besides the above offering an amusing Christie comedy "Just Plain Folks" a beautiful Outing Chester colored travelogue Official News containing many interesting news events, the Screen Magazine aptly formed the reel of knowledge and a funny Lyons-Moran big U comedy completes a most entertaining program all of which will be show again to-night and Saturday matinee and night.

BRYANT WASHBURN AT PALACE

Belleville admirers of Bryant Washburn were in evidence at the Palace yesterday to see the talented star in his new starring vehicle "Love Insurance" by Earl Derr Biggers whose brilliant and witty stories are familiar to all readers of The Saturday Evening Post. The closing chapter of the popular circus serial "Lure of the Circus" and Topics of the Day with its pungent punchy paragraphs are also being exhibited on the same program.

GERMAN INDUSTRIAL MENACE.

Opinions are widely at variance as to Germany's ability, immediately, or in the near future, to engage largely in export trade. The Canadian Acting Trade Commissioner in London, England, states that firms engaged there in the trade in boot and shoe lasts reported that Germany is ready to recommence export trade in that line and that, aided by the present abnormal rate of exchange, lots of lasts have been offered at prices as low as, if not lower than, costs of production in the United Kingdom.

The British Toy Manufacturers' Association also recently sent a deputation to the President of the British Board of Trade, asking for protection against the low rate of German exchange, which offers an important encouragement to German export business. The President of the Board of Trade in his reply said that Germany had only small stocks of goods accumulated for export; there was no great manufacturing activity at the present time; costs of production were enormous; and Germany could not compete even with British manufacturers for a long time.

The British Government has reserved power to stop all or any imports into the United Kingdom from a country from which such imports are made possible and overwhelming by the state of the exchange.

MAKING MONEY WORK.

A very famous philosopher once wrote that a man's income was either a tool or a toy—a tool to work and produce something with, that is to say, or a toy to trifle with and ultimately destroy. In a country like Canada, with vast possibilities in the way of production and enormous responsibilities to meet, nobody can afford to countenance the idea that money or income is soothing to be played with.

There is so much to be done with it that it must be put to work. That is precisely what a subscription to Victory bonds accomplishes. It puts money to work; not only for the benefit of its possessor but for the whole community. It is turned into a tool of the most potential character.

No good workman wantonly destroys his tools; but this is precisely what the man does who with the means, or with the ability by a little saving to possess in Victory Bonds, prefers to waste his resources in frivolities, or wild cat speculations. He fails to treat his own brain and labor by which he acquired it with decent respect.

The 1919 Victory Loan is an intensely utilitarian proposition; it is based on the country's necessities if she is to continue as a big factor in the world's markets and if she is to meet the problems of reconstruction. Only by the good sense of Canadians who are willing to make their dollars useful and reap the benefits of them will it become a success.

MR.-KING IN THE HOUSE.

Hon. Mackenzie King is occupying a place midway between his divided followers upon the issue of the purchase of the Grand Trunk Railway, says the London Free Press. He declines to say whether he is for public ownership, but contents himself with saying that the Government plan is not public ownership, though he does not intimate what he thinks it is. He talks in platitudes about trusting the people, and yet seems afraid to trust them with the management of a railroad that they have already paid for.

This sort of political leadership is about what was to be expected from a politician of the King variety. Canadians will much prefer the blunt but honest statesmanship of D. D. McKenzie, the Nova Scotia Scotchman, who frankly stated his antagonism to public ownership. Nobody likes a trimmer. Nobody is inspired by the party leadership that refuses to say in which direction it is going. Mr. King ought to know that he cannot ride two horses—the anti-public ownership of Montreal, and the public ownership of Ontario and the West.

CHAIR OF COMMERCE.

The University of London proposes to spend $2,500,000 in the establishment of a commercial faculty, the endowment of a chair of commerce, the foundation of scholarships and travelling clerkships, the erection of necessary buildings, and the acquisition of a commercial library. The University is now conducting an active campaign to raise the necessary money, and the principal British steamship companies have subscribed liberally for amounts in the fund. The United States Trade Commissioner in London says: "It is felt that at the moment no more valuable work would be done for British trade than by endowing a really practical and complete system of higher commercial training."

CRISP COMMENT

Victory Bonds pay five and one-half per cent. interest and more, because they are bound to command a premium in days to come.

× × ×

H. Hartley Dewart, the great objector, again takes the spotlight in a vigorous objection to recent appointments or promotions made by the Ontario Government. Hartley's great object is to object to all objections to the Hearst-Lucas under which he seems to labor that he is the Dictator of Ontario, but while he can qualify as a great objector, it can hardly be said that he is a conscientious objector.

Victory Bonds are such a good investment that it would seem a waste of time to urge anyone with money to invest to grab them now when they can be bought at par value. There are thousands of small investors, however, who are not familiar with security investment values and need to be shown the advantages of Victory Loan Bonds. The small investors can safely follow the lead of the big investors, the C.P.R. security dollar selection, for instance. Every fifty dollar bond counts. Buy a bond for the kiddie.

Seven columns of personal ads, one editorial and a three-column cut of wife, home and family, is the tribute of the Toronto Star laid at the feet of Prospective Premier Drury in Thursday's paper. Is Joey Atkinson trying to persuade the Star in the East and point With pride and pleasurable anticipation of turns to come to a new Messiah who will wipe the clouds from the Star's political sky with a brand new philosophy of politics dug up from the soil.

In the opinion of the Toronto Globe, Leader Mackenzie King's contribution to the debate on the G. T. R. bill "has proved disappointing to his friends." Not to his Quebec friends, however; and at present it is Mr. King's business to please them.—Hamilton Herald.

OLD ENGLISH RECIPE FOR CATARRH, CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

If you know of some one who is troubled with Catarrhal deafness, head noises or ordinary catarrh cut out this formula and hand it to them and you may have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. In England scientists for a long time past have recognized that catarrh is a constitutional disease and necessarily requires constitutional treatment.

Spraying, inhalers and nose douches are liable to irritate the delicate air passages and force the disease into the middle ear which frequently means total deafness, or else the disease may be driven down the air passages towards the lungs which is equally as dangerous. The following formula which is used extensively in the damp English climate is a constitutional treatment and should prove especially efficacious to sufferers here who live under more favorable climate conditions.

Secure from your druggist 1 ounce of Parmint (Double strength.) Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. This will often bring quick relief from distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and hearing improve as the inflammation in the eustachian tubes is reduced. Parmint used in this way acts directly through the blood and mucous surfaces of the system and has a specific action on the inflamed mucous.

There is probably nothing that seems so useless in the eyes of the average person as an old potato which has begun to rot, but the department of agriculture in its war-time experiments has discovered that starch can be made from a decayed potato just as well, if not better, than from a good one, and the surplus stock of the farmer or dealer need no longer be thrown away or wasted.

In like fashion chemists seeking methods to avoid world-wide food shortages have found that sawdust may not only be made from beets, but from sweet potatoes as well. The farmer himself can make good syrup from his sweet potatoes by boiling them until they can be mashed, adding water to thick, mushy liquid. To this ground malt is added and the result, after properly cooking and straining the hour, is a thick syrup, which is strained through a cloth and used for any sort of sweetening.

Professor Claims to Have Perfected System for Underground and Submarine Messages.

Speaking recently of his work for the navy, Prof. Jame R. Rogers, the inventor of a wireless system for underground and submarine transmission, said: "Six years ago I began and have since been experiments with the transmission of electric impulses by the ground. The principle involved during the war with the sudden bulk, which renders the receiving apparatus more sensitive, I first established contact with ships by points and before long received with perfect distinctness impulses sent from Europe. I placed my antennae in trenches radiating from a center and found by the compass the course of the distant station from which I wished to hear. I demonstrated to the navy department that eight operators could receive at once from eight separate points. My system was installed at New Orleans, the Great Lakes station, the Delmar, N. Y., and is now used at the principal wireless stations in the United States. I have found the best results with my wires buried six feet below the surface in damp ground. Some of my experiments were conducted over 25 to 50 foot deep."—Scientific American.

ALL PHONOGRAPHS IN ONE

MADE IN CANADA

It Had to Come!

The Brunswick just had to be. In every industry the law of evolution applies, and sooner or later perfection is achieved.

Just as we have seen the automobile perfected in the last fifteen years, so those in the phonograph industry confidently watched for the "Final Phonograph."

And it has come. The "Final Phonograph" in the Brunswick—the instrument which plays all records CORRECTLY. The Brunswick unlocks for you the whole world of recorded music.

In addition to having all the good features of every other good phonograph, the Brunswick alone has these two supreme inventions:

1. The "Ultona"—an improved tone arm and reproducer, which provides, by a mere twist of the wrist, the exact WEIGHT, the proper DIAPHRAGM and correct NEEDLE for every make of record.
2. The ALL-WOOD oval tone amplifier—built like a violin. This tone-chamber, oval-moulded from choice woods, and absolutely free from any kind of metal, eliminates all harsh metallic notes.

The Brunswick plays better, looks better, costs no more and gives you unlimited choice of records.

LET YOUR EARS BE THE JUDGE.
Hear it play your favorite record—any make.

WHEN TENNIS WAS CRIME.

Henry the Eighth Passed Law Making It Illegal.

Modern folk are accustomed to regard tennis as an ideal summer sport, likewise bowls and shovehalfpenny, which is still a popular game in the navy, but our ancestors even went so far as to pass a law against these mild forms of recreation.

In 1541 the "bowyers, fletchers, stringers and arrow-tied-makers of this realme" petitioned Henry VIII. of matchless fame, to prohibit "tennice mess and crafty games and shydethrifte, otherwise called shovegrote, tennys and bowles, practised within this realme to the great hurt and lett of shootinge and archerie."

It appears that the lads of the village preferred to exercise their cunning at "shydethrifte" when, in the opinion of the bow and arrow makers, they would have been better occupied in shooting at the butts on the village green.

However, King Henry granted the petition, moved, no doubt, by a passion mourning the decay of the archers, "who have not only defended this realme against the auncyent malice and danger of their enemyes in tyme paste, but also within these xl. nombers, have done many notable actes and disconfytures of warre against the infidels." The fine old English fighting spirit which rings through this passage must have appealed to Bluff King Hal, and as part of Parliament duly passed the law making the "newe and craftye" games illegal, and rendering players thereof liable to a penalty for each offence of 6s. 8d.—a considerable sum in those days.

Presumably the "bowyers and fletchers" were on their way reckoning, all unaware of the danger which threatened their craft from another quarter. They had not reckoned with a certain Friar Bacon, whose discovery of gunpowder was destined to bring about the "decaye of archerie" for good and all.—Answers.

Fewer Accidents Now, and Why.

War conditions, by bringing large numbers of new and unskilled workers into industry, had in general the effect of increasing considerably the number of industrial accidents, both actually and relatively to the number of persons engaged in certain industries. Information recently received by the International Labor Office, Geneva, from the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics, however, has in general the number of such accidents has now returned to approximately normal figures. In a comparatively short time before the entrance of America into the war, the effect of workmen's compensation laws and safety work has reduced the number of industrial accidents to 50 per cent. The temporary increase due to the influx of new workers has now

Ninety Years Old, He Still Preaches

Calgary Has a Remarkable Old Minister in the Person of Rev. E. Cragg, formerly of Tweed.

Calgary, Alberta, boasts of the world's oldest, active pastor, the Rev. E. Cragg, who has celebrated his ninetieth birthday and whose strength of mind and body is still considered remarkable. Last year, one Sunday, he preached for forty-five minutes, weaving in many interesting and humorous reminiscences. Mr. Cragg's appointments were all in Ontario after his ordination, he having served terms in Millbrook, Wallaceburg, Newcastle, Mt. Bridges, Teeswater and Tweed.

In 1897 he was superannuated and resided successively at Peterboro, Brighton and Trenton, but in 1910, when his sons heard the call to the West, one to Lethbridge as a doctor, another to Bow Island to farm and a third to preach, father and mother and daughter migrated to Calgary and at the age of 81 the Rev. Mr. Cragg took up a homestead and for three years fulfilled his homestead duties.

A native of Kendal, Westmoreland, Mr. Cragg was born in 1829 and when a small boy sang at the funeral service of King William the Fourth. He remembers distinctly meeting an old pensioner who could recall the return of Bonnie Prince Charlie in 1745. He was received as a candidate for the Wesleyan ministry in England the same year that Joseph Parker, afterwards of the City Temple, was rejected for "being too cocky," as Mr. Cragg explains "and giving lip to the dignitaries of the Church—a moral of, twice." W. T. Stansford was another classmate and in the ordination class of which the now-nonagenarian was a member, were E. B. Ryckmann, A. E. Rens, W. R. Parker and other well-known Britons who have made their mark in the world.

In 1854 Mr. Cragg came to Canada and went to Point Levis. Four years later he married Margaret Mills of Brighton, Ont., and on Feb. 16th last there were present at the celebration of the aged couple's diamond wedding the two daughters, Mrs. E. B. Stone and Miss M. F. Cragg, and the four sons, all of whom are residents at the present time in Alberta—Oswald A. of Bow Island; Dr. Cecil C. and Rev. Charles E. of Lethbridge; and Harry H. of Calgary. The fifth son, William J. W. is a missionary in Japan. With a kindly, yet virile face, somewhat resembling that of the famous W. E. Gladstone, the Rev. Mr. Cragg, with his snow-white hair and just as immaculate "mutton chops," presents a striking appearance. His memory of both for recent events and for those that are remote, is wonderfully good, almost unfailing, while his intellectual outlook is broad and his interest in the things of the new day as fresh and eager as that of youth. In spite of the burden of his years he has always been willing to preach, to read the papers, to join in discussion and is, perhaps, at his best and happiest of all in the impromptu address or discussion of some theological paper. His criticisms of men and sermons and music too are exceeding just, and acute while his spirit is so kindly sympathetic that his presence at church always means some encouraging comment or appreciation.

CHAPTER XI

"Well, have those publishers of yours made you an offer yet?"

"No, sir. I haven't heard from them."

"You should drop them a line," said Walford irritably. "Dam nonsense. How long have they had the thing now?"

"About three weeks."

"Drop 'em a line! They may keep you waiting a month if you don't wake them up. Don't you think so, Cynthia? He ought to write."

"I dare say we shall have a letter in a day or two, papa. We were afraid you weren't coming round this evening; you're late. How d'y' do, mamma? How d'ye do, Aunt Emily?"

"And how are you?" asked Mrs. Walford. "Have you made up your mind about Bournemouth yet? She is quite fit to go now, Humphrey. You ought to pack her off at once, there's nothing to wait for now you've got your nurse. How does she suit you?"

"She seems all right," said Cynthia rather doubtfully. "A little consequential, perhaps—that is all."

"Oh, you mustn't stand any airs and graces; put her in her place at the start. What has she done?"

"She hasn't done anything—only—"

"She's our first," explained Kent, "and we're somewhat in awe of her. She was surprised to find that there weren't two nurseries—she is frequently surprised," and then we apologize to her."

"Don't be so absurd!" murmured his wife; "he does exaggerate so, mamma. No; but of course, she has always been in better situations with people richer than us.....'Us?'" she repeated questioningly, looking at Kent with a smile.

He laughed a negative.

"Than we, then! And she is the least bit in the world too self-important."

"Than 'we?'" echoed Mrs. Walford. "Than 'us?'" Nonsense! "Than us!" Kent pulled his moustache silently and there was a moment's pause.

"Than us!" said the lady again defiantly. "Unquestionably it is "than us!"."

"Very well," he replied; "I'm not you. Isn't it nice?"

"I always say "than us," said Sam Walford good-humoredly. "Ain't it right?"

"No" said Miss Wix; "of course it isn't, Sam."

"Ridiculous!" declared Mrs. Walford, with asperity. "'Than we" is quite wrong—quite ungrammatical. I don't care who says it isn't—I say it is."

"A literary man might have been supposed to know," said Miss Wix ironically. "But Humphrey is mistaken, too, then?"

"What is the difference—what does it matter?" put in Cynthia. "There is nothing to get excited about, mamma."

"I'm not in the least excited," said her mother, with a white face; "but I don't accept anybody's contradiction on such a point. I'm "not to be convinced to the contrary when I'm sure I'm correct."

"Well, let's return to our muttons" said Kent, "Once upon a time there was a nurse, and—"

"Oh, you are very funny!" she exclaimed. "Let me tell you, you don't know anything about it. And as to Emily, I don't take any notice of her at all. She may say what she likes."

"What I like is the Queen's English since you don't mind," said Miss Wix "This lively conversation must be very good for Cynthia, Humphrey, your quite a member of the family, you see We are rude to one another in front of you. Isn't it nice?"

"I shouldn't come to you to learn politeness either," retorted Mrs. Walford hotly. "I shouldn't come to you to learn politeness or grammar, either. You are most rude yourself—most ill-bred!"

"That'll do—that'll do," said the stock jobber; "we don't want a row. Damn it!! let everybody say what they choose; it ain't a hanging matter, I suppose, if they're wrong."

"I'm not wrong, Sam. Humphrey, just tell me this Do you say "than whom" or "than who"? Now, then!"

Carlson Also Gets Rid of Thirty-Five Years Troubles With Rheumatism.

"I only weighed one hundred and thirty-three pounds when I commenced taking Tanlac, but now I tip the scales at one hundred and fifty-three, which gives me a gain of twenty pounds," said J. W. Carlson, who lives at 96 Phelps Circle, St. Paul, Minn., the other day.

"I am sixty years old now," continued Mr. Carlson, "and up to the time I commenced taking Tanlac I had been suffering from rheumatism since I was a young man about twenty-five years old. During that time I had the very best of treatment, and tried many different kinds of medicine, but I never got any permanent relief until I got hold of Tanlac. I was in such bad shape last year that I was laid up for three months on a stretch. I also suffered from stomach trouble so badly that what I ate would sour and cause me to be bloated up with gas for hours at a time. Very often I would have raging headaches and was so restless and nervous at night that I never got any real good sleep. All these terrible troubles, thanks, finally, to the best of me, and not long ago I had to give up and go to the hospital for a while.

"That was the condition I was in when I commenced taking Tanlac, and I really didn't think that I would ever be any better. Well, sir, from the way Tanlac knocked that rheumatism out is simply wonderful. Why, I never have a sign of it any more, and the same with the stomach troubles. I can eat just anything I want and I never suffer a particle afterwards. I eat a lot, too—for I have such a ravenous appetite that I am actually hungry all the time. My strength has come back to me, and it beats the world how I am gaining in weight. In fact, Tanlac has completely overcome my troubles, and I never felt better in every way in all my life before. It gives me pleasure to recommend Tanlac, for it certainly a real medicine, and will do just what they say it will do."

Tanlac is sold in Belleville by Ostrom's Drug Store, in Trenton by J. H. Dickey, in Deseronto, by W. J. Malley, in Stirling by F. J. Morton, in Madoc by J. Will Wiles, in Marysville by T. J. McAlpine, in Ormsby by Jas. Campbell, and in Thomasburg by J. H. Blakley.

THE LIBERTY MOTOR

The LIBERTY MOTOR is one of the wonders of the twentieth century, but unless kept in the best condition all the time, it cannot do the work required of it. All its parts must be in PERFECT ADJUSTMENT, and are gone over carefully by experts before being used.

The Human Body is the most wonderful machine, not of this age alone, but of all ages. Yet it is a deplorable fact that thousands neglect it and pay no attention at all to the care of its delicate and intricate machinery. For centuries those in the business of so-called "Healing" have been "treating" the effect instead of adjusting the cause of disease so that it is a wonder the Human Race has not become extinct, or at the best, in a condition of degeneration long ere this. The DRUGLESS HEALTH SCIENCE OF CHIROPRACTIC has, however, come to the rescue in this the twentieth century.

This SCIENCE teaches the law of CAUSE and effect. It pays no attention to the effect, but locates the cause of so-called disease and ADJUSTS it.

The Human Machine, like the LIBERTY MOTOR, must have every part perfectly adjusted, otherwise there will be a lack of ease, commonly called Disease. The Keystone of this machine is the spine or backbone. The vertebrae (small bones of the spine) must be in perfect alignment. If any of them are out of alignment (subluxated) they cause an impingement (pinching) of the nerves emerging from the spinal column, and the vital force flowing from the brain through these nerves to the various organs is interrupted, causing disease in that particular organ which should be supplied by the vital force.

THE COMPETENT CHIROPRACTOR, who is a HUMAN MACHINIST, locates the subluxated vertebrae, puts it back in alignment, WITH HIS BARE HANDS ONLY, by means of CHIROPRACTIC VERTEBREAL ADJUSTMENTS. The impingement is released, the vital force flows uninterruptedly to the various organs, HEALTH is the RESULT, and YOUR HUMAN MACHINE IN PERFECT RUNNING ORDER.

Consultation and Spinal Analysis Free. Drs. Redick & Redick, Chiropractors, 233½ Front St., Belleville, Phone 900. Hours, 10-12, 2-5, 7-8.

Try Magnesia For Stomach Trouble

It Neutralizes Stomach Acidity, Prevents Food Fermentation, Sour, Gassy Stomach, and Acid Indigestion

Doubtless, if you are a sufferer from indigestion, you have already tried pepsin, bismuth, soda and various digestive aids and know these things will not cure your trouble—in some cases do not even give relief.

But before giving up hope and deciding you are a chronic dyspeptic just try an ounce of plain calcined magnesia—not the ordinary commercial carbonate, citrate, oxide or milk but the pure calcined magnesia which you can obtain from a practically any druggist in either powdered or tablet form. Take a teaspoonful of the powder or two compressed tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous harmful acid in your stomach which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and the bloated or heavy lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat.

You will find that after you take a little bisulated magnesia immediately after a meal, you can eat almost anything, and enjoy it without any danger of pain or discomfort to follow and moreover, the continued use of the bisurated magnesia will help your stomach in a few way so long as there are any symptoms of acid indigestion.

A Coated Tongue? What it Means

A bad breath, coated tongue, and taste in the mouth, languor and debility are usually signs that the liver is out of order. Prof. Hixson says: "The liver is a vital organ secondary in importance only to the heart."

We can manufacture poisons within our own bodies which are as deadly as a snake's venom.

The liver acts as a guard over our well-being, sifting out the elodens and ashes from the general circulation.

A blockade in the intestines piles a heavy burden upon the liver. If the intestines are choked or clogged up, the circulation of the blood becomes poisoned and the system becomes loaded with toxic-waste, and we suffer from headache, yellow-coated tongue, bad taste in mouth, nausea, or gas, acid dyspepsia, languor, debility, yellow skin or eyes. At such times one should take castor oil or a pleasant laxative. Such a one is made of Mayapple, leaves of aloe and jalap, put into ready-to-use form by Doctor Pierce, nearly fifty years ago, and sold for 25 cents by all druggists as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

New Superspeed Boat

Yachtsmen of the country will be watching Cleveland next spring for what is promised as the greatest surprise the speed merchants have ever had furnished them, a Cleveland dispatch says. Locnt motorboat exhaust auts are grouping to build a power boat this winter that will develop a speed of 80 miles an hour or so, according to H. J. Walker, manufacturer of parts for Liberty motors.

The new craft, to be called Miss Cleveland, will be launched and tuned up in plenty of time for the national and international races of 1920, it is promised. She will get her power from two Liberty motors, according to Walker's plans.

"If she doesn't make at least 75 miles an hour she won't be worth anything to me and she might as well be scrapped," Walker said. "We expect Miss Cleveland will have, at an 80 mile clip when she's sent against those silver speed-cat marvels—Miss Minneapolis, Miss Detroit III and Miss Pe-Wee, Jr."

FASHION'S FANCIES

A frock of buff organdie is stitched effectively in green.

Quaint frocks of English prints are trimmed simply by bands of plain white braid.

Gray and black printed voiles are effective for the morning.

White organdie and black velvet appear together, even in capes.

A dress of almond green satin is faintly embroidered in silver.

An ermine muff is trimmed in white and red has three buckled belts.

Heavy black silk jersey suits accentuated with tan colored silk.

Evening gowns have a new ruler, very low fronts and very high backs.

All lace frocks are being shown a color.

Flaked taffeta ruchings are being introduced.

Lace and chiffon parasols are worn with lace and georgette.

Clock feathers are still the best liked decoration for small hats.

Many of the extremely low necks are now being veiled with tulle.

WHY DO WE SLEEP?

There Is Much Yet to Be Known About It.

Some of the most usual things are also the most wonderful, but just because they are familiar it never occurs to us how wonderful they really are.

In all the complex arrangements and inter-workings that go to make up human life, there is, perhaps, none more remarkable than that by which at regular intervals our consciousness is blotted out, the activities of our bodies and minds cease, and sleep takes possession thereof. Yet since this miracle happens in the ordinary course of life it is the wonder of it never strikes us. We do not stop to inquire on it and to ask what is it that happens when life is thus almost completely interrupted.

Why do we sleep, and more, why do we wake again?

Like most natural phenomena that appear so simple the explanation is hidden from us. The physiologist tells us that sleep is a "synaptic dissociation of neurons." It may be, but we are not much the wiser for that. What if we know both what is a neuron and what happens to it when it is synaptically dissociated. No, we do not know just what sleep is nor why it happens.

It may be thought that sleep happened because the circulation of blood through the brain grew so feeble that this, the seat of consciousness, could work no longer and sleep took the place. Many years ago, indeed, a surgeon studying the subject noticed a falling circulation of the brain through a hole in the skull of a living animal. Yet this is only effect, not cause. The brain has less blood because it sleeps; it does not sleep because it has less blood.

Only recently it has been thought that during the active day we "make," by the activity of our muscles, a poison which has the peculiar action of deadening mental action. This gradually accumulates in us till by the time that sleep is due at night, the brain is overpowered. This argument is supported by the familiar

Starting Something.

The household was comparatively quiet when the ten-year-old son looked up from the last page of a recent issue of the News and inquired of both parents sitting near: "What's funny about this here 'Abe Martin?' 'There's never anything t' eat in a home where th' wife is on an allowance.'" "The joke, my son," his father replied, "is that instead of spending the allowance for eats, the wife blows it in for clubs, clothes, study and conversion." "Oh, son," said the mother, "the fact is that the allowance is not large enough to provide a hotel menu, though the men seem to think it is. And that is no joke, either."—Indianapolis News.

Bullet in Brain Twenty Years.

After living for 20 years with a bullet in his brain, Edgar Wilgus, an insurance broker of Trenton, N. J., was killed by a shot fall on the granite steps of a New York hotel. The medical examiner, discovering the bullet in the man's brain, thought at first that he had been unaccountably shot, but learned by telephoning to his home how long he had carried the bullet in his head.

The Dawn In Belgian Africa.

The time has been when news from Darkest Africa in the Congo region was dark indeed; but the present and the future of the tribes that embrace, all told, something like 5,000,000 human beings, scattered over a tropical territory almost as large as Europe, looks full of promise as one reads the report of Mr. Frank Belgian Minister of the Colonies, covering the period of the war and laying out a program for the future. During the war there has been practically no trade in the Belgian Congo, probably as a result of the lines adopted by the administration, for any idea of forcing the natives into an uncongenial mold has been abandoned, and the country is being governed by adapting methods to local conditions. "Not only must we decentralize our administrative organization," runs the report, "but we must continue to study and make the best possible use of native institutions, respecting and developing them in all respects, even if they offend our customs and moral conceptions, so long as they do not offend against the essential principles of humanity and justice." Economically and industrially, the Congo may reasonably become important and prosperous in accordance with these essential fundamentals. One may hope to hear far different and better things from the Belgian Congo than we have had in the past.

Da Vinci Thought of Tank.

Italy has just celebrated the fourth centenary of Leonardo da Vinci's death. His name has often been mentioned during the war and his prophetic genius revalled. It is known that he intended to build airplanes for war purposes, but it is now claimed also that he was the first to think of the tank. In his letters to Il Moro he speaks of armored cars which could shelter the occupants and drive right amongst the enemy's masses, slaying and shattering all opposition. It is unfortunate that more is not known of Leonardo's intentions, and of the way in which he proposed to propel his craft. Horses might possibly have been intended, for if a horse could carry less weight than the armored motor, protection in those days was more easily got than now. But it is certainly very regular to read that his cars were to charge ahead while the infantry would follow behind—for this is exactly what happened four hundred years after his death. —Manchester Guardian.

SMYRNA.

The Place In Asia Where the Rags Come From.

Turkey are making vigorous protest against the mandatory intrusted to Greece over Smyrna. Smyrna, too often known only to the Western peoples, as the place where the rags come from, though they do not, vies with Damascus in the claim to being the oldest city of the world. One of the seven cities of the Christian Church in Asia Minor, it is among the seven cities that claim Homer. You will recall the lines:

"Seven wealthy towns contend from Homer sprung
Through which the living Homer begged with tongue."

It has passed through all the cycles of the average city's history time and time again, at one period having a government which suggests that of the Russian Soviets, and it has survived earthquakes, plagues and destructive wars.

Its known history runs back to a thousand years B.C., and it may have flourished in the unrecorded ages before that remote time for all that written history connotes. The Aeolians preceded the Greeks, who made it an Ionian centre of art, trade and culture. It had declined and all but fallen when Alexander, after taking Sardis, returned it from the hands of the Lydias and, acting upon a suggestion said to have been inspired by a dream, decided to restore it. It also fell under Roman, Mongol and, finally, Turkish dominion.

It was under the Romans that the ones proud city was split into a series of communities, which effectively led the political and military life of the state, so that the dean among Grecian cities cut little figure in the golden era of Hellenic culture.

The new Smyrna, as rebuilt by Alexander, was moved about three miles south of the older site which was to the normans the site of the locked gulf of the same name. Neighbor between the two Smyrnas is

Erzberger Is Assailed

REVELATIONS are the order of the day in Germany. During the last few weeks almost every major statesman of the Fatherland hurled a rhetorical or journalistic hand grenade or two right into the reputation of his neighbor, and some of them scored regular hits, with the audience wildly applauding. The fun started on July 25, when, in the National Assembly at Weimar, the Conservative representative, von Graefe, staged, as the Koinische Zeitung puts it, a dashing cavalry charge against the Government, and in particular against its supposedly weakest defence; that is, the person of the Vice-Premier and Minister of Finances, Erzberger. He said that the forces backing the present Government were largely responsible for Germany's breakdown in the war and attacked Erzberger for ruining the German treasury. The Koinische Zeitung reports: "All that which in the course of time had been charged against the balance sheet of the revolution was industriously collected and dished up by Graefe."

Ever since the signing of the Peace Treaty there were rumors that the Conservatives, or, as they now call themselves, German Nationals, would start a general offensive against the Government, attempting to fix its entire blame for the disastrous outcome of the war on the men who went to Versailles, and thus shielding the Junker politicians and generals really responsible for the catastrophe. The objective of such a campaign was, according to the press friendly to the Government, to discredit the coalition of majority Socialists, Democrats and Centrists and pave the way for a Conservative and counter revolutionary victory at the next elections.

One of the first big shots was fired by Count Botho Wedel, the former German Ambassador at Vienna, who, in an article published in the Hamburger Nachrichten, brought a series of grave charges against the Vice-Premier and Minister of Finance, Matthias Erzberger. Count Wedel's article dealt chiefly with Erzberger's famous peace visit to Vienna in 1917, and proceeded to prove, first, that the enterprise of the Centrist statesman had lacked authorization; second, that by indiscretly communicating to the Entente Count Czernin's confidential report about the desperate situation of Austria Erzberger wrecked the prospects of a favorable peace.

Count Czernin's report, Count Wedel alleges, which was forwarded to the Kaiser's headquarters at Homburg by Count Ledochowski, was intended "to shatter the German Government's confidence in a favorable outcome and to induce Germany to make a peace of concessions, thereby acknowledging defeat." Count Wedel continues:

"On a visit to Homburg the Emperor Charles and Count Czernin suggested that Germany should return Alsace-Lorraine to France. Austria, it was said, was ready to yield territory to Jolo Galicia, considered lost at any event, to Poland, and to cede Poland with Galicia to the German sphere of influence.

"A German General Headquarters this report did not make the impression desired by the Austrians, chiefly because of its exaggerations.

"An article published on July 7 of this year in the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung spread the impression that Chancellor Bethmann-Hollweg had, in April, 1917, confided the contents of Count Czernin's report to Erzberger and sent him to Vienna with the purpose of bucking up the Emperor Charles and preventing a precipitate peace action, an errand successfully executed by Herr Erzberger.

"I understand now that Herr von Bethmann-Hollweg denies that he ever communicated the contents of Czernin's report to Erzberger. Such confidence, I may add, would have been inexplicable on his part.

"Herr von Bethman-Hollweg also denies the allegation that it was he who sent Erzberger to Vienna. Erzberger was no secretly sent special mission, as the German Embassy in Vienna and the Austro-Hungarian Embassy in Berlin were at the Chancellor's disposal."

Count Wedel now turns to an exposure of Erzburger's methods. The Centrist leader, he charges, frequently undertook, during the war, trips abroad. He did so on his own initiative, but in each instance he called, before leaving Berlin, at the Chancellery or Foreign Office, with the purpose of gathering information.

Erzberger got acquainted with the contents of Count Czernin's report on a visit to Vienna, Count Wedel says, and continues:

"It was both for Berlin and Vienna a most painful surprise when one day a discussion of Count Czernin's report was published in a Rhineland newspaper. It appeared that Erzberger had made use of the report in a meeting held, if I am not mistaken, at Frankfort-on-Main."

Wedel found his match, however, in the shrewd Centrist politician who answered with a long and unusually bitter indictment of Conservative strategy and policies. "Whatever charges Graefe had made against the revolution now were hurled back by Erzberger at the German-National party," the Koinische Zeitung says. It was the famous speech, extensively reported in the cables, in which the one-time peace mediator told about the efforts of England in 1917 to obtain peace through the good services of the Pope—attempts which foundered on the uncompromising attitude of the German war lords. Erzberger named Lord Northcliffe, Imperial Chancellor Michaelis and Gen. Ludendorff as the persons chiefly responsible for the failure of the peace move.

The entire crew of the coal steamer Homer, of Toronto, is now officially reported lost.

Ontario's total last night in Victory Loan was over fifty-two million dollars.

Fame of the Racehorses, Like That of Mankind, Often Ends in Tragedy

THE news that Wool-Winder, who won the St. Leger a dozen years ago, is to-day pulling a barge on a Rouen canal, recalls the fate of many another famous racehorse whose career has ended in tragedy or retirement, says Answers.

St. Claude, winner of the Grand Steeplechase at Auteuil in 1890, ended his days at the Pantin stables, where he was used for the production of serum; and George Frederick, after winning the Derby, proved a hopeless failure at the stud, lost his sight, and spent his closing years on a Canadian farm.

Silvio, winner of the "Blue Riband" in 1877, had the misfortune to break a leg in his sixteenth year, and a merciful bullet put him out of his misery; and Klarikoff, for whom Lord Vivecent paid £5,000, in the conviction that he would win the Derby, was returning to his training quarters at Malton when a spark from the engine set fire to his box, and he was burned to death.

Blue Gown, hero of the 1868 Derby, after changing hands for £4,000, was sold for £4,000 to an American owner, and was started on his voyage across the Atlantic, but he never reached the other side, for he died in mid-ocean—a fate which also overtook Kingcraft, winner of the Derby two years later.

Pitzroy, for a half-share in whom Sir Frederick Johnstone paid £4,000, broke down so badly in a race at Newmarket that he had to be destroyed; and the great Donovan Derby winning the enormous sum of £55,-513 in stake for the Duke of Portland, injured himself so seriously, by dashing into a tree while running loose in his paddock, that Mr. H. Moore ordered his destruction.

Galopin, Jl., who won the Grand National for the Prince of Wales in 1876, stepped dead after galloping exercise at the Curragh; and Victor Wild, after a career of unsampled popularity, was attacked by paralysis, which compelled his owner to put an end to his sufferings.

But while some race horses thus reach the pinnacle of equine fame, only to end in tragedy and disgrace, there are many others who ride from obscurity to brilliant careers, and close their days with an honorable and honored old age.

Godolphin, ancestor of the famous Eclipse, spent his early years between the shafts of a Paris watercart; and Spring Children, the finest horse of his century in the opinion of many, was rescued to fame from the shafts of a country mail-cart, in which he had been doing useful, if obscure, work for years.

Chandler, hero of the Grand National of 1848, was bought from the stable of a small farmer, who was glad to get rid of the "ugly brute" for a few pounds; and Salamander, winner in 1865, was discovered "in a wretched condition in an Irish hovel."

Deadlock, dam of the famous Isinglass, was taken by Capt. Machell from the shafts of a farmer's gig, in exchange for a cart-colt; and Throstle, who defeated Ladas so sensationally in the St. Leger, was born with a thick film over his eyes; and, after being refused as a free gift by a friend of his owner, Lord Arlington, was ordered to be shot, a sentence which happily was not carried out.

Toddington, who was destined to win the Derby, was picked up as a three months' foal in a village blacksmith's stable; and Queen of the Rose, before coming into the hands of the Duke of Beaufort, was exchanged in her early years once for a bag of corn, and again for a stick of hay.

Salamander, who put £30,000 in Mr. Studd's pocket by winning the Grand National, was hawked about to one country fair after another, until at last a purchaser was willing to risk £25 on him; and The Widow, who romped away with the Cambridgeshire, and won £49,000 in bets for her owner, Mr. Leigh, was so little thought of by her first owner that he made a present of her to his bailiff, who was delighted when he succeeded in exchanging her for a £10-note.

He Obeyed His Wife.

An amusing story is told by a woman who was at Bournemouth on the occasion of the recent visit of the King and Queen, says the Toronto Mail and Empire. It happened when Cadbury was showing them round his model village. Mr. Cadbury is not young, and the day was not a very warm one. "Put you hat on, Mr. Cadbury," said the queen, considerate as usual. "I will not, ma'am," said the manufacturer, respectfully but firmly. Then the queen turned to the king with "Will you please command Mr. Cadbury to put on his hat?" The king at once directed Mr. Cadbury to be covered, adding: "It is a royal command." Still he would not put on his hat. With true feminine resource the queen then tackled Mrs. Cadbury. "Your husband will not obey a royal command to put on his hat," she said. "Will you tell him to?" "Put your hat on, George," said Mrs. Cadbury, and on he had spoke.

A Gentlemen-'s Game.

Two golf fiends—an Englishman and a Scot—were playing a round together. After the first hole the Englishman said: "How many did you take?" "Eight," replied the Scot. "Oh! I only took seven so it's my hole!" exclaimed the Englishman triumphantly. After the second hole the Englishman put the same question again. But the Scot smiled knowingly: "Na, na, ma man," said he, "It's ma turn tae ask first."

TIMES HAVE CHANGED.

The Trips of Columbus and the R-34 Contrasted.

They had to bribe men in the earliest and timorous days of Columbus to ship for its first Atlantic trip. Sailing towards the edge of a perfectly flat earth had no particular charms, even for criminals and jailbirds, so those who were offered indemnity if they would go. Life imprisonment, to safety, seemed better—high adventure terminated at any moment with a sudden, cataclysmic death.

That was 427 years ago. Now there is no need to call for criminals to make the first Atlantic trips in the air. They had to turn men away from the crew at the R-34, on the first voyage by lighter-than-air machine, and even then one stowaway got himself aboard and made the trip. The idea was to keep the tremendously inflammable light as possible. And so, with all this eagerness for flying, the R-34's crew was smaller than the crew of the Santa Maria, which consisted of "a lot of ignorant and fearful men, who had no idea just why they went, or where." On the three ships together, the Encyclopedia Britannica says, there were 88 men, 52 on the sailing ship Santa Maria, which Columbus commanded himself, and 18 spices on the caravels Pinta and Nina.

It took just as small a bobbing Spanish fleet just seventy days to make its trip, and the R-34 took only four and a half; and one might suppose that the longer would have been more tedious, and the shorter, far more miraculous and joyful. But, if the attitudes of two individuals can be taken as at all representative, there is no wonder the flight of the dirigible to compare with that which composed about on every side of the Santa Maria, the Pinta and the Nina. Columbus wrote the one diary, and Commander E. M. Maitland, R., J. C. Shotter, the engineer officer of the R-34, kept the other, and the impression gleaned from the latter was that transatlantic crossings in the air will be very boring to be endured unless some unusual and refreshing form of recreation is thought up for blase travellers. Even the log-book, that last bulwark of sanity, says he, and it's a weary life above the fog and "there was a wonderful sunrise one morning, though with cloud reflections of a purplish hue, which would at least be a little distraction from the cloudy monotony for prospective passengers on transatlantic voyages," says he, with a gleam of hope.

It was different, and very wonderful, at least to Commander Maitland, who had an eye out for the roundness of the earth, from August 2 to October 12, in 1492. But in the recipient disappointments about land, and the terrific boredom of which even the wonder was so great as to amount to fear) could not dispel the rare magnificence of the nights and days or the almost unearthly strangeness of the things which happened. The passengers, for the R-34, the trouble was, knew the whole earth is round. It was not for them a mystery to be solved by faith.

In the first place there was the weather. It acted peculiarly—almost peculiarly than any one had supposed it would—on the simple seamen's way to Asia. It was on September 13 that Columbus's "variation of the magnetic needle" was noticed, and from then on even the stupidity of unlimited sea-room did not dull the acuteness of that trip. Every day some odd and splendid thing occurred. A meteor fell on September 16 only four days after they had left Spain; there were the vast plains of seaweed and the "temperate breeze," and the weather was sweet and balmy, like, so Columbus said, "an Andalusian April," with only the song of the nightingale not there to make it perfect.

On the 18th there were birds and a few pieces of cloud. But the real signs of land did not come until October 6, when the Pinta picked up a cane, a pole and a stick which seemed to be wrought with iron, a board and a branch covered over with berries. "And with these signs all the men rejoiced and were glad."

There was a demonstration of thankfulness and joy when once they got to land which only men of Southern Europe could have staged. They wept and knelt and prayed and kissed the banners for the Catholic majesties of Castile and of Leon, and for themselves. The R-34 came from Northern Europe and there were no tears nor kneelings, so far as has been told. Nor were any flags planted. However, there was a reception done in Anglo-Saxon way, to relieve the officers and crew of all the boredom which attends the long flights in the fog.

How odd that men were so afraid in those timorous days to take a trip of so much wonder; so easy now to fly tediously above the clouds. Fear never much did make any much skin. One's only regret is that the stowaway, who seems to have lost the good sport he kept dark, was in no circumstances to keep a diary of his own!

Air Speeds.

Every airplane has a minimum air speed at which it must be thrust through the air if it is to be maintained aloft, and a maximum speed in excess of which it cannot safely be come-down, for the various components will not stand the strain beyond a certain given point.

Restoring Our Reserve Plant!

A telephone system to be normal and healthy must have a big percentage of its plant in reserve.

There must be spare positions on switchboards, spare cables in underground conduits, spare wires in underground and aerial cables, spare pins on cross-arms.

The plant in reserve must be ample, not only to meet ordinary growth, but to take care of unforeseen development such as the opening of a new car line, the cutting through of a new street, the location of a new industry in a given district.

During the war, through scarcity of material and skilled labor, our reserve plant was depleted as never before. Even necessary maintenance and repair work had to be postponed. Delays in installations were inevitable.

The present problem is to get our reserve plant back where it should be and to overtake vital maintenance and repairs. This must be done while meeting pressing demands for new telephones. Then in turn call for new buildings, new switchboards, new conduits, aerial and underground cable, new local and long distance lines.

Our outlay for the year will be upwards of $7,000,000.

We are striving to keep our service up to the best pre-war standard, while at the same time meeting the demands of this busy reconstruction period.

Telephone workers, loyal and faithful as they are, appreciate the courtesy and kindly co-operation of our subscribers, who can help greatly by making sure of the number by consulting the directory before calling; by speaking distinctly, directly into the mouthpiece, and by always answering promptly when the telephone bell rings.

AN INTERESTING WAR RECORD

The latest addition to the great fleet of C. P. O. S. Steamships which ply between Canada and practically all the important ports of call in the world is the "Empress of France," before the war popularly known as the S.S. "Alsatian" and one of the ocean greyhounds between Canada and Liverpool. The vessel has been reconditioned since the war ceased and recently completed her maiden trip to Quebec under her new name. The photographs here reproduced give an adequate description of her interior arrangements and fittings, and will compare favorably with the great Leviathans in this respect. The "Empress of France" has a length of 600 ft.; beam 72 ft.; depth (to D. deck) 54 ft. 6 in.; and a tonnage of 18,000 gross. A striking peculiarity is the cruiser's stern, which imparts a warlike appearance to the vessel. Her war record is one to be proud of.

Proclamation immediately on her arrival at the Port of Liverpool, midnight on the 5th August 1914. After completion of discharge, the entire removal of all passenger accommodation and other woodwork, she was armed with 8-6 in. guns, commissioned and manned by a naval crew under the command of Captain V. Phillimore, D.S.O., and was attached to the 10th Cruiser Squadron on northern patrol duty, sailing from Liverpool on August 15th, at which port she has been based during the entire period of her Commission.

From August to December 1914, she remained as above stated, but in December she was made Flag Ship of the Squadron to which she was attached, and Vice-Admiral Sir Dudley R. S. De Chair, K.C.B., M.V.O., hoisted his flag, which flew up to March 1916, when he was succeeded by Admiral Sir Reginald G. Tupper, K.C.B., C.V.O., who was succeeded in November 1918 by Rear-Admiral C. W. Keighley Peach, under whose flag she terminated her commission as an Armed Cruiser.

The Squadron to which she was attached, and later became Flagship of, consisted of 24 vessels, the majority of which were Armed Mercantile Cruisers. The duties of the Squadron consisted of the stopping of vessels, boarding them and examining their papers, and should on examination they prove to be at all of a suspicious nature, a Naval Officer was placed in charge and they were taken into a United Kingdom port for closer examination. This similarly applied to any members of the passengers or crew, as each and everyone had to give a satisfactory explanation as to their nationality and business. Available records show that in all the Squadron intercepted some 16,000 vessels, but it is impossible to state how many of these proved to be engaged in work hostile to the Allies interests.

In the early part of 1916, circumstances permitted of the 10th Cruiser Squadron being considerably reduced in numbers, and vessels so engaged being allocated to Convoy Protection Duty, the "Alsatian" figuring amongst the number and being stationed on the North Atlantic route in such capacity. While so engaged she escorted nine convoys of about 20 vessels each, carrying an estimated number of troops per convoy of 20,000, principally Americans.

While engaged on Convoy Escort duties the "Alsatian" also carried troops and cargo, the number of former per voyage being about 600, and the weight of cargo per voyage between 2,000 and 2,000 tons. She made her last voyage on Government Service in November 1918, sailing from Liverpool on the 14th, and reckoned at that port on December 11th 1918, having steamed a total distance on Government Service of 266,741 miles and consumed 170,571 tons of coal.

On January 17th 1919, she left for Glasgow, having been placed in the hands of her Builders—Messrs. Fairfield Shipbuilding & Co.—by the Admiralty for reconditioning, being redelivered to the C. P. O. S. at the Port of Liverpool on Thursday, September 25th, and sailed for Quebec on Friday, September 26th, Captain Cook, her Captain when War broke out, was given the rank of Commander R.N.R., and acted in that capacity, which was of an advisory nature, under both Vice-Admiral Sir Dudley R. S. De Chair, K.C.B., M.V.O., and Admiral Sir Reginald G. Tupper, K.C.B., C.V.O., and was granted the D.S.O. for services rendered. During [illegible] Captain Cook at the same time as Admiral Tupper was succeeded by Rear-Admiral C. W. Keighley Peach. Captain Cook was appointed Flag Captain, and created a commission as Captain [illegible] and now commands the vessel.
